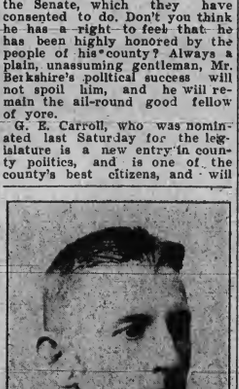
No. votes for representative					1,356



The primary election held in this county last Saturday was a very quiet affair, only about 1,500 of the Democrats going to the polls. The canvass by the local candidates had been conducted on a high plane, no unnecessary excitement having resulted at any time during its progress. Only a few of the candidates for nominations for State offices had been in the county, and their visits did not result in any enthusiasm on the part of the voters.

Hon. John W. Berkshire, who was nominated last Saturday by the Democrats of this county to represent the senatorial district composed of Boone, Gallatin and Owen counties in the State Senate for four years, beginning January 1, 1912, has accomplished a fete unprecidented in the political history of the county. On the first day of next January Mr. Berkshire's second term of two years as member of the Lower House will expire when he at once becomes a member of the State Senate, and at the expiration of his term of four years there he will have been in the legislative harness for eight consecutive years. There are only a few instances in which a person once elected to represent Boone county in the legislature has been able to succeed himself, but Mr. Berkshire not only succeeded himself in that office but asked his people to go a step farther and send him to the Senate, which they have consented to do. Don't you think he has a right to feel that he has been highly honored by the people of his county? Always a plain, unassuming gentleman, Mr. Berkshire's political success will not spoil him, and he will remain the all-round good fellow of yore.

HON. J. W. BERKSHIRE

G. E. Carroll, who was nominated last Saturday for the legislature is a new entry in county politics, and is one of the county's best citizens, and will serve the people in a most faithful and conscientous manner, and when he retires from office will receive the plaudit: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant." Mr. Carroll is comparatively a young man with well balanced ideas pertaining to business matters, and is quick to grasp business propositions, and will soon take rank as one of the best members of the House, and will add another to Boone's long list of honest and capable representatives in the General Assembly.

HON. G. E. CARROLL.

The excessively hot weather the past week is beginning to show its effects on the growing vegetation, which is needing rain in every part of the county. In some localities in this county the crops are looking bad, and are very much in need of rain.

Broke Up A Camp.

Last Sunday as Sheriff B. B. Hume was making a trip along the county's river front, in search of Thomas Snow, who escaped from jail that morning, he came upon a camp just above the Lawrenceburg ferry, which, from its general appearance satisfied him it was arranged especially for the sale of intoxicants, and for gambling purposes. Quite a crowd of men from across the river were present to participate in the day's amusement, many of whom hastened to their boat and struck out for the Indiana shore as soon as they ascertained that Mr. Hume was the sheriff of Boone county. The evidence was not sufficient to authorize an arrest on a charge of selling intoxicating drinks or gambling, therefore the officer only read the riot act to those who remained in camp long enough to hear it. He informed the party in charge that he intended to look after the camp, and the next time he visited it if it presented such a suspicious appearance that he would arrest everyone present and take them to the jail in Burlington. If the people whom Sheriff Hume put to flight last Sunday desire to camp on Kentucky soil they must conform their conduct to Kentucky laws. If they do not Sheriff Hume will pounce upon them some Sunday when least expected and pull every last one of them.

THE DOG CAME BACK

Act of Duplicity "Got ing," as the Slang Phrase Says.

Schenley Farms district rate man, who is on the a small, freckled boy with green cap. And woe that boy if he is caught, which probably will not be. The man has what passes for one in the eye of his wife. It is one of those leggy and bedraggled-looking hyoodles with a peevish disposition and a mop of hair hanging in its eyes. It is the gift of his wife's mother and, to his wife, is all that a dog could or should be.

It was when the gentleman in question came one morning upon a small freckle-faced youngster with a funny little green cap, playing with the dog, that an inspiration came to him.

"Say, boy," he ventured, "would you like to own that dog?"

"Wot, me?" replied the boy. "I wouldn't take him for a gift."

"But," said the man, "he seems to like you, and I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll give you a quarter if you sneak away with him and lose him somewhere. But be careful that my wife doesn't see you or she'll skin you alive."

"I'm on," said the kid, and, clutching the coin and the dog he darted away, while the man proceeded to his office with a light heart.

Evening came and the man returned to his home. At the threshold he was greeted by a shrill yelp, and there stood his pet aversion with a brand new ribbon at its throat.

"O, James," cooed his wife. "What do you think! Poor little Fluffy was lost all day. I was worried nearly sick. And then a little boy brought him back. The dearest little chap, with a freckled face and a funny little green cap. He found him away downtown, and I gave him a dollar for his trouble."—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

TAKING NO CHANCES.

Uncle—We are now about to enter the gallery of the senate.

Silas Haywick—Wait a minute, mister, till I hide my watch and money.

Timely Interruption.

Mrs. Benham had just seated herself to work at a bit of embroidery that required particular care and attention, when there came a ring at the telephone. "I just know that's Mrs. Gummy," she said, as she laid down her work and went to answer the call. "Whenever I am unusually busy and haven't any time to spare she rings me up and talks to me by the hour."

She was right. It was Mrs. Gummy, who was fully as talkative as ever. She began with a long story and when fairly in the middle of it the clock on the wall of the room began to strike.

"Wait a moment," interposed Mrs. Benham. "I can't hear you until this noise stops."

"What made that noise?" asked Mrs. Gummy, after it had ceased.

"It was only the clock," answered the patient Mrs. Benham. "You know it always strikes once or twice when we get to talking."

The conversation did not last long after that.—Youth's Companion.

Made It Clear.

Jim had never learned to read by the ordinary method, the face of the old eight-day clock that pleased his long-time employer, however, to ask him the hour and hear his answers.

"Jim, what time does the old clock say?" he asked one evening, when he had callers. "Step out in the hall and see."

Jim was gone several minutes, but returned with a beaming face.

"Ah—Ah—waited jes' a minute to see which'd get ahead, de sho't one or de long one," he said. "W'en I went dey was bofe on de lef' han' winder place, sah. But de long one, she crep it up good an' likely w'en she see she was watching out, an' now she's 'bout a inch ahead, sah."—Youth's Companion.

Wonderful!

"You can talk all you want of finding gold in the chowder," said the native, "but I'll bet beans in the soup and coffee beans in the coffee is what do you think has happened to me?"

"Can't say."

"Found a mushroom in the vermicelli spaghetti."

A Purist.

"Father of your parents, sir!"

"Ma'am, Ma has been sitting at the window and has gone for an officer on his horse."—Judge.

FARM NOTES.

Be careful of your feed with all stock.

Drainage is a necessary foundation for a good road.

Gapes can be cured by fumigating the chicken with sulphur.

Select your cockerels to overcome the shortcomings of your hens.

Baked potatoes occasionally fed to the chicks are relished by them.

Butter fat seems to absorb more moisture when comparatively warm.

Many growers think there is more money in raspberries than strawberries.

Sunshine is a great purifier; allow it free access in the barn whenever possible.

Milk is very susceptible to filth and disease, and care must be exercised in handling it.

The cow that does not yield a profit at the pail eats just about as much as the cow that does.

Don't plant any flowers in straight rows except hollyhocks or sunflowers, or plants for borders.

The one cry against the general practice of dairy farming is that it requires too much labor.

The well ventilated barn will be more comfortable on the coldest day than one poorly ventilated.

Twenty acres of corn put into the silo is worth more in feeding a dairy herd than 30 acres in the crib.

Don't forget about the lice these days, when the hens are shut up a good part of the day and night.

There is a best temperature for each individual lot of cream, but this can be determined only by experience.

If the man who has no silo would watch his neighbor feed and watch the results he would soon have one.

Do not neglect to use these days when the ground is frozen hard to dress the land liberally with manure.

A hill of potatoes stripped by bugs, or on which the leaves are injured by blight, cannot give a satisfactory yield.

Whitewashing or painting the interior of the cow stable is advisable and does not bring a burden upon the dairyman.

Place no reliance in the theory that breeds contaminate by simply seeing a different variety on the other side of the fence.

Unless the dairy farmer really knows a good dairy cow when he sees one, he should not attempt to build up a dairy herd.

There is a tradition that cows will do better in warm weather than in cold weather, but experience has disproved this fact.

The best way to feed straw to horses and mules at work is to reduce it to chaff and mix it with middlings and corn chop.

No animal suffers more readily from intense cold in the winter or more severely from intense heat in the summer than the hog.

Get ahead of the season in all garden work. By and by the rush of other things will come and a part of this work may be neglected.

Plant strawberries as soon as the season will allow. Next year's crop depends upon the start made this season, so strawberry growers say.

To seed down a vegetable garden after the earth has been worked, fined and raked thoroughly, the first needful thing is to level the ground.

The time will soon be here when we shall need seed corn for planting. It is always well to make a selection and have all things ready before planting time.

The cow freshening in the spring will produce a maximum flow of milk during the first couple of spring months because of the ideal conditions of the pastures.

If perches, houses and coops are thoroughly treated now with a good mite destroyer there will be no danger of their making any further trouble until next summer.

Stables should be cleaned carefully daily, and disinfected thoroughly at least twice during the winter season, and always after a case of disease among the animals in the stable.

Don't forget the machinery, the tools and implements that may need a little tinkering with here and there to be put into good working order, so that they may be ready at the first call of the new season and not cause you delay.

It is advisable to gain the bull's confidence and let him know that you are his friend. Be kind, but firm, and always make the bull keep his place. Never take any chances, by getting careless, and never fight a bull unless you want trouble.

Summer Care of Orchards.

In a season of drouth like that thru which Kentucky and adjacent states have recently been passing, the production of our orchards as well as our staple field crops is subject to a very serious reduction through lack of sufficient soil moisture to perfect the young orchard fruits.

The methods of avoiding or checking this loss in the orchard are the same in principle as those adopted in producing a full crop or other field crop. The most effective and usually the cheapest plan is to keep up frequent shallow cultivation of the soil with the spike tooth, or Acme harrow, or some other surface working implement.

The necessity of this frequent cultivation is often not so apparent as in the case of field or garden crops, since the foliage of the tree may continue to appear fresh and green while it is still unable to secure enough moisture to meet the additional demands of the growing fruit. Under these conditions much of the fruit drops while small, and that which remains fails to develop to normal size and quality.

On tthe other hand well authenticated instances are recorded where large and profitable peach crops have been secured in a time of drouth of more than a month's duration, by an almost daily working of the soil, when surrounding fruit farms have produced no crop worth marketing.

Under ordinary conditions the frequent cultivation of the early summer should be followed in July or early August by the sowing of some winter cover crop, such as cowpeas, soy beans, oats or rye, to be turned under early the following spring.

The persistent surface cultivation suggested above can of course be effectively carried out only when the orchard has previously been plowed and harrowed in the spring.

If the orchard is in grass, or weeds, some relief from the effects of drouth may be had by cutting this growth and spreading it under the trees as far as the branches extend, adding also any straw, grass, weeds or other vegetable matter that may be secured from other parts of the farm. This latter plan, persisted, in from year to year, constitutes the "sod mulch system" and has been rather widely adopted in recent years by apple growers, as a substitute for the somewhat more orthodox method of surface cultivation followed by the winter cover crops. It is especially suited to rough or hilly lands where a system of thorough cultivation is not practicable, but some of its most enthusiastic and successful advocates are located on comparatively level lands in our neighboring State of Ohio.

In apple growing districts which have been affected with the brown or bitter rot of the fruit, spraying with the Bordeaux mixture should still be continued at two weeks intervals as a means of holding these troublesome diseases in check.

Investigating the River Water.

The State Board of Health will begin a sanitary survey of the Ohio River Monday, June 18. The work will be under the charge of Jay Cravens, Water Chemist and Sanitary Engineer of the Board. The surveying party of three will have a motor and a houseboat and will begin their measurements and tests at the Ohio boundary line and apply them throughout the entire length of Indiana's water front. The survey will take cognizance of the chemical composition, character of the matters causing turbidity and microbe life of the river water; accurate measurements will be made of the quantity of pollution from cities, towns and of wastes from industrial plants; and by analysis the chemical character of such pollution will be determined. The houseboat will be fitted with a laboratory so that the analyses and tests can be made of fresh samples. Charts and maps necessary to illustrate the work will be made, and when the survey is finished, the State Board of Health expects to be in possession of facts which will be invaluable in studying health and disease in its relation to the inhabitants of the counties bordering on the Ohio. Next year the Board will make a like survey of the Wabash. Dr. Hurty says, "The present antipollution stream law passed in 1909, has been found very faulty in the courts, and before much progress can be made in preserving the streams from pollution, some amendments of the present laws must be secured. The amount of damage to public health and to property resulting from stream pollution is very great, and it is to be deeply deplored that the law intended to lessen this loss is so faulty.—Rising Sun Local.

Some steamboat owners evidently seem to think that people never get tired of the same old thing. Take for instance the Hattie Brown. This boat has been running constantly for over 20 years, with the same name, whistle, etc. We are of the same opinion as a great many others and think it is time the old Hattie Brown should be sent to the boneyard and a new boat with a new name, new whistle and everything complete be built to take her place.

Last week it was dope the politicians were considering, this week they are pondering over results.

Live Stock Notes.

Do not feed corn to the breeding sows; it is too heating.

Pigs that are carelessly weaned are likely to be given quite a setback.

The sheepfold should be liberally bedded and the bedding should be changed often.

For horses at hard or fast work in the summer time, clover hay may prove too laxative.

In order that sows may use oats to the best advantage they should by all means be ground.

If the silage has been properly put in, there is no reason why it should not keep through the summer.

After pigs are weaned, one of the most common causes of runts is the feeding of a straight corn diet.

Peas should be well podded before hogs are turned in, after that stage they may be hogged off with profit.

For stallions, brood mares, young horses, and horses at light work, good quality clover or alfalfa hay can not be excelled.

Silage is very nearly as cheap as pasture and in composition, is practically the same, pound for pound, as timothy pasture.

Peas alone make a valuable pasture for hogs, although the hogs should not be turned in on the crop as soon as either cattle or sheep.

Corn silage is an excellent feed for steers on account of its succulence and palatability, and because of its comparative richness in carbohydrates and fat.

In preventing and treating all diseases of young pigs, it is well in addition to giving feed of the best quality, to allow plenty of exercise, sunshine, and pure air.

To check scouring in the pigs it is recommended to give sow two or three teaspoonfuls of tincture of opium or place a few drops on the pigs' tongues.

Solves A Deep Mystery.

"I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart," wrote C. B. Rader, of Lewisburg, W. LEGAL NOTICE.

The undersigned hereby gives notice that she has filed a petition in the Probate Court of Hamilton County, Ohio, against The Cincinnati Street Railway Co., said cause being numbered on the Docket of said Court, setting forth that she is the owner of certificate No. 73045 for three shares of capital stock of the par value of $50 each, of The Cincinnati Street Railway Company; that said certificate has been lost or destroyed, and that she is unable to find same. The petition further sets forth that she was the owner of said certificate at the time of its loss or destruction, and that she has not assigned, transferred or disposed of the same, and that the same has not been pledged to any one.

She prays that an order be made by the Probate Court of Hamilton County, Ohio, requiring The Cincinnati Street Railway Co., to issue and deliver to her a new certificate of stock for the original amount and kind of stock represented by the certificate lost or destroyed. The matter above referred to will be for hearing in the Probate Court of Hamilton Co. Ohio, at 10o'clock, a. m., July 20th 1911. CASSIE M. FOULKE

What the Farmers are Doing.

Every battlefield that marks the world's progress, the victory of liberty over tyranny, or right over wrong, has been delurged with the blood of farmers. The farmer evades neither the tax collector nor the recruiting officer. The sons and daughters of farmers are filling the seminaries, colleges and universities of the land, and from farm homes have gone in the past, as they are going now, leaders in science, literature and art, presidents of great universities, the heads of great industrial enterprises and they direct our Government. The typical American today is the farmer, and city life with its bustle and stir, its hurry and rush must be replenished from our rural homes.—Dallas Times-Herald.

Feeding Silage to Cattle.

Indiana and a few other states have set the pace on feeding silage to beef cattle. Purdue a year or two ago opened the eyes of many to this matter by its success. Calling attention to it the Live Stock World says:

Experiments with silage in beef-making at the Iowa Illinois, and Indiana experiment stations during the past winter will lead to one conclusion, viz: That cattle feeders who are able to put up corn silage cannot afford to ignore it as part of the ration. Not only have cheaper gains been made by using silage as roughage than in the case of hay, but gains have been more rapid, especially where the cattle were kept on feed only 90 days. There is a prejudice among beef makers against silage that is not easily eradicated, probably because it is the standby of the dairyman, but prejudice is costly. The new and improved method of handling silage is to let the ear of the corn reach as advanced a stage of maturity as possible without firing the fodder. This silage proposition is worth taking into consideration. Hundreds of satisfied feeders on the upper edge of the corn belt proper, where dent corn frequently fails to mature owing to early frosts are using it. For wintering young cattle its use is tantamount to baving them on pasture. It offers the same feed advantages to the American feeder that roots insure the British flesher.

Sheep and the Weeds.

Here is the experience of the noted Canadian sheep grower, Richard Gibson:

"My first experience with sheep as land cleaners was on an abandoned farm on Long Island, on which grew a quantity of second growth scrub difficult to subdue. We cut down the scrub growth and put on sheep to keep down the following year's sprouts. For the purpose we had Atwood Merinos an imported English sheep of mutton persuasion. The Merinos were infinitely better for the purpose than my English favorites. They continued to work day after day, nibbling here and there wherever a sprout presented itself. The English breeds on the other hand wanted their meals served up by English butlers; give them good grub and all the leisure between meals and they are barons of their order, but work they will not.

"On my present farm, purchased a number of years ago, the pastures were over run with weeds known as the blue weed, called 'blue devil.' One 50 acres was a complete mass of blue flowers, admired by all artists or poets who passed thereby. I doubt if to-day one hundred plants are in flower on these 50 acres. Sheep alone did it, and registered Shropshire at that. The sheep disdain eating this plant until the flowers are in evidence, then they nibble the heart out, flowers and honey—not a bad combination, especially for sheep.

"I believe sheep would eradicate wild mustard if used intelligently for that purpose. That they are very fond of it in two stages of its growth I am convinced. They eat it regularly when very young and again when in blossom. I cannot bear this out from experience with wild mustard, but I do know that in my part of Lincolnshire white mustard was extensively used as a forage plant, more particularly for breeding ewes during the autumn."

Shoeing the Geese.

Round about Maysville, in Kentucky, every autumn, there are still conducted the great "geese drives," similar to the turkey drives for which Kentucky was famous before the Rhode Island gobbler came and took away her title to the prize.

For these "drives" the drover will arrange months ahead, often even in the spring time, going over the turnpikes and finding from each farmer, how many geese he will expect to sell in the fall. For these he bargains at so much per pound, or per head.

When, then, the due season comes, the drover begins at the farthest point up the road. The geese, counted and paid for, are driven into the highway. Boys, hired for the work, drive them by easy stages to the next farm. Meanwhile the buyer has gone ahead, done his weighing and reckoning, and perhaps to chase the geese to the gate, awaiting the flock. Then they are admitted into the highway to join these. And so it goes on and on, the white mass of birds gaining in size like an on-coming snow-ball.

In sections the continental custom of "shoeing the geese" is still preserved. That is to say, as these marches may consume days, the geese's feet will wear down, the fowls suffer, and they lose in plumpness and value in proportion. So, before starting, a bed of tar is prepared, in the farm-yard, and just beyond it, a bed of fine gravel. The geese are driven first through the tar, which adheres to their feet, and then through the gravel, which sticks to the tar. Back again then, through the tar for more of it, and then through the sand or the pebbles. In this way a "shoe" or casing forms, which protects the more delicate web of the foot, while on the cruel roads.

Barboursville.—The first case of pellagra brought to the attention of the medical authorities of this section resulted fatally to Mrs. Johnson. The case was under observation for over a year. All the authorities called in agreed as to the diagnosis of the case.

Modern Apple Growing.

In the spring of 1910 the Kansas Agricultural College secured for the use of several orchards in the State to demonstrate scientific apple growing. A farmer near Fort Scott was the owner of a five-acre orchard which was 25 years old and had never done anything to distinguish itself in the way of apple production. The apples had run mostly to knots and blemishes and the farmer invited the college scientists up to try their luck.

Two experienced men were sent to the orchard and they decided to treat half of it, its half being represented by 105 trees. They put the spraying machine to work, and during the season they gave four shower baths to the neglected orchard. At harvesting time the 105 trees which had a big crop of fruit. The farmer got 450 bushels of choice apples, which brought him $1 a bushel. He made the smaller apples into cider and sold $225 worth of his fruit crop in liquid form. Then he picked up the windfalls and sold them for enough to pay the expenses of picking and packing. All together the 105 trees brought him in $1,027.40. His total expense amounted to about $60, which included a hand sprayer that will be useful hereafter. He figures his net profit at $967.40, and proposes to devote a great deal more attention to apples in the future than he has been giving to the subject in the past.

One year of scientific orcharding made the Kansas farmer more money on half his trees than he had made in twenty years on the entire collection. He did not understand until the experts made it clear to him why his sprayed trees were doing no good and the fruit they produced was small in quantity and execrable in quality.

There are many orchard owners in Kentucky who are getting little or no benefit from their orchards for the reason that they are neglecting them just as the Kansas farmer neglected his trees until the college men showed him what to do. According to a bulletin recently issued from the United States Department of Agriculture Kentucky's apple production is smaller now than it was ten or twenty years ago. This is not because apples are in less demand, for apple consumption is increasing every year and Western farmers are making fortunes out of orchards. Wouldn't it pay our Kentucky farmers to do some scientific apple growing?

STATE NEWS.

Carlisle.—August 10 and 11 are the dates announced for the annual reunion of Gen. Morgan's men at Park Hill, this county.

Henderson.—Most tobacco growers in the stemming district have abandoned hope of planting more than 20 per cent of a crop this season.

Sharpsburg.—Gasoline escaping from the light machine at the Presbyterian church in this city ignited and caused an explosion during services.

Shelbyville.—Homer Traux, a tenant farmer of this county, and Cora Sands, of Shelbyville, are in jail here charged with violation of the Juvenile Court act passed by the last Legislature.

Franklin.—Eli Blewett, mail carrier on route 7, was hurt when his horse took fright at an automobile. He sustained a compound fracture of the arm, a dislocated shoulder and is otherwise injured.

Augusta.—The last rains have enabled the growers to finish setting out their tobacco and all that will be set this season has been done. The crop will not be so large as it has been in the last few years as many had reduced their acreage.

Paris.—Despondent because of continued ill health, James E. Rowland, aged 68 years, a well known farmer and horseman of Bourbon county, committed suicide in a barn on his farm near Paris by shooting himself through the heart. The body was found shortly before breakfast by a farm hand who had gone in search of him.

Simpsonville.—A part solution of the mystery surrounding the robbery of the general store of T. M. Lyons & Co., of this place, on July 30, 1898, came to light when a portion of the stolen goods, consisting of food and clothing, together with burglar tools was found concealed in the pulpit of the Simpsonville Colored Baptist church, which is being remodeled and repainted.

Carlisle.—Growers of Nicholas county intending to raise a crop of tobacco this season have completed the last transplanting and the crop is now all out. A careful investigation shows about two-thirds of the usual amount of acres transplanted, but most of it has been set so late that it will be hard for it to make a crop and many inferior plants have been used. It is thought that 40 per cent of an average yield will hardly be exceeded. There are whole neighborhoods found in the county where none of the weed is being raised this year.

Would Not Take In Washing.

During a revival meeting in a Methodist church near Cincinnati a number of converts were secured, and several of them requested that instead of sprinkling they be baptised by immersion.

The Methodist church was providing with a baptismal font, but not with a pool, immersion being very infrequent among its accessions to membership. So one of the deacons, anxious that the new members should not be disappointed in their wholly laudable desire to be immersed, constituted himself a committee to wait upon the ruling spirit of the local church—not the pastor, but a rather haughty gentleman who held the Methodists in small favor, and who was slightly jealous of the success of their revival.
The deacon explained the circumstances to this pillar and begged as a favor that the Methodist converts might be immersed in the Baptist pool.

"What? Immerse Methodists in our pool?" ejaculated the Baptist dignitary.

"Certainly. We would appreciate the kindness very much, and if you will go back and tell your church that our church isn't going in any washing!"

You Have Them All the Same

Because people are too polite to tell you of your faults, don't imagine you haven't any.

If you want to fool people, fool them by being sensible when they don't expect it of you.

There is one thing I can always guess right the second time. If a baby isn't a boy, then it's a girl.

You didn't accomplish much today, probably; yet today is a part of the future you once expected much of.

When I was a newspaper reporter I figured it out that of every thousand people, nothing ever happens to nine hundred and ninety-nine of them.

When will the people cease their useless talk of a "higher life," and seriously consider the importance of the lower life?

If the chief end of a man is to raise hell, everything is going alright; nothing serious to worry about in 1911.

It is easy for women to be good; after a woman has children the only temptation she meets is to borrow money from the banks.

Raise for Rural Carriers.

Beginning with the first of this month rural mail carriers having a standard route of 24 miles, received a raise in salary of $100 per year, which will make their yearly salary $1,000 instead of $900 as it now is. Those below the standard received an increase in proportion to the number of miles traveled in delivering their mail. This increase will be the third one granted the carriers since the department was established in 1903. The original pay of the carriers was $600 per year.
This was increased to $750 two years later and in 1907 to $900.

It is often heard these days that competition is a thing of the past. With one or two exceptions this is true.

Among the more important exceptions may be mentioned the following:

The competition between employ ers and employees.

The competition between new and old rich for social supremacy and unique display.

The competition between newspapers to see which can publish the most trivial matter.

The competition between organized and unorganized labor for what are too few in numbers.

The competition between vital and spherical bodies for sel-

A JAIL DELIVERY.

Thomas Snows Scheme and Tunnels Out of the Boone County Jail.

Thomas Snow, one of the men confined in jail here, charged with stealing Chas. Dolph's gasoline engine a few weeks since, made his escape last Sunday morning.
The man who was in jail with Snow on the same charge, says that someone passed a saw in to Snow a few nights before the escape, and with the saw he cut his way out by sawing the staples to the pad locks that were used on the door to the cell corridor, after which the large bolt on the door was forced. The prisoner then made his way through a small opening into an old sink under one corner of the jail, where he succeeded in moving a large stone from the foundation under the jail, making a hole large enough for him to pass out. The man who refused to leave the jail with his companion, says Snow worked all Saturday night to make his escape and that he was assisted by some one on the outside. The man remaining in jail says the padlocks were sawed off each night of evening, while several persons were setting on the fence near the jail, and the locks being on the outside of the cell door could not be held and they fell to the iron floor, making a loud noise, but did not attract the attention of anyone.

It was after three o'clock when Snow got out, and Stant Kirtley, colored, saw him cross the street from the jail and notified Sheriff
Hume, who accompanied by Jailer
Adams went in pursuit but failed to overtake Snow or find any trace of him.

The statement that Snow had a confederate on the outside is corroborated by the appearance of the work, in which a crowbar appears to have figured.

The enlargement of the veins on the back of the hand comes from two causes. One is hard work of a kind that keeps the hands on a level or below the waist. The blood in the veins cannot mount the arms which it must do in order to flow back to the heart, or it may be due to general weakness of the circulation. The veins become weaker and less certain in their action as one advances in years, and that is the reason one sees the enlarged veins in elderly persons. If one takes care of the hands early enough there is no need of this enlargement of the veins; knowing the cause one can prevent it. The stoppage of the blood in the veins can be prevented by keeping the arms in an upright position, or holding them above the head for a little while several times during the day. The blood should be pressed from the back of the hands by a smoothing and stroking motion, such as one uses when putting on gloves. But you say that is an awful bother to sit holding one's hands above the head. You do not have to take the time expressly for it. When you are reading or talking, you can put your hands in such a position that the return flow through the veins will be easy.
It is a simple thing to do and makes for your general health as well as improves the looks of the hands. Swollen, cordy veins on the hands are certainly detrimental to their looks.—
"Health and Good Looks" in The Ladies' World for July.

Orson, a town in Sweden, is probably the only municipality in the world which has ordinary city expenses, but which imposes no taxes. Moreover, the local railway is free to every citizen, and there is no charge for telephone service, schools libraries and the like. This happy state of affairs is due to the wisdom of a former generation of citizens and rulers of Orson, who planted trees on all available ground. During the last 30 years the town authorities have sold no less than $3,000,000 worth of young trees and timber, and judicious re-plantings have provided for similar income in the future.—San Francisco Star.

Until we have a well-defined primary election law, with the expense paid as in other elections, and with all the safeguards prescribed therein, this should witness the last State primary.
It places the honest voter and the honest county at a disad-vantage with the election thief.
It does not seem probable that enough votes were padded in the Governor's race to change the result, but even with the charges shown by the intimations of the press and the candidates, it is likely to breed such a crop of bolters as will render the result in doubt.—Bowling Green Messenger.

2. Take olive oil either mixed or moting good looks, good spirits and good digestion.

3. Sleep on a pillow of hops, which promotes sound and refresh-

How They Lost Their Homes.

They bought things they did not need because they were cheap.

They did not use good judgment or right proportion in their expenditures.

They subscribed for everything they could pay for on the installment plan.

Money enough went down in drink and up in smoke to have saved the home.

They did not realize how easy it is to get into debt and how hard it is to get out.

They tried to do what others expected of them rather than what they could afford.

"They could not say No," and could not afford to tell their friends "I can not afford it."

They thought it small to insist on having an agreement or understanding put in writing.

Their sons thought they must sow their wild oats as well as other "fellows of their set."

They entertained too expensively and a great deal more than they could afford because they wanted people to think they were in good circumstances.

They never formed the habit of putting in the bank money which they did not immediately need.

They did not do business in a business way because they were dealing with relatives or friends.

They put off payments on every thing possible because it would be so much easier to pay tomorrow than today.

They signed important papers without reading them or knowing their contents, just because they were asked to do so.

The extravagance of the children who had not been trained to economize or take care of their pennies, swamped the home.

The daughters thought it beneath them to work for a living, but were bound to dress well.

They drew their money out of the bank to put it into some "wild-cat" scheme, and lost it.

Through lack of honest ambition and a disposition to interpret too liberally the text,
"Take no thought for the morrow."

When the shoe began to pinch they "really did not see where they could retrench." Habit had made luxuries seem necessaries.

They refused to let the people with whom they had dealings would think them suspicious if they asked them for a receipt for money.

The father thought that to go on a "spree" now and then was his prerogative as head of the family. After a while he availed himself of his "prerogative" once too often.

They let money enough slip through their fingers to pay the mortgage several times over, but because the date of payment was so far away they thought there was no danger of losing their home.—Ex.

The Corn Crop.

Corn is excellent in Jessamine county.

Todd county corn is looking well and has been well cultivated.

Early corn in Montgomery county is good, but the late corn is not growing well, caused by the fact that the ground was not in the best shape at planting.

The corn crop in Madison county, if the season is favorable from now on, will be a bumper.
The stand is good, the ground is in fine condition and it is growing nicely.

The early planting of corn in Bath county is in excellent condition since the rain. A good deal of corn has been planted since the drouth was broken while with an ordinary season will make early feed for stock if it does not mature.

Corn is coming nicely in Mason county after a slow start and late planting, due to the dry spell in early spring, when the farmer was unable to plow his ground. There will be more late corn than usual this year. The acreage will be about normal.

A Poultry Yard Race.

and already entries and applications coming from twenty-five different States have been received.

There probably was never a time in all history, since the days when Noah so wisely preserv ed a pair of fowls to become the benefactors of mankind, when interest in the poultry yard was more widespread than it is today. Many things have contributed to this, not the least being the annual efforts of the cold storage speculators to boost the price of eggs.

Many a man who formerly took not the slightest interest in chickens, unless they happened to be broiled or fried, has been recently induced to try the experiment of beating the cold storage people by conducting a poultry establishment in his back yard.
Many have succeeded, but many more have failed because of the contrariness of the hens themselves.

This egg-laying contest should result in furnishing amateur as well as professional poultry raisers with just the information they need. It will provide the purveyors of patent foods, advertised to make the most reluctant and recalcitrant of hens lay eggs at all seasons, an opportunity to make good their claims. In a word, the entire atmosphere of the chicken yard now so often surcharged with deceit, if not with absolute falsehood, may be cleared.

Great Cash-Raising Sale!

Owing to the backward season we find ourselves overstocked, and we must unload and raise the cash, no matter what loss we may suctain. As a rule, we carry no goods over from one season to another, and we will make every effort to do likewise this season. Besides, we must raise a large amount of cash within ten days, and the only way to do so is to sacrifice the stock that it must sell on sight. Read every item carefully and compare them. Never before have you had such opportunitites at this time of the year, but we are now forced to do this.

Will Sail Over the Ocean.

Hon. J. G. Tomlin who has been at Ann Arbor, Michigan, the past two weeks, returned home Thursday to attend the Republican and State conventions. Mr. Tomlin is arranging to take a trip across the water about September 1st, visiting London, England; Berlin, Germany, and Paris, France expecting to be absent about two months, the general object being a tour of observation. On his return he will establish his headquarters in Covington, where he will be more convenient to some of his business interests. His determination to locate in Covington will give him a wider and better field in his legal profession, but the people of Walton universally regret his removal from this place.

He Will Make Good.

Frank E. Curley, who recently returned to his home at Tucson, Arizona, was appointed to the office of City Attorney of Tucson, on his arrival there to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Judge Sawtelle, the incumbent in office. The daily papers of Tucson give Mr. Curley a very high compliment in his appointment, and state that the mayor and city council could not have made a better appointment, as Mr. Curley is a capable attorney and will make a good official, all of which the many friends of Frank at his old home in Walton cheerfully endorse and add their congratulations and good wishes for a prosperous and most successful career in office, and all believe he will make good in every way.

Dr. Menefee to Leave.

Dr. B. K. Menefee has sold his office, practice, automobile, etc., Dr. Rankin, of Sardis, Mason county, who will move here in a few weeks and take charge. Dr. Menefee has a flattering offer to go to Newman, Illinois, and he sold with a view of going to Illinois in a couple of months as he desires to utilize the intervening time in a post-graduate course on some special subjects in the Cincinnati Medical College The people of Walton universally regret Dr. Menefee's decision to locate elsewhere, as he is a first-class physician and a clever, genial gentleman, and he and his excellent family are very popular with everybody. This is the second time Dr. Menifee has decided to sell his business here, but on the previous occasion friends prevailed on him rescinding his determination and remain at Walton and give up a lucrative offer elsewhere.

Killed by Lightning.

Monday afternoon lightning struck and instantly killed Theo. Kennedy at his home near Walton. A heavy storm had just begun when Mrs. Kennedy went out in the orchard to gather in some young turkeys and Mr. Kennedy went out shortly afterwards to assist her. On going around the house on his return a bolt of lightning struck him and killed him instantly. The lightning struck him in the right ear and pierced a hole thru the lobe and then went through his head coming out on his left cheek, traversing down his body, breaking the crystal of his watch but not stopping the watch. His hat and shoes were considerably torn. The physician availed nothing. Mr. Kennedy was about 65 years and had been married three times, his last wife, surviving him. He leaves a daughter Miss Laura Kennedy, of Covington, a daughter by the first wife, and Miss Maude Kennedy, a daughter by the second wife, and who resided with him. Mr. Kennedy was a good citizen, a kindhearted man, and was high ly esteemed by everybody for his many splendid qualities, and is a great blow to his many friends as well as to his family, and the heartfelt sympathy of all is tendered the bereaved ones. The funeral took place Wednesday from Walton Baptist church, although he was a member of the Christian church. Rev. H. C. Runyan, of Latonia, assisted by A. L. Kohler and J. E. Morris, conducted the services. He was a member of the D. A. and J. O. A. and these orders conducted their burial ceremony in the most impressive manner. O. A. Alfred, J. E. Kite, J. W. Sheets, of Latonia, Cam Kennedy, of Elliston, were among those from a distance present.

Mr. Deacon, of Middletown, O., came over in his auto, last week one day, and visited his brother, Carl, and family.

Card of Thanks.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

my friends, and the voters of Boone County:

First—I thank you, Mr. Editor, for the high compliment you paid me in your last issue, and will always hold you in grateful remembrance for it.

Second—I want to thank my friends for their support in the primary and to assure them that their confidence in me will always be appreciated, and to the best of my ability, I will try to voice the will of the majority of the citizens of the district which I will represent. I have no desire God being my helper, to do anything that is not for the upbuilding of our great State, and for the few remaining years of my life your kindness, and your gratitude will be a green spot in my memory to say I am grateful will hardly express my feelings. Hoping that I may always be right, I remain your humble servant. J. W. BERKSHIRE.

New potatoes are small and exceedingly few in a hill. Many have put in the second crop in the hope of having better success. What few have come into market are being sold at sixty cents a peck.—Blue-Grass Clipper.

The Democrats of Kentucky chose a fine ticket in the primary last Saturday. The winners are all splendid men and it is confidently believed they will carry the party's banner to a triumphant victory in November —Russellville Democrat.

—o—

If Kentucky wants progress, good roads, better schools, a bank examiner's bill that will examine a just and fair taxing system and capital invited into the State, ing in the State, Kentucky will coming into the State and stay go Democratic.—Owensboro Messenger.

—o—

The Democratic party should never attempt to hold another primary for State offices in Kentucky under the present law. What we need and must have is a primary election law safeguarded from fraud, else no law at all. The law now on the books has no merits.—Claton Gazette.

—o—

It would have been hard to pick a better ticket. We lost some of our votes, but it was merely a personal preference, and the ticket is one that will commend itself to the entire party and, to the independent voters of the Commonwealth. Look for a majority in November of 30,000.—Cadiz Record.

—o—

Senator McCreary has certainly proven his strength as a man in Kentucky. He is the equal morally and otherwise of any man the Republicans may pit against him. His life has proven that, and again we repeat, he is the strongest man within the ranks of either party in the State.—Nicholasville Newa.

The ticket nominated by the Democrats of Kentucky in the primary Saturday is a strong one and there is no good reason why it should not only receive the united support of the party in November, but it should also draw to its support a good majority of the independent votes of the State.—Georgetown News.

There is much that is satisfactory in the result of Saturday's primary. The nominations are evidently the result of the sober thought of the better element of our people. Right down the line they selected the best of what they had to choose from and the result is an excellent ticket.—Versailles Sun.

The men selected to make up the Democratic ticket are of a character to attract the loyality and enthusiasm of all Democrats. The entire ticket has the appearance of a winner on its face, and is deserving of the support of every Democratic voter in Kentucky. The ticket has been named; now to elect it.—Paducah News-Democrat.

We tip our hat to the Democracy of Kentucky upon the ticket selected Saturday. From top to bottom it could not have been improved upon, and the next step is for every Democrat in the State to put his shoulder to the wheel and by a united effort carry our flag to victory in November by an old-time majority —Mt. Sterling Advocate.

Speaking about a man being too old to hold office, how about Justice Harlan, of the Supreme Court, who is 80 years old? He is the greatest man on the bench in this country and at his advanced age does more work than any younger Judge of the Supreme Court. You can measure no man's capacity by the calendar.—Elizabethtown News.

The success of the entire Democratic ticket this fall is beyond question, with the ticket nominated last Saturday. McCreary is an old and reliable warhorse and still able to hold his own with the best of them. Ollie James is one of the most magnetic stump speakers in the State and will pour hot shot and arouse enthusiasm from every stump in the State. We may well expect an old-time Democratic landside this fall.—Lawrenceburg News.

The Democrats of Kentucky are to be congratulated upon the wisdom displayed in their choice of candidates to carry the banner in the coming contest to be waged for political supremacy in November. If there has ever been any doubt in the minds of Democrats as to what the result would be in the final election this fall that doubt is now dispelled. The ticket is a superb one from top to bottom, from a personal as well as a geographical standpoint.—Owensboro Enquirer.

At our masthead appears the Democratic ticket, as nominated last Saturday. Take a careful survey of it. From the old warhorse, McCreary, clean to the foot of the ticket, you will find men in every way competent to handle the affairs of the people—men who know the duties and are not afraid to perform them. The people have had a good, full-sized dose of Republicanism in Kentucky, and it is a safe prediction that an old-time majority of 20,000 will be rolled up against misrule, incompetence and extravagance.—Danville Messenger.

With Senator James B. McCreary to head the Democratic ticket in November, there is no room for doubt that the next administration will be Democratic. The man who was Governor of Kentucky in 1875-79 will come back to Frankfort in 1911 as Governor of the State, and he was selected as the standard-bearer of the party by the Democrats of the State in a primary that was fair as primaries go. The majority for McCreary was so overwhelming that there is no reason to doubt that he was the choice of the Democrats of the State.—Frankfort News-Journal.

We congratulate the Democratic party on the result of the primary. The ticket nominated is worthy the support of all men of all parties who desire to promote the best interest of the State. Gov. McCreary, the nominee for Governor, through a long career during the greater part of which he has been in the public eye, has won the right to the confidence and respect of his fellow citizens Not a suggestion of subservlency to special interests, or control by the lobby ha never been made against him. A member of the Legislature, Lieutenant Governor, Governor, Representative in the Lower House of Congress, Senator, Chairman of the Democratic Campaign Committee, he has filled every office with credit. There is no blot nor stain on his record as a public servant.—Lexington Herald.

The Democrats of Kentucky have nominated without the slightest friction or disorder, in a primary election held according to law, a most excellent State ticket, as well as a candidate for United States Senator. Much of the interest in the primary election was lost when one of the candidates for United States Senator withdrew, the total vote thus being lessened probably by 25 per cent. The manifest fact that McCreary would defeat Addams for Governor by a big majority also served to diminish the vote Still there was a very representative attendance of Democrats at the polls, and the high character of the men that will compose the ticket will commend it to all voters at the November election. Every Democrat and every independent in the State can support this ticket without apology for any member of it.—Owensboro Messenger.

The Democratic ticket nominated in the primary election of last Saturday ought to be entirely satisfactory to all the Democrats of the State because it is unquestionably the choice of the party. From the material offered it is undoubtedly the very strongest ticket which could have been named, and it could not have been much improved, if the entire State had been searched for the ablest and most available men for the various offices. In point of ability, character and fitness, it is a ticket which commends itself to the entire Democracy, and every section of the State is well represented. Measuring fully up to the Jefferson standard of honesty and capability, there is every reason why the Democracy should win an overwhelming victory in November, and not a single reason why any real Democrat should not give it his most enthusiastic support.—Elizabethtown News.

The Courier-Journal entertains not a doubt of the result. We shall elect the ticket "hands down." The stars in their courses fight at last for Democracy. The streams as they sweep onward to the sea are freighted with Democratic, not with Republican, hopes. The time has come for a change of parties in the State and in the Nation. There is none other way to reach and to remedy evils that are seen and known of all men. McCreary will not lose a Democratic vote. He ought to receive the solid independent vote. He has been often tried and never found wanting. He is safe, sane and upright. The people have always known where to place him. They take no risks after nearly a generation in sending him back to Frankfort, and there they will send him, no matter whom the Republicans put up against him. So sound the bold anthem and whilst the band plays "Hail to the Chief," let Brother Addams and Brother Blackburn conduct Brother McCreary to the grand-stand!—C.-J.

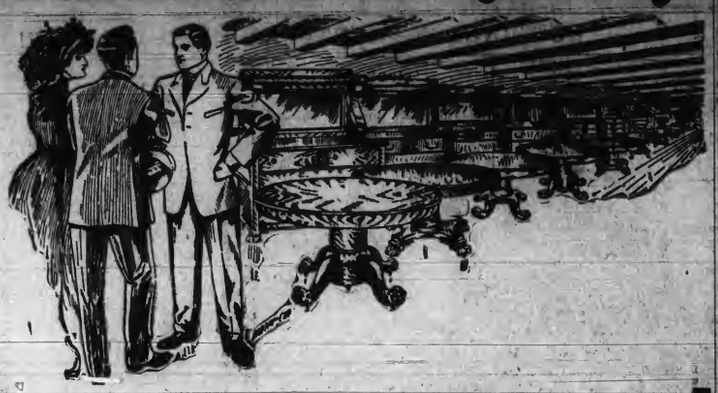
Honest Medicine Versus Fakes.

President Taft's recent message suggesting an amendment to the Pure Food and Drugs law in its relation to Prepared Medicines does not refer to such standard medicines as Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and Foley's Pills, both of which are true medicines carefully compounded of ingredients whose medicinal qualities are recognized by the medical profession itself as the best known remedial agent for the diseases they are intended to counteract. For over three decades Foley's Money and Tar Compound has been a standard remedy for coughs, colds and affections of the throat, chest and lungs for children and grown persons, and it retains to day its preeminence above all other preparations of its kind. Foley Kidney Pills are equally effective and meritorious. Sold by Robert W. Jones.

The Important Theme.

In speaking of the recent State Educational meeting the Louisville Times says: "Rural Schools," said a member of the delegation to-day, "was virtually the only thing talked. At previous meetings of the association it has been mentioned in a desultory manner, but at the Owensboro meeting it became the one big subject of interest that overshadowed everything else. Unanimously the association recommended a law authorizing a county bond issue to carry on rural school improvement; a new State Board of Education which will add one or two business men some changes making county school superintendents more efficient and raising their salaries so that they can devote practically all of their time to their work. Some of them have been getting only $400 a year and paying out of this their own traveling and office expenses. To live, they have sold insurance and carried on other business on the side."



Solves A Deep Mystery.

"I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart," wrote C. B. Rader, of Lewisburg, W. Va., "for the wonderful double benefit I got from Electric Bitters, in curing me of both a severe case of stomach trouble and rheumatism, from which I had been an almost helpless sufferer for 10 years. It suited my case as though made just for me." For dyspepsia, indigestion, jaundice and to rid the system of kidney poisons that cause rheumatism, Electric Bitters has no equal. Try them. LEGAL NOTICE.

The undersigned hereby gives notice that she has filed a petition in the Probate Court of Hamilton County, Ohio, against The Cincinnati Street Railway Co., said cause being numbered on the Docket of said Court, setting forth that she is the owner of certificate No. 73045 for three shares of capital stock of the par value of $50 each, of The Cincinnati Street Railway Company; that said certificate has been lost or destroyed, and that she is unable to find same. The petition further sets forth that she was the owner of said certificate at the time of its loss or destruction, and that she has not assigned, transferred or disposed of the same, and that the same has not been pledged to any one.

She prays that an order be made by the Probate Court of Hamilton County, Ohio, requiring The Cincinnati Street Railway Co., to issue and deliver to her a new certificate of stock for the original amount and kind of stock represented by the certificate lost or destroyed. The matter above referred to will be for hearing in the Probate Court of Hamilton Co. Ohio, at 10o'clock, a. m., July 20th 1911. CASSIE M. FOULKE

Elizabethtown,—Indications point to a long and bitter contest over the distribution of the estate of the late Buford B. Beavers, who died near Hodgenville several weeks ago, leaving about $100,000 in property and no will. Mr. Beavers second wife qualified as administratrix after having waived her right. However, she alleges that the waiver was secured by fraud. The sons of the deceased by his first wife are asking to be appointed administrator, and upon the settlement of this question hinges the case. Mrs. Beavers had been married to her late husband but a year before his death. He was about twice as old as she.

Covington, July 6.—Frank M. McDannold, for many years in the lumber business in Covington, was found dead in bed at his home to-day. Excessive heat was the immediate cause of death. McDannold was one of the best known lumber men in the country, a business in which he had made and lost two or three fortunes. The McDannold Lumber Company, of which he was president, at Sixteenth and Madison avenues, has occupied that corner for more than forty years.

LOSSES BY FIRE

In Kentucky Amounted to Nearly Half a Million Dollars In 1910.

Many Losses Due to Carelessness.

The State Fire Marshal in his annual report says that a large number of the fires which were reported in Kentucky during the last year were due to carelessness. This doubtless is true. It may be said with no violence to truth that most of the fires, everywhere, because of carelessness.

There are many ways of inviting fire by carelessness. To begin with there may be improper construction of buildings. Again there may be a lack of prudence in the inspection or repair of buildings. There also may be reckless ness handling of inflammable substances. Every day, in innumerable ways, needless chances are being taken in American dwellings and places of business. The percentage of persons who would willfully destroy property is happily, small. On the contrary the percentage of those who take chances through lack of caution is large.

The fire marshal's figures show that nearly two and one-half million dollars worth of property was destroyed by fire in Kentucky in the past year. It is safe to say that the figures are not complete; that there have been numerous fires of which no account is taken in the marshal's compilation. In every section of the State there are fire losses which, taken singly, are small. In the aggregate these losses will reach surprising proportions. The damage sustained by fire is not all comprehended in the pecuniary loss. Fires entail discomfort, inconvenience, privation and, sometimes, suffering and loss of life.

It is not strange that the Fire Marshal should advocate the teaching of fire prevention methods in the public schools. The people have been slow to learn the costliness of carelessness and it might not be a bad idea to begin early and systematically to drill some information into them as to the inordinate destruction that is wrought yearly by simple lack of care and caution.—C.-J.

Farmers and Roads.

In Missouri not long ago a man sold his farm because his neighbors had voted to build a rock road in front of it, which would force him to have his horses shod.

In Kansas a man recently declared that he would be in favor of good roads if the State Legislature would pass a law preventing automobiles from using them.

An Oklahoma farmer says he does not want macadamized roads because they will wear out his wagons, his buggies and his farm machinery.

The Kansas City Star, which made the discovery of these three remarkable "antis," is not discouraged thereby, despite the fact that it is an enthusiastic and perserving advocate of good roads. It contents itself by saying that "twentyfive years ago the people who believed in letting well enough alone were objecting to railroads because they would compel the payment of rent for pasturing cows which otherwise might run at large without danger of being killed by steam 'injuns.'"

It is possible there are a few persons in Kentucky who oppose road improvement for some of the surprising reasons advanced by this trio of Western farmers, but it is believed that such persons constitute only a small and rapidly diminishing company. Here in Kentucky the farmers are beginning to understand the cost of bad roads and are realizing that it is immensely larger than any losses they may sustain through wear and tear of vehicles and horse shoes on macadamized highways.

According to our prediction, oft repeated, Senator James B. McCreary won the Democratic nomination for Governor last Saturday by nearly 30,000. Of the eleven Districts in the State he carried nine, even beating Addams in his home district. Mr. Addams carried the Fourth and Fifth Districts due to the influence of Mr. Johnson and the Louisville politicians who were bent on defeating McCreary at any price.

Charges of fraud are being made by some of the candidates who think they have found gross irregularities in the vote in some places. The ticket nominated is regarded as the strongest that could have been named, and its victory in November is assured.—Blue-Grass Clipper.

Because of having about the best State ticket for twenty-five years, Kentucky Democrats must not think there is nothing further to be done. The Republican have also put up a very formidable array of candidates, who will make a strong fight for election, and it will take work to beat them.

SEALED BIDS.

Seal bids will be received until July 15th for the building of an addition to the common school building at Hebron. Plans and specifications can be seen at Garnett's store. The right is reserved to reject any or all bids.

The census of 1900 shows that there are nearly two million more males than females in the United States. The boot is on the other foot in England, where the surplus of females to the number of 1,178,317 is due chiefly to the emigration of younger sons into other countries. In Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey and New York the sexes are about equal in number, but as a rule the males predominate as you go West.

The District of Columbia in the proportion of say 111,000 as against 100,000, while a less disproportion prevails in the two Carolinas, tho in both the women predominate in about the ratio of 102,000 as against the round 100,000. Though Maine, Vermont, Connecticut and Pennsylvania are among our oldest States, yet the males were still in excess in each of them in 1900.

Mrs. Beverly B. Munford and other prominent women of Virginia have launched a movement to establish in that State a university for women, which shall maintain a standard of scholarship equal to that of Virginia's famed university for men. Over three-fourths of the teachers in the State are women, but hitherto the colleges for that sex in Virginia have lacked the educational advantages enjoyed by the men. In other words, the movement is a plea for equal educational privileges for men and women in the Old Dominion. The State has many excellent female colleges, but they are all either private institutions or else they are of a sectarian character. The movement promises to carry.

The Iowa State Board of Education has authorized a course in agricultural aducation at the state College. Its purpose is to train teachers for agricultural and domestic science work in secondary There is a wide and rapidly increasing sentiment in favor of industrial training in the public schools and the demand for teachers far exceeds the supply. Of the 78 students graduating from the Iowa agricultural college last spring not over ten per cent are looking forward to a teaching profession. This is the case in most of the state colleges notwithstanding the high salaries offered for agricultural teachers.

Proposed amendments to the educational and road laws will be numerous in the next Kentucky legislature, overshadowing about everything else Just now improved educational facilities and better roads the most concern the State's welfare, and it remains to be seen if the members of the coming general assembly will have the ability to grasp the situation and place Kentucky along side her neighbors in the matters of better roads and better educational laws.

It has been many years since the Democratic party in Kentucky presented a State ticket with so many elements of strength as the present ticket presents. It is a strong ticket selected from among strong candidates for the several nominations, and it will receive the support of a united party at the general election next November. With McCreary to lead the prospects are good for an old time Democratic majority to be rolled up at the polls in Kentucky next fall.

Experience has shown that the quality of cow that produces 1,000 gallons of milk per year require no more food than the one that gives 350 gallons. That is a long reach, from 350 gallons to 1,000 gallons, and one looking at the matter thus can readily see how much feed he is wasting on poor cows.

Wheat sown October 10th and 20th last fall is found to have done better than that sown earlier or later than that period. This might not prove to be the case another season, but is a pointer on the subject of best time to sow wheat.

According to recent reports from the Government Bureau of Statistics exports of farm products for the year ending with the month of June will aggregate a billion dollars. This speaks well for the producers as is a great increase over last year.

Politics will take a rest in Kentucky for the next few weeks, both parties having named their tickets for State offices. This country would be better off with not so much politics which is always a full crop.

Not a kick against the ticket has been made in any part of the State. Not a weak spot in it is the unanimous verdict.

IT'S O'REAR.

Judge O'Rear, who caputred a large majority of the delegates at the Republican county conventions held last Saturday, was nominated for Governor by acclamation by the Republican State convention which met in Louisville. His two opponents, Lieutenant-Governor Cox and Mr. Franks, withdrew from the contest just before the convention was ready to begin balloting. The county conventions showed that Judge O'Rear had made a runaway race for the nomination notwithstanding he was opposed by some of the most powerful leaders in his party, but whose opposition he whipped into a still hunt early in his campaign. Some of the old line Republicans have been heard to declare they would not vote for O'Rear if he was nominated, but in due time they will all be in the band wagon and whooping it up for the nominee as usual. O'Rear is a live wire, and to beat him to the gubernatorial chair next November, Ollie James, Senator McCreary and the other boys on the Democratic ticket will have to hustle as they never hustled before.

McCreary's age cut no ice with the voters, in fact they appeared to put him in class with a certain leading product of the State.

The graft situation in Adams county, Ohio, was not as bad as many were led to believe. Only one-third of the citizens have been indicted.

O. P. Phipps ran an ugly nail into his foot, one day last week, and had to resort to a pair of crutches in order to get about for several days.

It is said that plans will soon be announced for the reorganization of the Standard Oil Co., to conform with the opinion of the United States Supreme Court.

At no time in its thirty-six years of existence has the Recorder seen the Democratic papers in the State line up so unanimously for the Democratic State ticket. It looks good to all of them.

Three shiploads of potatoes amounting to 3,000,000 bushels have been ordered from Scotland and Ireland, to relieve the potato famine in Texas, where the price already has climbed to $1.75 per bushel and threatens to reach $3.00 before the summer is over.

The House Committee on Expenditures developed the fact that Senator McCreary, of Kentucky, had received no pay for his services on the International Arbitration Commission. The money will, no doubt, be very acceptable to Gov. McCreary just after passing through the campaign.

A physician in one of the Middle States treats nervous patients with piano music. A comfortable bed is made up on his Baby Grand piano and his patient is made to repose upon it with closed eyes. For a dull, depressed case he plays quick, enlivening music, and for the violent type soft and restful strains.

More than one hundred of the best known men of Maysville believe that they have been victimized by a man giving the name of W. H. Griffith, who represented himself as an organizer for the Order of Owls, and who under the statement that he was endeavoring to organize a "roost" in that city got more than 100 names to his petition, collecting $5 from each prospective "hooter." According to the program the lodge was to have been organized Saturday of last week, but when the candidates appeared for initiation they found that the alleged organizer had disappeared and could not be located.

With the establishment of the Belleview rural route and the extension of routes one and two out of Burlington, Boone county will be pretty well covered by the rural mail delivery. From Burlington go three routes; from Petersburg, one; from Florence, one; from Richwood, one; from Union, one; from Walton, one, while the Erlanger and Ludlow routes serve many boxes in this county.

The Democratic ticket nominated at the primary held last Saturday is a good one headed by that "Old Roman," the Hon. James B. McCreary, of Madison county. He has been tried and has been found true to every trust, and no man stands closer to the people than does Senator McCreary. He gave the state the cleanest administration on record when he occupied the Gubernatorial chair and he'll do it again.—Carrollton News.

The distribution of the Democratic State ticket by Congressional Districts is as follows. The fourth, ninth and tenth are not represented, while the first has James for Senator; the second, Hamlett for Superintendent of Public Instruction; the third, Rhea for Treasurer; fifth, McDermott, for Lieutenant Governor; sixth, Crecelius, for Secretary of State; Seventh, Green, for Clerk of the Court of Appeals; Bosworth for Auditor and Newman, for Commissioner of Agriculture; eighth, McCreary, for Governor, eleventh Garnett, for Attorney-General.

The Boone County High School has very bright prospects before it for the coming school year. It made fine progress last year and a larger attendance during 1911-12 will increase its scope and give it a better opportunity to show its value to the county. The course of study it affords is sufficient to prepare a pupil for most any walk in life, besides this it places within the reach of many a good education, who, otherwise, could proceed no further than a common school course. Already has this been demonstrated. The time has come when an education is required to make a success in any class of business. Even the pursuit of agriculture has reached a stage at which an educational preparation is necessary for its successful pursuit, and to meet all these requirements has brought about many of the advances that are taking place in the educational laws of many of the States.

If the United States were peopled as densely as Europe it would contain more than 300 million inhabitants. If its population should ever become as dense as that of the British Isles, it would contain more than a billion people.

In respect to density of population, the states show wide differences, ranging from 517 inhabitants to a square mile in Rhode Island, down to less than one to a square mile in Nevada. Rhode Island approaches the density of Belgium, the most fully populated of all the countries of Europe. Massachusetts follows Rhode Island closely, with 420 inhabitants to a square mile, nearly the same as the Netherlands, after Belgium the densest settled country of Europe. Next is New Jersey, with 337 inhabitants to a square mile, nearly the same as the United Kingdom the third in Europe. Connecticut is fourth, with 230. The manufacturing states of the North Atlantic group, with Ohio and Illinois, are of course the most densely populated. Next are the states of the Upper Mississippi Valley. Kentucky has 57 inhabitants to each square mile of territory.

BIG AUCTION SALE.

40-Choice Building Lots-40

NORTH ERLANGER.

Having purchased that portion of the Longmore Estate lying adjacent to the North Erlanger school property and within three blocks of the Q. & C. depot, we will subdivide into building lots 50x150 feet and sell at public auction, Saturday, July 15th, 1911.

Erlanger is not and doesn't desire to become a manufacturing town. On the other hand it is strictly a residence suburb of Cincinnati, Covington and Newport. Eight hundred (800) people, some attending universities and colleges, others engaged in various professions and occupations in the city, ride on the commutor trains daily. Six and eight-tenths (6.8) miles from Cincinnati, on the Queen and Crescent Railroad with a rate of closer to the city than either Norwood or College Hill, more accessible than Sedamsville, Erlanger is the future hope of those employed in Cincinnati, who wish to avoid excessive taxation and rents, who wish to seclude theselves from the dust, noise and smoke of factories and at the sawe time be within a 05c fare of the city.

"Young Man Own A Spot of Ground Somewhere."

Every good American citizen should have an ambition to own at least his own home site. This particular tract of land is by far the most desirable for building purposes than any in or about Erlanger. Lying within the shadow of the graded school, and within three minutes' walk of the depot.

WHY PAY RENT?

when with the aid of your Building and Loan Association you can own a lot in a very short time and ultimately your own home and a good investment. The last census just completed shows conclusively that the tendency of population is towards the large centers. In this Erlanger is a striking example (for it can only be called a sleeping place for Cincinnati) increasing an even 100 per cent in the last decade. No boom but a sound and steady growth. The completion of the two miles traction line connecting Erlanger with Fort Mitchell and the city will create a still greater demand for property in Erlanger. Buy a lot on July 15th while they are cheap and be prepared for the increasing demand.

Free! Free! Free!

One full sized lot and a rubber tire buggy will be given away absolutely free. Each white person on the ground on the day of sale (whether he is a purchaser or not) will be given a free ticket which will entitle him to a chance on both the lot and buggy. Drawing one does not bar you in any way from an equal chance on the other. The buggy is now on exhibition in Erlanger.

TERMS.

Lots will be sold for all cash, one-half cash, or one-third cash, balance in six and twelve months with six percent interest on deferred payments. Payments to be made at the Erlanger Deposit Bank where deed and title will be guaranteed when one-third or more is paid.

REMEMBER the date, SATURDAY, JULY 15th, 1911, and also bear in mind that statistics show that more money is made from the increase in values in real estate than from all other causes combined.

A Cincinnati Band has been engaged to furnish Music all afternoon. Come out and try your luck at the Rubber Tire Buggy and Free Lot.

The lucious blackberry cobbler is ripe.

Everybody hunts the street crossings now—oil.

William Kirkpatrick has shipped about 1,000 lambs in the last two weeks.

The rains last week were very beneficial to the blackberry crop, the poor man's fruit.

William Wilson, of Beaver, has been ill of typhoid fever for several days, having been quite ill.

Some are harvesting their oats this week, the straw of which is short, but the heads are pretty good.

The plasters have had William Kirkpatrick's new residence in hand for several days, and the work is progressing nicely.

Supt. Riley has had some very convenient blanks printed for the use of trustees in the subschool districts.

Rev. Crosby, of Indianapolis, preached to quite a good sized congregation at the Universalist church on the morning and evening of the 2d inst.

Bellevlew had a three inch rain fall in an hour, last Thursday afternoon. The rain was needed but the goods was delivered a little too rapidly.

The two main streets in Burlington are now in good condition. The oil was somewhat inconvenient but it was soon absorbed by the dust.

A considerable quantity of the last oil on the streets has been carried into the business houses about town, and it does not take much of it to make a very ugly floor.

Some who are posted as regards the habits of fish say during very hot weather they lay under the rocks and it is impossible to induce them to take the most tempting of bait.

There being no mail in on the rural routes on the fourth inst., caused some of the communications intended for last week's issue to arrive at the office so late they could not be used.

D. M. Snyder and wife spent one day last week down on Gunpowder creek. They prepared both breakfast and dinner on the bank of the creek, having caught enough fish for their noonday meal.

When on the return trip from Erlanger, last Thursday evening, the mail auto suspended business on the Burlington pike near the Florence toll-gate. A broken pin punctured the housing of the crank shaft, rather a bad accident.

The local base ball aggregation is getting very anxious to go up against a team that can beat it or at least give it a close game. Manager Kirkpatrick is thinking about making up a purse and challenging the Cincinnati Reds for a post-season scrap on the local diamond.

Already has Burlington had several demonstrations of the efficiency of oil as an exterminator of dust on the streets. On two or three occasions since the streets were oiled the town would have been the victim of dense volumes of dust hurled about the streets had it not been for the oil with which they had been covered.

Card of Thanks—I desire to express my sincere thanks to our neighbors, friends and relatives for their kindness, sympathy and help, shown my wife during her illness, and especially to Dr. O. E. John W Quigley, who resided at the summit of the river hill on the Bullittsville and Dry creek turnpike, was tried in the county court, one day last week, and adjudged to be of unsound mind. Mr. Quigley was sent to the asylum at Lakeland, to which institution he was committed for a short time several years ago. For some time it was thought he had been completely restored mentally, but some time since his mind began to fail again.

Farmers are busy this week cutting their grass, some of which was said to be drying up badly the latter part of last week. Wise will be the farmer who cuts every scrimption of hay that can be secured in his meadow, as that class of provender, which is now bringing a long price, will cost more early in the coming season than it is selling for now. Cut everything you can for hay. The stock will cull the grass out of the weeds next winter.

It is told of a young man who not long since commenced clerking for one of the local merchants, that a young lady went to the store a few days since, and asked him, "have you any of these elastic bands, capable of being elongated and adjusted at pleasure, and used by the feminine portion of mankind for putting around the lower extremities of their locomotive members to keep in the proper position and the required altitude habiliments of their tibias." The clerk is contemplating going on a sheep ranch out west.

SAMUEL WINGATE

Called to His Long Sleep After a Journey of Nearly Ninety-Five Years on Earth.

Samuel Wingate, who died at his home in Belieview, a few days since was born in Maryland nearly ninety-five years ago. He came to this county when quite young, and had been a citizen of several neighborhoods, in each of which he was held in the highest esteem by his neighbors, who soon learned that he was a man of sterling qualities.

Coming to this county in pioneer days he had witnessed two or three nearly complete changes in its population, while the face of the country had passed, under his observation, from a wild dismal forest to an agricultural section owned by a prosperous and happy people who hardly appreciate the hardships that those who like Mr. Wingate, spent the best years of their lives, in preparing the way for. He never complained of burdens but bore them quietly, and was always ready to assist in any laudable undertaking.

Mr. Wingate's wife, was a daughter of William Presser and a sister of Hogan Presser, of Rabbit Hash, the only survivor of the family. Mrs. Wingate died many years ago. To them was born a large family of children, several of whom survive, and who did all they could to contribute the pleasure and comfort of their father in his declining days.

Few persons attain the ripe old age reached by Mr. Wingate, and his death removes one of the county's oldest landmarks.

GOOD BEGINNING.

Clover Leaf Creamery Makes a Good Showing OnThe First Day.

Seventeen Hundred Pounds Of Milk Received. Everything In Fine Shape.

Clover Leaf Creamery began business last Monday morning under very flattering prospects. The day before, Sunday, was an intensely busy day with Mr. Walcott who installed the creamery machinery, owing to it having been given out that milk would be received Monday morning, but he was equal to the task and was ready for the milk when it began arriving early in the morning. He was assisted by Mr. Dean, who has been employed as butter maker, and everything moved off smoothly and to the entire satisfaction of the large crowd of persons present to witness the starting of the new enterprise. There remains considerable work to be done around the building and the arranging of the water supply, which has progressed for enough to satisfy all that the water, which, will be of an excellent quality, will be abundant, while the pipe and pump system will make it a pleasure to use it profusely.

Mr. Walcott, who placed the creamery outfit has won the esteem and confidence of the creamery people by his gentlemanly deportment and the efficiency he has displayed in his work.

Everything about the creamery is new and there is no apparent reason why it should not be a success from the start. Now let everyone who signed cows get busy and furnish the milk, as it was upon their promise so to do that the creamery was installed.

MRS. ELIZABETH BAUER.

Wife of Joseph Bauer and youngest daughter of the late Henry D. and Malvina Minor, Mallory, was born near Burlington, Ky., May 1st, 1869. After many years of patient suffering she passed into eternal rest on the morning of June 30th, 1911.

She is survived by a husband, one brother, Henry Mallory, of Addyston, Ohio, four sisters, Mrs. Ada McNeely, Jayiers, La., Mrs. Martha Birkle, Bullittsville, Ky., Mrs. Margaret Cook, Hartford, Indiana, Mrs. Susan Platt, Patriot, Ind.

She was a faithful and affectionate wife, a dutiful daughter, a loving sister, and under all circumstances a loyal and devoted friend.

She was not a member of any religious organization, but held to the tenets of the Universalist church. In that belief she died calm and resigned. When the summons came she was ready to go.

Death intervenes between her and her loved ones, but it is not her bright spirit separated from them that is blighted with a shadow. Like the sun it will shine on in endless splendor, and the shadow of death is thrown only on those left to mourn their great loss.

Lizzie loved the beautiful in nature and the day on which she entered the Golden City was bright with sunshine and flowers.

Her funeral was held in the Methodist church at Petersburg at 2 o'clock, Sunday, July 2d. The Baptist minister Rev. C. V. Brooks conducted appropriate services, after which she was laid by the side of her brother, Robert, who preceded her to the spirit world less than eight months ago.

The price that town lots brought at the recent auction sale at Walton, shows that people have faith in the future of Boone's metropolis, and especially do the citizens of that town believe in her future as a business point. Very few towns in Northern Kentucky are so favorably located as Walton for either business or residence purposes, and no town in Kentucky has made a greater change for the better in the last twenty years, a fact that is realized not only by her citizens but by those of the entire county, and her march upward, morally and financially, is gratifying to the entire county, and so long as Walton numbers among its citizens its present proportion of genuine business men she will be found among the thriving towns of this State.

DEDICATION OF DAM

At Fern Bank to Cover an Entire Week.

The celebration of the completion of the Fernbank dam, which will be held probably the latter part of September, will be made an event of a week's duration and equal in brilliancy to the fall festivals. It will also be a general movement, including all the organizations, corporations schools and citizens and other public interests of the three counties—of Hamilton in Ohio, and Kenton and Campbell in Kentucky.

The first recommendation of the committee is that the celebration, in order to give it the desired general character, be handled by a special association for the celebration of the completion of the new Fernbank dam. The association shall be composed of delegates, individuals, corporations, societies, educational institutions, etc. President Taft is to be invited to deliver an address, while invitations will also be extended to the U. S. senators and congressmen of the states bordering on the Ohio.

A day river pageant to include craft of all kinds gathered from Pittsburg to Cairo is part of the program.—Lawrenceburg Press.

BOONE COUNTY REPUBLICANS

Instruct for Lieutenant Governor, W. H. Cox, at the Convention, Last Saturday.

The attendance at the Republican convention held at the court house last Saturday afternoon was small. The object of the convention was to select delegates to the State convention which met in Louisville, Tuesday, to nominate a ticket for State officers to be voted for at the election next November.

A. M. Edwards, of Walton, chairman of the county Republican committee, called the convention to order.

J. G. Tomlin, of Walton, was elected chairman, and upon taking the chair, made a speech defining the issues of the campaign.

H. M. Kenyon, of Constance precinct was elected secretary.

J. M. Baker, Harry Roberts and A. M. Edwards, were appointed a committee on delegates.

C. C. Hughes, Jonas Stevens and Fred Zimmer were appointed a committee on resolutions.

The committee on delegates reported the following: J. M. Baker, Jas. Mahan, Jonas Stevens, A. M. Edwards, J. L. Vest, L. E. Thompson, J. E. Zimmer, J. G. Tomlin, J. O. Griffith, Chas. Craven, B. L. Rice, Fritz Zimmer, G. L. Miller, Elihu Alden, Charles C. Hughes, or any other Republican who will attend and abide by the instructions of this convention.

The report of the committee was adopted.

The committee on resolutions reported as follows:

Resolved, That this convention indorse the candidacy of Wm. H. Cox, of Maysville, for Governor of the State of Kentucky, and that the delegates selected to attend the convention at Louisville be instructed to cast their votes for said Wm. H. Cox, and F. P. James for State Treasurer, John F. Locket for Attorney-General, M. C. Rankin for Auditor The report was adopted.

Fifty persons, twenty of them women, were driven insane by the intense heat in Washington last week. It is believed that most of will recover.

CAFES MEET UNTIMELY DEATH

New Yorkers Abandon Their Plans for Many New Palatial Hot Bird and Cold Bottle Places.

New York.—There has been an alarming death rate in the plans for new restaurants in Broadway's lobster palace belt. This is ascribed not so much to the decrease in New York's yearning for the flesh pots as to its indifference to new resorts.

The lease for the new Cafe Napoleon, adjoining the Globe theater, for which foundations were laid, was sold and the building will be devoted to other purposes.

The enormous Studebaker building at Forty-ninth and Broadway, which was to be rebuilt into a great hotel and restaurant for the Beaux Arts, is on the market as a lease.

The Brewster block, from Forty-seventh to Forty-eighth street on Broadway, which was reported sold to a Milwaukee syndicate, and on which an immense restaurant and stadium was to be put, is offered again for business purposes.

The ground lease of the Albany flats, on Fifty-first and Broadway, which John Murray planned to use for a new eating place, has been sold and will be turned over to commercial uses.

Shanley's famous old home on the east side of Broadway, above Forty-second street, has been closed, and finally the noted resort of Burns in Sixth avenue and Forty-fourth street went into a receiver's hands.

This list, with the failure of the costly Cafe de l'Opera, completes a table of heavy casualties among the members of the hot-bird-and-cold-bottle set.

Meantime the dairy lunches are flourishing.

HUNTED BIRDS IN JUNGLES

Prof. Beebe Brings Many Specimens of Beautifully Plumaged Pheasants Secured by Wife.

San Francisco.—After seventeen months in the jungles of Asia, whither he was sent to study the pheasant, Prof. Charles William Beebe, curator of ornithology of the New York Zoological society, has returned with his wife on the Chiyo Maru. India, Ceylon, the Himalayas, Tibet, Yucatan, China, Borneo, Java and Japan were covered by the expedition, and hundreds of specimens of beautifully plumaged birds were sent back to New York.

"Mrs. Beebe was an invaluable assistant to me," Professor Beebe said. "Without her I could not have accomplished half of what I did. She was especially diplomatic in dealing with the women of the wild tribes we had to encounter.

"These tribal women exercised great sway over the men, who would refuse to lend us any aid in securing specimens until won over by the women. A traveler with a tactful wife in a wild country, I am convinced, can get along twice as well as a single man."

Professor Beebe declares the pheasant will soon be extinct unless extensive preserves are established for its protection.

NUDE MAN HIDES IN A TREE

Pennsylvanian Is Stripped of Every Stitch of Clothing by Tramps and Assailed by Bees.

Philadelphia.—Accosted by tramps in a small strip of woods in Germantown, Thomas Jones of Frankford was robbed of every particle of clothing he wore and left in the woods by the vagrants, who escaped.

Jones, not knowing any of the neighbors and living at a distance from the scene of the robbery, climbed into a tree to wait for some chance passer-by. He remained in the tree all day, suffering greatly from cold, fatigue and and hunger, besides being tortured by a swarm of bees which had built a hive in a dead limb.

After dark Jones descended from his perch and covering himself as best he could with weeds went to a neighboring truck farm, where he obtained clothes and food.

MAKE AN AUTOMATIC RIFLE

Light Weapon of Small Caliber Has Been Wrought for Use in Austro-Hungarian Armies.

Vienna.—Interest was caused the other day by the publication in the Zeit, a paper usually well informed on military matters, that, after long endeavors, the Austro-Hungarian military authorities have succeeded in constructing a perfect model automatic army rifle.

The new weapon is said to be considerably lighter, and to have a smaller caliber than that now in use by the army. Practice with the new rifle is now proceeding on a large scale, and it is believed that it will soon be introduced into the army.

The paper gives further details, and states that the caliber is six millimeters. The rifle is being constructed at the Steyr Armor works.

Eggs Hatch Out Chicks.

Buffalo, N. Y.—When Dr. Heath, chief food and drug inspector of the department of health, opened a bag containing eggs which had been left with him for examination he found that three of them had developed into baby chickens during the night. Two of the chickens were dead, but the third was a lusty little fellow, which will be used as an exhibit by the health commissioner when he applies to the board of aldermen for additional food inspectors.

MAPLES MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Pitt

Keep weeds out of strawberries.

Farm teams should have extra care.

Horses should not be checked up when at work.

Wild mustard causes but little trouble in the corn belt.

Ensilage materially reduces the cost of raising and fattening cattle.

Sometimes old strawberry beds will pay to keep for another fruiting.

Ordinarily the best animal food for hens at this time of year is cnt green bone.

For the women who love plants there is nothing so pleasant as indoor gardening.

A sanitary stable is absolutely necessary for a uniform quality of good butter.

It costs less to raise strawberries in a new bed, and they are of better size and flavor.

A man who cannot succeed with a scrub flock will hardly make a success with a pure bred herd.

Dairy farmers should not raise or buy timothy hay for cows. Clover or alfalfa is much better as a milk producer.

With the majority of farmers the pasture provides the sole summer feed for all the animals except the work horses.

A patch of rutabagas or an acre of pumpkins will make the cows remember you with increased yields next fall and winter.

The temperature of the cream when in the churn should range from 53 to 56 degrees, and it should be churned for 30 to 40 minutes.

The sheep that shears ten pounds or over, an animal of good size and strong back, with proper attention will make money for its owner.

The great advantage of the cream separator over the various systems of cream-raising is that thick or thin cream, as desired, may be obtained.

Home-grown seeds, pure, free from weeds and found by local experience to afford satisfactory yields, are generally to be preferred over all others.

Summer selection should be kept up until the fowls are fully grown. Dispose of every little runt that shows up, because they are not worth keeping.

Get the horseradish into the ground just as soon as possible. Plant the roots two or three inches deep with the thick end up. The soil must be very rich.

All infertile eggs have a value. While it is unlawful to sell these eggs we find that when well boiled and mixed with cornmeal they make excellent food for chicks.

To give the hen heat and energy, we use carbonaceous matter (carbohydrates—starches). The two must be mixed. Fats, to a more or less extent, can be found in every article of food.

A gallon tin fruit can with holes made a half inch from the open end and inverted over an inch deep pie pan makes an ideal drinking fountain. Use the scrub brush on the pan once in awhile, too.

When corn is several inches high, put in the sulky cultivator set to mellow the ground fully five inches deep when corn is small and shallow; when stalks are half grown and roots spread across the rows.

The Pekin flock is very hardy, a good layer and fattens quickly. The ducklings, if well cared for should be ready for market in ten weeks. They should be killed before the pen feathers begin to grow.

Be careful not to overcrowd the birds during the hot season. Fresh air and cool quarters are conducive to health these warm days, and prevention is better than cure with chickens, seeing that the best cure for a sick fowl is death.

If the hens are confined to a small yard, a portion of the yard soiled by dig up once a week and a little finely-ground bone and meat fed three times during the week to take the place of the worms and insects they would pick up when at large.

Spray for soft scale.

Buy only the best seeds.

Plant some strawberries this spring.

If a hen is very sick, it scarcely pays to doctor her.

Strawberries work in well with vegetable growing.

The first week is the critical time in the life of the little pig.

Don't try to feed ten hogs in a trough big enough for only six.

Under domestication the hog has become an animal of wide distribution.

Now is the time to produce lots of milk. Plenty of time and prices are high.

A weak point in dairying is the lack of cleanliness at all times and in all things.

Treating small grains with formalin is too important to be overlooked by farmers.

To give profitable returns dairy cows must be well bred, well fed and well managed.

The most profitable nut trees for the middle states are the chestnuts, walnuts and shellbarks.

The first great requisite in the care of stock is perfect cleanliness, pure air and abundant sunshine.

A hen that does not lay usually does not bother the trap nest unless she is after eggs for food.

Flax has been found a profitable crop in the West and seems well suited to the prairie soils.

In buying a barrel churn don't get one too small; if you do you will find it takes a long time to churn.

Raising of broilers is a business by itself. Start on a small scale and then with success increase the capacity.

Scrub poultry may serve a good purpose in the pot, but they should not be permitted to propagate their kind.

Stables should be well lighted and so arranged that the light will not strike the animals directly in the eyes.

Few farmers and poultrymen know about the feeding value of bright, well-cured clover hay for laying hens.

You can not make a greater mistake than to confine your breeding ducks, especially if they are Indian Runners.

One of the very important things to do this month is to make your selection of seeds and plants and order them now.

Pruning apple trees involves so many principles that only the most general survey can be given in a short discussion.

The dairy cow is one of the best money makers on the farm; but, like hens, she pays only according to "value received."

The Holstein, the Ayrshire and the milking shorthorn are the best breeds for the milk farmer to raise. For cream select the Guernsey.

Good comfortable housing and judicious feeding are the two cardinal principles of successfully wintering the breeding ewes.

The value of skim milk on the farm when fed in conjunction with grain is greater than it is usually given credit for being.

It is a good time now to take an inventory of your farm and plan to keep records of all transactions connected with your farming operations.

Don't be in a hurry to get rid of the old bull. Remember that he has proven himself and the calf that you buy will be more or less of a lottery.

A chilled egg will bring forth a weak chick if it hatches at all and a weak chick that has hard work to live is sometimes worse than no chick at all.

During the breeding season mate one drake with four ducks until the last of April, then diminish the number of drakes to one drake to five or six ducks.

The lack of success which so many farmers have with chickens in largely due to a lack of planning, and they neglect to give the fowls the attention these plans call for.

Anyone can easily see that bone is one of the best feeds for producing eggs, as the fat assists in forming the yolk of the egg and also in sustaining the fowl in winter.

Butter is a good price. Feed is comparatively cheap, especially so if you have saved all of your roughage, such as cornstalks, the best of our straw, and things of that sort which frequently go to waste.

In making good butter and wrapping the print with paper printed with your name and the name of the farm, the goods will advertise themselves and by making up your milk at home you are sure to get all there is in it if you go at the work properly.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Frank Hossman and Wife, of Hebron, Have Narrow Escape from Drowning.

As Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hossman, of Hebron, were on their way home from Erlanger, after the hard rain, last Saturday afternoon, they narrowly escaped being drowned by a small stream they had to cross near the home of Mrs. Frances Clutterbuck's. The stream was higher than they anticipated, and their buggy was turned over, the top torn off, but the horse finally landed with the vehicle in a field a considerable distance below the ford. The buggy top was found the next day a considerable distance further down the stream. The horse, vehicle and Mr. and Mrs. Hossman were carried under a swinging water gate, a short distance below which Mr. Hossman got hold of a root just as his wife was passing him, when he succeeded in catching her by one arm, and by heroic efforts he finally reached the shore, both about exhausted. The rain that raised the stream is said to have been the heaviest that has fallen in that neighborhood in the last twenty-five years.

CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE.

Lightning Cut Up Jack in the Waterloo and Bellevue Neighborhoods.

Lightning cut up jack in Waterloo neighborhood, Tuesday morning. It killed 12 sheep for J. D. Acra, knocked a chimney off of J. W. Kite's residence, tore to pieces a considerable stretch of wire fence belonging to Leonard Kite, and in the McVille neighborhood Mrs. Oscie Rice and two children who were riding the same horse, had a narrow escape. The animal and the three persons were rendered unconscious by the electric current. Mrs. Rice was the first to regain consciousness, when she discovered her two children and the horse lying in the road apparently lifeless. Fortunately they were not seriously hurt and soon revived. When the returns were all in it showed that Tuesday morning had been a strenuous one in and around Waterloo.

Lightning struck a chimney on James Rogers' handsome residence in Belleview, Tuesday, and did considerable damage but did not set fire to the building. The chimney that was struck was demolished as far down as the roof, the grate torn out in the dining room, while nearly everything in the dining room and kitchen was destroyed. The damages are estimated at $100. The family was in the house but all escaped. Mr. Rogers was in a room up stairs, and was nearly suffocated by the soot from the chimney and the fumes of sulphur. It was a dangerous shakeup.

NOAH SURFACE

Passes Away on the Third Inst. at His Home In Gunpowder Neighborhood.

Noah Surface was born in Prebble county, Ohio, April 15th, 1826; died July 3, 1911, aged 85 years, 2 months and 18 days.

On the 19th day of June, 1845, he was married to Mary Tanner. God blessed their home with four daughters and three sons, all of whom grew to years of maturity—one daughter, Mrs. S. A. Rice and the dear mother have for sometime been with Jesus, and were there to bid father welcome to his heavenly home. Three daughters, Mrs. R. F. Hogan, Mrs. A. E. Howe, of Hamilton, Ohio, and Mrs. M. J. Graves, of Bullittsville; three sons, B. C., J. S. and E. H. Surface; eighteen grand children and sixteen great grand children rise up to call him blessed and to cherish the memory of his beautiful christian life.

In a short auto-biography he tells of his early christian training which led him to repentance and full surrender to Jesus, when he received the assurance of sins forgiven and of justification through Jesus his Savior who fills his heart with such joy and peace and love as mortal tongue cannot express. He then publicly professed his faith in Christ and ratified the vows made by his parents in infancy, and became a member of Salem Lutheran Church. A year after their marriage they moved to Boone county, where in the midst of the trials and discouragements of building a home in a new country they never lost faith in their loving heavenly father, and he testifies to God's faithfulness to bless those who put their trust in Him. A childhood of christian training and almost 70 years of active christian service! What temporal and spiritual blessings enjoyed through all those years and what glorious hope brightened his pathway as with his spiritual eyes he looked beyond this world to "that land of pure delight where saints immortal dwell."

The funeral services were conducted at Hopeful, last Wednesday, by Revs. Tomlinson, pastor, and S. E. Slater, a former pastor of the Boone County Charge. The remains were laid to rest in the family lot in the church cemetry, in the presence of a large concourse of sorrowing friends.

The children send their heartfelt and sincere thanks to the friends who so kindly assisted during the last illness and at the death of their father.

VISITING OLD FRIENDS.

Mrs. Mary Carpenter, of Florence, Spent Last Week Viewing The Scenes of Her Childhood.

Mrs. Mary Carpenter, of Florence, spent last week with Mrs. Emily Ann Berkshire, out on the Belleview pike, and Mrs. W. H. Pope, down on Middle creek. These three ladies were schoolmates and attended school in the Huntsville school house over 65 years ago. The old school building is standing and was visited by Mrs. Carpenter, last week, and the sight of it revived her recollection of many events of her girlhood. Among the boys who attended school at Huntsville with Mrs. Carpenter were the late H. Clay White, of Williamstown and Fountain Riddell, of Burlington. Mrs. Carpenter's maiden name was Cornelius and she was raised by the late Milton Scott, who lived where Mr. Alfred Cason resides. Her first husband was Eluford Rice; her second husband being the late Abel Carpenter, and they resided for many years on the pike between Florence and Erlanger. Mrs. Carpenter carries her age well, and were it not that she got one of her hips broken several years ago, she would be a very spry old lady. Her visit to her two acquaintances of youth, was most enjoyable to all parties, and their calling to mind the events of their girlhood, made each feel several years younger than before they met. It was through the kindness of Mr. H. G. Elanton, of Erlanger, that Mrs. Carpenter was enabled to make the trip to see her associates of yore, and to him she feels most grateful for the pleasure.

CHANCE SLIM.

With the stoppage of the sale of burley tobacco of the 1909 pool the chance for any more money soon is a very slim one. To close out the crop of burley would probably take some time under present conditions. The sale will probably not re-open before the first of September and the payment will not likely occur before the holidays.—Owenton News.

CHECK FOR $100,000.

A check for $100,000 was received by the Secretary of State, together with articles of incorporation of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad, which incorporates in this State. The incorporation fee is the largest that has been received in some years. The C. & O., under a decision of the Court of Appeals, must incorporate in Kentucky in order to acquire a rail oad located in this State.

PASSED IN HIS CHECK.

John C. Wood, one of the best known politicians of Eastern Kentucky, died Thursday, at his home at Mt. Sterling. He was 50 years of age, and for years had been one of the Republican leaders of the State. He had been Railroad Commissioner, Federal Commissioner, Postmaster, etc. Personally, he was very popular.

It is news to most people that the Interstate Commerce Commission has undertaken the investigation of the express companies. The announcement that this policy has just been decided on is misleading, for the Commission has had men in the field for months making a searching inquiry into the business methods of the companies. As a result of this investigation, it is believed, the carriers under investigation filed new schedules which are probably intended to meet some of the more serious complaints regarding the manner of conducting the express business. It has been contended for a long time that the express monopoly was making excessive profits. It will gratify the public if something can be done to insure more equitable charges for service and better protection to the customers of the companies.

In the "Show Me" State.

In his address to the Commercial Club and the delegates who were here to talk for the State Highway coming by their towns Thursday evening June 22. Gov. Hadley said that he was in favor of the using of convicts from the penitentiary for the building of roads in the State. That both political parties had declared against the contract system now in vogue for convicts and the legislature had passed a bill for the gradual elimination of convict labor, by contract. That something would have to be done to keep them employed and that several states that tried the using them on roads had found it a success. For this purpose the convicts would be selected so as to send out those who were not in the depraved class and by giving them additional time off for good behavior while out on the roads good results had followed. The Governor was surprised at the cheers he received as he said he hardly expected so many to be ready to agree with him at this time, but he believed it was only a matter of time until all would be in favor of it.—Fulton, Missouri telegraph.

THE WHEAT CROP.

The larger portion of the wheat crop was threshed the past week and some of the threshers have pulled in home. The straw was short and the crop was threshed in a shorter time than ever before known. The quality varied from fair to good according to the quality of the soil, the time sown and other contingencies. The price was something of a disappointment to growers, and has been about eighty cents for the best. Quite a number of farmers have stored their grain expecting better prices in the future while most of them have delivered their grain at the market price.—Winchester Democrat.

CATCHING CHICKENS.

For many years Boyle county has been infested with a gang of wild dogs, which destroy lots of young stock. The Danville Advocate says the cats have been destroying chickens on a large scale. The cats go in bands and at least five thousand chickens have been destroyed in the last few days.

Sealed bids will be received until 1 p. m., Saturday, July 15th, 1911, by the directors of the Clover Leaf Creamery, for hauling butter by the trip; for hauling ice in back loads and hauling coal by the bushel.
G. W. SANDFORD,
President.

The Fight Against Scabies.

A Federal inspector who has visited eighty one counties in Kentucky reports that he found scabies among the sheep in sixty-two of these counties. Despite that fact in thirty-eight counties no work has been done toward stamping out the disease and in seven no livestock inspector has been appointed.

Kentucky has about 800,000 sheep and the Federal inspector estimates that of this number nearly 35,000 are infected with scabies. The disease can be quickly eradicated if all the diseased animals are dipped as soon as possible after it is found out that the malady exists in a herd. Until it is eradicated quarantine regulations will prevail and sheep cannot be shipped out of Kentucky. The sheep-raising industry in this State is large and the owners of herds will advance their own interests by facilitating the work of the inspectors. The quarantine, it is stated, will not be lifted in counties where the treatment of the disease is from any cause inefficient. This is ample reason why sheep owners should see to it that diseased animals receive prompt attention.

If the dipping process is thorough and general the affected sheep will be restored and by the close of the year all the herds will have been cleaned up and the herd owners will be enabled to start the new year with a clean bill of health. The longer the matter is postponed the more seriously will the sheep-raising industry be damaged. In an emergency such as exists there is room enough and to spare for all among all persons and interests concerned.

A great part of Gallatin's wheat crop has been harvested the past week, and the quality has probably been the best of any wheat crop for years. The yield per acre has also been unusually good.—Warsaw Independent.

Warsaw, July 7.—Spencer Lillard, farmer, aged 35 years, was killed by lightning during a severe electrical storm this afternoon. Walter Craig, a brother-in-law of Lillard, was stunned by the shock.

Hay Fever and Summer Colds must be relieved quickly and Foley's Honey and Tar Compound will do it. E. M. Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Biggerstaff have gone to Plainfield, New Jersey, to spend the summer months with their daughter and friends at their old home.

Misses Anna Watson and Callie Benson enjoyed a pleasant visit to Cincinnati, Friday, making the trip in Mr. Hick's automobile, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hicks.

Mrs. Dr. R. M. Jones and little daughter Helen, of Louisville, arrived here the first of the week to spend most of the summer months here with her relatives, Mrs. A. N. Jones and Robert W. Jones.

David Hicks bought a fine Buick automobile from A. Ralph Edwards, Tuesday, when they made a trip to Cincinnati in Mr. Edwards' car. This makes five automobiles that Mr. Edwards has sold this season.

Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Brockwell, of Covington, are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Franks, having just returned from a visit in the Blue Grass, where they were enjoying his vacation.

S. L. Edwards and Thomas F. Curley attended county court at Independence last Monday, being the attesting witnesses to the will of the late Enoch Williams, the will being probated in the county court that day.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Roetinger and son, W. D. Roetinger and his son Paul D., who have been on a visit to Mrs. Louise Lathrop, lefty esterday for Wildwood, N. J., where they expect to make their future home.

Dr. C. C. Metcalfe spent Monday at Cincinnati visiting his father, Wm. H. Metcalfe, who has been there several weeks taking special treatment for a nervous affection, and he reports him very much improved and will soon be able to return home and able to resume the management of his farm.

Dr. Harry W. Hamilton, our popular dentist, spent Monday in Cincinnati on business. He had a narrow escape from serious injury by the sudden starting of a street car on which he was riding, wrenching his hand in a painful manner, and but for a bystander he would have fallen and been badly hurt.

J. T. Hurt, the efficient agent of the Q. & C. Railroad at Walton, has been quite badly afflicted with nervous trouble and has been taking a vacation the past week, and undergoing treatment under a specialist at Cincinnati. His position as station agent is being filled by C. D. Lisle, of Burnside, Ky.

Mr and Mrs. W. R. Miller were at Big Bone Springs Monday attending the funeral of Mrs. Axie Holtzaw, mother of Mrs. Miller, who died at Paint Lick, Gallatin county, Saturday, from old age, being 92 years old at the time of her death. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Wm. McMillan of the Baptist church.

The prescription department of the New Drug Store of Robert W. Jones is now in charge of Wm. Bleiweiss, of Cincinnati. Besides extensive general drug store work, Mr. Bleiweiss has had a number of years experience with a leading Cincinnati Drug Store as head prescription man, is a graduate of Cincinnati College of Pharmacy and registered in both Kentucky and Ohio.

The protracted meeting at the Walton Christian church in progress the past week, has been largely attended, and the people have been nicely entertained and highly instructed in very interesting sermons by Rev. R. E. Moss of Eminence, who is conducting the meeting, assisted by Rev. L. A. Kohler of Cincinnati, the latter being the pastor of the church.

Roy D. Stamler, the clever and popular proprietor of the Walton Pool Parlors, spent Friday in Cincinnati on business. His pool room is one of the neatest and best conducted places of amusement to be found anywhere as he does not tolerate any boisterous or noisy behavior whatever, and the harmless amusement is enjoyed by the best class of people, and as a consequence he is having a fine patronage.

Prof. C. O. Morgan of Morning View, who was the principal of the Walton Graded School last year, has been employed as the principal of the high school at Ludlow, Ky., for the coming scholastic year at a salary of $65 per month, and the school has a ten months' session. Prof. Morgan is a fine teacher and will do his best to give the school the excellent service that such a school demands.

A. S. Evans' Repertoire Company was here the past week and played an engagement of three nights beginning Monday. The troupe traveled in a couple of special coaches, and gave their performances in a large tent. A high wind the second night prevented the giving of the performance as the management lost a tent by a wind storm at Williamstown and concluded not to take the risk and therefore took down the tent on the approach of the storm. The patronage was light though the performances of St. Elmo and Kit Carson, the dramas presented, were very fair. A car inspector made an inspection of their cars Wednesday and made an adverse report which resulted in their cars being held up here until Friday at noon, missing their engagement at Butler, Ky.

The Horse Protective Association at its last meeting elected Jas. W. Cleek, President, Jos. Fisher, Vice-President, and Cr. E. Carroll, Secretary and Treasurer. The next meeting will be held next Saturday, July 22d, at 2 o'clock p. m., at the Equitable Bank & Trust Company, and a special invitation is extended to all who have interests in the horse business or are the owners of horses, to attend and enroll themselves as members. The association has been a great protection to the owners of live stock and horses in particular as it has a system that enables its members to quickly apprehend horse thieves and bring to justice those who trespass on the rights of the owners. Membership in the association means a great deal for mutual interest, and every owner of a horse should identify himself with the organization as the cost is but a trifle, and its membership is not circumscribed by any boundary. Attend the meeting Saturday and enroll yourself as a member.

A cordial invitation from one of our charter members, Mrs. L. Hoskins, of Walton Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist church, brought us to our annual meeting which convenes in the month of July. This beautiful cottage home is situated on the Lexington pike about two miles south of Walton, and is considered one of the most desirable on the route from Covington to Lexington. The members and their invited guests made up the gathering of the day. Those from a distance were Mrs. Judge Lassing, of Newport; Mrs. S. Byers, of Augusta; Mrs. Jack Harris and daughter, of Florida, and Mr. Strother, of Owenton, who represents the Traction Co. At noon a delightful and bountiful lunch was served on the lawn. The game of croquet and friendly and sociable chat of friends and neighbors were enjoyed until 2:30, when the society was called to order by the president, who read the 23d Psalm, followed by an impressive prayer by Rev. J. E. Wright. There is enough funds in the treasury to beautify the inside of the church. The dues and donations for the day amounted to $11.30. The day was a decided success and with best wishes for our kind and honored host and hostess we adjourned by repeating the Lord's prayer. Miss Elizabeth Hudson invited the society to spend a day with her in August.

To the Recorder :

Your correspondent was misinformed as to A. C. Blackburn going out of business, and selling to W. R. Miller. You could not give me a soft drink stand or a peanut stand in Walton. Mr. Blackburn bought out A. H. C. Miller and sold out to Mattie Miller.

W. R. Miller.

Mattie M. Miller has bought out A. C. Blackburn and will carry a staple line of groceries and would like the patronage of all her friends. Mr. Blackburn has located in Glencoe.

A STRANGE LETTER.

(Carrollton Democrat.)

A friend of the Democrat sent us this article last week, with the request that we publish same: The clipping is as follows:

A letter purporting to have been written by Christ after the crucifixion and deposited by Him under a stone at the foot of the cross is being given wide circulation by the newspapers of the country. Mrs. C. O. Friend, of Cherryvale, Kansas, has clipped it from the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and asked the Denver Post to reprint it.

An injunction to have the letter published has frightened some into whose hands it has fallen, and like the old chain prayer it threatens misfortune on those who deliberately withhold it from others. The belief that Christ really gave the letter to be spread broadcast has inspired many to aid in giving it publication. The story is that a little child turned the stone under which the letter was hidden and that the document was given to a convert to the Christian faith.

This convert kept it as a sacred momento of Christ and down through generations in his family it was until 1000 years were passed. Misfortune attended the family always, according to the tale, and at last one of the members came to America, bringing the letter with him. Mrs. Fannie Wortman, of Marion, Indiana, came to know the history of the document from that time on. According to her, the owner of it went to Virginia and after a series of misfortunes the last of the family passed out.

A Mrs. Thompson, a neighbor of the family, took the letter and had it published in the Rome (Ga.) Tribune of October 31, 1891. Mrs. Wortman cut it out and kept it in her home. She made no attempt to have it republished until lately and she says she was punished for her failure to give it publicity.

Mrs. Rubin Crutchfield, of Tresvant, Tenn., is another who says she suffered misfortune until she printed the latter. The document reads:

Whosoever works on the Sabbath day shall be cursed. I command you to go to church and keep holy the Lord's day without any manner of work. You shall not idle or misspend your time in bedecking y ourselves in superfluities of costly apparel and vain dressing, for I have ordered it a day of rest. I will have that day kept holy that your sins may be forgiven you.

You will not break my commandments, but observe and keep them, they being written by my hand and spoken from my mouth. You shall not only go to church yourselves, but also your man-servant and maid-servant. Observe my word and learn my commandments.

You shall finish your work every Saturday at six o'clock in the afternoon, at which hour the preparation for the Sabbath begins. I advise you to fast five Fridays in the year, beginning on Good Friday and continuing the Fridays following, in remembrance of the five bloody wounds I received for you and mankind.

You shall love one another and cause them that are not baptized to come to church and receive the holy sacrament—that is to say, baptism and the supper of the Lord, and be made a member thereof, and in so doing I will give you long life and many blessings. Your land shall be replenished and bring forth abundance and I will comfort you in the greatest temptation, and surely lie that doeth to the contrary shall be cursed.

I will also send hardness of the heart on them, and especially on hardened and unpenitent unbelievers. He that hath given to the poor shall find it profitable. Remember to keep holy the Sabbath day, for the seventh day I have taken as a resting day to myself.

And he that hath a copy of this letter, written by my own hand and spoken from my own mouth and keepeth it, without publishing it to others, shall not prosper, but he that publisheth it to others shall be blessed by me, and if their sins be as many as the stars at night and if they truly believe that they shall be pardoned, and they that believe not this writing and my commandments will have my plagues upon you, and you will be consumed with your children, goods, cattle and all other worldly enjoyments that I have given you. Do but once think of what I have suffered for you—if you do, it will be well for you in this world and the world which is to come.

Whosoever shall have a copy of this letter and keep it in their house, nothing shall hurt them, neither pestilence, lightning or thunder, and if any woman be in birth and put her trust in me she shall be delivered of her child. You shall hear no more news of me, except through the Holy Scriptures, until the judgment. All goodness and prosperity shall be in the house where a copy of this letter shall be fond. Finished.

The water proposition is the only thing that is annoying the management of the local creamery, but those who are superintending the work are confident that the well that has been put down a considerable depth will furnish an abundance of water. A ledge of blue limestone was struck at the depth of about ten feet, and drilling and blasting was resorted to at once and has been kept up. Considerable water accumulates in the excavation every night, and gives rise to the belief that a good vein lies beneath the ledges of rock.

Which ever party wins at the November election will have this problem facing it: "The last school census for Kentucky shows that only 36 per cent of the children of school age in the State attend school. How shall this distressing condition of affairs be improved?" It will take wise statesmanship and "keeping everlastingly at it" to bring about any good results.—Ex.

The wheat yield is proving a great disappointment to many, falling considerably below what the farmers had expected. Some few crops have shown a good yield per acre, but the majority of them have been below the average. The low price paid and the increased cost of harvesting and threshing are making this crop less profitable year by year.—Blue Grass Clipper.

INVASION

Of Asiatic Cholera Threatens New York City.

Fifteen Cases of Scourge Now In Quarantine.

New York, July 16.—Although the cholera situation at Quarantine at present is regarded by Dr. Alvah H. Doty, Health Officer of the port of New York as being well in hand he did not conceal his apprehension to-night that New York was "in the very midst of a threatened invasion of cholera."

Further, Dr. Doty declared "the Quarantine Department of every port in this country is facing a very serious and onerous task during the coming summer," and it is not improbable that many vessels arriving from Italy during the next few weeks will bring one or more cases of the disease.

To-day's official report of the situation showe that there are fifteen cases of the scourge at Swinburne Island Hospital and four cases symptomatic of the disease.

Within the past 24 hours one more victim has died. The steamer Perugia has been detained and the medical staff is preparing to make bacteriological examinations in the case of each of the 248 persons from the steamer Moltke, who now are under observation.

It is possible that Governor Dix will be called upon to take charge at quarantine.

The Recorder is in receipt of a business letter from Elbert S. Ryle, of Benton, this State. The letter head is as follows: "Marshall County High and Benton Graded Schools, E. S. Ryle, Principal." The faculty is composed of Mr. Ryle and five other teachers. The reading on the letter head sounds good to Prof. Ryle's host of friends in Boone county, and who wish him all the good luck imaginable in his chosen professions and in which he has labored hard to make a success under many discouraging conditions.

Died at Ninety-Three.

Mrs. Marie Holsclaw, 93, (probably the oldest woman in this part of the State, died last Sunday, at Jackson Landing, Gallatin county. She was at one time a citizen of this county. She died of ailments incident to old age.

Raided Their Camp.

Sheriff Hume raided the Hayes camp near the Lawrenceburg ferry, again last Saturday morning, and confiscated a half bushel of poker chips, a lot of beer and whisky, several poker tables and other paraphernalia necessary for a well equipped gambling den. The man who operated the outfit was not present, and the probability is his gambling camp is now a thing of the past, as when the Sheriff left it last Saturday it was in a badly dilapidated condition, having the appearance of having been visited by a very active cyclone. The Hartman boys on whose land the camp was located were arrested, for permitting gambling, but as they are both good, lawabiding citizens the probability is they were totally ignorant of what was being done at the camp. The Hartman boys came out for trial Tuesday, and owing to their good reputation for truth and honesty, they had no trouble in satisfying the court that they did not know of the unlawful business being conducted at the camp, and they were acquitted.

The fall in the temperature last week was very much to the liking of the farmers who were engaged harvesting and threshing. Previous to the change neither man nor beast could hardly stand the great heat that day after day produced.

AT THEIB OLD HOME.

J. M. and B. W. Campbell, of Cincinnati, Spend Part of Last Sunday Viewing the Scenes of Their Childhood Days.

J. M., and B. W. Campbell and wife, of Cincinnati, came out last Sunday and spent a few hours in Burlington. Messrs. Campbell are natives of Burlington, which place they left about 40 years ago, and are now prominent citizens of the great city of Cincinnati. J. M. served in the city fire department until he had put over a period of [illegible] and then some that entitled him to retirement with a pension. While in the city's service he was regarded as one of her most faithful guardians. During his service he participated in the fights against some of the most destructive fires in the city's history and had many exciting experiences and narrow escapes with his life. He served as a confederate soldier during the rebellion, and cultivated a love for a strenuous life, and at the close of the war a fireman's life appeared to him to be next to that of a soldier's in the matter of excitement and he soon became one of the laddies, and stayed in the ranks until age called for his retirement. B. W. Campbell is one of the most successful business men in Cincinnati, where he has amassed a fortune which is supposed to be at least a million. He is the business member of the Campbell Perkins Co., manufacturers of saddlery and harness. He owns numerous pieces of very valuable realestate in Cincinnati, and is one of those who knows how to enjoy his wealth. These two ex-Burlingtonians have a warm place in their hearts for their native town, and near which their parents are sleeping their long sleep, and they make an annual visit to the scenes of their boyhood.

JIM OBJECTS

To Binding Oats Hereafter by Hand—Too Hard On His Nerves

While Geo. Blyth and James Slayback were binding oats, one day last week, the latter, in gathering up grain for a bundle, picked up a large spreading adder, which gave notice of its presents by wigging vigorously. It took Slayback only an instant to discover that he had some very objectionable foreign material in his collection, and the rapidity with which he scattered the oats would have left lightning outside of the money in a speed contest with him. The reptile was dispatched, but it was some time before the frightened man's nerves became quiet enough for him to resume work, in fact he came very near bolting the job before the fright wore off.

No Easy Snap.

The men who are putting the heating plant in the court house found sixteen cross walls in the foundation, each of which had to be pierced one or more times for pipes, all of which work had to be done by the men while lying flat of their backs. Mr. Feulis, the boss workman, says, no doubt the firm's bid on the work would have been considerably higher had the party who put in the bid been aware of the conditions under the building. The job of putting the pipes in under the building is a hard and dirty piece of work.

A PREACHER AND A DOCTOR

Stopped by Nomads Who Insist on Telling Their Fortunes

But Escape and Make Their Way To The County Seat.

Rev. Leslie Early and Dr. J. M. Grant, of Petersburg, came over one day last week to transact some business with County Judge Cason. On the pike near Idlewild they met a band of Gypsies, and some of the women belonging to the nomads halted them and insisted on being allowed to reveal unto them their future, to which they stubbornly objected, but one of the women succeeded in securing a glove from the Doctor and proceeded to blow her breath therein, while the Doctor came very nearly going out of the buggy head foremost in his frantic efforts to secure his piece of wearing apparel. Having succeeded in making their escape from the ladies of nomadic proclivities the two gentlemen made their way hastily to Burlington, where they remained until late in the afternoon hoping that the road would be clear for their return. As nothing to the contrary has been reported it is supposed, at this end of the line, they made the trip home without the repetition of anything like their morning's adventure.

Colored Folks Have Big Meeting

Just about an acre of colored people assembled in Burlington, last Sunday, to attend the annual basket meeting at the First Baptist church. They came in large numbers from Ohio, Indiana, Newport and Covington, and every neighborhood in this county. It was much the largest crowd of colored people ever in Burlington. They were well dressed and well behaved, and many of them owned the good looking rigs they drove.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets invariably bring relief to women suffering from chronic constipation, headache, billiousness dizziness, sallowness of the skin and dyspepsia. Sold by all dealers. 4-t.

TIMELY ACTION

Prevents What Might Have Been a Very Destructive Fire.

As the gasoline light plant in E. E. Kelly's store was being shut off one night last week it pulled off a stunt that was not on the program. It seems that the tank had sprung a leak and just as the machine was approached to be shut off the escaping gasoline took fire, and instantly a blaze shot to the ceiling. Mr. Kelly and his clerk, Dudley Blyth, made a furious attack on the flame and succeeded in smothering it before the fire was communicated to anything. At the time there appeared to be no one on the street, but the cry of fire had a crowd at the store almost instantur, ready for a battle with the flames. Both Mr. Kelly and Mr. Blyth became somewhat excited after the fire was out and they had time to get into that condition. Timely action was all that prevented a destructive fire, no doubt.

Death in Roaring Fire.

Too Much "Bugjuice."

John Parsons, a superannuated citizen was brought from Walton to Erlanger, last Saturday afternoon, where he was delivered to Sheriff B. B. Hume, who lodged him in jail in Burlington in a few hours thereafter. Parsons was subbing for the Q. & C. agent at Walton, who is off on a vacation. Walton is a dry zone, a condition to which the old man had never adopted himself, consequently he became too familiar with the contents of a box said to contain contraband goods when they reach dry territory, and as a result he was pulled, charged with breaking open a box of goods. The old man was yet under the "fluences" when he reached Burlington, and did not know whether he was going to jail or to church. Tuesday the old man was taken before County Judge Cason and fined $10 and costs, that being the lowest fine. The officers knocked off their costs and he was told to go and sin no more.

The Union mail found its way to the Burlington office again last Tuesday evening, and the Burlington mail went to Union, the sacks being changed, accidentally, at Florence.

Autoists Drove Into a Raging Stream and Were Capsized.

(Grant County News.)

An automobile party composed of two young men and two young women, one of the couples married, the other seeking a Gretna Green far away from the prying eyes of their friends and relations, arrived here Tuesday afternoon, using for a tow a big team of horses which they had secured from Tom Sheriff, of Clarks Creek, where they had an experience that they will remember very likely when their children try to practice the same caper and fool their friends by getting married on the quiet.

The young people were Mr. and Mrs. Chas. O. Sieglitz, and Miss Clara Simmons and Mr. Gaudin all of Vevay, Indiana. They left the little city in Hoosierdom, to which many Grant county people have gone when they wished to escape from the toils of single blessedness, Tuesday morning, driving their auto through by way of Sparta and Joneaville, and on across the pike past Stewartsville. Sometime before they reached Clarks Creek a downpour of rain fell over the headwaters of that rather frisky little stream, and from a peaceful little rill, trickling between the green hills, in a few moments it was changed into a yellow, angry flood of rushing waters.

Had they been acquainted with the stream they would never have tried to cross until the waters receded. Before they reached the creek they ran into a stream of water that had broken away from the main stream and overflowed the pike and they failed to realize that they were in the creek until it was too late. The water spooled the carbureter and batteries, or whatever it is that makes automobiles move and they found themselves marooned in midstream. Just to show them that it hadn't done all it could in the way of a flood the waters kept rising, and it soon became evident that their only hope of escaping from a watery grave lay in their getting ashore.

The men wore linen dusters and managed to disrobe then breasted the turgid tide, and the current being with them, succeeded in pushing the machine down the stream into shallower water and finally landed them ladies on terra firma. They secured the services of Tom Sheriff after the water had receded far enough to allow them to do so, and with the aid of two big horses pulled the machine out and towed it into Williamstown, arriving here about half past four o'clock in a badly bedraggled condition.

Not discouraged by their recent wetting and their close acquaintance with death, Gaudin and Miss Simmons hurried to the County Clerk's office after they had a change of clothing, and sought a marriage license, but he made the mistake of telling the clerk that the bride was only 20 years of age and the clerk refused to issue the license. But it is pretty hard to balk Dan Cupid, and they got an automobile and drove on to Falmouth where the license was secured and wedding ceremony said. They returned the same night, but had to remain all day Wednesday in Williamstown while their auto was being repaired.

They declared that the marriage was not an elopment, but were very anxious to keep the affair out of the papers.

Wheat Crop The Best Ever.

The wheat crop in this locality not only ripened earlier, was harvested earlier, and in the best condition, was marketed earlier, in some instances, than ever before, but is of the best quality in general ever known here.

All of the wheat was harvested before the 4th of July and some of it brought to mill before that date. It is a rare thing for wheat to weigh the full 60 lbs., per bushel measure but this year's local wheat in some instances weighs 62 pounds to the bushel and none of it is of inferior quality. It is the "best ever."—Aurora Independent.

Killing at Burnside,

Burnside, July 14.—County Magistrate A. J. Beatty, aged 38 years and Constable W. P. Heath, aged 40 years, were killed in a desperate battle in Beatty's courtroom late to-day.

Deputy Sheriff James Ellis and John Heldon, are under arrest, charged with the double killing.

Magistrate Beatty had issued warrants for the arrests of Ellis, for alleged illegal sale of liquor and Heldon for a minor offense.

Ellis and Heldon entered the courtroom late to-day and a few minutes later the doors were closed, leaving them alone with the Magistrate and Constable. Immediately thereafter shots were fired.

When the shooting had ceased, the bodies of Beatty and Heath were found in the courtroom and Ellis and Heldon were arrested.

The prisoners say they shot in self-defense.

When Ellis was being taken toward the city jail by Marshal Joseph M. Lewis a mob seized the prisoner and put a rope about his neck and rushed him to a tree near the river, but was persuaded to restore him to the custody of the authorities. To-night a strong guard is on duty at the jail.

Ten Laws for Buying a Farm.

At a recent conference of farmers held in New York, the following ten commandments for buying a farm were approved:

1. Don't think about buying a farm if your wife don't live in the country.
2. Don't believe agents when they tell you gold-brick stories.
3. Don't chase after big farms.
4. Don't buy a farm unless you have money enough left to buy a cow.
5. Don't settle far away from the markets.
6. Don't run too much in debt when you buy the farm.
7. Don't pay a deposit on your farm until you have consulted a lawyer.
8. Don't forget to insure your buildings in a reliable company.
9. Don't buy a farm unless you are able to meet the mortgages.
10. Don't buy a farm unless you have consulted those who know.

To Protect Fish and Game.

Unless something is done in the near future to prevent the wholesale destruction of fish and game in and out of season, Kentucky fields will be bare of birds and the streams without fish. Even now there is but little use for the gun or pole and line and the scarcity of game and fish is a constant inducement to violation of law in the shooting of game out of season and in the use of dynamite and seins.

Two things are necessary for the preservation of the game and fish. One of these is the protection of the game now existing, and the other is the stocking of streams and fields by means of fish hatcheries and game preserves.

The killing off of the game was a result of a prejudice against game laws, based on the belief that game laws were advocated solely for the benefit of city hunters, but the people now realize that good game laws are for the benefit of everybody.

The Kentucky Fish and Game Protective Association is now trying to get every hunter and fisherman in the State interested in the passage of better laws along this line. One of its plans is for the State to charge a license of one dollar per year to every man who hunts on other men's land, and to charge nonresidents of Kentucky at least ten dollars per year for hunting in this State. Similar laws are now and have for years past been in force in every State in the Union except Kentucky and about three other States.

Under such a law a sufficient fund could be raised to employ men to see that the fish and game laws are enforced, and to provide stocks of fish and game for every field and stream in the State. Of course, if a man doesn't care a dollars' worth for hunting he wouldn't have to have a license, and the burden would fall on those who would be glad to pay so small a sum for so much pleasure.

DEFINITIONS OF LIFE.

The following definitions of life have been obtained with considerable difficulty:

A man of merit:
"Life is an interval of effort seldom rewarded with success."

A sportsman:
"Life is an interval of risking your neck to save your liver."

A spendthrift peer writes:
"Life is an interval of debt occasionally relieved by bankruptcy."

A British laborer:
"Life is an interval of work eventually relieved by the workhouse."

A courtier:
"Life is an interval of deceit occasionally rewarded with distinctions."

A territorial magnate:
"Life is an interval of disposition occasionally culminating in dyspepsia."

A social celebrity:
"Life is an interval of pretense occasionally culminating in exposure."

A politician:
"Life is an interval of unscrupulousness eventually rewarded with office."

A stitch at 9 may prevent a rip at 10.

Any man who repeats importance in a scull race than brains.

The rising generation ought to patronize aviation schools.

One man's weakness may be another man's opportunity.

A loveless marriage is like champagne with the fizz all out of it.

Sympathy is like blonde hair, a lot of it is not the real thing.

A woman may win a man's love without trying, but she can't keep it that way.

Many a man works himself to death trying to make a living.

All's fair in love and war, but most men would rather be in love than in a fight.

HIGH PRICE OF HAY.

Liverymen, and users of hay generally, are worried about the problem of securing hay during the summer and fall. The crop is a complete failure, the late frost having killed the seed. Many owners of pastures have long since turned stock into ruined fields, while many sowed other crops over them. We heard one gentleman, a liveryman, say that he had figured buying his hay at $15, but he was now living in dread of having to cough up possibly $25.—Danville Messenger.

Boone County High School.

It should be a source of great pride to the citizens of Boone county to know that we have our part in the great educational awakening that is sweeping over the State of Kentucky. It is safe to say that at the present time educational sentiment is at a higher pitch than ever before in the history of the State. Assuredly is this true in Boone county. But we believe that our people are only stirring and rubbing their eyes and that in years to come in the full awakening they will realize more fully even than now both their needs and their opportunities. Some truths that will be brought home to them are these:

The higheat tax we pay is the tax on ignorance.

It is not broad acres but broad knowledge that makes good corn—and leads to progress and happiness.

Money spent for good roads is not an expense but an investment.

The direction taken by the present movement in educational advancement is very gratifying—because it is sensible and sane. The wonder is that we have not taken that direction long ago. It is beginning to be realized that the best education is the one that prepares the recipient for his life work whatever that is to be. A movement is being led by Prof. Coates, State Supervisor of [illegible] schools, to redirect the work and to a great extent even the purposes of the rural schools. The three R's which in the olden time stood for readin', ritin' and 'rithmetic mean in this movement rations, raiment and resources. The school which once taught the farm lad to deal in stocks and bonds on Wall Street or to mix coffee and beans in the proper proportions to make a certain profit, will now give the same mental discipline and accomplish all other desirable results which culture and business demand while teaching him the proportion of nitrates a certain soil will need to produce the best yield of any given crop or the percentage of loss of butter fat entailed by separating the cream at an improper temperature.

Why should our girls spend their time and their energies learning to diagram mistonic sentences, when they might be learning how to beautify a home or to prepare food in such a way that their future husbands and children will be hearty, healthy and happy?

It is not intended that literature and poetry and music and art and all those things that make for culture and refinement shall be neglected. Far from it. One of the great objects of the new education is to teach that these things can be enjoyed in the country home as well as in the city. The redirection of rural schools means not that arithmetic shall not be taught but that its tendency shall be to increase interest in the country life rather than to lead away from it. It means that in the subject of reading interesting stories of nature and of life will be preferred above Greek mythology. It means that the formation, surface and productivity of Boone county and her soil are more important to the pupils of Boone county than the name and location of all the gulfs of Asia or the population and area of all the islands of the sea. It is believed not only that this nearer-home knowledge will be more practical for the boy and the girl to know but that by associating them with things he knows about and is interested in he will the better learn arithmetic and grammar and geography. There will be solved two great problems: How shall we keep the boys on the farm? and what is the best way to arouse and keep up interest in school work?

Into the carrying out of these ideas the Boone County High School is prepared to throw her energies. We believe that every rural school should be working in this direction, but we feel that the County High School should lead. We are prepared here to do special work in agriculture and other subjects pertaining to practical and useful occupations. We are going to plant hundreds of peach, apple, cherry and plum seeds and at the proper time graft and bud scions upon the young plants. Seed wheat will be tested with the best methods of improving the stock year by year. Soils will be analyzed and with that will be studied the best methods of supplying needed elements. Independent research and experimentation on the part of each student will be encouraged.

Each year, we believe, the farmers of Boone county are losing thousands of dollars that might be saved with no additional labor or hardship if they would give attention to the best methods of conserving the resources. Farmers will be invited to bring in samples of their soil and have them analyzed. We hope in ways like this to help in the adoption of the best methods of agriculture. If we can help in this way we shall be furthering both the agricultural and the educational interests of the county.

THE PIG IN THE CORN BELT.

Size and Scale in Swine an Important Feature to be Considered.

The tendency of late years has been for the size of swine to decrease. This reduction has been in a large measure desirable. Farmer and butcher alike needed a smaller, more quickly maturing, more easily fattened animal than we had a few years ago. Now, however, the pig in the corn belt has reached a point in its development beyond which further decrease in the size of body and bone is not desirable. There are two chief reasons for this. One is that an exceedingly small pig does not produce a fair sized carcass. While the size of the carcass is not of as much moment as some other considerations, still it is desirable that it be of fair size, and it cannot well go below the present low limit. The second reason is that with the reduction in size of frame and bone, and with the tendency to fatten, excessively, the reproductive powers of the pig are seriously interfered with. The litters are fewer and their size is smaller. In view of these facts it is time for the corn belt farmer to stop those practices in breeding and feeding which tend toward smallness of size in individuals and in litters.

A DOG HERDING 3,000 SHEEP.

Here is a report of a Collie dog which shows how valuable such dogs are. It is from an Oregon paper, and it ought to put to shame every human reader who ever betrayed a trust or shirked a duty. Few instances of remarkable achievement are recorded that are more wonderful than the performance of this dog, as reported under date of June 7:

Left alone on Wagontire mountain with 3,086 sheep by the death of John Sagoiday, her master, whose death occurred from heart failure, one night, a female shepherd-dog two weeks later delivered to Manuel Saunders, owner of the sheep, 3,085 of the animals, having lost only one during two weeks of privation. The dog's achievement was carried out despite the fact that she was the mother of puppies only a few days old when her master died.

Honest Medicine Versus Fakes.

President Taft's recent message suggesting an amendment to the Pure Food and Drugs law in its relation to Prepared Medicines does not refer to such standard medicines as Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and Foley's Pills, both of which are true medicines carefully compounded of ingredients whose medicinal qualities are recognized by the medical profession itself as the best known remedial agent for the diseases they are intended to counteract. For over three decades Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has been a standard remedy for coughs, colds and affections of the throat, chest and lungs for children and grown persons, and it retains to day its preeminence above all other preparations of its kind. Foley Kidney Pills are equally effective and meritorious. Sold by Robert W. Jones.

Well Ventilated Warm Cow Barns.

The matter of providing comfortable and sanitary stables for dairy cattle is a matter that is rapidly approaching a science. Years ago cow stables were perfectly ventilated with half inch cracks between the boards, but these stables proved too cold for winter milk production and farmers were advised to build their stables tight, inclosing them with matched lumber, and not to allow their cows to go out in cold weather. Some even went to the extreme of warming the cow's drinking water for them in the stable. The result of these close, warm stables was vitiated air, lack of exercise and debility. Next dairymen were advised to allow a certain number of cubic feet of air space for each cow when building their stables, and many stables proved too cold for winter milk and too damp for the health of the cattle. Now the stable question seems narrowed down and a practical system of ventilation is the foremost consideration in building a dairy stable.

STUDY YOUR COWS.

Each Animal Should Be a Revenue Producer.

The time has come that those who engage in the dairy business find it necessary to make a study of their cows and of the provender given them in order to obtain the best results. Dairying has been reduced to a science and it is no longer necessary to waste time and food on worthless cows. By inexpensive and easily made tests of milk there is no excuse for having other than a herd of cows each member of which is a profit producer. It costs no more to keep a good cow than it does to support one that is a very poor butter producer, and there is largely more profit and a great deal less work in keeping three extra good cows than there is in maintaining five third rate animals, a fact that should prompt every person in the dairy business to study his cows and cull out those that are below the standard.

Solves A Deep Mystery.

"I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart," wrote C. B. Rader, of Lewisburg, W. Va., "for the wonderful double benefit I got from Electric Bitters, in curing me of both a severe case of stomach trouble and rheumatism, from which I had been an almost helpless sufferer for 10 years. It suited my case as though made just for me." For dyspepsia, indigestion, jaundice and to rid the system of kidney poisons that cause rheumatism, Electric Bitters has no equal. Try them. Every bottle is guaranteed to satisfy. Only 50c at all dealers. 4-t.

The wheat crop is mostly gathered throughout the State, and reports are coming in which show average yields of from 15 to 20 bushels per acre. The quality generally rates from fair to good; in a few cases excellent. Corn is reported in fair to good condition, with rain needed in most sections. Oats seem to be below the average generally, short and thin.—Indiana Farmer.

PLATFORM

Adopted by The Republicans at Their State Convention.

The platform adopted by the Republican State convention is as follows:

"First—We recommend the high character and ability and the distinguished public services of President Taft, and cordially indorse him for renomination in 1912. We heartily commend our Republican Senator and Representatives in Congress for the assistance they have given to the National Administration.

"Second—We approve and indorse the Republican administration of the affairs of the State, and we approve and indorse all means employed by that administration for the preservation of law and order and favor the passage of such additional laws as may be necessary for that purpose.

"Third—We arraign the Democratic party of Kentucky, not only for its failure to comply with, but for its flagrant violation of the laws of the United States requiring the apportionment of congressional districts and of the Constitution of the State directing the apportionment of judicial senatorial and legislative districts. We denounce the present apportionment as unjust and unconstitutional and in many instances a denial of equal representation to people in different sections of the State. We demand that equal representation shall be given to all the people of the State, and that the rights of all shall be protected by a just and fair apportionment law.

"Fourth—We demand the reform of the election laws for the purpose of securing fair and free elections; the repeal of the law which provides for registration certificates and makes them a commodity in the local market; the passage of a corrupt practice act which shall limit the size of campaign funds in both primary and regular elections and provide for complete publicity in respect thereto, both before and after elections; an effective prohibition of campaign contributions by corporations and for bipartisan control of elections.

"Fifth—We demand the passage of a law providing for compulsory direct primary elections by the leading parties, held by the State, at the expense of the State, and with severe penalties for any infraction of the law.

"Sixth—We favor an amendment to the State law permitting and encouraging joint nominations of the same candidate by different parties.

"Seventh—The judiciary of the State, in both the Circuit and Appellate courts, should be chosen on nonpartisan grounds, and a continuance in office of faithful judicial public servants should be determined by no other qualification than fitness.

"Eighth—We demand a compliance with the plain requirement of the Constitution by the enactment of a uniform local option law, with the county as the governing unit.

"Ninth—The first duty of the State is to provide for the education of all its children. While we favor the present law prohibiting mixed schools, we nevertheless favor the granting of equal educational privileges to the children of both races. We demand that the public schools of the State shall be taken and kept entirely out of politics, and that the interest and welfare of the children shall have first consideration in all school matters. We call for better schools and schoolhouses, for longer school terms in the country and for better pay for the teachers, and that all elections for School Trustees be had on different days from other elections. We favor separate manual training schools in every county in the State for both races, and we favor compulsory attendance of children of school age.

"Tenth—We unqualifiedly condemn and denounce the 'Third House' all corrupt lobbying and improper methods used to influence legislation and we demand that such a law be passed as will provide adequate punishment for such practices, and, if this cannot be otherwise accomplished, we favor such measures as will place more directly in the hands of the people the power to correct this evil.

"Eleventh—We favor the creation of a competent and effective public utilities commission or the grant to the Railroad Commission of the power to regulate such utilities.

"Twelfth—We demand the enactment of a law providing for bipartisan control of penal and charitable institutions and for the abolition of contract convict labor; and we denounce the Board of Prison Commissioners in hiring out the children under their charge at the reform school, for the benefit of whose morals and education that institution was originally established.

"Thirteenth—We favor the adoption of an amendment to the Federal Constitution providing for the election of United States Senators by the direct vote of the people.

"Fourteenth—We favor a uniform system of accounting in public offices, and the abolition of all useless offices.

"Fifteenth—We oppose double taxation and favor a thorough revision of the tax laws which will equally distribute the burdens of taxation, reduce the rate, and not only retain the capital now invested but invite the investment of other capital in the State. We favor the submission to the people of a constitutional amendment giving the power of the General Assembly in the matter of taxation, and when such additional law is passed, to make it effective only when submitted to and approved by a majority of the people who vote upon the same We favor such regulation by law as will consolidate assessment and collection of the taxes so that the cost of collection may be materially reduced. We recognize the obligation the State is under to the disinterested men who have given their time and attention and of their means to the investigation and consideration of the question of the revenue laws of the State.

"Sixteenth—We favor the adoption of a just and conservative law providing for the arbitration of labor disputes.

"Seventeenth—We favor the passage of laws which shall make effective the constitutional provision against the issuance of free passes to officials and their families.

"Eighteenth—We favor the adoption of legislation to make effective the constitutional amendment in favor of good roads.

"Nineteenth—We favor the passage of a law providing for the thorough and effective inspection of State banks.

Twentieth—We favor further legislation for the protection of miners from unnecessary bodily injury.

Twenty-first—We demand that American citizens abroad, whether native born or nationalized, and of whatever race or creed, shall be secure in the enjoyment of all rights and privileges provided by our treaties.

Twenty-second—We favor the enactment of a law to punish the white slave traffic in the State.

Twenty-third—We denounce lynchings and mobs of every character and favor the passage of a law that will punish by fine, imprisonment and summary removal from office any peace officer who fails to protect a prisoner in his custody.

We hereby appeal to all citizens of this Commonwealth, irrespective of party affiliations, to support the principles herein enunciated.

STATE NEWS

Gathered From Our Exchanges From all Parts of The State.

Many of the towns in Central Kentucky are suffering from an ice famine, the factories not being able to supply the demand, which has been greatly increased by the continued hot weather.—Blue Grass Clipper.

The farmers are busy hauling in their wheat to our miller. Owen has the best wheat crop she has had for years. Many of the farmers will sow a larger wheat crop this fall to cut and to hog down. The farmers of Owen are getting very tired of raising tobacco are turning their attention to other crops.—Owen News.

The Danville correspondent of the daily papers is evidently trying to get a place in the Anonius Club by the stories he is sending out. One day he informs the world that the rats are eating up the farmers' ice. The next day we are told that the cats in the village have banded together for the extermination of the chickens of the community, having already made away with over 5,000 of them. All of this stuff get space on the front page.—Blue Grass Clipper.

Last Saturday afternoon a brazen attempt was made to cash a bogus check at the Bedford Loan & Deposit Bank of Milton, payable to Charles Coons, with J. J. Richardson's name signed to it. The signature was at once recognized as being forged, and Mr. Bell began to question the young man who replied that he had sold Mr. Richardson some land and the check was in payment for it. He said that he would take $600 in cash and the remaining $900 could be placed to his credit, but that he would much rather have the face value of the check in cash. This did not sound good to the bank officials, although the young man put up a front as bold as a lion, and there was not the least tremor in his voice.

To further test the sincerity of the young man Mr. Bell suggested that Mr. Richardson be conferred with over the telephone in reference to the matter. This proved to be too severe, and before connection could be made with the exchange Coons, or whatever his name might be, took to his heels, and in the twinkling of an eye had shaken the dust of the county seat off his feet by hurdling back fences, through gardens, stripping tomato and bean vines and devastating roastin' ear patches as he went over the hill toward the setting sun. He was given a short chase, but the weather was so extremely hot he soon outdistanced his pursuers and made good his escape.

The young man presenting the check was small in statue and a stranger to the people of Bedford, and this is no doubt his first effort in this line, altho he was going after big game. A warrant has been issued for his arrest and placed in the hands of the officers.—Milton News.

Who Was In Fine Form and Erlanger Was Defeated Six to Two.

Same Teams Will Play at Burlington Park Next Saturday.

The Burlington ball team went to Erlanger, last Saturday afternoon, and defeated the Erlanger team 6 to 2. It was a fairly well played game witnessed by a small crowd. Brady was in fine form, and twirled in a marvelous manner, making fourteen of the batters chop. Slayback caught a fine game. Slater was in the box for Erlanger and worked hard but could not hold his opponents down.

First inning—Kelly, first up, was an easy out at first. Conner's fly was muffed in left field. Slayback's pop fly was taken by the pitcher who caught Conner before he got back to first. No hits, one error, no runs.

J. Carter out, short to first; H. Carter out, third to first; Tavlin safe at first on error at short; H. Shearer hit to short and was out at first. No hit, one error, no run.

Second inning—H. Kirk batted for Earl Smith who had not arrived, and fanned; Clore was safe on error at second; White found safe territory in right field; J. Kirk out, short to first; Tolin was hit by pitcher; Brady landed safe in center field; Kelly out, third to first. Two hits, one error, three runs.

Slater chopped; P. Carter hit to pitcher, out at first; R. Slater fanned. No hits, no errors, no runs.

Third inning—Conner's fly was muffed in left field; Slayback was safe on error at third; Smith fanned, as did Clore, White hit to fanned, as did Clore, White hit runs.

D. Carter and E. Shearer each struck out and J. Carter's roller to short beat him to first. No hits, no errors, no runs.

Fourth inning—Second baseman took Kirk's fly; Tolin was hit again by pitcher, stole second, was sacrificed to third by Brady who was out third to first. Tolin scored on a balk; Kelly out third to first.

H. Carter struck out; H. Tavlin hit safe past second; H. Shearer got a nice one past short; H. Slater hit to center for two bases but was finally slaughtered by the pitcher and the short stop; P. Carter retired the side by a nice bounder to short. Two singles, a double, one error, two runs.

Fifth inning—Conner hit to center field for two sacks, Slayback's fly to same territory was captured, as was Smith's to right field. Clore found a safe place for a one sacker in right field, but White ended the fun by a slow fly to second. One single, one double, no errors, no runs.

Slater's roller to first was taken; D. Carter and E. Shearer could not connect. Nothing doing.

Sixth inning—Kirk flyed out to short; Tolin out pitcher to first; Brady safe on error in center field stole second and was out trying to pilfer third, pitcher to third No Erlangerite saw first this inning.

Sevent h inning—Two flies to center field and a grounder to third, took Burlington's goat.

H. Shearer whiffed, Slater out third to first, P. Carter gave the first baseman an easy chance.

Eighth inning—Clore's fly was taken at second; White drove past second, but Kirk killed off things with a roller to first.

Slater could not connect; D. Carter ditte; E. Shearer placed one safe in right field, but the pitcher made good use of J. Carter's little tap.

Ninth inning—Kelly's long fly to right was taken in nicely; Conner couldn't see it, Slayback gave second baseman a high fly to handle.

H. Carter's bat had a hole in it, and same bat was used by Tavlin and Slater, consequently H. Shearer's two bagger was no good.

Burlington has arranged a series of three games with Lawrenceburg, the first of which will be played at Petersburg one week from next Saturday.

The Burlington boys played with few errors, while their opponents muffed two or three balls in the field at critical times.

Burlington and Erlanger will play the second game of the series at the Burlington park next Saturday afternoon.

Brady's drops and curves were very mistifying to the Erlanger boys. He had them on his wagon all the time.

H. Shearer made a sensational play at second when he knocked down a fly with his bare hand, caught it in his gloved hand and handled it in time to cut the runner off at first.

It would be hard to find another base ball team in which so few families are represented as in the Erlanger. Playing in the above game were four Carters, two Slaters, two Shearers and one Tavlin, while the fifth Carter was on the bench ready to go in the game at any time his services might be needed.

Fully nine out of every 10 cases of rheumatism is simply rheumatism of the muscles due to cold or damp, or chronic rheumatism, either of which require any internal treatment. All that is needed to afford relief is the application of Chamberlain's Liniment. Give it a trial. You are sure to be pleased with the relief which it affords. For sale by all dealers. 4-t.

Farmers will soon have corn to husk.

A Great Relief to the Women.

Since the local creamery began operations there are a great many wives in this section of country who feel that they have been relieved of about all their work, and many of them have declared that they are willing to milk several more cows that the creamery shall be a success and continue to do their churning and butter making, which constituted the bulk of their work in warm weather. They had never before realized the amount of labor it required to properly care for the product of three or four cows, and since that work has been taken over by the creamery they feel that they are loafing much of their time. The creamery is already popular with the women who handled milk and butter, and if it realizes for them an increase in both the quantity and price of butter, they will boom the institution on every occasion, and their husbands may as well begin increasing the number of their cows.

EIGHTEEN THOUSAND

Old Confederates Attend Their Reunion at Little Rock, Ark.

A Brief Account of the Meeting.

Dear Sirs—Some time since I wrote you that I intended to go to the Confederate reunion at Little Rock, I did so but failed to find any one there from your county, although I saw one Boone county Kentuckian, from Mississippi, Garnett Riley, late of Company "B" sixth Confederate cavalry. We met at the Kentucky headquarters. He was the only Boone man that I met at that reunion. The reunion was the best that I ever attended, and more Confederate soldiers were registered than at any previous meeting of the kind, the number being 18,000. The parade was long, and required one hour and forty seven minutes to pass a given point. Although a half century has passed since they enlisted those good old tunes, Dixie, My Old Kentucky Home and Sewanee River, played by the bands "put life and metal in their heels," and they marched off in fine style, cheered to the echo by the vast assemblage of spectators. The weather was very warm and several of the men were overcome by heat, and were immediately transferred to the ambulance. Camp Shaver was a veritable city of tents, and the old soldiers were well fed and cared for there. On this occasion Little Rock did herself proud. The next reunion will be held at Macon, Georgia, time not yet made public.

This part of Missouri is suffering from a severe drouth, the worst in ten years. All crops have been badly injured, especially Irish potatoes, they being almost a total failure, and are selling at $2.50 per bushel. But so far we are not as badly hurt as is recorded in the Book of Nehemiah, 5-3. I learn from the Recorder that your county has been favored with a fine season. Yours Truly, T. H. CLOUD.

Looking After Revenue.

Quite a number of the taxpayers in the county have called at the court house in Burlington, this week, in response to notices sent out by State Revenue Agent Rehorn, who has had the records in the county clerk's office gone over by his lady clerk, from [illegible] he concluded that some of the taxpayers are not paying on as much property as they should, consequently he called them to meet him for a conference. Some of them were very much out humor.

SAYS THE OWL.

The most effective talkers say the least.

The last will and testament is a dead give away.

The most glaring faults of others oft resembles our own.

There are men who would probably be wiser if they knew less.

It's a safe bet that a man is what he suspects others of being.

Many a girl with the hammock habit has a mother with the washtub habit.

The wounds of love are quickest healed by another dart from Cupid's arrow.

The more you talk to a man about himself the more brains he will think you have.

A young man may be in love with a girl and still draw the line at marrying her family.

It's difficult to believe that practice makes perfect after listening to the chap who practices on a cornet.

The Boone fair will be here in a few weeks. It does not seem to have been more than two months since the fair was in progress and everybody was hustling to wards Florence.

She'll Tell You---Quick!

Just ask your wife which of these two dish pans of cream separator parts she would rather wash. She will tell you quick—the one with the single piece in it. This single, tinless, instantly removable piece is all there is inside.

Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator Bowls

Which Kind for You?

All other separators have heavy, hard to wash, complicated "bucket bowls." The disks in the full dish pan are all from one common "bucket bowl" and are just a sample of the trouble and work of washing "bucket bowls" as compared to washing the Dairy Tubular. Think of washing these disks twice a day. Imagine the chance rust and hard knocks have at such a complicated machine.

Milk skimmed with a Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator is skimmed right—it is the cleanest skimming, quickest skimming, lightest running, longest lived separator built. Bring your wife to see it—inside and outside—and learn how it may double your butter money. The helpful dairy book, "Business Dairying," is yours for the asking.

UNION.

Last Wednesday evening the home of Mrs. Matilda Lane was the scene of a most pleasant occasion. Mrs. Lane has been confined to her home and her invalid chair for a number of years, and with her dwell her sisters, Mrs. Sallie Anderson, and Mrs. Helen Corbin and her brother, Mr. W. P. Corbin, none of whom has robust health. To show their sympathy and esteem for these good people a number of their friends planned a surprise party for them, and having prepared a very delicious picnic luncheon, they arrived at the cottage at five o'clock and thoroughly surprised the inmates. After the warm greeting, in which laughter and tears were commingled, Mrs. Lane's chair was wheeled out in the pretty yard, the table spread and with merry jest and laughter to aid digestion, the viands were fully enjoyed. The Rev. W. T. Spears, of Columbia, Tenn., responded to the request of Mrs. Lane, and read the 91st Psalm and offered a beautiful prayer, after which everybody joined in singing several sweet old hymns, and the guests depart ed feeling happier for having given an evening of unusual pleasure to Mrs. Lane, her sisters and brother, all of whom ask the privilege of expressing thru the Recorder their intense appreciation of this visit from their friends. Died.—Mrs. Emma Terrill, of Petersburg, July 22, after an illness of many months. She was 61 years of age. She was married to Arthur Terrill in 1869. To them was born one child. Mrs. Terrill was a member of the Christian church and the life she lived was a beautiful example. She bore her sufferings patiently and was always pleased with what was done for her, and when Jesus said come she said not a word, but passed from this world into the next like one falling into a peaceful slumber. The remains were laid to rest in the Petersburg cemetery, July 24, amid a large number of sorrowing friends and relatives.

Born, July 25th to T. J. Walton and wife, a girl.

J. H. Brown, of New York City, and brother, Elmer H., of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., are spending two weeks with Mrs. B. Conrad and son, Thos. Griffin, of this place. This is Mr. Brown's first visit in this section and it has made a very favorable impression on him when compared with the hustle and confusion of a noisy city. Thursday Mr. Brown and Mr. Griffin made a sight seeing trip to Cincinnati, meeting friends of Mr. Griffin, who also made favorable impression on him. Mr. Brown is connected with the freight department of the Delaware and Hudson railroad.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Z. Wade celebrated the first anniversary of their marriage at their home near Walton, Wednesday, July 19, when a number of relatives and friends were invited to spend the day with them and enjoy the fine dinner prepared for the occasion. The day was most enjoyably spent together. Those present were Ollie Bean and son Clyde of Cincinnati, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Wade and three children of Norwood, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Will Norman and son, Albert of Covington, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Stephenson and daughter, Miss Irene, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Myares and daughter Miss Retta.

Lewis Dean Richards, son of John J. Richards, who resided at Walton and was in the merchandise business here several years ago, was married to Miss Jessie Lee Montgomery at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Nora Morton, at Warsaw, July 12th. Both are very young, neither being of age, the bride being about sixteen years old and June graduated from Science Hill College, while the groom is about nineteen years old. The bride is a daughter of the late Hugh Montgomery and her father was 72 years old when she was born. He was one of the wealthiest citizens in Gallatin county, and the bride is worth at least $75,000. She is a very pretty and lovable little lady, and is very bright and attractive. The groom is a nice little gentleman. The young folks spent their honeymoon at Libertyville, Illinois, visiting his aunt Mrs. Daisy Richards-Smith.

A Birthday Party.

The birthday party given in honor of Master Walter Whitson for his ninth year, was a grand success.

The table was spreaded and decorated with carnations, butter cups and fern, the refreshments were ice cream cake, grape juice, lemonade and fruits. Those present were Claude Taylor, [illegible] Franklin Rouse, Walter [illegible] Frank Violet, Cecil [illegible] Hicks, Wallace Grubbs, [illegible] come, Virginia Bevard, [illegible] Maxwell, Maggie Fullerton, [illegible] na Welsh, of Louisville, [illegible] ence and brother, of Cincinnati, Ohio, James and Howard [illegible] of Union, Margaret Ingram of Covington, Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Swimm and son, Elliot, of Florence, Mrs. J. R. Whitson, of Florence, Mrs. Susie Adams and son James, of Union, Miss Annie Jones of Union, Mrs. Pearl Webster and daughter, Florence, Mrs. Pearl Fink and daughter Ruth, Mr. and Mrs. King Larkcome furnished the music. Mrs. Susie Adams entertained the children with a fish pond and guessing contest. The pictures were taken in a group by King Larkcome. All went away hoping Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Whitson would give their son Walter another party soon.

A Bad Runaway.

Thursday afternoon, a horse driven by Herman Jackson ran away on Main street, caused by some of the harness becoming loosened, and in the wild flight the runaway collided with a buggy being driven by Mrs. James Watson and turned it over with a crash. Mrs. Watson had her little grandchild, a daughter of Hiram English, in her lap, and strange to relate neither was injured, though her buggy was almost demolished. John Hayes was in the buggy with Jackson but managed to safety. The Jackson buggy was a new one, but was not injured much.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Moffett of Savannah, Georgia, spent part of last week here the guests of her uncle Dr. D. M. Bagby and wife and with other friends. Dr. and Mrs. Moffett were married at Walton about twenty years ago, the bride being Miss Susie Roberts. They went to Savannah about 17 years ago, from Cincinnati, Mr. Moffett being sent there by the Georgia Great Southern Railroad, and he is now in charge of a department of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad. They are very lovable people and their many friends here were glad to meet them again.

A Fatal Accident.

Last Saturday afternoon a terrible accident occurred on the banks of Mud Lick creek whereby Theodore Allen, the bright little seven year old son of John Allen, met his death at the hands of another boy, Dabner Hollingsworth, by the careless handling of a shot gun. Mr. Allen and his three little sons, and the Hollingsworth boy, whom he had reared from an infant, were spending the afternoon on the banks of Mud Lick creek, fishing, and had taken a gun with them to shoot turtles. The little boy was sitting by the side of his father on the edge of the creek when one of his brothers handed the cocked gun to the Hollingsworth boy and he accidentally caught it by the muzzle and discharged the gun, the contents taking effect in the little boy's breast, instantly killing him. The shock was awful to the father and the other boys. The body of the little boy was picked up by the heartbroken father and carried a mile to the nearest residence where a vehicle was obtained and the sad cortege wended its way to the bereft home near Beaver Lick. Little Theodore was particularly bright and winsome and everybody who knew him felt the weight of the awful shock. The funeral took place Monday afternoon from the Hughes Chapel, Rev. R. E. Moss of the Christian church conducting the sad services. The sympathy of everybody is tendered the griefstricken parents in the awful affliction.

An Old Citizen Dies Suddenly.

Our town was greatly shocked last Friday by the sudden death of Wm. M. Stephens, who died very suddenly about midnight. Mr. Stephens had been at work the day before, mowing the lawn, and did not complain of any particular illness during Thursday night. At a late hour his wife was awakened by her husbands groaning and hastened to his side, but receiving no response to her inquiry she lighted a lamp and on her return to his bedside she found him dead. An affection of the heart caused his sudden demise. Mr. Stephens was a genial, clever man, highly esteemed by a large circle of friends. He was born at Independence, Kenton county, about sixty-eight years ago, and spent nearly all of his life in this quarter. He was a Union soldier during the civil war, and drew a pension for disabilities incurred therein. Mr. Stephens served as deputy county clerk of Kenton county. He was married twice, his first wife being Miss Edna [illegible] who died several years ago, and his last wife was a Miss [illegible] comb, who survives him, together with five children by the first wife, viz: Shelby Stephens, Walton; Peck Stephens, of Covington; Mrs. Agnes Hatton, of Covington; Mrs. [illegible] Moore of Ludlow, and Mrs. [illegible] Batchelder, of Decatur, Ill. The daughters only attended the funeral, which took place Sunday, the Walton Baptist church, of which the deceased had been a member, Rev. H. C. Watson, pastor, conducting the services.

Walton News 9th [illegible]

...portance of the Of-
...District School
Trustee.

...the 5th day of August there ... to be chosen a school trustee ... each one of the sub-districts ... in every county in the state. ... number in Jefferson County will ... exceed one hundred and the total ... in all the counties will probably ... exceed ten thousand—twice an ... army this. Before the Sullivan ... Law was enacted about three ... years ago, there were three ... trustees chosen in each of these ... districts, say around 20,000 of this ... number, it was said, five thousand of them could not read or ... write. Do we need to go further to find cause for the languid prosperity of the State? Each trustee has in charge from forty to one hundred pupils. He is charged with their proper and comfortably healthful housing, the selection of their teachers and general oversight of the school. It is reliably stated that many of these acting trustees do not enter their schools more than once or twice a year. So low has this office fallen in the estimation of the people in some sections of the State, that it is difficult to get anyone to serve. I was present at the first meeting of one of the district boards of Jefferson County under the Sullivan Law. When we were talking over the improvement of school conditions, one of the sub-district trustees arose and said. "Gentlemen, for God's sake, come and help me. I am here, elected by one vote and had to go out and bring that man in to vote for me, so little interest do the people take in their school affairs."

It seems as if the management of our educational matters might be likened to the building of a house wherein the builders gave all attention to the roof and upper part, ignoring completely the foundation upon which the security and well being of the structure depends.

These sub-district trustees are the very foundation stones of our common school system. If these stones are rotten or faulty, you cannot have a safe and satisfactory structure. Such exactly is our condition, just as effect follows cause. Now fellow Kentuckians! Fathers! Mothers! Patrons of the schools, all, it is readily within your power to remedy many of the ills which afflict our school system, and you can do it with little trouble and no expense. How? By getting together in each sub-district and resolving to put into the office of trustee the broadest minded, most level headed, most active and incorruptible man in the entire district. You will not, as a rule, find him asking for the place. He will, if suspecting what you want, more likely be "taking to the woods," but no matter, select him and then make him serve. Such a man will be a busy man will have many excuses, but by persistence and insistent persuasion, you will get thru his "hard pan" and down where he really lives, and there you will find a patriot, who seeing his duty, will do it.

In addition to each one of the duties devolving on this sub-district trustee, concerning his individual school and which no one else can do, and which must and will go undone if he fails, these trustees have in their hands the make-up of the County Board of Education and these boards having large discretionary powers are necessarily important factors in school government. As the stream cannot rise higher than its source, so the ability and usefulness of the County Board cannot rise above the calibre of the average of the trustees who make them. Be careful and do not let any man be put in as a trustee because he has a sister, brother, aunt or cousin who wishes to become a teacher. Such teachers are almost invariably employed at the expense of the children's interests and this I am fully satisfied has been one of the fruitful causes of present conditions. Do not let sympathy charity or friendship come in between the children and their rights; to do is to prostitute those noble qualities to an ignoble end. Let merit alone be the measure of the teacher and trustee. Once you get this kind of men in office throughout the State, they will find a way out of all our maze of difficulty. Now here a plain duty, easy of accomplishment and absolutely with no money cost. Will you get up and do it, or will you sit idly by and let it go undone? Will you allow another year of indifference to the plainest and most pressing of duties to pass thus cheating several hundreds of thousands of children out of their birthright, which is time and opportunity to get an education where they may meet more successfully the rough and hard battle of the world, which so inevitably awaits them?

What shall the answer be? Consequently, "what shall the harvest be?"

You may say you have no interest in the selection of a trustee because you have no children going to school. This does not relieve the responsibility, except in a temporary and selfish way. Are your neighbor's children the next generation, or in a few years, will become women who take up the duty of citizenship. Some one will be in office, and to educate your neighbor's son are elevating your community and performing a duty to humanity. In

JOHN B. McFERRAN, Chairman.

Raise Alfalfa and Prosper.

Now is the time to get ready for that alfalfa experiment which you have been thinking about so long. Don't believe that spring is the only time for seeding; we are inclined to favor fall seeding.

Just as soon as you can get your barley or oats cut, plow the ground and disk it thoroughly; harrow it frequently during July and the first half of August; you will plow is before the weeds that grew with the grain have seeded and a constant harrowing will prevent a second crop of weeds from growing. If the soil is well settled so as to make a compact seed bed beneath the surface, sow alfalfa as a nurse crop—twenty pounds of seed to the acre. It will catch the September rains, which invariably fall about the time of the equinox. The plant will usually attain sufficient growth in the fall months to make a good cover for itself to protect it against the frosts of winter. After the ground is frozen, give it a good top dressing of manure and you will cut from three to five tons per acre of the best hay you have ever had. It is the best for cows, it is good for horses, the hogs devour it and the chickens will cackle louder than ever if you will mix a few of the finer leaves which fall on the barn floor with the bran mash on cold winter mornings.

It is said that in some fruit section of the West, a man is assessed a heavy fine if a wormy apple is found in his orchard. The time ought to come speedily when a farmer who lives where alfalfa can be grown and fails to have a field of this wonderful plant must pass similar penalty.

NEWS FROM INDIANA.

(Aurora Bulletin.)

Indiana is still the hub of the United States although the westward progress of the star empire has slightly shifted since the last census. The center of population, according to an announcement made from the census bureau Tuesday, is located at a point approximately four and a quarter miles south of Unionville Monroe county. The location at the time of the last census was six miles southeast of Columbus, Bartholomew county. The movement in the last decade has been about thirty-one miles west and seven-tenths of a mile north.

Miss Lenora Erle, an employe of the Hogan shoe factory met with a serious accident while at work Friday morning. The girl stepped from her regular position to assist a girl working next to her in adjusting a belt. In so doing she came too close to the shafting, her hair catching on the boxing. Her scalp was torn loose from above her eyes to the back of her head and it was with difficulty that she was released Physicians were called and temporarily relief was given the suffering girl, after which she was taken to her home. Physicians who have been in charge state that the scalp will knit to the head readily, as there is sufficient adherence to allow circulation of the blood.

By the end of the current week the greater part of the county's wheat will have been threshed In every part of the county separators are rapidly transferring the grain from sheaf to bag. The cool weather of recent days caused the threshermen to rejoice. The yield per acre is holding up well all over the country. A few fields yielded above forty bushels to the acre, and others have been as poor as to turn out not more than twelve or fifteen. Extremely poor wheat, however, is the exception and not the rule. Encouraged by the success of this year's crop many farmers are preparing to sow a larger acreage to wheat this fall. Several have stated that they will fertilize their ground more liberally, believing that in that way they can practically assure themselves of a good yield in 1912.

GRANT COUNTY.

(Grant County News.)

In some sections of the county there has been little or no rain for several weeks and crops of all kinds are suffering in consequence. The corn crop looks exceptionally well where the rains nave fallen.

James Wright, a prominent Corinth farmer, was attacked by a swarm of bees last Tuesday and received serious stings about different parts of the body. For awhile it was thought he would not recover, but he is now believed to be out of danger. Hirson who was with him was also badly stung. The mule team he was driving was so badly stung by the bees that they died a short time after.

Are you frequently hoarse? Do you have that annoying tickling in your throat? Does your cough annoy you at night, and do you raise mucus in the morning? Do you want relief? If so, take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and you will be pleased. Sold by all dealers. 4-t.

Honest Medicine Versus Fakes.

President Taft's recent message suggesting an amendment to the Pure Food and Drugs law in its relation to Prepared Medicines does not refer to such standard medicines as Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and Foley's Pills, both of which are true medicines carefully compounded of ingredients whose medicinal qualities are recognized by the medical profession itself as the best known remedial agent for the diseases they are intended to counteract. For over three decades Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has been a standard remedy for coughs, colds and affections of the throat, chest and lungs for children and grown persons, and it retains to day its preeminence above all other preparations of its kind. Foley Kidney Pills are equally effective and meritorious. Sold by Robert W. Jones.

CARROLL COUNTY.

(Carrollton News.)

Tobacco is late, but it is a weed, and there is no telling how it will come out. At present the prospects are small.

The wheat crop, as a general thing, was good, but about the best yield was Fred Tieman, in Hunter's Bottom, who had 32 acres, from which he thrashed 800 bushels, most of which made over 30 bushels per acre.

It is to be hoped that the small acreage of tobacco will be worked well and an excellent quality of fine fibre will bring double the price of what the growers went up against last year.

The News has placed the acreage and condition of the growing tobacco crop in Carroll county and immediate vicinity at 60 per cent. of an average, and we feel that our predictions are safe. A prominent dealer in "the weed" informed us Monday that Switzerland county, including the hail visited district, would show up about 50 per cent.

Solves A Deep Mystery.

"I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart," wrote C. B. Rader, of Lewisburg, W. Va., "for the wonderful double benefit I got from Electric Bitters, in curing me of both a severe case of stomach trouble and rheumatism, from which I had been an almost helpless sufferer for 10 years. It suited my case as though made just for me." For dyspepsia, indigestion, jaundice and to rid the system of kidney poisons that cause rheumatism, Electric Bitters has no equal. Try them. Every bottle is guaranteed to satisfy. Only 50c at all dealers. 4-t.

She'll Tell You---Quick!

Which Kind for You?

Just ask your wife which of these two dish pans of cream separator parts she would rather wash. She will tell you quick—the one with the single piece in it. This single, tiny, instantly removable piece is all there is inside.

Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator Bowls

All other separators have heavy, hard to wash, complicated "bucket bowls." The disks in the full dish pan are all from one common "bucket bowl" and are just a sample of the trouble and work of washing "bucket bowls" as compared to washing the Dairy Tubular. Think of washing these disks twice a day. Imagine the chance rust and hard knocks have at such a complicated machine.

Milk skimmed with a Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator is skimmed right—it is the cleanest skimming, quickest skimming, lightest running, longest lived separator built. Bring your wife to see it---inside and outside---and learn how it may double your butter money. The helpful dairy book, "Business Dairying," is yours for the asking.

STATE NEWS

Gathered From Our Exchanges From all Parts of The State.

The famous belled buzzard was found last winter frozen to death at some point in Central Kentucky, but it seems there were two of him as Jesse Nelson and a companion saw him and heard his bell at a point near Forest Grove.—Winchester Democrat.

Liner Gray, of the White Sulphur community, was in the city Saturday and said that the women and children particularly are keeping close at home at night on account of the fact that a large wildcat is prowling around the neighborhood. Poultry and pigs are being missed.—Princeton Leader.

The News has always been opposed to protection in a political sense, but there is one kind of protection it most heartily favors, and that is the protection of our game and fish. Unless they are protected our streams will soon be without fish and our fields without birds. Kentucky has very good laws against dynamiting and seining fish and trapping birds or killing them out of season. There is no trouble about the laws, but there is practically no enforcement of them.—Elizabethtown News.

A few days ago a man struck another fellow at Baskett because he twitted him about his red hair. The red-haired individual was arrested and the case tried before County Judge Young, who dismissed the case, intimating that it was bad enough to have red hair without being nagged about it. Some auburn-topped person now may think he has a right to smash things under similar provocation, and we don't know what our many close fiery-topped friends will do to us before long. —Henderson Gleaner.

One day last week workmen engaged in constructing the Steers-Thompson turnpike, in the county, while excavating at a point along the line of the proposed pike, unearthed what experts declare to be a petrified ham of a hog. Probably it was buried during the war to prevent its falling into the hands of foraging soldiers. However that may be, its petrification is all right and it is a perfect specimen of a ham. —Maysville Public Leader.

The State Debt.

It was announced Monday by Frank P. James, State Auditor, that by the time the present administration goes out of office next January all of the interest bearing warrants against the State will have been paid. At present the State owes, in the form of interest bearing warrants, a total of about $1,400,000, and Mr. James says the State officials expect to wipe this out by January. Just how it is to be done when the total seems to be growing each month instead of getting less, is not stated, but it is understood that the State administration does not want to go out of office with so large a debt to be assumed by the incoming officials. There is a State campaign on this fall and the Republicans know that the fact that the State is heavily in debt will be used as an argument against the election of the Republican ticket so arrangements are being made to take up the interest bearing warrants. —Frankfort News-Journal.

SEND THEM TO SCHOOL.

Most of the county schools are now in session and it behooves the parents of every child to see that it starts at the beginning of the session and goes regularly. The day of the educated man is here and the man without education must be a hewer of wood and a drawer of water. In other words he must do the hardest work for the least pay and that for all his life. Give him an equal chance in the race of life.—Winchester Democrat.

Mr. W. R. Smith, General Solicitor of the Atchinson, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad, has strong opinions on the folly of disturbing the balance of nature by the present popular crusade against certain forms of animal life. The fly, he says, is an invaluable scavenger, and "10 years from now people will be running incubators to hatch flies and the State will be appropriating money to pay for it." In this connection it may be remembered that the British agricultural authorities have just issued a warning against the destruction of hawks and owls, which have earned an popularity by their depredations on the chicken yard. The owls and hawks having nearly disappeared, the rat has everything his own way, and so a very real plague of rats has taken the place of the comparatively harmless raids of the predatory birds. Unfortunately, it is always easy to instigate a crusade of killing.—The Argonaut.

Medicines that aid nature are always most successful. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It loosens the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Sold by all dealers. 4-t.

Rules Governing [illegible] of the Democratic [illegible] the Coming [illegible]

The Democratic State [illegible] tee has called a State [illegible] tion to be held in [illegible] gust 15, to adopt a [illegible] which the campaign [illegible] next fall. Following [illegible] rules under which the [illegible] ventions will be held [illegible] delegates to the State [illegible] tion:

Delegates shall be selected to said convention on the basis of one delegate for every 200 votes and every fraction of 200 over 100 votes cast by the Democratic party of Kentucky at the Presidential election of 1908 and which delegates shall be selected at mass conventions held in each and every county in the state, provided that in cases of counties having two or more legislative districts separate conventions shall be held in each legislative district. Said mass conventions shall be held in each and every county and legislative district of the state as aforesaid beginning at 2 o'clock p. m., on Saturday, August 12, 1911, and said conventions shall be called to order and held in the manner provided by the party law.

All known Democrats, all independent voters and all minors who will be legal voters by the November election, 1911, and all voters who declare a purpose to affiliate with the Democratic party in the next state election of 1911 are declared eligible to participate in said mass conventions and to be elected delegates to said state convention.

As the present party organization was selected only three years ago and has not yet served a full term of four years, and as a state convention will be held in 1911, the state convention to be held as aforesaid on August 15, 1911, is not called for the purpose of selecting committeemen or party organization.

Said committees jointly assembled ratify the action of the state primary of July 1, 1911, in selecting nominees for state offices, as declared by the State Executive Committee, and with confidence appeal to all liberty-loving voters of Kentucky to aid in the election of the said magnificent state ticket nominated in said primary, and also to aid in the termination of Republican misrule in Kentucky and in the election of Democratic members of the next General Assembly, so that the Hon. Ollie James, the Democratic nominee for United States Senator, shall be elected to represent the people of Kentucky and of the nation in the great contest now being waged at Washington, D. C., between Democratic Senators, as the representatives of the people and Republican Senators, as the representatives of the protected and privileged interests of the country. The term of said James to be elected as aforesaid shall begin on March 4, 1913.

Said mass conventions shall be held at the court houses in the various counties constituting one legislative district, or where two or more counties constitute a legislative district, and shall be held at places to be designated by the Chairman of the legislative districts in all counties having more than one legislative district. Notice of the time and places of holding said mass conventions shall be given by publication for not less than ten days prior to the holding of same. Said resolutions were adopted unanimously.

A Warm Essay.

In a little country school not far from Princeton literary exercises are regularly indulged in every Friday afternoon during the term. A twelve-year-old boy read an original essay on "The Newspaper." This latter day youthful Solomon treated his subject about as follows:

"Newspapers are sheets of paper on which stuff to read is printed. The men look over the paper to see if their names is in it and the women use it to put on the shelves and such. I don't know how newspapers came into the world. I don't think God does. The Bible says nothing about editors, and I never heard of one being in heaven. I guess the editor is the missing link them fellers talk about. The first editor I ever heard of was the feller who wrote up the flood. He has been here ever since.

"Some editors belong to the church and some try to raise whiskers. All of them raise hell in their neighborhood, and all of them are liars; at least all I know, and I only know one. Editors never die. At least I never saw a dead one. Sometimes the paper dies and then people feel glad, but some one starts it up again. Editors never went to school because editors never got licked. Our paper is a mighty poor one, but we take it so ma can use it on our pantry shelves. Our editor don't amount to much, but paw says he had a poor chance when he was a boy. He goes without underclothes in winter, wears no socks, and has a wife to support him. Paw hasn't paid his subscription in five years, and don't intend to.—Princeton Record.

Mrs. Kate Ashburn, of Hathaway neighborhood, was the guest of her sister, Mrs. F. A. Hall from Saturday until Monday. Her niece Miss Charlotte Hall accompanied her home for a week's visit.

C. L. Renaker, wife and daughter, and Mrs. John O'Neal, of Dry Ridge and Mr. Glover, of Williamstown, came over in an auto, one afternoon last week, and were guests of A. B. Renaker and wife for a few hors.

Dr. O. E. Senour, of Union, came over in his auto, last Tuesday and he and Dr. Peddicord went out to visit Dr. Hays, of Bullittsville. Dr. Senour had Sol Long with him to officiate in case of trouble with his machine.

Misses Lucille Berkshire, of Petersburg; Lucille Cropper and Carrie Graves, and Messrs. Menter Martin, and Raymond and Earl Cropper, of Bullittsville, were Sunday guests of Misses Susan and Mary Roberts.

Dr. Walton, of Home City, Clinton Gaines, of Louisville, and Edgar Cropper passed through town one afternoon this week enroute from Cincinnati. They were in Dr. Walton's auto, and getting mixed on time, Mr. Gaines said they were only 15 minutes out from Fifth street.

The Boone County Medical Society was entertained by Dr. Peddicord, last Wednesday night. An interesting program had been arranged for the occasion and the several doctors present were well prepared to treat the subjects assigned them or to take part in the entertaining discussions that were brought about by the papers submitted.

At the proper hour the guests were invited to the Cowen House, where an elaborate and excellently prepared lunch was in awaiting, and this proved to be the most interesting feature of the meeting.

Those present were:

Drs. Lange, Phinney, Langsdale, McKim, Silvers, Crisler, of Cincinnati; Menefee, Slater, of Walton; Hayes, Nunnelly, of Bullittsville; Senior, of Union; Peddicord, of Burlington.

AT THE AGE OF EIGHTY

Mrs. Jeff Utz's Friends Assist Her to Celebrate Her Birthday.

Special to the Recorder:

Buffalo, July 26.—Last Monday Mrs. Susan Utz, widow of the late Jeff Utz, celebrated her 80th birthday, and for this occasion it seems as if nature had tried in every way to shed her radiance over these beautiful hills and valleys as the day was an ideal one. The sun seemed brighter and hearts far lighter than ever before in this Old Kentucky. It was about 9 o'clock when the guests began to arrive and by 11 o'clock the yard and house was alive with laughter and best wishes for many more such bright and pleasant birthdays. At 12:30 the dinner was spread in the yard —and such a bountiful spread—everything that a person could wish to satisfy the appetite. After the many dainties and substantials were placed on the table and everything in readiness Rev. McMillan gave thanks, and no one stood back or had to be begged to come forward. The afternoon was spent in pleasant conversation until about 3 o'clock, when Rev McMillan gave a short talk, a prayer and then all joined in singing, "God Be With You Until We Meet Again," when good-byes were said, and the guests began to leave, as many had long drives before them. Nearly all the towns in this part of the county were represented—Walton, Verona, Big Bone, Union, Richwood, Florence, and Burlington. Mrs. Utz seemed to enjoy the day more than any one and was the recipient of many beautiful and useful presents. Altho it was her 80th birthday she had prepared with her own hands, pies, cakes and bread for the occasion. Among the friends and relatives present were: M. L. Tanner, wife and children; David Houston and wife Mrs. Julia Ann Craven; S. E. Utz, wife and children; Alonzo Utz and wife; Mrs. Carrie Utz and daughter, S. L. Craven and wife; J. K. Sebree, wife and daughter; L. B. McCrander, wife and children; Rev. McMillan and wife; Mrs. R. L. Huey and daughters; Mrs. Eva B. Huey; Mrs. Emma Marshall; Mrs. Kate Ashburn; Mrs. Jas. N. Pearson; Emma Clements; Misses Julia, Hazel and Bryan Craven; Minnie, Erma and Robert Stephenson, Bertha Shinkle, Misses Jessie Utz Charlotte Hall, J. Q. Elston and David Clements.

Come out and hear the lecture tonight and see the interesting pictures that will be thrown on a canvass. All free.

For Sale—Hampshire lambs, eligible to registry. $8 for choice of either sex, for the next ten days. J. F. Cleek, Richwood, Ky.

A VERY NARROW ESCAPE.

Rural Mail Carrier Conly Met A Runaway Horse on a Sharp Curve in the Road and an Ugly Collision Resulted.

Elmer Conley, carrier on rural mail route No. 2 out of Burlington had a narrow escape from serious injury, if not with his life, while making his daily delivery of mail last Monday. He was ascending the long Gunpowder hill known as the "Jimmie Ryle" hill, and when rounding a sharp curve in the road at a very narrow place, he discovered a few yards ahead of him a horse attached to an empty buggy approaching him at the top of its speed. He had only time to pull his horse to one side and was raising to jump from his cart when the collision came. Mr. Conley was thrown from his vehicle, one of his feet hanging in a wheel. In some manner his horse was turned and started down the hill, dragging Mr. Conley a short distance, rendering him unconscious. When he regained consciousness he was lying in the weeds at the road side and neither of the horses nor vehicles were in sight. Proceeding down the hill a short distance he came upon the cart and buggy each of which was badly wrecked. The horses had broken loose from the vehicles, and Mr. Conley finally discovered his in a shed at G. A. Ryle's nearly half a mile from where he was thrown from his cart. The other horse, which belonged to Albert Sullivan, and was the cause of the accident, ran home.

Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan had just started down the hill, when from some unknown cause, their horse, which had been driven but little began to run. Mr. Sullivan managed to control him until the lines broke, when he and his wife jumped from the buggy and escaped with slight injuries but Mr. Conley did not fare so well. In the mixup he received an ugly gash above the right eye and was hurt about the breast, besides receiving a pretty severe shaking up generally, but his injuries were not so serious but what he borrowed a saddle and came on home, completing his day's delivery of mail.

Considering the surroundings at the point where Mr. Conley met the runaway, he was very lucky in escaping with such slight injuries.

Chas. Beall, of Francesville, use to be a great base ball fan, but of late years he has lost all interest in the game, but it is a never failing concidence that when there is a game of ball at the local park Charlie has business in Burlington, and somebody always induces him to attend the game.

An Old Landmark Gone.

The large elm tree which stood a few yards from the front of the residence of Joseph Walton, of Rabbit Hash precinct, was struck by lightning, last Friday afternoon. Being dead the tree took fire and burnt briskly, and it was necessary for Mr. Walton to remain on guard all night, that he might give an alarm in case the fire was communicated to his residence, which would certainly have occurred had the wind not blown from the building towards the tree. The tree, which, sentinel like, had occupied its position for possibly considerably more than a century, was used by Sandy Ryle in prizing tobacco between 60 and 70 years ago, and after the fire had consumed a considerable portion of the trunk, the large mortise in which Mr. Ryle inserted one end of a pole he used as a lever to apply pressure to his tobacco, became vissible. Mr. Walton is glad the old landmark is removed, but the procedure was rather perilous and cause d him the loss of one night's sleep.

Waters Released From Jail.

Charles Waters, who was lodged in jail with Thomas Snow, charged with stealing Charles Dolph's gasoline engine, was discharged from jail, last Monday, having been in the bastile about 60 days. He left immediately for West Virginia, to join his wife who had gone to her folks. It will be remembered that Snow escaped from jail a few weeks since by tunneling thru the foundation after having gained entrance to an abandoned sink beneath the jail. Waters stuck to his original statement in regard to the theft for which he was arrested, and if it be true it was another case of poor Dog Tray. County Judge Cason investigated Waters' character previous to his arrest and found that it was good, he being in trouble for the first time. The jail is now empty.

Creamery Doing Well.

The rapid increase of the output at the local creamery is very satisfactory to the company. Tuesday afternoon 360 pounds of butter was taken from the churn. Every day has brought an increase in the pounds of milk, and when the product of the pledged cows is all in each day's receipts will be largely increased over what they are. Those who are managing the creamery consider the out look very flattering, and only ask that the few who pledged cows and are holding back make good their written obligations at the earliest possible date. Everybody who has tried the creamery butter pronounce it as fine as they ever tasted.

HORSES FOR ARMY

Rich Men to Remedy Defect In U. S. Cavalry.

Give Cavalrymen Chance in Future International Contests—Six Thoroughbreds Donated by New York Horse Lovers.

Washington.—The United States cavalry will not be allowed to lose another international test of horsemanship for lack of good horses, if the coterie of rich New Yorkers can remedy the defect. Recently six fine thoroughbred jumpers were bought for the army at Warrenton, Va., from a fund subscribed by New York horse lovers immediately after the defeat of American cavalrymen at the horse show in that city. The horses cost $10,500. Other horses are to be bought immediately, the lot assembled at Fort Meyer, where the officers to ride them will be brought and their real test will come at Olympia, London, where the international horse show will be held in June with events open to cavalrymen of all nations.

At the New York show last winter it was the firm conviction of the precent syndicate behind the movement to properly mount the American soldiers that the soldiers themselves were the best horsemen in the ring and only lost first prize because of their poor mounts. In the syndicate are John E. and Elliott Calvin and a number of other rich New Yorkers who have previously seen service in the army as volunteers in the Spanish war. Among the horses bought at the recent purchase were Timberlost, Justine, Hilltop and Tampico, all of which have been exhibited at horse shows throughout the country. They have been trained to the hunt for at least two years each, and are capable of doing a five foot barrier without inconvenience at any time.

The question of properly mounting cavalrymen for show purposes only opens up the broad aspect of mounts for the cavalry in general. In all recent wars the United States has been one of the biggest and best horse markets for the army quartermaster. It is predicted by high army officers that it never will be again for the reason that the army itself is having a hard time getting mounts for even the most ordinary purposes. Speed, stamina, or some other requisite quality is nearly always missing and there is hardly a cavalry troop in the army today properly mounted. A few years ago the department of agriculture took up the question of improving the breed of the American horse, and has established a stock farm where trotting horses, almost exclusively observed. The question of improving the standard of cavalry horses, however, while much discussed in military circles has not sufficiently attracted the attention of congress to bring about even a reasonable appropriation for this purpose.

French cavalry is universally admitted to be the best mounted in the world. For many years the French government has had its official buyers in the horse market with the result that they picked up the cream of the offerings, and the French cavalry today is as efficient as it possibly can be in horse flesh. The horse question is becoming a very serious matter in the army, and it is only a question of time when something radical will have to be done to remedy the present situation. It is hoped that the patriotic pride now being exhibited by the New York syndicate in providing proper mounts for army officers for show purposes will spread to congress for practical army purposes.

Where the Horizon Broadens.

From the farm of Frank Worley on Ebenezer ridge, three miles northwest of Aurora, one can see when atmospheric conditions are favorable away over in Boone county as far as Burlington, while directly down the river the hills back of Rabbit Hash are visible. To the west the spires of the Baptist and Presbyterian churches at Sparta are discernible in the dim distance. There are few points in Dearborn county that have so extended a view as this portion of Ebenezer.

Wheat Crop Fine.

There are few farmers that are complaining of their yield of wheat this year. Since threshers have been putting the grain into sacks the yield shows up better than was indicated by the amount of twine used. Wheat that has been sold has weighed out as well as could be expected. Nearly all the wheat is weighing sixty pounds and some of it goes up to sixty-one, which is considered excellent. It is entirely safe to say that Pendleton county has as fine a crop of wheat this year as she has had in ten year's although the price is not as high as it was for the last year or two.—Pendletonian.

THE LARGEST CHEESE IN THE WORLD.

Will Weigh Over 12,000 Pounds and Will Require the Milk from 6,500 Cows for One Day.

An American cheese weighing over 12,000 pounds, three times as large as the biggest cheese ever made in the world, will be built this summer by N. Simon, the American cheese expert, for the National Dairy Show Association.

Last year Mr. Simon built a cheese which weighed a little over 4,000 pounds, the largest in the history of the dairy industry, and it scored 95 per cent at the National Dairy Show in Chicago.

It seems almost incredible that 65 tons, or 130,000 pounds of milk and cream will be required for the construction of just one cheese, but it will take fully that much to fill the contract.

It will require all the milk from 6,500 cows for one day, all pure bred animals, probably worth fully $500,000. Fully 1,50 men will be required to do the milking. This milk will be furnished by 650 sanitary dairies, valued at over $3,000,000.

But securing the milk is only a small part of the construction of such a mammoth cheese. It will require the combined efforts of nearly 50 experienced men to make the cheese. Eighteen expert cheesemakers and 25 to 30 experienced helpers will work together, under the supervision of Mr. Simon.

The cheese, being of such a enormous size, will have to be built on a specially constructed flat car, and then a special and exceptionally large refrigerator will have to be constructed on the car to carry the cheese until time for the exhibition, October 26 to November 4.

This world's greatest cheese is not to be made merely for exhibition purposes, but it is to be entered into competition with the American cheese made in Illinois, New York and other dairy states.

FARM NOTES.

Of the 1,900,000,000 acres of land in the United States, 860,000,000 acres are in farms, of which acreage 47,000,000 are rated as improved lands.

A Sad Death.

Mrs. Henrietta Cathaleen Stage was born in Boone county, Kentucky, November 19th, 1888, near Burlington, and departed this life July 10th, 1911, at her home in Aurora, Indiana.

The family moved to Carroll county in the spring of 1890, where she spent her early childhood, living there until the death of her father in June, 1900, after which the mother and family returned to Boone county, and after living there a little over a year, purchased a home in Aurora, Ind., and moved to same in the autumn of 1901, where she lived until 1907. She was united in marriage to Ellsworth M. Stage, of Aurora, June 19, 1907. They lived happily together until her death. She was a devoted wife, tender, loving mother, faithful and true to her home and loved ones, kind, gentle and of a lovable disposition, she was loved and highly respected by all who knew her. She leaves a mother, two sisters, two brothers, a husband, a daughter three years old and an infant son and a host of friends and relatives to mourn her death. The father, one sister and two brothers having preceded her to that home in the great beyond, where some day we hope to meet them as a united family, where there is no parting and we shall dwell in the joy of eternal love.

Watch Your Kidneys.

Their action controls your health. Read what Foley Kidney Pills have done for your neighbor. Mrs. H. W. Allen, Quincy Ill., says: "About a year ago my kidneys began bothering me. I had a swelling in my ankles and limbs, and then headaches and nervous dizzy spells, and later severe backaches. The doctors pronounced it serious kidney trouble, and I was steadily getting worse when I began taking Foley Kidney Pills. Shortly after, the swelling went down and my pains began leaving me. I kept on taking them until I was once more freed of all kidney trouble and suffering. I have a greatdeal to thank Foley Kidney Pills for and shall always recommend them." Sold by Robert W. Died in Owen county, July 16th, Mary Elizabeth, only child of Dr. A. E. and Pauline Threlkeld, of appendicitis. She was operated on by Dr. Coon, of Louisville, and lived only an hour after the operation. She was a very bright, intelligent child, four years and four months old, and will be sadly missed in their home. The funeral was held in Wheatly in the presence of a large concourse of sympathizing friends. Burial in Wheatly cemetery. Dr. and Mrs Threlkeld have a host of friends in Boone county who deeply sympathize with them in their sad bereavement.

In Memory of Mary Elizabeth Threlkeld.

This little girl came into the home of Dr. and Mrs. A. E. Theikeld on February 7th, 1907. We loved her devotedly. She was a tender plant; we watched her unfold her beauty each day, but on Sunday, July 16th, the God who gave her wanted her back, and we laid her in the "arms of Jesus," for we knew her mission here must be completed or He would have left her here. Nor do we question His will for "He knoweth what is best." We tried to prepare her for life and its temptations, also heaven and its glories. Our language was not foreign to her. When we told her she was going up to heaven to be with Jesus she put her little, fat arms about her fond parents' necks and kissed us good bye. She assured us she would be watching and waiting for us to come home. In a few hours the Angel of Light came and bore her little spirit out of time and into eternity. How can one doubt the infinate wisdom of the Creator, an eternal life for the redeemed and an eternal death for the lost? We laid her upon the altar of God, a sacrifice, pure, spotless and without blemish, to help the unsaved and dying sinner towards God. The grace of God was sufficient to see the little bed made vacant, the beautiful form laid beneath the sod without a murmur. The little casket was borne from the home by four young men whom she loved, followed by six of her playmates bearing beautiful flowers. After the reading of the 14th chapter of John, words of consolation and comfort were offered by Rev. Ira Andrews, and the sweet songs of sympathizing friends bore us up in heart to our darling little girl in heaven.

BUFFALO AND CATTLE

Company Is Formed in Texas to Introduce New Species.

Experts Declare That Meat of Cattalo is Better Than Beef and That It Possesses Many Other Distinct Advantages.

Goodnight, Tex.—A company has been formed here for the purpose of taking over the famous "J. A." ranch of Col. Charles Goodnight and engaging in the breeding of buffaloes and cattle on a much larger scale than has been done heretofore, and also to make a specialty of breeding Persian and Karakule sheep, elk, antelope and other animals which can be turned to profitable account.

The present herd of full-blooded buffaloes upon the ranch numbers 100 head. There are 75 head of mixed breed or cattaloes, 300 head of Persian sheep, 43 head of Karakule sheep, 10 elk, 15 antelope and 200 head of black [illegible] cattle.

It is planned by the company to make the buffalo herd worth not less than $1,000,000 in ten years.

Colonel Goodnight has devoted thirty years to propagating the buffalo and crossing it with polled Angus cattle. He has long been noted as the greatest breeder of buffaloes and cattaloes in the world. He has reached that time in life when he wants to prepare for a continuation of the work he has so well begun after he has laid aside life's cares and burdens. It was this desire that has prompted the organization of a strong financial company to take over his valuable holdings.

Associated with him in the work are younger men, who are enthusiastic over the possibilities of making the buffalo of great commercial value to this country.

"I hope and expect that the industry that I have inaugurated will be perpetuated and fill a unique page in the history of a generation yet unborn," said Colonel Goodnight. "In the year 1878 I captured four buffalo calves, one male and three heifers. And while I have sold over $20,000 worth of their increase, I still have a large herd of full blood buffaloes, and the only cattalo herd in the world.

"By breeding them with the famous polled Angus cattle that were imported from Scotland, I have them from one-fifteenth buffalo on up to half breed or cattaloes. I have been able to produce in the mixed breed the extra ribs of the buffalo, which are fourteen on each side, while the ordinary cattle have only thirteen ribs on each side. The cattalo make a larger and hardier cattle and will cut a greater per cent. of meat than any other cattle. They require less food and are longer lived cattle.

"As yet no one knows how long a buffalo lives. I have three full-blooded buffalo cows, each twenty-eight years old, that now have young calves."

Colonel Goodnight has sold many buffaloes since he began the business of breeding them, more than thirty years ago. Animals from his herd are in the public parks of New York, Denver, Chicago, San Antonio, national game preserve of Yellowstone park, and in Germany and England. He received from $225 to $500 a head for the animals. He recently refused an offer from the United States government of $500 a head for twenty-five of the animals.

The advantages which the cattalo have over ordinary cattle, according to the claims of Colonel Goodnight, are that the former do not tramp or muss up their feed or water; they require less food, less water and less salt; can live on what common cattle refuse; can live longer without food and water, with less loss; have the wild instinct against overfeeding; weigh more to the bulk; have better shoulders than any cattle known, giving more of the valuable forequarter meat, and cut more net meat than any other cattle under the same conditions.

The oleo, or fat, in cattalo differs from that in other cattle, having better flavor, being healthier for the human stomach than ordinary fats, and serving excellently as a cooking fat. Their meat excels that of the polled Angus, which tops the London market. Its meat is superior in grain and flavor to beef and a little darker in color, with the fat better marbleized.

Cattalo rightly handled are extremely gentle, inclined neither to fight nor to run, as do their ancestors. They share the buffalo's heritage of more brains and memory than common cattle, according to Colonel Goodnight's judgment and observations. Cattalo of more than one-quarter buffalo blood have been found under test absolutely immune to "blackleg," and the disease has been able to take hold of the one-quarter strain very rarely.

Savings Banks Celebrate in 1916.

New York.—The centennial of the savings banks in America will be celebrated in 1916, and already plans are under way for making the occasion a notable one. The national and state organizations of savings banks officials will co-operate with committees from the savings bank section of the American Bankers' association, and the American Institution of Banking.

NOTES FROM MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Pitt

Guard against the gophers.

Sunflower seed is hard to harvest.

Dogs are also a drawback to sheep raising.

Fir is better than tamarack for silo construction.

The depth to plow will depend upon the character of the soil.

A pig that is fed grain all his life usually fails to pay expenses.

Cows become much harassed by the heat, and show it largely in their milk flow.

The leaf-roller is a little insect that in its larva stage is injurious to strawberries.

When your cows do not pay for their feed, it's time to change the feed—or the cows.

To do good work the cream separator must be level and on a good solid foundation.

Alfalfa is one of the oldest cultivated plants the farmers of the world have knowledge of.

In cutting tracts of timber the owner should aim to grow a young and vigorous forest in place of the old one.

If you have a patch of anything green let the chickens run on it. They will scratch up a lot of hibernating insects.

The silo enables the dairyman to keep more livestock on the same number of acres and at less cost in feed and labor.

Only potatoes entirely free from disease should be planted, for diseased seed will be sure to grow a diseased crop.

The term "bush fruits" includes a great variety of small fruits, which are borne on low-growing, upright or trailing woody stems.

Every dairyman should conduct his business in such a manner that he can say to any man: "I am a dairyman and I am proud of it."

There is no crop which will furnish as large an amount of nutritious feed for hogs as alfalfa after it has once gotten a good growing start.

The farmer who plants corn that he is not sure will grow is acting as sensibly as the man who loads a gun with ball but no powder.

Every successful poultry breeder is frequently asked which breed of poultry is the best, and he as often has to say that there is no "best" breed.

Provide clean, dry hay or straw or a suitable material for the nests, renew the material frequently and always when it becomes wet and soiled.

Plan to raise a fine flock of general purpose standard bred birds this season. They will yield much more satisfaction and profit than a mixed flock.

The liquid manure contains a large part of the nitrogen voided by the animal, and is therefor of especial value, and should be taken up by straw or other litter.

A whole lot of the trouble caused by the marketing of stale eggs is caused by the lack of nests. The hen hides her nest and sometimes the eggs are not discovered for days.

Bad health, weak vitality of breeding stock, insufficient moisture or the lack of it in the incubator, and the lack of attention on the part of the operator is the cause of chicks dying in the shell.

More broilers, squabs and capons are being demanded each year. Of course, more are also being produced, but there are plenty of good markets left for all the chicken products that can be produced.

Spinach is one of the best things to grow. It is better to sow it in the fall for as a rule it cannot be sown early enough in the spring to get a good start. However, we have seen many fine beds of spring-grown spinach.

It should be borne in mind that the roots of alfalfa are fine and tender and are not liable to start well in a coarse or cloddy soil, so it is exceedingly important to pu. the seed bed in the very best condition, as fine as for garden seeds.

To Keep Eggs Fresh.

Persons who are given to reflection on the marvelous progress already achieved in the twentieth century and speculations on that to come should not overlook one Victor Clairmont, of Santa Cruz. Mr. Clairmont asserts that he has found the secret of the ever-fresh egg, and some of the most substantial men of his city believe him. He doesn't use lime or cold storage. He has a solution into which he dips the egg, whereby the pores of the shell are closed, and he says the egg will stay fresh as long as anyone wishes to keep it.

Mr. Clairmont has specialized on eggs for years, and such was his knowledge that about three or four months ago he was brought to Santa Cruz as manager of the egg exchange. It was then that he announced his discovery and exhibited to business men eggs which he said had been kept for more than a year. The egg experts put them under the light test and declared that there was deception in the statement that they had been kept a long time, for these were evidently fresh eggs. The inventor had to submit to a lot of chaffing, but finally he demanded a test.

Several cases of fresh eggs were purchased and put through his process. All were marked for identification and were then put in charge of the officers of the Chamber of Commerce. They were securely put away in a room of ordinary temperature and left there for three months. Then they were brought forward. Sample eggs were subjected to a strong light test and found clear. Some that were broken were found to have the odor of fresh eggs. So convinced was the committee of business men that they did not hesitate to eat some of the eggs cooked in various styles, and pronounced them all that could be desired.

What eggs were left of the original deposit have now been put away for another three months, when further tests will be made by the committee.

Clairmont has such faith in his process that he has bought up all the eggs he could get since he has been here. He now has about 30,000 dozen on hand and does not expect to have a loss on any of them. The state law which forbid s cold storage of eggs for more than three months, does not affect him.

Unique Convention.

A unique convention will assemble in Washington in September. It will be known as "The Convention of the Unemployed," and will be attended by delegations from all the larger cities of the country. Its object will be to consider ways and means to solve the problem of unemployment. If out of this gathering anything approaching a national labor exchange, on the lines of those existing on the continent shall be evolved, much good will have been accomplished. It is a fact that while there is lack of work in one section there is in another part of the country an unsupplied demand for more men in lines of labor that are glutted elsewhere. Labor and its market ought to be brought into close touch. It is the most important commodity we have for sale, and yet the one whose distribution is the least systematized.

WALTON.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Bollington and daughter Miss Ruth returned to her home here last week from a delightful visit to Detroit, Michigan, and Lake Michigan.

The Senior Walton base ball club crossed bats with the Erlanger nine at Erlanger last Saturday and were walloped to the score of 7 to 3, but the boys say that the discomfeiture of the feet was lost sight of entirely and completely obliterated by the royal courteous, gentlemanly treatment that the Erlanger boys showered on them from start to finish and they never had a more delightful visit anywhere.

Mrs. Martha Magruder, the venerable mother of Wm. McGruder who recently moved here from LaGrange, died at the home of her son here Sunday. Mrs. McGruder was 75 years old, and was a christian woman of the highest type. She had been ill for some time and her condition was such when the family moved here that she was unable to accompany them. The remains were taken to LaGrange Monday afternoon where the funeral took place Tuesday.

The protracted meeting at the Christian church closed Sunday night after a three weeks' session in whish there was a general revival and much good accomplished. Rev. R. E. Moss, of Eminence, assaccited by the pastor, Rev. L. A. Kohler, of Cincinnati, condncted the services. The sermons were very entertaining and instructive, and the music excellent. The attendance nightly was large. Ten additions to the shurch were obtained, the new members being Mrs. Sallie Hicks, Mrs. Mit Lucas, Mr. and Mrs. John Allen, Hiram English, Holton Craig, Mrs. John Stamler, Thos. Northcutt, Miss Ethel Shears, and Barry Mayhugh. The church has been greatly benfitted by the meeting. The ministers left for their homes last Monday.

One of the most interesting and entertaining games of base ball ball that has been played in the Walton ball park was witnessed last Saturday afternoon in the game between the second nine of Erlanger and the second nine of Walton. It was a closely contested game and was a scientific game with all the points developed to the highest degree. The score was one to nothing in favor of the Erlanger boys up to the eighth inning and at the close the game stood 2 to 1 in favor of Walton.

Geo. Napier, the son of E. F. and Celia Napier, died at his home in Walton, July 27th, aged 19 years. He had been ill but about six days and his death was caused by peritonitis. He was born in Clay County, Ky., and came to Walton with his parents when he was about three years old. He was married to Miss Catherine Smith of Big Bone, and his wife, parents, two sisters and two brothers survive him. He was a good son and a christian boy, and his funeral was conducted at the Baptist church on Saturday, the services being conducted by Rev. H. C. Wayman, after which the remains were laid to rest in the Baptist cemetery. The many friends tender their sympathy to the bereaved ones.

Hughes, carrier on route No. 1, and Elmer Conley, carrier on route 2 will now each be paid $1,000 a year, while Mr. Gaines will draw $860.

William Hedges brought to this office, Tuesday, a curious growth of corn. Unlike anything ever seen here in that line.

The lays of the last crop of blackberries are numerous.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, storm petrel between food dopers and the Taft administration, has been a militant government chemist for 29 years. Packers of embalmed beef are arrayed against him because of his fight against the use of benzoate of soda. Benzoate increases the profits of embalmed beef packers because it will restore and preserve meats that have become putrescent. The cost of manufacture of bologna and sausage may be materially reduced by using water and cereals. Water costs nothing and the cereal is cheaper than meat. The result is a cheapening of the product and a lowering of the food value. But when water and cereal is used the meat begins to sour. It is to prevent this souring process that the benzoate of soda may be used. Chemist declare benzoate is of no earthly use to the manufacturer who puts pure foods upon the market.

Dr. Wiley also fought the bleached flour interests to the last ditch. He exposed the injurious colorings used in candies sold to children. He stubbornly opposed the use of sulphur as a fruit preservative. He secured the removal of the tax on denatured alcohol. He exposed frauds without number in patent medicines. It was Wiley who started the war on the use of narcotics and other poisons in soda fountain drinks. And he stubbornly fought the whiskey trust until he was at last overruled by President Taft.

These facts tell better than a long article could why it is up to the food dopers to get Wiley's goat. Also why it is up to the people to see that they don't get it!

Speaker Champ Clark believes that the United States should grant independence to the Philippines, "both for their good and our own." Furthermore, Mr. Clark advocates early action on the subject. This is in contrast to the attitude of President Taft, who takes the position the Philippines should not be given independence "within the time of the present generation," which the Philippinos interpret as meaning never.

Here is what Speaker Clark recently wrote to a friend on the subject: "The Philippines should be given their independence guaranteed by the United States and such other powers as are willing to join us. I think our own guarantee would be sufficient, but I am for freeing them regardless of what the other powers do. My friend Judge Cline of Indiana has introduced a bill providing for their independence. I think we will pass it next winter, and then it will be up to the Senate and the President."

During the present auditing by the Democratic House of the Republican administrations for the last decade, it wouldn' be out of place to look into the Roosevelt-Harriman episode. The late railroad king raised $200,000 at Roosevelt's request to save New York for the Republicans in the Roosevelt-Parker campaign.

The Republicans are literally up in the air, their old-time standbys, props and policies all shaken in the Democratic upheaval. Reciprocity has helped Taft of course, but the Republicans have always won on protection. Taft has abandoned protection and the result is a matter of speculation.

Another step toward carrying out campaign pledges was taken by the majority of the House of Representatives when it adopted a cotton schedule whichg reatly reduces the tax on all kinds of cotton goods.

If the Republican Senate and President Taft will permit the bill to become a law, the public will be assured of substantial reductions in prices. The bill is so framed as to be a particular boon to the poor, for the greatest reductions are made on cottons used by the middle classes and the poor. This feature of the Democratic bill is in particularly striking contrast to the Payne-Aldrich law, which levies the lowest rates on the grades of cottons used by the wealthy and the highest tax on the cottons used by the poor.

An important measure pending before Congress is House Resolution No. 5958, introduced by Congressman James T. Lloyd of Mo.

The measure is aimed particularly at the action of the Taft administration in prohibiting postal employees from organizing and the still more remarkable Taft policy of denying civil service employees the right to petition Congress, or even to give members of Congress information until it has first been censored by their superiors.

The Constitution guarantees to every citizen of the United States the right to petition Congress.

The Lloyd resolution occupies the novel role, therefore, of having for tis purpose the restoration to government employees of rights they are entitled to under the constitution, but which rights have been taken away from them by the President in his desperate effort to prevent a further leakage of information injurious to the Republican party such as occured is the Ballinger case.

The cotton bill reported by the Democratic Ways and Means committee is especially designed to benefit the women and children of the country, there being a reduction of more than 45 per cent on nearly every item in the cotton bill used by them.

The drouth is getting pretty [illegible] Gardens are drying up [illegible] vegetable crop is short, [illegible] are almost a total failure. [illegible] are scarce as well [illegible] potatables. The problem [illegible] is daily growing [illegible] Sidney Clipper.

TOBACCO OUTLOOK.

Tobacco prospects in Anderson county is anything but encouraging.

Tobacco in Bourbon county is suffering to an alarming extent for rain.

The tobacco crop in Mason Co. is in very poor condition owing to lack of rain. In some localities it has become full of dry rust, with leaves dropping off. Prospects are not very flattering for even half a crop this year, and with the short acreage. Mason county will fall far below her usual yield.

Montgomery county, tobacco is doing fine. The recent rains have proved of great benefit to the crop and much of it is nearly knee high, with excellent color and rapidly growing, while the late setting has come out in excellent shape, although a considerable quantity fired and yellowed up and died. Worms have been coming in abundance, and in some sections they are worse than they have been for several years, and are keeping growers very busy, which, with the crus and plowing that has to be done is keeping the grower very busy to keep up with his work. All tobacco will be later than last year.

The Licking river section of Nicholas county will have a bumper crop of watermelons this year, according to reports. Many growers who have heretofore been raising tobacco have this year put their rich river bottom lands in melons and say they will have ripe melons on the market by August. Tobacco growers in the section of Nicholas county about Abner's Mills are this year raising large juantities of tomatoes in the place of tobacco. They report conditions favorable to a large yield. A tomato canning plant with a capacity of 4,000 cans daily has been installed and will begin operations in a week or two.

American Tobacco Company.

O. S. Clendenning the local buyer for the American Tobacco Co., stated to a reporter that he was called to Cincinnati, where a meeting was held last Friday. He states that the American people have discontinued doing business with the farmers in Indiana, Ohio, W. Virginia and Kentucky, and have ordered their presses and all their belongings sold at once. All the employes of the company in the four states above named will seek other employment, as they have all been "canned."—Vevay Reveille.

The American Tobacco Co. has issued an order, effective by August 1, discharging all of its country buyers, and will in the future buy only from the loose leaf markets. This policy has been in contemplation for the past two years, or practically ever since the era of the loose leaf market begun, and comes as no surprise. The company also ordered all of its prizing and packing apparatus sold, and a general clean up made of all their possessions as related to the buying districts, where their buyers would come in direct contact with the grower. The company comes out with its usual "hot air" declaration that there is a big surplus of tobacco on hand and over a million pounds as yet unsold. Possibly this is true. We don't know. Still we might be entitled to slight doubt of the truthfulness of the statement, when we recall that the same company made the same old statement one winter a few years ago, and not many weeks thereafter paid 17 and 20 cents a pound for tobacco.—Warsaw Independent.

Life Saved at Death's Door.

"I never felt so near my grave," writes W. R. Patterson, of Wellington, Texas, as when a frightful cough and lung trouble pulled me down to 100 pounds, in spite of doctor's treatment for two years. My father, mother and two sisters died of consumption, and that I am alive today is due solely to Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me. Now I weigh 187 pounds and have been well and strong for years." Quick, safe, sure, its the best remedy on earth for coughs, colds, lagrippe, asthma, croup and all throat and lung troubles. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all dealers.

To a former Richmond pastor, whohad been in bad health for several months, one of his members suggested that a "little toddy every morning" might be helpful. "No, no, replied the preacher, "that would never do. My people would soon lose confidence in me, after detecting liquor on my breath." "Do you share yourself," asked this would be benefactor. "Yes, I do." Then why not use a little on your face after shaving, as well as a little internally, and you could then say that you always rubbed a little on your face after shaving." Nothing more was said. In a few weeks, meeting a young negro boy who worked in the parson's home, the interested deacon asked. "John, how is Dr.—feeling this morning?" "I don't know zactly, 'boss,' replied the negro, "but it 'pears to me he's done gone crazy, fer he shaves his self four and five times a day!"

August Raker, on an acre and a quarter of land, raised $350 worth of potatoes after paying all expenses. He lives on Judge Donaldson's farm in Hunters Bottom. —Carrollton Democrat.

CUTTING AFFRAY

In Which Brother Wounds Brother---Perhaps Fatally.

A deplorable cutting affray at English, a Station on the L. & N. Railroad a few miles below Worthville, last Saturday night, threw the shadow of a tragedy over that little town, and as a result, one man lies at the point of death and another is confined in the county jail at Carrollton.

On the evening in question Sennit Tharp, aged about 35, and his brother, Joe Tharp, both residents of English, quarreled over some matter and the serious ending of the difficulty came with Sennit Tharp grasping his brother, and, while holding him, cutting his throat with a knife. Joe Tharp was first stabbed in the throat, and then was slashed across the throat by his brother, making a wound from which the physicians say it will be impossible for him to recover. Whisky is said to be the cause of the cutficulty, as Sennit Tharp was under the influence of liquor and in blind and unreasoning fury committed the assault which will probably end his brother's life.

Joe Tharp was carried home and given every possible attention, his brother coming up the railroad and stopping at Glencoe, where he was employed in a section gang on the L. & N. Railroad. Sheriff Geo. W. Snyder was notified of the crime and went to Glencoe with a warrant for Tharp's arrest. He found him there in one of the box cars which was side-tracked for the accommodation of the section gang, and served the warrant, taking Tharp into custody. He had him prisoner until Sheriff DeMint of Carroll county, arrived and took Tharp back to Carrollton where he was lodged in jail to await the action of the grand jury. Public sentiment seems to censure Tharp severely and the indications are that he will have rough sledding at the trial. If his brother's wound proves fatal, his chances for a life sentence in the penitentiary are very good as a verdict of man slaughter would in all probability be returned against him.—Warsaw Independent.

College Men Who Fail.

In every college there is a class of never-do-wells, generally composed of the sons of the rich. They go to college for the life there, to take part in social festivities, etc., and they care very little about study. College is to them merely an excuse for persuading their parents to permit them to spend four years in riotous laziness. At some colleges there are special courses, "easy courses," for such pupils. The college is not to be blamed for the inherent weakness of those men, although blame does attach to them for permitting students to waste their opportunities and their time. The smaller colleges are much more careful of the morals of those in attendance than are the great universities, where students are supposed to have reached the age of discretion, says the Charlton News and Courier. Discipline in the universities is largely a question of surroundings. Professors are there to teach, not to spend their time in enforcing discipline. The result is bad, not because the older men are unable to govern themselves, but because so many parents insist on sending more boys to universities. Where they ought to be sent, is to the small college, finishing their work, if need be, at the university, when they have had enough experience to appreciate freedom from rigid control and to know how to manage themselves. To send a boy of 18 to a university where the vest majority of those in attendance are grown men is to invite his ruin.

Notice to Sheep Owners.

Frankfort, Ky., July 28, 1911.
Dr. O. S. Crisler,
Burlington, Ky.

Sir.—You are advised that when sheep owners have complied with all State Regulations relative to sheep inspection, you may upon request, issue certificates covering consignments of sheep from points in Kentucky to be hauled in wagons placarded "Exposed Sheep" for delivery to the Cincinnati Union Stock Yards. Sheep so transported from Kentucky shall before being unloaded at Cincinnati be reported to Dr. E. L. Bertram, Inspector in Charge, who will provide for their inspection, yarding and the cleaning and disinfection of the vehicles in compliance with the Federal Regulations.

Respectfully,
A. J. PAYNE,
State Live Stock Inspector.

She'll Tell You---Quick!

Which Kind for You?

Just ask your wife which of these two dish pans of cream separator parts she would rather wash. She will tell you quick—the one with the single piece in it. This single, tiny, instantly removable piece is all there is inside.

Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator Bowls

All other separators have heavy, hard to wash, complicated "bucket bowls." The parts in the full dish pan are all from one common "bucket bowl" and are just a sample of the trouble and work of washing "bucket bowls" as compared to washing the Dairy Tubular. Think of washing these disks twice a day. Imagine the chance rust and hard knocks have at such a complicated machine.

Milk skimmed with a Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator is skimmed right—it is the cleanest skimming, quickest skimming, lightest running, longest lived separator built. Bring your wife to see it---inside and outside—and learn how it may double your butter money. The helpful dairy book, "Business Dairying," is yours for the asking.

The Business Principle

of successful lives is the habit of saving, depositing what can be spared in a good bank to meet the emergencies of the proverbial rainy day. A little at a time makes a snug sum in a short time The Equitable Bank and Trust Co., Walton, Ky., will accept any sum on deposit and pays four per cent. interest on what remains a year, or three per cent for what remains six months. Remittances by mail given prompt response and careful attention. This Bank has assets of over One Hundred Thousand Dollars. We qualify as administrator, executor, trustee, guardian, etc., of estates, which is much more satisfactory than a private individual in such capacity. Mail communications given careful attention. is the work done by the blue Anchor Society, which has an office in New York. It gives help to persons of any nationality ship wrecked upon the American coast, whether seamen or passengers. Persons are often brought ashore at lifesaving stations destitute of clothing or personal effects, and these life-saving stations have no money or supplies to aid them, except as provided by the Blue Anchor Society. The Society is supported entirely by voluntary contributions, and only those who have been brought in touch with the dangers of the sea can realize the pressing nature of the need it is called upon to relieve.

To Kill Weeds.

It is said that briars, weeds, etc., will die out more effectually if cut in August than if cut in any other month. All agree that August is the month, but some contend it should be during the dark of the moon, and others say the proper time is while the sign is in the heart. We know that August is the best time for we have tried it, but as to the remainder we are somewhat skeptical.

Quality of Our Wool.

American wool has long been held at the top for the quality of its fibre for clothing purposes, and a great wool expert, a man who has spent his life in handling wool, both foreign and domestic, declares that "American wool is the best in the world, with the exception of the small percentage raised on alkali soils. It would out-wear, grade for grade, the wools of any other country 50 to 100 per cent; therefore, the consumer obtains twice as much value for the [illegible] dollar paid."

Let Us Not Forget.

Have you ever thought how difficult it was to find an unbroken family ? Most of us are fragments of families here and there struggling the best we may. We think of father, mother and relatives now scattered like mists of the morning. There is something in this that makes us forget each-other's welfare when we become separated. How often do we write to a brother or sister ? We dare say if you sit down to count the days, it has been months and perhaps years. Once in a while a letter passes telling of the old love and asking to be forgiven for not writing sooner, and then a long silence. A telegram is handed you; your fingers tremble as you tear open the envelope, you read mother or sister died on such a day. You go away by yourself and shed a few scalding tears and regret a thousand times your negligence to the dear ones. It is now too late to do better by mother or sister in the day to come. This great, broad world gets too far apart. The duties of life so absorb our time that we forget things we should remember.

PUPIL TALLER THAN TEACHER

Arrested by Truant Officer Fifteen-Year-Old Miss Declares She Could Spank Instructor.

New York.—Rather than face the teasing schoolmates who are two feet or more shorter than she, fifteen-year-old Molly Vogel braved the anger of her parents, defied the power of the truant officer and stayed away from school. She was arraigned in the Gates avenue court, Brooklyn, before Magistrate O'Reilly on complaint of Mary Brennan, attending officer.

When Mrs. Vogel was asked by the magistrate if her daughter was in court she replied: "Yes, she is back there." O'Reilly, looking toward the rear of the room, saw two girls seated. One seemed to be about twelve years old, the other fully twenty. The magistrate expected to see the little one rise at the call of "Molly Vogel!" He gasped when the bigger one stepped out in the aisle. Molly would have no difficulty in passing as an adult. Besides being tall she is decidedly plump.

"Judge, if you had to stay in a classroom and you the biggest girl in the school, what would you do?" pleaded Molly.

O'Reilly shook his head, as if to say he had never contemplated facing such a situation personally.

"How can I learn when I know I'm a foot taller than the principal?" wailed Molly. "One of my teachers, a man, is so small I could spank him. And anyway, judge, I thought I'd been to school for the 120 days I had to go. But they say I must go for thirty-five days more."

Magistrate O'Reilly shook his head sadly, but decided the best way would be for the girl to go to school for the remaining days of compulsory attendance.

JAP WOULD LAUGH AT HOBBLE

Swedish Envoy to Japan and China, on Way From Orient, Talks of Women's New Dress.

Chicago.—"I believe the Japanese women, who are considered the most sensibly dressed of any women in the world, would laugh at the American hobble skirt."

Gustav O. Wallenberg, Swedish minister to Japan and China, in Chicago the other day on his way to his native country, made that statement.

Mr. Wallenberg reserved his personal opinion on the harem, hobble and other fashions that greeted him here after an absence of several years since his last visit in the United States.

"I am immensely pleased with everything and everybody here," he said. "I was never happier than when I caught sight of Uncle Sam's country once more, and will say for Chicago that it is wonderful—wonderful. The city becomes greater every year."

Mr. Wallenberg said Chicagoans are holding their own in the trade in the orient.

"Americans seem to be on the ground floor in the industrial outlook in the far east," he said.

The political situation in China at present, he says, is quiet and he attaches slight importance to the recent uprising at Canton.

TERRIER SAYS "GOOD NIGHT"

Diamond Dick, Allentown's Talking Dog, Adds Two Words to His Rather Small Vocabulary.

Allentown, Pa.—Diamond Dick, Allentown's talking dog, has learned two new words, and his vocabulary now consists of four. His owner, Tom Ford, a young Allentown business man, who is well known as a lover of animals, spent one and a half years teaching the dog, a handsome bull terrier, two words, mamma and no.

A dog is by nature not constituted to pronounce consonants, but Diamond Dick seems to have mastered that difficulty. About two months ago, after Ford had demonstrated to doubters that his dog could say mamma and no, he said he hoped to teach him more words, and the terrier can now say good night. He will repeat words again and again, the same as the other words he knows how to utter, when he once grasps what his master wants of him.

LONE PIGEON FRIGHTENS MEN

Brave Doorman in New York Police Station Alone Defies Popular Superstition—Fear Hoodoo.

New York.—"Yes, I'm going to keep this pigeon as a mascot," says Joseph Devern, doorman in the East Fifty-first street police station.

"I'm not so sure about that," retorts Captain O'Connor. And every other policeman attached to that station joins O'Connor in the fear that the pigeon will be a hoodoo instead of a mascot.

There is a superstition that when a bird flies into a house it brings death to some one there. This pigeon flew into the police station when O'Connor was turning out the platoon the other day. Every bluecoat in line shivered.

"I'm going to put a crimp in that nonsense," said Devern. "Think of big, strong men being afraid of a little, hungry pigeon."

Prince Arthur a Chairman.

London.—Prince Arthur of Connaught has consented to act as president of the general London committee for the congress of the universities of the empire which will be held at the University of London in July, 1912.

FARM NOTES.

Alfalfa roots are fine and tender.

Iron sulphate solution kills dandelions.

The horses should have free access to salt at all times.

Goslings must be driven in when a hard shower comes up.

A rich sandy loam with clay subsoil, is the best ground for berries.

Do not allow a dying or worthless tree to stand in or near an orchard.

Beef, meal and meat scrap are fed by many poultrymen with excellent results.

Club root of cabbage is one of the most annoying yet easily controlled of diseases.

The matter of growing the corn and filling the silo is of great and growing importance.

Cattle on pasture can be fed grain and made ready for market early in the summer.

Wheat and oats in equal parts ground together are excellent for chicks of any age.

As soon as the corn is up, or even before, go over the field with a weeder or smoothing harrow.

Flaxseed may be broadcasted, but is generally drilled at the rate of from two to three pecks to the acre.

A small amount of animal food is required by all poultry, especially during the time of egg production.

Try to see that the chicks are not fed until at least 48 hours old; then give water first, feed afterwards.

Failures in the sheep business, in nine cases out of ten, may be traced to overconfidence and "plunging."

The farmer who makes milk production his business is a dairyman, and he needs the best of dairy cows.

If one has pigs that have to be kept in a yard all summer, sweet corn is the best green feed he can grow for them.

Barley and kaffir corn are both good poultry feed, but not essential when one has plenty of the above mentioned grains.

Dairymen doing a small business, connected with farming cannot live up to the standard without increasing the cost of milk.

The temperature in a brooder the first week should be 95 degrees, second week 90 degrees and the third week 85 degrees is enough.

Corn silage and alfalfa make an excellent ration for dairy cows and good yields of milk have been reported where nothing else was fed.

Go over the young apple trees and cut off every water sprout with a sharp knife close to the trunk. Do it early and they will heal this season.

It is the early vegetable that brings the big price and the man who sticks to his hot bed and makes good use of it always gets to market first.

There are several crops which may be planted for late summer pasture which will furnish fresh, succulent green feed for all seasons of the year.

Two or three days after potatoes are planted go over the field with a harrow, and continue this until the plants are several inches above the ground.

As soon as the potatoes are planted and up sufficiently to cultivate, it is becoming customary, and necessary, to spray with some poison solution to kill the bugs.

The fruiting strawberries should have all weeds and grass cut out between plants; take a sharp, narrow-bladed hoe and cut the soil fine without disturbing the roots.

The poultry yard should be all cleared away and tidied up in June, and all coops and racks no longer in use securely stored away in some shed where they will be kept dry until next season.

One can spread ashes, lime, land plaster, pulverized lime rock, etc., etc., with the manure spreader by first putting a layer of litter in the bottom of the spreader and the fine material on top.

A remarkable thing about alfialfa is its perennial youth. When one growth is removed another one comes on immediately to take its place, and so continually as long as moisture and temperature conditions are favorable.

Grow your tomatoes on trellises this year and see if you do not have better crops than ever before. Trellises should be set in the ground about 18 inches deep when the plants are set out and the vines trained from the start.

When one stops to consider the stupendous fact that Philadelphia, Chicago and New York consume 7,000,000 cases of eggs annually, some idea may be obtained of the number required to feed Uncle Sam's rapidly increasing family all over the country.

UPLIFT OF CIOCIARE

Wealthy Italian Women Unite to Aid Models.

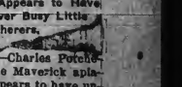
Spanish Stairs, Where Natives Waited for Passing Artist, Must Go—Will Be Taught to Read, Write and Sew.

Rome.—The world's fair in this city this summer will induce a multitude of people to visit Rome who have never beheld its glories, and it will also be a stimulus for other tourists to revisit the scenes of their former travels.

Whether they be artists of laymen, if they have ever spent any length of time in Rome one of the most vivid impressions they retain must be the Spanish stairs and the groups of gayly dressed models or ciociare, as they are called, who, when not engaged by any artist, make this spot a rendezvous. Here they would congregate, some chatting, others droning in an undertone their weird folk songs, all leisurely waiting for the appearance of a passing artist who might be in search of a subject for his picture.

The Spanish stairs was the bureau of engagement for the ciociare. But all this is to pass. A number of women, headed by the Princess Ruspoli, Baroness Lombardo del Giudice, and the Marquise de Targinani Herman, have decided that the care-free ciociare must be instructed, when not posing, in the practical things of life, that this open-air retreat was pernicious to good morals and right living, and in consequence they have formed a benevolent society to undertake the problem of teaching them the rudiments of learning—for not one of them can read or write—and instruct them in sewing.

Numerous inducements are held out to attract the indolent ciociare to the school. If she works two consecutive hours in the morning the reward for diligence entitles her to a midday luncheon at the expense of the society. Then, after she has been taught to make different articles of clothing, the material for which has been given to her, she is allowed to keep the finished garment, or else she is paid for her labor.



Princess Ruspoli and the other members of the committee personally superintend this big work, and all their energies are directed toward making it a permanent success.

The ciociare, or children of the field, as they are named, are never seen outside of southern Italy, for they never migrate. The sobriquet of ciociare came from their sandals, which are called "ciocie," a name finally given to the section from where they come—between Naples and Rome. The dress of one differs from that of another in color only. Each wears the velvet bodice mellowed by age, the bright silk shawl draped over a white cotton blouse, the voluminous skirt, and the fancy apron with its elaborate wool embroidery. The young boys are equally picturesque in their knee trousers of blue or red velveteen, short jackets of the same stuff, a soft felt hat set coquettishly on one side of the head, protecting the long mass of blue-black hair. Even the old men, with green or purple clothes and long-cape cloaks, keep up the illusion of living old masters.

In these days of compulsory education one can hardly realize the ignorance that exists among these ravishingly beautiful ciociare. Many of the fairly intelligent people in Italy cannot read nor write, so that a lack of even a smattering of book knowledge is not a matter of surprise, but the ciociare's intellectual horizon does not extend farther than that of an American child of three. They seem to live from day to day, like birds of the air, careless and unhampered, with no thought of the morrow.

TEXAN NOT AFRAID OF BEES

Charles Potchenick Appears to Have Unusual Control Over Busy Little Honey Gatherers.

San Antonio, Tex.—Charles Potchenick, employed by the Maverick apiaries near this city, appears to have unusual control over bees. He handles them with as much apparent ease as one would in playing with kittens or a harmless pet. He is used to their ways and appears absolutely oblivious to the fact that they can sting.

While working with them he goes bare-armed and bare faced and pays no attention to the insects as they crawl over his exposed hands and arms or pile up in great clumps on his face.

Recently he had a picture taken holding a small limb in his teeth on which a swarm had settled. The bees formed a kind of long beard hanging below his waist and his entire face was covered with those that crawled from the limb. Old beekeepers say that his feats in handling bees are the most remarkable in the world. He claims he has not been stung in two years.

Tramp Steals Dog's Bed.

Memphis, Tenn.—William Thompson, a tramp, invaded fashionable Lamar boulevard the other day hunting a meal. At Mrs. William Johnson's home he said he was starving. She fed him. Then he went to the back door and told a servant he was dying for a drink of whisky. He got that. Then he walked around the house, drove the dog away and went to sleep in the dog's bed. Policemen found him there and arrested him.

Democrats.

[illegible] meeting of the State Central and Executive Committees of the Democratic party of the State of Kentucky, in joint session assembled in Louisville, Ky., on [illegible] 1911, it was ordered that a mass convention be held at the court house in every County in the State on Saturday, August 12th, 1911 at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of selecting delegates to attend the Delegate State Convention to be held in Louisville, Ky., on the 15th day of August 1911 to adopt and promulgate a platform of principles for the guidance of Democratic officers and of the party of Kentucky and for the consideration thereof by the people in the approaching campaign. Delegates shall be selected on the basis of one delegate for every 200 votes and every fraction of 200 over 100 votes cast by the Democratic party of Kentucky at the Presidential election of 1908. All known Democrats all independent voters and all minors who will be legal voters by the November election, 1911, and all voters who declare a purpose to affiliate with the Democratic party in the next State election of 1911 will be eligible to participate in this mass convention.

Therefore, in accordance with the above order I thereby call for a mass convention of all Democrats of Boone County at the Court House in Burlington on Saturday August 12, 1911, at 2 o'clock, p. m., to select delegates as above stated. I ask that each Precinct Committeeman see that every precinct in the county is well represented at this convention in Burlington on August 12th.

A. B. RENAKER, Chairman,
Boone County Democratic Executive Committee.

Something to Be Proud Of.

Rising Sun, Ind., July 30.
Editor Recorder:

Will you please publish the following in the Recorder?

I am surprised to see so little about that Concert at East Bend in your paper. I confess that when I heard about a concert by the East Bend and Big Bone choirs, I asked myself: "Can anything good come from Nazareth?" I did not mean to reflect on the Big Bone choir, whose reputation as one of the best choirs in Kentucky is to well established as that I could shake it; but I did not think it possible that in East Bend, where the musical education has been so badly neglected, a choir could accomplish what that choir did in such a short time.

When at the night of the concert the singers stepped out on the platform one could see in their bearing that they had confidence in themselves and in their leader. I began to think that maybe I had been mistaken in my opinion, and when Prof. Lindenberg, (some one in the crowd called him the great old man), came to the front and touched that old organ, I said to myself: "I bet he knows his business," and that time I was not mistaken. I admit that the singing did not sound as well as it would have in a hall with good accoustics, but that was not because the singers were not well trained.

The programme was a selection of high grade music, which showed the experienced leader, and Prof. Lindenberg and his singers have a right to be proud of their success.

The violin and piano music would have been a credit to any concert hall—it was simply grand. If such singing and playing does not arouse the interest of the community it is a bad sign for the intelligence of the people. I am sorry to say that a large part of the audience showed by their conduct that they did not appreciate the efforts of the singers and players; they are the same people who go to church every Sunday and never hear a sermon.

Strange as it seems the East Bend choir has its enemies—so did our Lord have enemies, and so did every good movement that ever was started in this world. I hope the singers will not be discouraged by it but keep up the good work to the glory of God and the uplifting of humanity—they shall not lose their reward.

Louis Swede.

A Pleasant Time.

Sunday, July 30th, the pleasant home of Ben Frank Bristow and wife, of near Devon Station, was the scene of a merry crowd, when about 30 of the children and grandchildren of the late Reubin and Statira Bristow, with a few friends, assembled to spend the day in pleasant conversation and partake of the abundance of good things, which were prepared for the occasion. The home being situated between the L. & N. and Q. & C. Railroads, was convenient for all the relatives who arrived at an early hour and spent a most delightful day. Mr. and Mrs. Bristow with their son and daughter, were untiring in their efforts to make the day a pleasant one, which with the ideal weather and the general good fellowship of all present, made it one long to be remembered, the only regret of the day being the absent ones who were unable to be present.

Mrs. Martha Griffith was granted a decree of divorce from her husband Chas. L. Griffith in the Kenton Circuit Court at Covington last week, and was also restored to all of her rights and use of her own property.

Tobacco is late, but it is a good seed, and there is no telling how it will come out. At present the prospect is anything but flattering. Most favorable weather could make a good crop.—Milton Courier.

NICHOLAS CARPENTER

After An Illness of Several Weeks Passes Into Rest on the Other Shore of That Mysterious Sea.

Nicholas Carpenter was born July 5th, 1843, and died July 27, 1911, aged 68 years and 22 days.

He was a son of the late Nicholas and Almyra Rogers Carpenter, was a twin and one of a family of four boys and four girls, only one of whom, Mrs. Samuel Finch, of Tennessee, survives.

Mr. Carpenter's wife, who was Miss Sarah [illegible] and one grandchild, Bessie Baldon, survive him, the child's mother, Alma, being their only offspring. She departed this life several years ago.

Nicholas Carpenter was born and raised on the farm where he died. He was a quiet upright gentleman, correct in all his dealings, and pronounced an excellent neighbor by all who ever lived by him. He was industrious and frugal, a kind and affectionate husband and a loving and indulgent father. Mr. Carpenter's life was one worth emulation, no act of his long life ever being a subject for criticism. He was thoroughly a domestic person and attractions for him other than those at his home did not exist, and only business called him from the presence of his family. In his death the county has lost one of its best citizens.

It was Mr. Carpenter's request that no display be made at his funeral, consequently a brief service at the grave was conducted by Rev. Wells, of the Baptist church, after which the remains were consigned to their last resting place in the family lot in the Odd-Fellows' cemetery near town, a large concourse of neighbors and friends being present to pay their last tribute of respect to the one they esteemed so highly in life.

AN INTERESTING LECTURE

On "Schools Here, There and Elsewhere," by James Speed, of Louisville.

James Speed, of Louisville, delivered an address in Burlington, last Thursday evening. He is working under the auspices of the Louisville Commercial Club.

The subject was "Schools Here, There and Elsewhere," and the lecture was given under the auspices of the State Wide committee on Rural Schools, which is sending Mr. Speed over the State in the interest of higher educational facilities being provided for every school child of Kentucky. Mr. Speed's lecture was illustrated with pictures taken during a 400-mile tour of the State last Autumn when the speaker was afforded an excellent opportunity of viewing some of the very apparent deficiencies of Kentucky's school system. These pictures showed some startling things, especially as contrasted with pictures of school buildings and school life taken in other States where a different system prevailed.

The work Mr. Speed is doing is really in the interest of the system of consolidated schools, which has been tried so successfully in Tennessee, Virginia, and other States, and which will be one of the features of Kentucky's new educational era, if the same ratio of progress is maintained which has been so evident during the past few years.

The advantages of the consolidated school plan were clearly set forth by Mr. Speed, whose address was logical and convincing in the handling of a subject with which the speaker was thoroughly familiar by having studied the proposition at first hands. By the consolidated plan, a fair proportion of teachers could be assigned, dispencing with the congested conditions of some schools, better school buildings could be provided, a better system of instruction could prevail and many other benefits would naturally follow.

More poeple, men and women, are suffering from kidney and bladder trouble than ever before, and each more of them turn for quick relief and permanent benefits to Foley's Kidney Remedy, which has proven itself to be one of the most effective remedies for kidney and bladder ailments, that medical science has devised. NEW CAMP TALE!

Fisherman Catch Intoxicated Fish After Liquor is Poured into River.

Lawrenceburg, Ind., July 27.—Sheriff B. B. Hume, of Boone Co. Ky., raided a large camp that has been operated as a blind tiger in the dense woods in the Hartman Grove, just opposite this city. He seized a quantity of whisky, wine and a large number of cases of bottle beer, and emptied the liquor into a small bay of shallow water in the Ohio river, but was unable to arrest the men that have been operating the camp.

George W. Miller and Pat Brindell, fishermen, came up the river shortly after Sheriff Hume left the camp and were astonished and puzzled by the remarkable spectacle of a large number of intoxicated fish. The fishermen thought all the fish had gone crazy, as they wiggled and waggled about in the strangest manner.

The fishermen succeeded in catching nearly 200 pounds of small catfish before the school disappeared in deeper water.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Sheriff Hume has been informed that the patrons of the camp that he took off of the map are now buying fish in large quantities as substitutes for the refreshments that they had been purchasing at the camp.

Some Corn and Pumpkins.

Wm. F. Cloud, of Pt. Pleasant neighborhood, was in Burlington, last Monday, the first time in many moon's, and he looked as though "Father Time" had dealt kindly with him during his long absence from the county seat. He reported that farmer Furlong has the best field of corn in that vicinity, it being so large that it will require a step ladder to pluck the ears this fall; and that his pumpkin vines are growing so fast they are plowing deep furrows through his field. While in town he called on the Recorder and had the paper sent to his address for one year.

CARD OF THANKS—We desire to thank the members of Grange Hall Camp M. W. A. for their assistance during the illness and death of our beloved son, and also desire to thank all the members of the Modern Woodmen Society for the sum of money we just received for policy insured in that society, as we have just received the full amount due us on his policy. We will always have a tender memory of members of Grange Hall Camp and will do all in our power to assist them. We also desire to thank Dr. Senour for his assistance both to us and to the Society.

Struck a Hoosier Snag.

The Burlington base ball team went to Petersburg, last Saturday afternoon, where a Lawrenceburg team played rings around them, the score being 6 to 2 in favor of the Lawrenceburg boys. Lawrenceburg made nine hits to Burlington's six. The Burlington team has no excuse to offer for their defeat, saying they were simply outplayed, but they expect to put up a better article of ball next Saturday when Lawrenceburg will be here for the second game.

Lawrenceburg Ferry.

Until the river rises 8 feet there will be only one landing. Teams can drive from lower to upper landing over the road along river front. During Lawrenceburg Fair teams, horses, etc., etc., will be transferred from day, light to 5:30 p. m.; passengers, all hours of the day from daylight to dark. A ticket office will be opened on Kentucky shore, Thursday morning, August 10th, and everybody is advised to purchase tickets as no cash fare will be taken on boat. Besides the stern-wheel and ferry boat two other boats will be used for the transfer of passengers.

LAWRENCEBURG FERRY.

In this issue appears the advertisement of the Lawrenceburg fair, which begins next Tuesday. Several good purses will be hung up for trotting, running and pacing races. The usual list of premiums will be awarded during the fair on agricultural products, pantry and dairy, and harness and saddle horses. Get ready to attend.

STATE NEWS

Gathered From Our Exchanges From all Parts of The State.

Judge O'Rear walked away easily with the Republican nomination for Governor, winning in a walk from Cox and Franks. He will not find it so easy when he bumps up against McCreary and the Democratic ticket.—Dover News.

Few men of to-day are the equals of E. J. McDermott as a public speaker, and when he was selected by the Democrats as their standard-bearer for Lieutenant Governor, they added a tower of strength to the whole ticket.—Danville Advocate.

The county unit plank in the Republican platform that O'Rear hopes to ride into office on, contains three lines. We supposed this would be one of the main planks, but it seems to have been shortened considerably.—Somerset Times.

A group picture was taken Monday, comprising probably the three oldest sisters in the county, Mrs. Sallie Watts, aged 86; Mrs. Lucinda Watts, aged 84, and Mrs. Eliza Jones, aged 82. Each has been married once and is now a widow.—Winchester Democrat.

There is no denying the fact that in Judge E. C. O'Rear the Republicans have selected the strongest man in their party to make the race for Governor, and if the Democrats expect to again get in power they must get busy and that at once.—Lebanon Falcon.

Uncle Johnny Williams will celebrate his eighty-sixth birthday anniversary next Sunday. He is the only living Mexican War veteran in Boyle county. A mistake occurred in connection with the records and he has never been able to secure a pension.—Danville Advocate.

The need of a State primary to nominate candidates, the expenses to be borne by the State, and to be participated in jointly by all political parties, with a nominal entrance fee as a matter of good faith, and punishment for misconduct of election officers, is becoming more urgent every year.—Hartford Herald.

The ticket nominated by the Republicans don't strike us as a particularly strong one, while it is conceded the Democrats have named the strongest and best ticket that has been in the field for twenty years. It should be easy for any Democrat or Independent to decide which one of these tickets to support.—Mt. Sterling Sentinel-Democrat.

The first regular passenger train that ever came into Harlan pulled into the new station across the river Monday morning. The event was one of great importance, and several hundred persons had gathered at the depot to witness its arrival. As the train pulled slow ly up to the station there were cheers, and a number of hats were thrown into the air. It was truly a joyful occasion for the old town.—Middlesboro News-Record.

The Republicans in the State Convention who felt the heavy hand of Boss O'Rear are not accepting their chastisement in the spirit that should actuate political brethren. With a whip in hand, the Boss drove the delegates at his own will. He lifted men here and deposited them there. He made big men out of little ones, and relegated to the ranks those who had considered themselves home pumpkins.—Bowling Green Messenger.

Newspaper notices are telling of Frank Emerson, a Maine man, who is the owner of a pair of shoes which he has had for twenty-three years, using them mostly for Sunday. Mr. George Nichols, of this county, can double discount this. He tells us that he has a pair of boots made for him by Mr. J. A. Henderson in 1881. He used them constantly for fifteen years on the farm, and then laid them away for Sunday use.—Harrodsburg Herald.

The Hon. James B. McCreary was elected Governor of Kentucky thirty-seven years ago, the first Monday in the coming August, beating his opponent, Judge John M. Harlan, 90,000 votes. In his election Marshal county was the banner Democratic county in the State, and received a nice banner, as a reward for her loyalty to Democracy. Let us keep this fresh in our minds and roll up an unprecedented majority for the Democratic ticket to old Marshal this fall.—Benton Tribune-Democrat.

The editor bought four dozen of eggs the other day upon the assurance that they were good and fresh, and out of the four dozen twenty-two were found that would not pass muster. The vendor of these little wads of putrefied protein lives on Middle creek, and it wouldn't take us one minute to mention his name. The next man that sells us rotten eggs will be followed by the Sheriff, accompanied with a warrant for the capture of said egg man, because of having obtained money under false pretense, or better for eggs in a very loud state of putrefaction.—Ky. Ex.

POOR PROSPECTS

For Burley Tobacco Crop This Year.

Prospects are that the Burley tobacco crop this year will be the poorest in several years. Reports from all parts of the district show that the acreage set was unusually small and the growing weather has been very bad. Tobacco is later than usual for the season and is suffering for lack of moisture. Hardly a county in the whole district but is suffering from the drought. In some of the counties the crop will be almost a failure. Probably not more than half of last year's crop will be grown in any of the counties. The government's statistics show about fifty per cent. and unless rain falls soon this will be cut down considerably. The crop in Grant is late and it will take plenty of rain from now on to the end of the growing season to make fifty per cent. of a crop. Forty per cent of a crop even seems doubtful under present conditions, as the acreage was curtailed nearly half.

Good rains this week will make plenty of corn. The north end of the county has suffered most from the severe drouth. In the Crittenden and Mt. Zion districts practically no rain has fallen since the first week in May. The heavy rains that visited this part of the county more than two weeks ago did not extend to those neighborhoods. The corn crop is pretty fair even in those neighborhoods. The weather bureau's forecast for plenty of rain this week, will, if fulfilled, be worth thousands of dollars to Grant county farmers.—Grant Co. News.

New Summer Resort.

A new summer resort on the Ohio river opposite North Bend in this county it is said is being planned by a company to be composed of Cincinnati and Northern Kentucky business men. The plan is to erect a spillway 1200 feet long in the Ohio river, which will create a lake with an area of about 150 acres, build club houses and cottages, lay out golf links, tennis courts and a baseball diamond. For this purpose the farm that was owned by the late W. H. Harrison has been purchased of James L. Riley, and the enterprise will be pushed to a completion as soon as possible. Forty years ago Parlor Grove at Taylorsport this county and a few miles above where the new resort is to be located was the most popular resort anywhere about Cincinnati. Parlor Grove compared with the resorts of the present day was a very crude affair, and one now located as that was would be considered inaccessible. The construction of the new resort will require a large amount of capital and furnish work for a great many persons, and will be worth much to the northern part of the county.

EXONERATED

From All Charges Was Rev. B. M. Nelson

By Investigating Committee at Walton Friday.

An investigation of the rumors which had recently been set afloat concerning the character of Rev. B. M. Nelson, pastor of the Methodist church at Big Bone, Beaver Lick and Hughes' Chapel in Boone County, was held at Walton last Friday and the result was a complete vindication of the accused minister, who was exonerated from all the charges which had largely by inuendo been brought against him. The finding of the committee was that Rev. Nelson was perfectly innocent and had been guilty of nothing beyond imprudence, and, herein lies the kernel of the whole decision—the sure index to the innocence of the accused minister. For guilty men are never imprudent, as a rule. The fact of premeditation, of preparation for any line of conduct either of guilty or reprehensible nature precludes the idea of imprudence, for rather is imprudence associated with thoughtlessness, and thoughtlessness can never be associated with premeditation or preparation.

The investigation had been called for by Rev. Nelson, who did so, feeling that an impartial hearing would end in his complete vindication and set at rest the baseless rumors detrimental to his character, which had been circulated. The Committee on investigation was composed of three of the most uncompromising advocates of conduct and ethics above suspicion on the part of the ministry to be found in the Kentucky Conference, men who would not in the slightest lend themselves for one moment to any exonarating decision touching any case if the slightest taint or suspicion of guilt existed. The members of the committee were: Rev. Minor S. Clark, of Carrollton; Rev. T. F. Taliaferro, of Frankfort, and Rev. W. P. Maxwell, of Newport, Dr. J. O. A. Vaught, Presiding Elder of the district presided over the investigation and in his speech, closing the case, gave a summing up of all the evidence produced. A great deal of testimony was introduced, the investigation lasting over six hours, and it was noticable that the element of suspicion was largely to the foreground thruout the entire affair. The truth, the essence, of facts was not there, the frail and unsubstantial theory of rumor was there. But, fortunately, facts, rather than rumors predetermine a jury's verdict and no other result of the investigation than the one arrived at could have been expected.—Warsaw Independent.

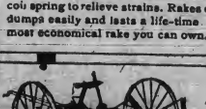
Opening of Fernbank Dam.

Ex-President Roosevelt is expecting to visit Cincinnati during the official opening ceremonies of the Fernbank Dam, September 4 to 9.

During his visit to the Ohio Valley Exposition, last fall, Colonel Roosevelt expressed a desire to see the new dam in working order, but was denied that pleasure because of the fact that work had not progressed sufficiently. Colonel Roosevelt's interest in the dam was twofold. It was he who, in 1911, in a speech delivered at Music Hall, first drew the attention of the people of Cincinnati to the great possibilities of establishing a nine-foot stage from Pittsburg to Cairo.

Another angle of Colonel Roosevelt's interest in this improvement is the fact that just 100 years ago—in 1811—the Orleans, the first steamboat built for navigation on the Ohio river passed Cincinnati on her way to Louisville. This boat was constructed at Pittsburg in 1810 by Nicholas M. Roosevelt, a great uncle of Col. Roosevelt, and it was Nicholas M. Roosevelt who commanded the boat on her first trip down the Ohio river.

South Norwalk, Conn, July 22.—A puzzling eye disease, which is widespread in Connecticut towns this summer, is said by physicians to be caused by the use of oil on the streets. The eyelids of those affected turn a yellowish color and the lashes fall out. Trolley motormen are the most frequent sufferers in this city.



Loss of Time Means Loss of Pay.

Kidney trouble and the ills it breeds means lost time and lost pay to many working men. M. Balent, 1414 Little Penna St., Ill., was so bad from kidney and bladder trouble that he could not work, but he says: "I took Foley Kidney Pills for only a short time and got entirely well and was soon able to go back to work, and am feeling well and healthier than before." Foley Kidney Pills are tonic in action, quick in results—a good friend to the working man or woman who suffers from kidney ills. For sale by Jones' Drug Store, Walton, Ky.

There are very few gardens around Warsaw worth the money expended upon them. Potatoes are a failure and nothing has done well. Counting the cost of plowing the gardens seed and work makes garden truck pretty expensive this year.—Leader.

The Big Three in the Hay Field
They cut prepare and gather a hay crop quicker, better and with less work than any other machines you can buy.

The WALTER A. WOOD
Admiral Mower
is the only one with genuine undertrait. The driving power is always in proportion to the heaviness of the work. The only one with unbroken lift—cutter bar never gets out of line with pitman. The only one with floating frame—no neck weight on the horses. No vibration.
The teeth on the WALTER A. WOOD
No. 10 Steel Rake have independent holders and each has a coil spring to relieve strains. Rakes clean, dumps easily and lasts a life-time. The most economical rake you can own.

SELECTING SEED CORN.

Corn For Next Year's Planting Should be Gathered In the Field This Fall.

Every farmer who expects to plant seed corn next year of his own raising should select it in the field this fall and give it the proper care during the winter. Everyone who is not growing a variety with good breeding behind it should get such a variety before another year goes by. Once a productive variety is found, seed should be selected from one's own field rather than buy seed from a distance, as the imported seed is likely to be not so well adapted to local conditions as the home-grown seed. In buying new seed, it is safest to get it from a grower of reputation near home as possible.

Most corn growers select seed from the crib in the spring; therefore it is not possible to know anything about the conditions under which it grew. The whole plant, and not the ear, is the unit of selection. The reasonable way is to go into the field when the corn is coming into maturity, and select good ears on well developed stalks of the same maturity. The stalk should be of medium height, stocky and vigorous, bearing the ear about four feet from the ground, with a good shank that gives the ear just enough drop to protect it from the rain. Select for two or three stalks in a hill, according as you expect to grow two or three in a hill. An ear that is good with one stalk in a hill might have been poor in competition with other stalks in the hill. See that there are no nubbin or barren stalks close to the selected plants, as they are generally from weak seed, and the selected ear will have been cross fertilized by them. Mark the ears selected by tying a tag to them, and allow them to mature thoroughly. Gather as soon as mature, husk and hang up in a dry, well ventilated place where there will be no injury by mice. A very good way to hang corn is to string it up so that the ears do not touch each other, very much as boys hang up their popcorn. Select at least twice as many ears as will be needed for seed, since many will have to be discarted as not coming up to the desired type. These points cannot be determined in the field.

In the spring before planting time, make a germination test of every ear and discard all weak ones. Select 50 of the finest and strongest ears and shell them together and plant them in a seed block in a place on the farm where they will be least exposed to your neighbor's corn. Then select the next year's seed from this block as directed for selecting in the field. Plant each year a seed block by using the best 50 ears. This procedure will improve the yield and quality of your corn.

For Good Roads.

One of the most discussed public questions of the present time is that of good roads, a great variety of interests, rural and urban being now in cooperation to secure the extension of improved highways. The interest aroused in this question the past few years has been well-nigh marvelous, in fact so distinctly so that many are thinking of this as a new movement and are discussing it accordingly.

But as a matter of fact, the Grange has been agitating the good roads question for more than thirty years. In subordinate Granges and in the Pomona meetings the subject has been agitated and resolutions adopted; state Granges have named committees and have influenced state legislation for increased highway appropriations; while the National Grange, through its legislative leaders at Washington and thru all the many channels of its activity as a nation-wide organization, has for two decades or more been pleading for federal aid in the construction of trunk lines of interstate highway. Indeed, the Grange has long been recognized as one of the pioneers in good roads agitation and the present condition of interest in the subject is largely the result of the awakening of the public in general to the persistent and repeated leadership of the Grange in this worthy direction.

As They Use to Appear.

Backward, turn backward, oh Time in your flight, and give us a maiden dressed proper and right. We are so weary of switches and rats, Billy Burke clusters and peachbasket hats. Wads of jute hair is a horrible pile, stacked on their heads to the height of a mile. Something is wrong with the maidens, we fear. Give us the maidens as they used to appear. Give us the girlies we once knew of yore, whose curls didn't come from a hair-dressing store. Maidens who dressed with a sensible view. And just as Dame Nature intended them to. Give us a girl with a figure her own, and fashioned divinely by Nature alone. Feminine style's getting fiercer each year—oh, give us the girls as they used to appear.—Ex.

We are getting reports of some astonishing yields of wheat from different parts of the State. One of over 50 bushels per acre from a southern county and another of 55 bushels from a north central county. Our report of big yields will be made and published as soon as the returns are all in.—Indiana Farmer.

Care of Farm Implements.

(By Thomas M. Cisel.)

Every farmer should have a shed for his tools and the tools should be cleaned and placed in the shed as soon as one is thru using them. Often this saves time and delay when the tool is wanted later on.

The paint brush should be used freely on the woodwork and other parts that become worn or scraped by use. This costs but little and adds years to the life of the tools. In fact it is best to give all machinery a new coat of paint every two years.

I know a farmer who follows this method of caring for his farm machinery. He is now using a binder he has owned for ten years and it is still doing good work and the repair bill for ten years has been only $6.

In the winter he goes over all his tools and repairs, repaints and gets them in shape for the next summer. The cost of his shed was $50 and his time while building it.

The tool house need not be a costly building—a good roof with cheap siding will do and any man should be able to put it up at odd times.

Some farmers use shade trees for roofing their tools. The shade is but little protection, as the more moisture the more rust and the shade will hold the moisture for days.

The cost of one new binder will pay for a good building large enough to store the full equipment of a fair sized farm.

In this shed may be placed the forge and workbench where small repairs to machinery and many a new and useful thing may be made during the winter months. Put in plenty of windows on the sides and ends, particularly on the workshop side.

PLATFORM IN WEST VIRGINIA

Principles in Legislation Which Are Enlisting the Efforts of the Grange There.

Some idea of what the Grange in West Virginia stands for may be gained from this "Platform of Principles" in legislation, towards which the efforts of the order in that state are being exerted:

1. Just and equitable tax laws, without discrimination against any class or interest.
2. Better roads under an effective road law that will not be needlessly burdensome upon the taxpayers.
3. Appropriations for College of Agriculture building at Morgantown.
4. The establishment of an agricultural high school at some suitable point in the state.
5. Adequate appropriations for the work of the state board of agriculture.
6. The establishment of an efficient state forestry department.
7. A law providing for the conservation of West Virginia's natural resources.
8. The submission of a constitutional prohibition amendment to a vote of the people.
9. An anti-cigarette law.
10. A law providing for the analysis and branding of feed stuffs.
11. Fuller provision for instruction in agriculture in the public schools.
12. The teaching of elementary agriculture in each of the six normal schools in the state.
13. Enactment of an efficient primary election law.
14. Enactment of a fair and adequate registration law.
15. Creation of a public service commission.
16. Ratification of the income tax amendment to the federal constitution.
17. A revision of the state game laws.

Rifle for Under Water Use.

When he is working in water infested by sharks and other sea monsters likely to do him harm, the diver has at present to rely for his safety on the use of the knife or, failing that, on a quick return to the surface. Now comes the invention of Captain Grobl, a German diving instructor, who has constructed a rifle which can be fired under water, and is designed for the better arming of the diver. The most remarkable thing about this is that it fires, not bullets, but water, which is an extraordinary power of penetration. Indeed, the inventor himself has pierced armor plate of medium thickness with the water jet from his weapon. The rifle has a stout barrel and is loaded with a cartridge cased in India rubber.

HOUSE FOR BEET LABORERS

Portable Steel Cottages Will Be Used for Housing Weeders in Large Michigan Fields.

Bay City, Mich.—Steel houses on wheels for the accommodation of laborers in the sugar beet fields is the latest development in Michigan's growing sugar industry. At the Davidson shipyards, where there is plenty of room and machinery, a number of men have been set to work making portable steel houses. Several will be shipped to Mt. Clemens and others will be used at other Michigan factories. They are one and two room affairs with oak frames and galvanized roofs and sides, with two entrances and a couple of windows each.

The culture of sugar beets requires, from about June 1 to October 1, the services of an unusually large number of common laborers for weeding. The demand for help is far beyond the supply that could possibly be obtained in the sugar beet districts and the sugar companies have for several years been importing for the summer's work train loads of foreign laborers from both western and eastern states. Housing these people has always been a problem as it would not pay to build cottages for them. Tents and large hastily constructed frame "boarding house" shacks have also been tried. Captain James Davidson believes he has solved the problem with his portable houses. The wheels are solid and will admit of comparatively rapid movement.

TO MARK BOUNDARY IN NORTH

Line Between Canada and Alaska From Porcupine River to Arctic Will Be Traced by Engineers.

Seattle.—Thomas Riggs, chief of the Alaska boundary survey, and 50 of his men, who will mark, in cooperation with a Canadian party, the Alaska-Canadian boundary between the Porcupine river and the Arctic ocean, 170 miles of very rough country, will descend the Yukon on the first steamer and make their way on horseback up the Porcupine river. The boundary follows the 141st meridian.

The line is established by surveying and triangulation. Then a strip of timber 20 feet wide, 10 feet on each side of the line, is cleared. This done, monuments of aluminum bronze are placed at distances of four miles. Each monument is set in a ton of concrete.

"We are taking in two years' supplies," said Mr. Riggs, "and expect to have the work completed in the fall of 1912. The last 30 miles is the worst of the entire boundary. A tundra swamp makes it impossible to take in supplies on horseback and everything must be carried by the men on their backs. We have to take along coal oil stoves because there is no timber along the northern end of the line."

PICKS UP A GIANT BIVALVE

Los Angeles Councilman Finds Largest Fossil Oyster Shell Ever Discovered in the West.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Councilman T. L. O'Brien, who has just made an inspection trip along the line of the Los Angeles aqueduct, brought back with him the largest fossil oyster shell which has been found in the west, so far as known. The shell is nine and a quarter inches long and three and three-fourths inches wide at the widest point. As a piece was broken off one side, it probably was four inches in width originally.

The fossil was found in Dry Rock Canyon, where a pile of material excavated in digging the aqueduct was being washed down by a stream. The shell is perfect in every respect and when exhibited to several persons interested in geology and zoology aroused keen interest. An effort will be made to learn its approximate age. There are many fossils in the region where the shell was found and evidences that the barren stretches through which the aqueduct is being built were once beneath the ocean's surface are numerous. Ordinary shell fossils are numerous, but no oyster shell has been found that approaches the size of the one picked up by Mr. O'Brien.

FIND OLDEST CITY IN ARIZONA

Relics Unearthed in Tableland Said to Be 10,000 Years Old—Covered With Prairie Dust.

Phoenix, Ariz.—Still another "oldest city in the world" has been discovered. When T. Hewitt Myring found vases in Peru in ruins which were said to be 1,000 years old, it was imagined that the remains of early civilization had been pushed as far into antiquity as they would ever go. But A. Lafave, a mining engineer, has found the relics of a town in an Arizona tableland near Phoenix which he insists are at least 10,000 years old.

The buildings are on a level stretch of country where neither silt nor wash was possible, and yet the ruins were covered with ten feet of prairie dust, which the discoverer claims requires ages to accumulate.

Apropos of the agitation for good roads, would it not be better to spend the money for roads and bridges over the river. The government contemplates building not less than 50 dams between Pittsburg and the mouth of the river. These dams will cost about two million dollars each, making a grand total of one hundred million. This amt supplemented by appropriations by States, counties and individuals of perhaps as much more would sertainly solve the question of good roads.

State Banks in Good Condition.

Frankfort, Aug. 8.—State banks of Kentucky are in a better condition and show much larger assets than ever before, according to the reports which were recently called for by Dr. Ben L. Bruner, Secretary of State. The increase in assets shown in several hundred thousand dollars, but J. F. Ramey, bank clerk in the Secretary of State's office, says that there has been a greater increase than the figures show since the practice of padding the accounts for the purpose of making a good report has almost been eliminated. Also many thousands of dollars of worthless assets have been charged off the books and the present report is regarded as the most satisfactory ever made. The 478 State banks reporting showed total assets of $104,949,489.87. Nineteen have assets of more than $1,000,000 each; thirteen have assets of more than $500,000 each; 208 have assets of more than $100,000, and the remaining 238 have assets of less than $100,000 each. On January 1907, the total assets were $101,894,185.78.

WOMAN IN HIS ROOM

Cashier Deserter Calls Police Rather Than Disturb Fair Sleeper.

Officer Franz Scheidmantia Makes Frantic Attempt to Arouse Invader, Finally Resorting to Desperate Measures.

New York.—Charles Freeman came home early, after "just one" at the corner, entered his room in the furnished room house at 692 Third avenue struck a match, lit the gas—and then ran all the way to the East 51st street station.

As he landed in front of Lieut. Ennis his teeth chattered so that he could hardly speak.

"There's someone in the bed," he ejaculated.

"There's some one in lots of beds at this time of night, in this neighborhood," was the philosophic rejoinder of the lieutenant.

"B-B-But it's m-my bed and 't-t-is-s-s a woman," said Freeman.

"A woman," echoed Ennis in surprise. "Well, why in blazes——"

"Oh, I want to get her out," wailed Freeman, blushing furiously.

"Well, if that's the case, you'll have to be accommodated," and he rang the bell summoning Policeman Franz Scheidmantle.

"Officer, there's a dame in this guy's bed, and he demands her immediate removal. Go to it."

Scheidmantle stared at Freeman, swallowed hard, braced himself for the impending ordeal, and had Freeman follow him.

On the way to the flat Freeman, in the comfortable company of a policeman, became quite loquacious.

"I could hardly believe my eyes," he told Scheidmantle. "Gee, if I had known there was a woman in the room, I'd have shot myself before I entered."

When they got to the house Freeman stayed downstairs while the valiant cop went up to rout the invader. Scheidmantle pounded on the door. Naught but the gentle breathing of the fair sleeper was heard. He said things, but the sleeper was unmoved. Then he entered and gently shook the woman and roused her.

"You'll have to get out of here," Scheidmantle informed her.

"Oh—h-h-h-l-l-s-s-s-u-n," yawned the woman, and Scheidmantle modestly and considerately retreated to the hall.

"She's gettin' up," he flashed to the blushing Freeman.

Minutes passed, but no one emerged from the room. Whereupon Scheidmantle once more pounded on the door. There was no answer. The sleeper had yawned, rolled over and gone to sleep again.

Now Scheidmantle resorted to desperate measures.

"Hey, you!" he bawled, as he opened the door again. "You'll have to beat it outen here."

"Very well," spoke the sleeper, and she started to do it right away.

"Landlady—landlady—" Freeman's and Scheidmantle's voices chorused in tones to arouse the whole neighborhood. And the landlady came, shooed the sleeper back to the room, and helped her dress. Then she told the policeman that her name was Lizzie Marion, and that she was a governess for a Mrs. Hopkins of Glan Cove, L. I. How she got into Freeman's room she hadn't the slightest idea, so Scheidmantle locked her up for safe keeping.

CLAIMS THAT MEN ARE VAIN

Chicago Haberdasher Declares Stern Sex Have Greater Fondness for Mirror Than Women.

Chicago.—"Women have nothing on men, when it is a question of vanity," said a well-known clothier and haberdasher with an establishment on the loop. "On each corner of our building we have mirrors, and by actual count ten men have stopped to adjust their ties, straighten their hat brim, or pull up their coat collar to every two women who paused as they went by.

"Of course nearly every woman that went by glanced at the glasses, but the men deliberately stopped and preened themselves like so many peacocks.

"Then we have the same thing in the store. A woman will look ever so many times at herself in the glass before she decides on a hat or a suit, but a man has to twist around, and almost stand on his head before he is satisfied with his looks."

ENGINEER SAVES WILD DEER

Animal Trapped in Cattle Guard Escapes Death Through Kindly Act of Locomotive Driver.

Seattle, Wash.—Moses Stratton, engine driver of the North Coast Limited, of the Northern Pacific, brought his locomotive to a standstill on the west slope of the Cascade mountains that he might rescue a trapped deer. The deer had tried to cross the tracks of the railroad company and its hind hoofs became entangled in the cattle guards. Helpless to free itself, it was jerking its life away trying to escape the approaching train, when Stratton went to its assistance. The railroad man tenderly released the head of the creature and watched it limp away into the cedar copse. Then he mounted his engine and the train moved away.

INJURED PIGEON IS TREATED

Broken Leg of Little Bird Is Placed in Plaster Cast—Tapped at Window for Admission.

Boston.—If the pigeon patient whose left leg has been in a plaster cast at the Relief hospital for 11 days were able to talk probably the first thing it would do after its "discharge" from the hospital would be to fly to Pemberton Square, the general meeting place of the pigeons, and tell the others what a wonderful thing surgery is.

The pigeon at the Relief hospital had the plaster cast taken from its leg by Dr. Shedd this morning. There were many surgeons present and they manifested no little interest in the work of Dr. Shedd, who has taken considerable interest in the case of the helpless pigon, which tapped its bill repeatedly against the window of the hospital until an attendant came to its assistance.

The pigeon was "admitted," and Dr. Shedd, after setting the injured leg, placed it in a cast, also placing the right leg in a cast.

The bird has been given much attention and has been an ideal patient. The bird was taken to a private room and Dr. Shedd and Mr. Hartigan, the attendant, placed it on an "operating table" and removed the cast. When the cast was removed it was evident that the pigeon had forgotten all about flying. The bird flapped its wings once, but made no attempt to fly out of Dr. Shedd's hand. The injured leg has mended well, and in another week the patient will be "discharged."

The injured pigeon has become a mascot at the Relief hospital. The attendants would like to keep the bird there. Several persons have promised to give the bird a home should the attaches of the hospital wish to give it up.

The managers of the poultry show made an effort to get the bird for exhibition purposes, but Dr. Shedd felt that the patient was not strong enough for show purposes.

In the accident the pigeon lost its tail, some plumage and broke a leg. It was a wise old bird, the doctor said, when it dragged itself to the window of the hospital. Dr. Shedd said that the pigeon seemed to take an interest in his operation and blinked its eyes approvingly when the cast was removed.

QUICK CURE FOR DRUNKARD

Magic Lantern Picture Frightens Czech Tippler Into Taking Pledge on Short Order—Keeps Word.

Berlin.—An interesting story telling of a novel cure for drunkenness comes from a village on the border. A newly married Czech workman gave way to drink, and created unseemly disturbances in the house in which he lived. All efforts to induce him to give up the drink was in vain.

A little boy in the house in which he lived had a magic lantern given to him on his birthday, and it occurred to one of the tenants that the present might be utilized in curing the drunkard, who was known to be superstitious.

Among the pictures shown by the lantern was one representing a drunkard in the hands of the devil.

The man returned home drunk as usual one night, and on reaching his door was thrown into a state of consternation on seeing this awful picture. He immediately sank on his knees and began to pray. He promised there and then that he would give up all connection "with the other devil." He has kept his word.

UNRULY PARROT IS ARRESTED

Hortensa Kelly Is Ordered Killed After Disturbing the Peace at Brockton, Mass.

Brockton, Mass.—Hortense Kelly, a parrot belonging to Mrs. Mary Kelly of Raynham, created such a disturbance in City Square the other day that Patrolman Samuel Turner was compelled to arrest the bird and also Edward Stockman, who was taking it to Mrs. Kelly, but had lost his way. The bird was later brought into court and ordered to be killed.

The bird began the trouble when Stockman asked a newsboy where Mrs. Kelly lived.

"Has anybody here seen Kelly?" the parrot started, whereupon a group of boys began to ask the bird questions.

"What in —— do you think I am? I want Kelly," was the reply.

Turner appeared about this time, broke into the mob which had gathered and took the cage, bird and Stockman to the police station.

TRAVELS OF SMALL SWALLOW

Little Bird Carried Notes From Germany to West Indies and Back—Greetings Are Sent.

Berlin.—A house swallow was netted last autumn by a householder at Waltenheim, near Mulhausen. The captor wrote a note on very thin paper and fastened it under a feather of the bird's wing before letting the captive go free. The note ran: "I nested at A. R.'s house at Waltenheim, and I am instructed to take him information as to with whom I stay in the winter."

The swallow returned to his old nesting place and was noticed to have a different color attached to its wing feather. When netted again a little note was found which read: "I wintered at a shoemaker's house, that of Joseph Brady, at Martinique, who sends greetings to my protector at Waltenheim."

SHARK CAPTURED IN CHASE

Nine-Foot Hammerhead Shot With Revolver and Then Pursued Half Mile by Man in Motor Boat.

Palm Beach, Fla.—A novel method of killing sharks was introduced here by Alonzo Morgan Zabriskie, holder of many local fishing records, who, substituting a revolver for the conventional rod and line, chased a nine-foot shark half a mile and shot it to death.

Mr. Zabriskie, in a power boat, was fishing for kingfish in the gulf stream when the opportunity of adding a new element of danger to the life of a shark presented itself. He happened to look over the side of the boat, and saw, only a few feet away, a shark that was nine feet long and tough-looking for its size. Drawing his revolver, Mr. Zabriskie blazed away.

He hit the shark, which darted away. Mr. Zabriskie started his engines and went after it. The chase lasted for half a mile. Before that distance was covered the shark had come close enough to the surface several times to permit the skilful placing of more shots. In all Mr. Zabriskie shot six times.

When he finally came up with the shark the man eater was dying. It was dragged ashore and killed. When it was measured on the pier it was found that each of the six shots had taken effect. One of them had pierced the brain, while another had lodged in the backbone.

The shark, a hammerhead, showed unusual resisting power. After it had been dragged ashore and viewed by expert shark fishers they all said that had the old-fashioned methods been used it was likely the shark would have escaped, as it was an unusually powerful specimen.

Mr. Zabriskie is hailed as the pioneer in a new campaign against the sharks, and other fishermen here will carry revolvers when they go out, in the hope that they may get a chance to emulate Mr. Zabriskie's example.

SAVE BIRDS FROM ODD DEATH

Protection From Electric Lighthouses Is Given by Government of Holland—Provida Perches.

The Hague, Holland.—The Dutch government, recognizing the utility of birds, has long sought means to defend them from the danger of the powerful lighthouses especially of the electrically operated "Brandaris" light on the island of Terschelling. Thousands of the birds annually met their death there and a government commission was appointed to inquire into ways and means of stopping the slaughter. This commission, headed by the noted ornithologist, J. Thyssen, passed several nights in observation at the Brandaris light during the migrating season.

As soon as the light shone forth from the tower flights of birds would approach. Then they would continue to circle about like moths around a candle. All night they flew round and round, while a few flew directly at the flame and were dashed to death against the glass or masonry.

From what he saw Mr. Thyssen concluded that he could easily devise a plan to help the songsters. He had some large wooden frames constructed providing perches for 10,000 birds at a time. Some of the frames were painted white and the others black—to see whether the birds would show any preference for one or the other. They were then adjusted around that part of the tower nearest the light.

Both the government and the local authorities of Tarschelling then issued stern regulations against the killing or capturing of birds. Their efforts have been crowned with complete success, as appears from the government reports issued by the minister of marine.

FINDS HYDROPHOBIA MICROBE

Germ Which Medical Men Have Sought for Decades Is Discovered by Pittsburg Doctor.

Pittsburg, Pa.—The microbe that causes hydrophobia, which medical men the world over have been seeking for decades, has been discovered and photographed by Dr. Frederic Proescher, pathologist of the Allegheny General hospital. Dr. Proescher made the discovery in a microscopic examination of tissues from the nervous system of dogs, cats and horses naturally infected with hydrophobia, also of rabbits innoculated with virus. The remarkable resistance of virus to the outer invasion led the doctor to attempt to isolate the unknown microbe by dissolving the brain of animals infected with virus.

Dr. Proescher is the physician who has been experimenting with monkeys in an attempt to locate the microbe which causes infantile paralysis.

QUEER WAY TO GET A WIFE

Chicago Man Wanted Peddler's License, but Runs Into Matrimony—It Proved a Failure.

Chicago.—Philip Fishmin told Judge Cooper how he was married without knowing it. He wanted the marriage dissolved.

He said he inquired of a clerk in the county clerk's office for a peddler's license. With him was a young friend. A slip of paper was handed him, he said, and they were taken to Justice Stacey's office.

He told the court he thought he was swearing to something on the permit when he and the girl said the customary "I do." Later he found he had a wife. They tried to make the most of it, he said, but it wasn't a success.

She'll Tell You---Quick!

Which Kind for You?

Just ask your wife which of these two dish pans of cream separator parts she would rather wash. She will tell you quick—the one with the single piece in it. This single, tiny, instantly removable piece is all there is inside.

Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator Bowls

All other separators have heavy, hard to wash, complicated "bucket bowls." The disks in the full dish pan are all from one common "bucket bowl" and are just a sample of the trouble and work of washing "bucket bowls" as compared to washing the Dairy Tubular. Think of washing these disks twice a day. Imagine the chance rust and hard knocks have at such a complicated machine.

Milk skimmed with a Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator is skimmed right—it is the cleanest skimming, quickest skimming, lightest running, longest lived separator built. Bring your wife to see it—inside and outside—and learn how it may double your butter money. The helpful dairy book, "Business Dairying," is yours for the asking.

The Business Principle

of successful lives is the habit of saving, depositing what can be spared in a good bank to meet the emergencies of the proverbial rainy day. A little at a time makes a snug sum in a short time The Equitable Bank and Trust Co., Walton, Ky., will accept any sum on deposit and pays four per cent. interest on what remains a year, or three per cent for what remains six months. Remittances by mail given prompt response and careful attention. This Bank has assets of over One Hundred Thousand Dollars. We qualify as administrator, executor, trustee, guardian, etc., of estates, which is much more satisfactory than a private individual in such capacity. Mail communications given careful attention. Nearly every county in the Blue Grass section of the State has suffered seriously from the effects of the drought. Up to the first of last week no rain of consequence has fallen in that section for five weeks. Fleming county had to call upon other counties for help and ten thousand barrels of water were shipped there for stock purposes. Tobacco and other crops were seriously damaged.

Tortured for Fifteen Years.

by a cure-defying stomach trouble that baffled doctors, and resisted all remedies he tried, John W. Modders, of Bloddersville, Michigan, seemed doomed. He had to sell his farm and give up work. His neighbors said, "he can't live much longer." "Whatever I ate distressed me," he wrote, "till I tried Electric Bitters, which worked such wonders for me that I can now eat things I could not take for years. Its surely a grand remedy for stomach trouble." Just as good for the liver and kidneys. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50c at all dealers.

Falls Victim to Thieves.

S. W. Bends, of Coal City, Ala., has a justifiable grievance. Two thieves stole his health for twelve years. They were a liver and kidney trouble. Then Dr. King's New Life Pills throttled them. He's well now. Unrivaled for Constipation, Malaria, Headache, Dyspepsia. 25c at all dealers.

In Nicholas county cattlemen have had the hardest time in years, and for many weeks have been hauling stock water. Many of the biggest raisers have preferred to sell their cattle sooner than expected rather than take a chance of losing them because of the drouth. This has meant that they have received small prices. The same conditions are true of other parts of Kentucky, especially in the Blue Grass and the western portions of the State.—Louisville Times, Tuesday.

Every person in the United States sixty years of age or older, who has been a citizen sixteen years, who has an income of less than $6 a week who has not been convicted of felony, would be put on the pension roll of the United States if Congress passed the bill introduced by Representative Berger of Wisconsin, who constitutes the Socialist party in the House. The bill would give a pension of from $1 to $4 a week. Mr. Berger offered a joint resolution providing for the appointment of a commission to investigate the old age pension.

FARM NOTES.

Clean up the poultry yard.

Cleanliness is essential in dairying.

The gooseberry is closely related to the currants.

Cleanliness is the keynote of successful dairying.

Canker of tails is a disease that is sometimes seen in the pig.

Seed potatoes should be carefully examined for traces of dry rot.

Despite constant work with the cultivator weeds will grow in the potato field.

Keep a supply of wheat bran before all your chickens of all ages at all times.

The quality of the plant-ripened tomato is much better than of house-ripened fruits.

Soil that blows badly may be improved by scattering straw or manure over the surface.

Corn properly planted can be given its first working before the rows can be distinctly seen.

The production of milk reasonably free from bacteria is simply a question of cleanliness.

There is no better general feed than good green grass for growing and producing farm animals.

Hens for incubation should be of a quiet disposition and on friendly terms with their keeper.

It has been proven by many tests that silage increases the production of milk and lowers the cost.

Teach the young colts to eat a mixture of crushed oats, wheat bran and oil meal as soon as possible.

The larger amount of feed an animal will consume all things considered, the more profitable will the animal be.

Sow cow-peas before you plow your potatoes for the last time. They will be up before the weeds get a start.

Unless of exceptional value, after the third year, coop the hen, fatten and eat her. She will be fine for that purpose.

The dry method of feeding chickens consists in supplying nothing but grain from the commencement of their lives.

In hunting a sire get one of the same strain as the mare unless she is a scrub. There is little to be gained in crossing.

The foremost method of cultivating alfalfa is with the disk harrow, one of the most excellent farm implements ever invented.

Chaffy seed corn, if it has not been frosted, and has been properly stored, generally germinates practically as well as mature seed corn.

Five dollars invested in package material will pay many times the investment in the better prices the fruit will bring when properly packed.

Parsley seed germinates slowly, have ground very fine. Cover seed with fine rich soil mixed with manure scrapings. Keep soil moist.

Do not try to force nature. In fitting young fries for the market give the chicks proper food, freedom from lice and nature will do the rest.

The future of the mutton crop depends upon the attention given the young lambs, and the degree to which they are kept growing from the start.

The first week young ducks should be fed corn bread made of equal parts of wheat, bran and cornmeal, a little sour milk and soda to raise, and a little salt.

Horses always bring a higher price in the spring than in the fall, as many men sell their horses in the fall, preferring not to keep them through the winter months.

Sow a patch of cow peas near the poultry yard. Do not harvest the peas when ripe but turn the hens into them when the green grass disappears and they will thrive upon them.

Agricultural experiments show that if it is necessary to fertilize the soil to secure a crop of twenty bushels of wheat per acre, it is even more necessary to fertilize for a good crop of fruit.

The majority of turkey raisers have to raise their birds under unnatural conditions and have to adopt measures of protection and food that will conform as nearly as possible to their condition.

Big farms are all right for those who are equipped to handle them properly, but they are not desirable for people who have not capital enough to hire plenty of help and organize in a businesslike way to secure good results.

On no account allow free water to the ducks you intend to place upon the market. Many people regard water as essential to the growth of the young duck; this is not so! Too much water will result in the waste of a large proportion of the food given.

Motor Vehicles in Germany.

All persons desiring to drive a motor vehicle in Germany must have a special license from the police, which is obtained only after a rigid examination. When a person buys an automobile in Germany and desires to run the machine himself, but has not the necessary experience, instruction is generally given free of charge by the factory which manufactures the automobile or by its agent. As a rule, the better way is to obtain the necessary instruction in the factory itself. A start is made in the department where the motors are tested before being sent to the next department to be mounted on their chassis. A large number of motors are found there, some running at full speed, while others are taken apart. This is probably the most important department for anyone desiring to pass the chauffeur's examination. No mechanic is assigned to a person for coaching purposes, and information must be obtained by asking questions. The mechanics are very good-natured about giving information, considering the fact that they must be greatly annoyed at times by too inquisitive persons.

POULTRY NOTES.

Avoid exciting the geese; let them alone.

Leg weakness in ducks is usually caused by dampness.

There are several insect enemies of poultry—lice, mites and fleas.

Lice may be found on the bodies of fowls at all seasons of the year.

Geese grow better with age and are just about in their prime at twenty months.

Roup may be apparently cured, but it cannot be entirely eradicated from the system.

At all seasons of the year it is a good plan to burn out all nests every four or five weeks.

Liver troubles are caused by a lack of sharp grit or by feeding too rich or stimulating food.

As soon as a setting hen comes off the nest should be burned out and fresh nest material supplied.

Cayenne pepper is a most powerful stimulant. That it will induce egg production there can be no doubt.

It is a bad move to change the quarters of pullets or hens while laying. It is very apt to check egg production.

While it is desirable to set eggs while they are as fresh as possible, it is not always possible to do so, particularly when an incubator is being used.

If the duck is compelled to sleep in a damp house she is likely to be attacked with rheumatism or cramps, for which there is no sure remedy. Overfeeding will also do it.

The turkey hen is an ideal setter, but a bad mother unless confined, as she drags her young after her and does not wait for those who fall out by the way so long as one is left.

A thorough drenching of the poultry house with kerosene emulsion to which a little crude carbolic acid had been added will prove very effectual against the red mites if done every week.

When setting hens it is never advisable to apply any grease to their bodies, but they may be dusted with some good insect powder, while the nests may be dusted with powdered lime or sulphur.

HORTICULTURE NOTES.

In all pruning, cut close and smooth.

Shallow soils are of little value for fruit trees.

Pruning is very necessary to successful orcharding.

Apple trees use a great amount of potash and nitrogen.

Many farmers do not understand the care of fruit trees.

Care should be taken in spraying trees during muggy, damp weather.

In setting out an orchard tract be careful about getting the trees in perfect rows.

Currant bushes are easily propagated from cutting set during the fall or spring.

There are many old orchards which have apparently passed their usefulness because of neglect.

In growing apples it is attention to detail that makes all the difference between success and failure.

Always pile apple boxes on their flat side and not on their curved crowned tops and bottoms.

The best time to plant both spruce and maple trees is early in the spring as soon as the ground is dry enough to dig.

Going to plant a windbreak this spring on the north and west sides of that orchard? If so, better get at it. Norway spruce is a good variety for this purpose.

Pick off, and burn all "mummied" fruits on peach, plum or other trees, thus destroying the spores of brown rot and other fungous diseases which winter over on these dried-up specimens.

Too many trees of one variety alongside one another is not the best way to plant them. Mix them up, then they will pollenize one another better and give you choicer fruit and more of it.

To be successful in pruning one must constantly keep in mind the species and variety of tree he is pruning, the object for which he prunes and the evils that may result from improper pruning. Cherry trees require little pruning except to shape the top and cut out dead limbs.

Some of the farmers in Belleview bottoms claim to have corn that will make 100 bushels to the acre, while many others claim their corn will make 75 bushels to the acre.

TOBACCO CROP

Drouth in Kentucky Cuts Down Prospects for Good Tobacco—Other Products Suffer.

Even Blue Grass of Famous Pastures Hard Hit by Dry Spell.

Louisville, Aug. 5.—During the past several decades Kentucky has stood out alone as the producer of the Burley tobacco, but this year, unless Ohio, Tennessee, Indiana, and Missouri came to the rescue with fair crops, the Burley weed will soar higher prices than have yet been known.

A drought beginning in early May and continuing almost constantly up until the present date, has cut the crop fully 40 per cent. and the grade of tobacco which will be offered on the Kentucky and Cincinnati breaks this winter will be far below the grade of — years.

Other crops have suffered almost as much. Corn and hemp were cut down considerably. This is true especially in Central Kentucky, where bumper crops have been raised in the past, but this year it seems now that the farmers through that section will have to rely on other things than their corn and tobacco to bring them out of the hole at the end of the year.

While corn and tobacco have been considerably damaged the burning up of the blue grass fields was a hard blow to owners of farms in Central Kentucky. These broad acres, over which have grazed some of the greatest of thoroughbreds and trotters and sleek, fat cattle, are as dry as tinder, and every morning and again at night the turnpikes are lined with droves of cattle and horses which are being driven miles to creeks, where they can drink their fill. Some of the best streams in that part of the state have failed, and water carts are being called into use to supply the household with drinking and cooking water.

The gardens failed nearly three weeks ago and the watermelon patches which gave the negroes a touch of life in the far South have dried up, the few melons which ripened being about one-fourth their natural size. With the gardens out of the way and the potato crop a small one, compared to the past, the farmers are worrying over the outlook for the winter. Usually there are at least 100 cans of fruit and vegetables put up by the housewife for the winter, but this year not one-fourth of that amount was to be had.

Rains have fallen intermittently throughout the summer, but not enough to do any good, and the broiling hot sun sucked up the moisture within a few hours after a rain. Some of the farmers who took the opportunity of working the ground immediately after a rain have fair crops, but the majority of planters were unable to get over their fields before the ground was dry as before the rain.

Reports from practically every county in the state show that the drought has done thousands of dollars' damage. It is believed by crop experts that the total damage will amount to $2,000,000.

While Central Kentucky has been injured to the extent of nearly $1,000,000, the western portion of the state, known as the "black patch," is also in a similar condition. No Burley tobacco is grown there, but the dark variety of the weed is grown instead. It is hardly as valuable as the Burley, but reports from that section show that the drought has been none the less severe there.

Back from the railroads where a visitor has to ride mule-back for miles, in the eastern part of Kentucky, near the Virginia and Tennessee borders, the drought has cut the corn in half. The moonshiners will have to find a substitute for corn next winter if they make their usual output of whisky during the late winter months. The mountains where the soil is rather thin soon parched up before the scorching rays of the sun.

The Good Old Days.

In 1838 a company of progressive young men wanted to discuss the subjects of railroads and telegraph, and asked permission of the School Board of Lancaster, Ohio, to use the public schoool house. Their request was refused, the School Board using this language:

"You are welcome to use the schoolhouse to debate all proper questions, but such things as railroads and telegraphs are impossibilities and rank infidelity. There is nothing in the Word of God about them. If God has designed that His intelligent creatures should travel at the frightful speed of 15 miles an hour by steam, He would have clearly foretold it thru his holy prophets. It is a device of Satan to lead immortal souls to hell."—Dunklin County Mo. Democrat.

Hay Fever, Asthma and Summer Colds Must be relieved quickly and Foleys' Honey and Tar Compound will do it. F. M. Stewart, 1084 Wolfram Street, Chicago writes: "I have been greatly troubled during the hot summer months with Hay Fever and find that by using Foley's Honey and Tar Compound I get relief." Many others who suffer similarly we will be glad to benefit by Mr. Stewart's experience. For sale by Jones' Drug Store, Walton, Ky.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE

Will Be Held at Burlington Beginning Monday, August 21st.

Our institute will be held the week August 21-25. Teachers who are excused from attending the institute will send their fee one dollar and seventy-five cents to the County Superintendent not later than August 25. All teachers are requested to be present on Thursday afternoon. Boone county is spending money in education and we want the taxpayers to know what we are doing. The public is invited to all sessions of the Institute. On Thursday afternoon the plans for the future will be touched upon and we are anxious to have all friends, who can do so, to be with us.

Thirty-eight have taken the teachers examination this year; five have received first class certificates; six second class certificates, and two third class certificates. This means that the standard of scholarship is being raised.

The next examination for white teachers will be held August 18-19. There are a number of vacancies in the county and we hope that some of our people who are qualified to teach will write the next examination. Teachers are requested to attend to signing contracts at once and also to file with the county superintendent a statement of number of years taught and Normal Sessions finished. There are about twelve vacancies in the county.

There is a movement on foot at Lexington, to interest growers of Burley tobacco in the organization of companies for the manufacture of their product. This movement has grown out of the recent decision of the Supreme Court ordering the dissolution of the American Tobacco Company, and through which tobacco men generally see an encouraging outlook for the establishment of independent factories in the tobacco producing states.

Home Coming services at Bullittsburg Baptist church, last Sunday, was attended by a large congregation, in which were several persons from a distance. Rev. Allie Graves, of Owensboro, preached an able discourse in the morning. The afternoon services were conducted by Rev. O. M. Ruey, of Somerset, and were given the strictest attention by the large congregation. A splendid dinner was served at the noon hour.

Murray T. Williams, for fifteen years owner and editor of the Rising Sun Local, has, on account of bad health, sold that paper to Mrs. Grace Pate Will and her husband, Joseph A. Will, of Aurora. The Recorder hates to see Mr. Williams retire from the local newspaper field.

CROPS IN BOONE.

Fine Prospects for Corn in the North End of the County, But Will Be Below the Average in the Southern Portion.

The fine rains last week insure an excellent corn crop in at least five of the voting precincts in the county—Burlington, Constance, Bullittsville, Petersburg and Belleview, while they were helpful to the crops in the remaining seven precincts, each of which had been wanting rains for several weeks, in some neighborhoods it having been even months since the ground had had a thorough wetting, consequently in these localities the crop outlook is not at all favorable, while the pastures were dried up. The tobacco crop which is not fifty per cent of a crop in arrear, if that, is a sorry looking prospect. There are very few fields of the weed in the county of which it can be said they promise anything like a reasonable yield, and in these the quality of the product is very uncertain, and likely to be interior. Providence came very nearly cutting out the tobacco crop this year. People who come from the south end of the county where the drouth has prevailed are surprised to see vegetation in this section looking so thrifty.

Those naughty Lawrenceburg base ball players came over last Saturday and scalped the Burlington team a second time. The Lawrenceburg aggregation is a classy set of ball players, but there was never a team that was gladder to see the close of the ninth inning than they, as the locals pulled off a great rally in that session.

The real feature of the game was Slayback's great play in which he ran down tagged out a man near third and with another leap and bound put the ball on a Lawrenceburger, who was trying to make third on the out. It was great work.

Aylor pitched a good game for the visitors and had excellent support. Brady and Slayback were nearly the whole works for the home team.

Here is the score by innings:

Lawrenceburg...0 0 1 8 0 0 0 0 0—4

Hits—Burlington 7, Lawrenceburg 8. Two base hits—Ed Sandford, Clopp, Albright. Struck out—By Brady 11, by Aylor 4.

The Burlington and Belleview game, Monday, was a flook. The Belleview players concluded the umpires were not giving them a square deal and left the park.

The Burlington and Florence ball teams will cross bats at the Burlington park next Saturday afternoon. Florence has been winning all her games this season.

Local Happenings.

Potatoes will be potatoes next winter.

Plenty of watermelons in town on the first Monday in August, this year.

Dr. Duncan bought a good horse from James Goodridge, a few days since, for $200.

Born, to William Phillips and wife, of Lower Gunpowder, one day last week, a daughter.

Notwithstanding the rain last Saturday afternoon, quite a good sized crowd attended the picnic at Harvest Home grounds.

The August term of the Boone circuit court will begin next Monday. The docket is small and the court will not last many days.

W. E. Vest, of Walton, and county surveyor, was down a day or two last week surveying 50 acres of land Robert Carver sold to W. J. Rice, being the two fields that join D. M. Snyder on the east.

Lawrenceburg fair will draw heavily on the north end of this county tomorrow and next day. Boone county people like to spend a day or two at this time of year with their Hoosier neighbors.

Do not allow your kidney and bladder trouble to develop beyond the reach of medicine. Take Foley Kidney Pills. They give quick results and stop irregularities with surprising promptness. For sale by Jones' Drug Store, Walton, Ky.

Found—Gasoline boat. Same is about 18 feet long and has a Watkins engine. It was evidently stolen by the parties who stole mine as they were lashed together when found. Owner can have same by calling at McVille, Boone county and identifying his property. Chas. Dolph.

More people, men and women, are suffering from kidney and bladder trouble than ever before, and each more of them turn for quick relief and permanent benefits to Foley's Kidney Remedy, which has proven itself to be one of the most effective remedies for kidney and bladder ailments, that medical science has devised. For sale by Jones's DrugStore, Walton, Ky.

The Democrats of Boone county are called to meet in mass convention at the court house in Burlington next Saturday afternoon to select delegates to attend a State convention in Louisville on the 15th day of this month to adopt a platform for the ticket nominated by the recent primary election. How many Democrats will be on hand to participate in the convention?

Mrs. Thomas Adams, of Taylorsport neighborhood, had a brood of chickens to hatch on last St. Valentine's day. Among them was one that developed more rapidly than its mates, and being of the feminine gender began laying eggs at an early date in a secreted spot. In due time she began setting and on the 6th day of this month she brought home a brood of six young chickens out of the twelve eggs she had sat upon. There is some class about that hen.

A line drawn across the county from Belleview to Florence would very nearly separate the wet and the dry territory at the present time. Many of the farmers south of the line say the ground in their fields has not been too wet to plow since the corn was planted, while north of that line the farmers have had all the rain desired and their corn is of splendid growth and the pastures green and nice. South of that line crops are really not so deplorable as conditions would indicate but they are bad enough.

A proposition is pending to organize a mutual livestock insurance company for insuring livestock in the counties of Boone, Campbell and Kenton, the company to be operated on the plan of the mutual fire insurance companies in Boone and Kenton counties. Of course there would have to be some slight differences but the principle would be the same. An insurance company of that character would have a very large volume of business and might prove in many instances a very great saving to many of the owners of valuable livestock.

Life Saved at Death's Door.

"I never felt so near my grave," writes W. R. Patterson, of Wellington, Texas, as when a frightful cough and lung trouble pulled me down to 100 pounds, in spite of doctor's treatment for two years. My father, mother and two sisters died of consumption, and that I am alive today is due solely to Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me. Now I weigh 187 pounds and have been well and strong for years." Quick, safe, sure, its the best remedy on earth for coughs, colds, lagrippe, asthma, croup and all throat and lung troubles. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all dealers.

Miss Dasie Beile Tanner, 33, died at her home in Covington on the 26th ult. She was the daughter of Ben F. and Florence Tanner. She was a member of Covington, Scott Street, Methodist church.

John O. Roberts, of Florence, came over last Sunday to spend a few days with his son, Harry and wife, and to attend the protracted meeting at the Baptist church. Mr. Roberts claims to have the best garden in his town, and there are some fine trucksters in Florence.

John Clore, wife and son, of Crawfordsville, Ind., started out one day last week to take a little run in their auto, and on Friday afternoon they pulled up at the Boone House in Burlington, having covered two hundred miles. Mr. Clore is a son of the late Cave Clore, of this neighborhood, and went to Indiana many years ago, where he made a fortune selling goods. Mr. Clore says the crops in his neighborhood have been injured greatly by the drought this summer.

The protracted meeting that has been in progress at the Baptist church for several days is being well attended, and Rev. Wells is preaching interesting sermons. Miss Virginia Clore was the only addition up to last night.

Sheriff B. B Hume's pacer, Harry K. Thaw was to start in the county pace at Lawrenceburg fair, yesterday.

Chas. Clore and Asa Cason, were in the city, Monday, with some hogs.

STATE NEWS

Gathered From Our Exchanges From all Parts of The State.

Irvine is in need of many things but we doubt if there is anything that is needed more than a good cemetery.—Irvine Herald.

Funny how some men who are afraid to invest in a local factory will fall over themselves to buy a peach orchard in Alaska.—Murray Gazette.

A blind and deaf man was here Saturday selling the famous old blue-backed spelling books. The public seemed to think that they needed education, as they bought the books freely. Sixty were sold at 20 cents each.—Danville Advocate.

At Lexington last week an organization was effected and articles of incorporation filed to encourage the raising of a new breed of hogs called the Big Black Pig. It has been raised in England for more than a hundred years, but so far there are only seven breeders in the United States and only about three hundred of the hogs. It is claimed that it is the best bacon hog raised and is highly valued by packers.

We had a rebuff up at Natural Bridge Thursday. A very old lady was near the pavilion, but was receiving no attention. As is our custom in such cases we extended our hand with a view to introduction. She very cooly folded her arms and with a withering look said: "I do not know you sir. I am from Virginia." We wilted.—Winchester News.

There is on exhibition in the window of Sol Dinnelli's poolroom a chicken three and one-half months old, which has no feathers except a slight border around its wings. With the exception of its nakedness, the chicken is perfectly normal and healthy, being able to run as far and eat as much as any other of the tribe. Its owner Mr. Chastine Price, is very much worried as to what to do with the chicken next winter.—Winchester News.

"Talking about the base ball games," said Beavin Tucker, Monday," "one of my boy friends laughed so hard at his mother when she was saying something about the game the other day that it made his head hurt and I laughed all the way home." Most mothers are for base ball every day except Sunday, but for some reason this mother is completely turned against it. Her son is devoted to her, but he and Beavin had a big laugh when she said: "My boy, if I could, I would burn up all the balls and bats and ballots."—Breckinridge News.

The Herald is not a "rat" office, and we were not aware that there was one around us until Tuesday morning when a most unusual occurrence took place. A very large rodent appeared in one of our upstairs windows and in walking along the sill it slipped on some tin and fell to the awning, and then rolled to the pavement, almost falling on W. H. Reed's terrier. The dog went at him all right, but the rat was so big and fierce that he put the fice to rout, and then ran into the street. Here Lee Coleman's big pointer tackled it, but the rat split the dog's nose wide open and then hooked on to the dog's jaw. The pointer finally shook it loose and killed it. Everybody who saw the rat said it was the largest they ever beheld, and those who saw it in the window thought it was a squirrel.—Harrodsburg Herald.

Forty-eight years ago the editor of the Mercury became a prisoner of war and was put aboard a freight train and shipped to Columbus, O., as a guest of the United States Government. It was our fortune to follow the dread Confederate cavalry leader, Gen. John H. Morgan, through one of the most daring raids ever made in any war. We were more than three days making the trip from Knoxville, Tenn., to Lisbon, O., a distance that under more favorable circumstances could be made in 24 hours and a half. We were 24 in the saddle. There was scarcely an hour that we did not hear the whir of the bullet or the rattle of the cannon ball. We saw many fall from the saddle dead or wounded, while others, exhausted, halted on the roadside to await the coming of the enemy, which would send them to prison. At that time we had just passed our 18th birthday anniversary, having been in active service a little more than one year, and was considered a veteran. Out of a company of 60 odd we were one of two that followed Morgan to the end. We were no braver or more faithful than the others of our company comrades, but fortune seemed to favor us in avoiding capture.—Carlisle Mercury.

ARE TIMES HARD?

Two Shows In One Week—Almost $500 Spent for Pleasure.

One hears a great deal these days of the high price of all food products and the country far and near is paying the price of a shortage of crops, all brought about by an unseasonable year and general lack of rainfall. The pessimist predicts a hard winter and it seems to be the general opinion that the price of commodities will be enormous the coming months, yet it seems like the situation is not as serious as it looks or the majority of our population are taking a cheerful view of things for last week the two evenings when shows were given at the river about $500 was cheerfully parted with for amusement alone and this does not look at all like finances are low or that hard times are burdening the general public does it?—Warsaw Leader.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

(New York Press.)

A man is ashamed to wear new clothes and a woman not to.

A penny in the hand is worth more than a nickel in the slot machine.

The more sense a man has about most things the bigger fool he can be about some things.

When a man gets mad about the cook at home it's safer for him not to boil over till he gets downtown and can scold the office boy.

A man is mighty smart to understand women and a lot smarter to know he doesn't.

A woman will forgive her husband anything if he'll pretend he doesn't deserve her.

You can tell when a man has made a little money by how patronizing he is to everybody who hasn't.

Profits of the Money Trust.

The Fifth Avenue bank of New York, is accounted a Morgan institution, being controlled by interests friendly to him. The other day the bank declared the regular quarterly dividend of 25 per cent and a special dividend of 135 per cent, both payable on July 1. In 1910 the bank paid an extra dividend of 130 per cent. In 1907 a special declaration of 150 per cent was paid out of earnings for 1906. In 1908 the extra dividend was 160 and in 1909, 125 per cent.

The years 1907-8 were the panic years. It was in 1907 that "Patriot" Morgan came to the defense of his country, to save it from widespread financial disaster. In that year the gross dividends were 250 per cent, and in 1908 260 per cent. The "patriot" was well rewarded for his "usefulness," Making $2.60 a year on every dollar invested—not to mention the share of profits set asidc to surplus—enables Mr. Morgan to gather the art treasures of the world into his possession and to be decorated with the titles of royalty.

The Fifth avenue is only one of Mr. Morgan's banks. There are others whose earnings are even larger.—Dubuque Ia., Telegraph Herald.

Cattle and Hay.

The tests at feeding at the various experiment stations make it conclusive that while timothy hay is better than wood shavings and wheat straw, it is so poor a flesh former when fed to cattle that it is a wasteful method to give it acreage room for such purpose, either in cattel or cow feeding, tho properly cut and cured timothy hay is yet esteemed for horses. Hoard's Dairyman tells the facts in saying that one pound of well cured clover hay contains double the flesh making and sustaining qualities that a pound of timothy hay does. And a pound of alfalfa is nearly four times as rich in protein as is timothy. Let a farmer take, say, ten heifers and rear them on timothy hay and ten others and rear them on alfalfa he will see the wonderful difference in the two plants, as shown by his cattle when they are a year old.

The fact is, either alfalfa or clover should take the place of most of acreage devoted to timothy, and it is a wonder that farmers do not heed this lesson more fully.

Reports from over Henry, Carroll and Trimble counties state that slow, gentle rains have fallen this week. This is the first good rain for five weeks. On account of the scarcity of stock water and the dry condition of pastures, farmers in the southeastern part of Trimble and part of Henry counties have been forced to ship their cattle to market. These rains will be worth thousands of dollars to Trimble county farmers. Reports from conservative farmers over Trimble county, indicate that the corn crop has been cut at least fifty per cent. Tobacco and tomato crops have suffered much, but sufficient rains from now on would make a fair crop of both.—Milton News.

Horse Industry.

Horse breeders, owners, dealers and trainers of the States are feeling quite comfortable over the adoption of the reciprocity treaty with Canada by the Senate and now if the Canadian Parliament will up and do likewise horse interests between the two countries will bound to reach a stage beyond the expectations of those who were in favor of the treaty and calm the fears of those who regarded it with disfavor. With the expense and annoyance of the duty removed on horses, trade is bound to increase rapidly not only to the immediate profit of those engaged in the business, but to a vast improvement and enlargement of the breeding industry of both countries.

A great trade is opening up in the Canadian Northwest which has been increasing gradually for the past five years, even with the burdensome restrictions in force. With these removed, trade will only be limited by the supply. Hundreds of good brood mares have been shipped into the Saskatchewan country and other sections of the rapidly growing northwest have bought largely, to say nothing of the older portions of the Dominion. No matter what else the treaty will benefit, the reciprocal trade in horses looks mighty promising.—Palmer, L. Clark,

Loss of Time Means Loss of Pay.

Kidney trouble and the ills it breeds means lost time and lost pay to many working men. M. Balen, 1214 Little Penna St., Ill., was so bad from kidney and bladder trouble that he could not work. But he says: "I took Foley Kidney Pills for only a short time and got entirely well and was soon able to go back to work, and am feeling well and healthier than before." Foley Kidney Pills are tonic in action, quick in results—a good friend to the worker man or woman who suffers from kidney ills. For sale by Jones' Drug Store, Walton, Ky.

DROUTH

Did Much Damage. But Timely Rains Came As A Great Relief.

But Corn Will Be Below What Was Expected.

(Cincinnati Enquirer Aug. 4.)

The rains of the latter part of July seem to have been sufficient in almost all parts of the country to have done a great deal of good to the growing crops. The drought was long and severe, and much damage resulted from the dry weather and hot winds. Some of the crops cannot fully recover, but practically all will be saved from total failure.

There can be no doubt that growing grain, vegetables and fruit were at a critical stage, and the rains came in the nick of time. They did untold good everywhere, despite the damage in some sections done by the severe storms by which the drought was broken.

The Enquirer, in order to be able to present to its readers the condition and prospects of the staple crops since the breaking of the drought, has secured from its correspondents in many of the most important carp states the latest summaries made by state boards as of August 1 or the last week of July. On the whole these are most encouraging.

The one bright spot is the cotton belt, which was not so seriously affected by the dry weather. The assurances from those states are of a record breaking yield. The latest rains have placed that crop out of all danger.

Corn will yet make a big crop, owing to the great increase of acreage this year over 1910. Oklahoma sends the worst report as to corn, and Illinois and Kentucky report great damage. Other states promise a good yield.

Winter wheat was out of danger when the drought set in, and spring wheat, which sustained considerable damage, seems now on the way to make the record yield indicated two months ago.

Oats and hay are very short crops in most states.

Tobacco will be many hundreds of millions of pounds short. Some of the tobacco states will have heavy yields, but the crop will be short in the burley and dark belts, and Kentucky will harvest scarcely half a crop.

Potatoes are reported a short crop in many states, but other states, notably Colorado, will have record yields. All other vegetables suffered from the drought.

Fruit growers will not harvest the enormous crops indicated early in the season, but will realize quite as good returns on the whole because of the sharp advance of prices. Apples in most states will not be over half a crop, the long dry spell causing much of the fruit to fall. The best prospects are reported from Michigan, Missouri, Montana Pennsylvania, Vermont and Wisconsin.

Herford Cattle as Grazers.

There is no breed of cattle which approaches the Hereford as grazers, and their ability to fatten on a grass diet of their own gleaning is a characteristic which appeals to all who are looking for the most economical method of producing beef.

Extremes of weather which will cause other cattle to seek shelter or shade does not deter the Hereford from eating his fill; and the contrast after an unfavorable season between the Hereford and other breeds is very marked, writes August Haedecke in the Northwestern Agriculturist.

The Hereford can be fattened at any age with equal rapidity. Whether baby beef or a more mature product is desired the Hereford will satisfactorily meet all requirements.

The impressiveness of the Hereford sire, when used on scrubs or native cattle, is a quality which recommends itself to breeders of every section. The color, coat and markings are all ideal and all are transmitted by the sire to his offspring, making a uniform bunch of animals which will instantly attract the buyer.

No hothouse pampering is requisite to fit the Hereford steer for market. There is nothing capricious about his appetite and all that is necessary is to give him a chance at the feed trough.

The Hereford bull is of a mild, even temperament, not in the least excitable or cross, yet never overlooking an opportunity to increase the number of his calf spring. The cows are good mothers and supply abundant milk for their calves.

Changing Variety of Seed Wheat.

Many farmers make the mistake of sowing year after year a variety of wheat which yields several bushels less per acre under their conditions than some other variety would do under the same conditions, says the Maryland experiment station. Often the only reason why a particular variety has become popular in certain localities is because when first introduced it gave an extra high yield, due more to exceptionally good treatment in a favorable season than high-yielding qualities of the variety. When a new variety is introduced in a community or on a farm it should always be grown in the same field and beside a well-known or standard variety. It is difficult to determine the possibility of any variety when comparing a field on one end of the farm with another on the other end, or what is still worse, comparing one man's field with that of his neighbor.

GRANT COUNTY.

(Grant County News.)

Schools opened in many of the common school districts of Grant county Monday, tho in some they will not commence until September.

That the crops of this county have not been damaged more by the drouth than they already have, is largely due to the fact that they have been better cultivated this year than usual.

The potato crop in Grant county is almost a total failure and conditions are not much better in other parts of the State. Potatoes are retailing at $2 a bushel as against 75 cents a year ago.

The dedication of the Methodist church at Jonesville last Sunday drew a crowd of five thousand people. The meeting was held under a large show tent, which was packed with people. Dinner was served free to all present.

The County Court has ordered all persons having their fences on the right of way of the turnpikes to have them set back. There has been a tendency of late among the farmers to crowd the right of way, and in many cases the fences have been set so close to the pike that two teams can hardly pass. The Road Commissioner complains that the fences are set so close in that he is unable to ditch the road properly.

Freak Ads.

A Missouri newspaper man has made the following collection of freaks in advertising and shows what the misplacing of omission or word or comma does for a sentence:

Wanted—A furnished room by an old lady with electric lights.

Wanted—A room by a young man with both kinds of gas.

Wanted—A room by young gentleman with double doors.

Wanted—A man to take care of horse flannels.

Wanted—Ladies to sew buttons to the second story of Smiths and Roe building.

Wanted—A dog by little boy with pointed ears.

Wanted—A nice young man to run pool room out of town.

Wanted—A boy who can open oysters with references.

Wanted—Experienced nurse for a bottle baby.

Wanted—A organist and a boy to blow the same.

Wanted—A boy to be inside and partly outside the counter.

Wanted—A room for two young gentlemen about 20 feet broad and 30 feet long.

Wanted—By respectable girl her passage to New York willing to take care of children and a sailor.

Wanted—A furnished room by lady about 16 feet square.

Wanted—A cow by an old lady with crumpled horns.

For Sale—A farm by an old gentleman without outbuildings.

For Sale—Nice mattress by an old lady full of feathers.

For Sale—A piano by a young lady with mahogany legs who is going abroad in an iron frame.

For Sale—A nice large dog will eat anything, very fond of children.

For Sale—A cottage by a gentleman with bay windows.

For Sale—A parlor suit by an old lady stuffed with hair.

Work Horse and His Feet.

Work horses which are not on the hard roads nearly all the time are better without shoes. The farm horse is far better off without shoes if at work on the farm most of the time, as it has been noted that the hoof will grow out, regain its natural shape, which is always more or less changed by continuous shoeing. Many city horses with hoofs bound and cracked and otherwise injured have been taken to a farm, their shoes pulled off and turned out to pasture, and thoroughly cured within six months. In fact, the farmers around the large cities used to find in this class of animal a cheap supply, many of which turned out to be first-class horses, showing that all that was needed was rest on mother earth without their shoes. Many horses' feet have been saved by this kind of resting, and made good farm horses again, and it is worth thinking about.

We do not take much stock in the general position procivities of Kentuckians, but there is one boast that the women in Kentucky are the most beautiful in the United States or the world. Anybody who doubts this proposition has only to come to Kentucky to be convinced. For this reason we are in favor of impeaching a Kentucky Judge who said in New York the other day that the ladies of New York are the most beautiful in the world. We are in favor not only of impeaching him as a Judge, but banishing him to New York for the rest of his life.—Pendletonian.

The energetic woman of the day is even taking away man's most trusted weapon. When a Chicago professor, in a spirit of derision and contempt, called women "hens," hitherto considered one of the worst epithets to be hurled from the masculine armory, the women arose and promptly pointed out that a hen is industrious, inventive, self-reliant and, above all, a big moneymaker, and so comparison become a compliment. The women are triumphant and the professor speechless.

I wish to express my sincere thanks to my friends for the kindness shown me during my wife's illness and death.

GUARD AGAINST EVIL

Ornaments Supposed to Ward Off Disease and Bring Luck.

Although Most People Profess to Laugh at Ides of Wearing Them Purely for Luck, Yet Charms Are Popular With Many.

London.—Perhaps the instinct to avert the evil eye is born in our natures. Civilization had lessened it to a great extent, but in every race we find an instinct exists. The wearing of nearly all personal adornment seems to have originated in an ides of pacifying evil deities.

The savage wears ornaments symbolizing the protective powers supposed to be able to keep away harm or danger. In the West Indies there is a bean or seed which the natives think possesses many valuable properties. If carried in the purse they say the owner will never want for money; if hung on a watch chain good luck will ever be with [illegible]; woe betide the man who loses his precious charm. The East Indian leaves a tiny corner of his embroidery unfinished to propitiate the gods; the dusky mother calls her baby hard names for fear her love should bring ill fortune upon him.

In England superstitious country folk tie amulets around their necks to prevent disease. Some of the earliest of these were skillfully wrought by the people who inhabited this country thousands of years ago and treated flint much the same as a cameo, producing varied effects by cutting through into the different layers of color. Several examples of this practically lost art may be seen in the museum at Ipswich. They are carved to represent the heads of men and women, birds, fishes and reptiles, and are for the most part cleverly and prettily done.

The fossil belemnites found on many of our coasts embedded in the rocks were once thought to be thunderbolts and were worn as charms by fisher folk. Farmers in ancient times decorated their horses by hanging amulets and gypsy fetish charms among their trappings to insure a good harvest. These amulets were frequently associated with the worship of the sun and were of Egyptian, Moorish and Persian origin.

Although most people profess to laugh at the idea of wearing them purely for luck or from superstitious motives, yet charms are worn still with good humored toleration and, for reasons none can explain, secretly favored, just in the same way that sober minded men and women cling tenaciously to a crooked sixpence and treasure a three-penny bit with a hole in it as omens of good luck.

A pink coral hand in Italy is supposed to ward off the evil eye and plays its part in ornaments. Ruby ornaments are supposed to disperse evil spirits and are considered a protection from poison and other dire evils. Emeralds banish blindness. Garnet ornaments are supposed to keep one in good health; the sardonyx insures happiness. The sapphire keeps off fever. Amethysts keep off worries. A turquoise means that you will never want a friend. A four leaved clover in a crystal locket is a favorite charm and is said to bring good fortune and long life to its wearer. Jade also has a reputation for a luck bringer.

FRENCH NOW DRINKING TEA

Seems to Have Become Not Only Fashionable, but Popular—620,000,000 Cups Drunk In 1909.

Paris.—Tea drinking in France seems to have become not only fashionable, but popular. Its increasing vogue is shown by the revenue returns for 1909, which show a consumption of 1,293 tons. Reckoning a pinch of tea a cup, this represents about 620,000,000 cups drunk in the course of the year.

Ten or fifteen years ago tea was regarded in France as a semi-medical concoction, to be used to restore fainting women. It was classed among the mild liquids commonly known as "tisanes," and in the provinces, at any rate, people who expressed a liking for tea as a beverage were looked upon as "snobs" or eccentrics.

Nowadays the fashion has spread all over the country, and no hotel would be likely to perpetrate such an absurdity as the famous announcement, "Tous les jours, 5 o'clock a quartre heures." The practice of giving sweet wines with cakes in the afternoon is now looked upon as quite out of date.

BRINGS SEVERAL NEW PLANTS

Harvard Professor Returns From Trip to China With Flora Which Will Be Introduced Here.

Cambridge, Mass.—E. H. Wilson of the Harvard Aboretum has returned to Harvard after two years in China, bringing with him many new species of plant life. The new plants include lilies, hedge greens, clematis, vines, berries and other flora which he believes within a few years will supplant the species hitherto known to botanists, and will create a new race of beautiful flowers and useful berries. One of his treasures is a plant that will make a hedge so dense that it can be cut almost as thin as a fence and will stay green a great part of the year.

WALTON.

E. P. Northcutt was in the city, Wednesday, sight seeing.

Miss Georgia Carroll, of Big Bone, is visiting friends here this week.

W. F. Moore, of Sherman, was transacting business here Friday.

Chas. Vest, of Verona, was transacting business here Friday.

C. L. Griffith was in the city with 48 nice porkers, last Tuesday.

Miss Ella Finn of Walnut Hills, Ohio, is visiting her sister Miss Ella Stapleton.

The Walton Juniors will meet the Erlanger Juniors at Erlanger next Saturday.

For Sale—Hampshire lambs, either six or eight dollars for choice. J. F. Cleek, Walton.

Mrs. C. A. Brown, Mrs. Holden and Miss Styles, of Cincinnati, were guests of Miss Sue Wolfe, Wednesday.

Lafe Spencer, of Warsaw, was here last week talking insurance, as was also H. B. Adams, of Covington.

Robt. Fields came home sick from Cincinnati, last Wednesday, and has not been able to return to his work.

Come out and see the best game of the season at Walton ball park next Saturday—Walton and Coney Island clubs.

Miss Jane Hance is visiting R. E. Moore, and family, of Sherman, and will go from there to visit friends at Sugar, Ky.

Miss Louise Lathrop and Mrs. Carrie Rouse with their Sunday school classes were in Cincinnati attending the Zoo last Friday.

W. O. Ronse our local miller, and J. D. Doubman, were at Sherman, Dry Ridge, and Crittenden, one day last week, hustling for business.

Dr. R. M. Jones, wife and little daughter Helen, of Louisville, have returned home after a delightful visit with his brothers, Dr. A. N. and Robt. W. Jones.

Mrs. J. H. Slater and Mattie Lee LaMaster, of Campbellsburg, and Miss Marie Miller, of Covington, were visiting friends in Walton, Sunday, and will spend the week at Big Bone.

G. L. Miller, of Big Bone, was here Tuesday transacting business with the Walton Concrete Manufacturing Co., that is making everything in the concrete line very satisfactory to its customers.

W. O. Rouse was in Cincinnati Monday, relative to the construction of some new machines for the flour mill, which will make it one of the most modern and up-to-date plants in this section of country.

Mrs. Sarah Holder, of Covington, formerly of this place, left on the 7th for Los Angeles, Cala., to visit her sister, Mrs. A. Lermond. She will visit San Francisco and other points of interest before returning home.

Mrs. Sarah E. Holder, of upper Scott Street, Covington, left August 7th for a visit to her sister, Mrs. E. A. Lermond, in Los Angeles, Cala. Mrs. Holder and Mrs. Lermond were formerly residents of Walton.

J. Hughes Johnson, of Armorel, Arkansas, who has a position as general manager in a large lumber plant at that place, is at the home of his father, W. C. Johnson, near Beaver Lick. He has with him as his guest, Mr. E. L. Weisinger.

Warren and Robert Lassing, of Newport, were here Saturday. They belong to the Walton base ball club, which defeated the Cincinnati Chilos 12 to 6. The Chilos are good ball players but the lion roaring, wild cat screaming of the Walton rooters was too much for the boys. They became excited and lost the game.

J. H. Newman, attorney at law and mail carrier out of station, Ludlow, was here Saturday seeking a location. Mr. Newman expects, in connection with his law business, to handle real estate, and to represent an insurance company that is doing business along a new line on mortgage notes or deferred payments on real estate.

Ed. Lipscomb had an acute attack of appendicitis, Tuesday, and Dr. Langdale, of Cincinnati, was called to see him and decided on an immediate operation. Mr. Lipscomb was taken to a Cincinnati hospital by Dr. Slater and Wm. Brittenhelm in an auto. Dr. Langdale pronounced it an extremely bad case, but the patient was doing fairly well Wednesday morning.

Adams Lodge I. O. O. F. gave a picnic in Bridges Grove, Kenton county. A very large crowd was present. Instructive and entertaining speeches were made by the following: W. O. Hobbs and L. P. Bailey, Past Grand Masters, Otto Breith, Deputy Grand Master, and A. K. Johnson, Past Master. There was some interesting sketch work by Joe Reed. Walton Lodge sent a full representation to help take care of a most excellent dinner. Plenty of music by the brass band, and the weather ideal.

Prof. J. G. Prather has been in Walton during the past week seeking up the outside patronage of the school. He gives very encouraging reports of prospects for outside pupils. The number will go beyond that of last year. No doubt the handsome [illegible] gotten out by the Walton Education has contributed [illegible] of the canvass [illegible] filled with the results [illegible] from the public schools of the community and are taking advantage of the opportunity to send to Walton. The work in the country districts is so crowded that it is very hard to get enough time to prepare pupils adequately for high school. Several pupils will enter 7th and 8th grades of Walton school with a view to taking the full high school course. Work is being done on the calsomiming of the school building interior, and the rooms will present a tastely appearance when the work is completed. Everything seems to point to a prosperous year's work in Walton school. The same attention can not be given to students as by a teacher having only two grades, as the patrons of Walton school.

Lexington, Aug. 8.—The District Board of the Burley Tobacco Society has been called to meet in this city next Wednesday afternoon at one o'clock. While crop conditions will be reported on, it is rumored that at this meeting plans will be formulated for establishing a mammoth tobacco manufacturing plant in this city, by which the millions of pounds of the pooled tobacco which the Burley Society still has on hand can be manufactured and placed on the market, and the society thus be independent of the Tobacco Trust in securing a profitable price for the big stock which the society has held so long.

It is stated that the decision of the United States Supreme Court ordering the dissolution of a tobacco trust has done much to encourage the Burley Society officials in believing that they can successfully compete in the market for manufactured tobacco.

In a letter written from Edmonton, Canada, August 8, D. B Wallace says:

"The country is one vast field of wheat, oats, flax, barley and hay, and if the frost holds off for about three weeks the largest crop every raised here will be gathered. It is cool here and my heavy clothing is very comfortable. Grant and I are enjoying the trip greatly and both are well. We will not be home until about Saturday week."

C. B Lipscomb, 48, a former resident of this place, was stricken with appendicitis last Tuesday, and was taken to a hospital in Cincinnati, where he was operated on at once. He survived the operation only two days, blood poison setting up, his temperature reaching as high as 108. The funeral was conducted last Sunday by Rev. H C. Wayman in the presence of a large concourse of friends. The remains were interred in the family cemetery near Independence.

The Burlington base ball team, one of the best amateur teams in Kentucky, will present their strongest line-up against Walton, Saturday, August, 19th at 3 p. m This will be the best game of the season at Walton and both teams will put in their best licks to throw the game on their side. Lack of practice which has heretofore handicapped the Walton boys, will not be in evidence Saturday. All those loud, resounding whacks heard around, Walton, lately, were not mine explosions, but merely the echoes of the three base hits our boys were knocking out daily at the Walton park. Last chance of the season to see Walton play.

The fourth annual reunion of the late Thomas A. Johnson's family was held at the home of Edward Taylor in Walton, August 12th, 1911. The family, consisting of nine girls, were all present and ate at the same table. The total nnmber present was close to 75. There was 16 grandchildren and 17 great-grand children present. A bountiful dinner was served, consisting of all the good things that expert cooks could suggest. Bro H. C Wayman, of Walton Baptist church, and Bro. T. C. Ecton, of Lexington, were guests. The most remarkable thing of this family is that all nine girls, their husbands, sons and daughters are all Baptists and Democrats. The question of who was the best looking came up and was soon settled, each one claiming to be entitled to that distinction. G. B. Powers, who married the youngest, now 46, claims his wife has them all skinned a block. The day was one of pleasure and thanks that all were permitted to meet once more, and as the shades of evening fell, they departed to their many homes, feeling that it was good to have met and spent the day together. The next meeting will be held at J. W Cluster's on McCoy's Fork Creek, near old Salem church, on the 5th of September, 1912.

AFTER A STORMY DEBATE

Democrats at Their State Convention Retain The County Unit Plank in Their State Platform.

After a day of turbulent debate and following a contest that for excitement and intensity of interest aroused has not been paralleled in many years the Democrats of Kentncky at their State platform convention voted to retain in their platform the plank covering the county unit bill reported by a majority of the Committee on Resolutions—the plank favored by Mr. Mccreary, the candidate for Governor, and former Gov. Beckham. A minority report offered by three of the 11 members of the committee—Webster Helm, of Campbell county; James M. O'Brien, of Bourbon, and Henry Watterson, of Jefferson, was defeated, after a roll call contested every inch of the way, the vote as announced by the secretary being 667 to 514 against substituting the minority report for the majority plank.

The climax to the convention was as dramatic as ever witnessed in Kentucky. All one afternoon the delegates favoring the extension of the county unit—the phrase used by Mr. Beckham and other supporters—to designate their position wrangled.

COMMITS SUICIDE.

Young Man Ends His Life By Taking Cabolic Acid.

James Davis, son of John Davis, who lives on Gunpowder, near W. C. Weaver's, committed suicide, yesterday by taking carbolic acid. He died at the home of Robert Snyder, near Hopeful. The young man had been having considerable financial trouble recently, and it is supposed that prompted him to commit the rash act. He lived only half an hour after swallowing the deadly dose.

Mr. Barnett, when a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor declared that the election of Judge O'Rear as Governor would be the damn of civil liberty in Kentucky. If Mr Barnett has ever retracted it is not known.

The Erlanger fair will begin next Wednesday, and for four days Erlanger will be quite a lively little city. A big fair is counted on by everybody.

DISHWASHING IS ART

Chicago Club Women Discuss Domestic Duties of Today.

Women Must Be Educated "Down" to Kitchen and Standard of Domestic Employees Raised — Let Maid Use Piano.

Chicago.—"Women must be educated 'down' to the kitchen, and the standard of domestic employees raised."

This was the verdict of prominent Chicago Club women, when they decided that women themselves are to blame for the lack of popularity of home occupations.

The occasion was the eleventh annual reciprocity meeting and anniversary of the Arteraft Institute and Guild, and the subject was "How may our widespread interest in art, as a factor in every day life, be best employed to raise the standard of domestic occupations?"

"There is just as much art in laundering a piece of lace as in drawing the design."

"Let the second maid use the piano. The dressmaker does."

"Flats and delicatessen stores have destroyed home life."

"The little things in life, such as washing dishes and preparing food are included in art as fully as painting and sculpturing."

There were other opinions to receive favor. Incidentally, Mrs. D. Harry Hammer, Mrs. F. K. Bowes and several other women, clad in fine dresses and wearing costly jewels, met only admitted, but took pride in announcing that they were not strangers to household duties.

"I would rather wash dishes than embroider," said Mrs. George Skyes.

"Even with the widespread interest in art as a possible lever to raise the standard of domestic occupations, I confess my inability to apply the lever until the dignity of all work is demonstrated," said Mrs. Hammer. "To dignify dishwashing is difficult, but possible."

Mrs. George P. Vosbrink could not entirely agree with the others.

"Suppose you do raise the standard," she said, "what good is that going to do? I would like to know how many women here would mingle with their servants—"

But Mrs. Bowes interposed, raising a warning finger.

"Why," she said, "there are leaders in Chicago society who worked as domestics, and I know of a prominent Boston woman of high standing who used to sell cigars, and my husband bought from her, too."

Mrs. George E. Colby questioned whether it would not be educating a woman "up" and not "down" to teach her more of kitchen life.

200 ACRES OF CHILLI PEPPER

Texas Farmer Expects to Net Profit of $150,000 From Vegetable—Cleared $30,000 Last Year.

San Antonio, Tex.—One not familiar with the uses of the vegetable would very naturally wonder what a farmer expects to do with 200 acres of chilli peppers.

So much pepper on one farm and that, too, of the hottest kind grown, recalls the exclamation of the old gentleman who prayed that one of his neighbors in want be sent an abundance of everything good to eat including a barrel of pepper, and noting that that amount was too much said: "Don't do it, Lord, that's too much pepper for one man."

But it seems that 200 acres of peppers is not too much for one Texas farmer. W. P. Walker, residing near Austin, grew 40 acres of peppers last year, which brought him a gross return of $30,000. His success in the cultivation of this plant prompted him to try 200 acres this year. He expects a net profit of $150,000 on the venture.

RED SPOT MARKS MARRIAGE

East India Woman Wears Forehead Sign Instead of Wedding Ring—Puts It on Every Morning.

New York.—Mr. and Mrs. Christmases, natives of Raipur, in one of the central provinces of India, sailed on the White Star liner Celtic the other day for England. They will return home via Suez, completing a circuit of the globe.

Attention was attracted to the little East Indian woman by the presence on her forehead of a red spot. She explained that this red spot marks the fact that she is a wife. She puts it on every morning with a pencil of red crayon and will continue to do so while she is a wife. If her husband should die she would cease wearing the red spot. Wedding rings are not worn in Raipur.

The husband is a deputy commissioner of revenues for the British government in his native province.

WOULDN'T GO WITHOUT THEM

Ocean Liner Is Held While Porter in Taxi Speeds to Ship With Wealthy Woman's Lingerie.

New York.—Miss Elenor Spang, a wealthy unmarried woman, who owns a house in Washington and another in Paris and who recently has been a guest of the Hotel Plaza, was booked to sail on the Kronprinz Wilhelm.

For several days past she had overseen the packing of her 15 trunks by her French maid, Celeste, who understands little English. She had placed some of her lingerie in a suit case to have by her in her cabin.

When it came to packing her fishing implements—for Miss Spang is a great fisherwoman—she told Celeste to "leave out the longest reel." Celeste thought she meant the "lingerie."

When Miss Spang arrived at the ship, accompanied by Max Thompson, assistant manager of the Plaza, she found on looking over her baggage that the suit case containing the lingerie was missing. She became panic-stricken. No, it was absolutely impossible for a lady to sail under such conditions. She must have those things.

What should she do? Sailing time was only 20 minutes away.

Thompson dashed to a 'phone, called up a porter at the Plaza, gave instructions where to find the suit case, and ordered him to rush to the Twenty-third street subway line in a taxi. Thompson dispatched another taxi to meet the porter on the Jersey side. Then Thompson begged the captain to hold the ship. The captain agreed to wait five minutes—no more.

At four minutes past the hour for sailing no taxi was in sight. It looked as though Miss Spang would not sail. But exactly at 10:05 the cab come in sight. The porter sprang out and heaved the suit case over the rail, and Miss Spang sailed.

MAN WOULD NOT KISS WIDOW

Pennsylvania Magistrate Chides Daniel Reardon Because He Threw Away Chance to Embrace Woman.

Wilkesbarre, Pa.—Alderman John F. Donohue, who has been called the Solomonlike magistrate, held Daniel Reardon of North Wilkesbarre under bail to keep the peace because he had failed to kiss Mrs. Mary Burke, a good-looking widow. Reardon, it is charged, had talked of kissing her until she taunted him, whereupon he had words with her about it and Mrs. Burke had him arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Alderman Donohue asked Reardon if he had kissed Mrs. Burke and when he said that he had been unsuccessful the alderman gave one of his timely lectures on the fads and fancies of the present day, as on a previous occasion he discoursed at length on the beauty of women's faces being enhanced by paint.

"Reardon," he said, "all members of the female sex from their infancy up like to be kissed. Osculation is one of the necessities of life. It is the beginning of love. It is the stamp of devotion. I do not consider you a gallant in having asked this woman for a kiss and then not taking it.

"I have found through experience that old women as well as young take an interest in life. When you asked this woman for a kiss why did you not pucker up your lips to show your sincerity at least. For your lack of gallantry in not kissing I will hold you under bail to keep the peace and order you to pay the costs of the prosecution or serve ten days in jail."

FLY SPREADS DEADLY GERM

Dr. Flexner and Aid of Rockefeller Institute Discover Disseminator of Infantile Disease.

New York.—Experiments carried on in the laboratories of the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research have demonstrated beyond reasonable doubt that the virus of infantile paralysis is carried from the sick to the well by the common house fly.

It had been really understood the poisonous element of the disease is transferred from those suffering from it to persons brought in contact with the patients; also that healthy persons carry the virus from the sick to the well. But in thinly settled sections of the country the disease has spread in a manner that could not be accounted for by any of the foregoing means of transmission. This led to the suspicion that the common fly was the carrier, and resulted in experiments which have been and are still being carried on by Dr. Simon Flexner, director of the institute, assisted by Paul F. Clark, Ph. D.

Girl to Work With Lepers.

Centralia, Wash.—Miss Frances F. Gardner, a wealthy girl, has announced her intention to devote the rest of her life to missionary work. She expresses willingness to take up the work with the lepers of Cullon island, Philippines, or the island of Molokai, in the Hawaiian group, when her course is completed at the divinity school in Portland, where she will be prepared for her work. Miss Gardner's announcement astonished her friends, especially as it was understood that she was engaged to be married.

Cobbler Heir to $250,000

Burlington, N. J.—Joseph Miller will quit his bench in a local shoe factory this week, following the receipt of news that he is the sole heir to a fortune of more than $250,000 left by Aime Monchezi, a cousin who died [illegible] estate in New York City.

INDIAN RELICS GIVEN A STATE

Austin W. Holden's Priceless Collection Presented to New York Historical Association.

Glens Falls, N. Y.—James A. Holden of this city, treasurer of the New York State Historical association, placed in the hands of Arthur C. Parker, state archaeologist, as a gift to the state, the Austin W. Holden collection of Indian relics, valued at thousands of dollars. The collection is called by Mr. Parker the most valuable one of archaeological, ethnological, geological and paleontological Indian specimens in the United States. "Mr. Holden's gift is of priceless value and comes at a time when it is most needed," he said. "Many of the specimens are worth thousands of dollars each to science."

The collection comprises rare quartz arrowheads, an ivory tusk of a mastodon estimated by Mr. Parker as being about five hundred thousand years old, hundreds of implements used by ancient Indians, specimens of gold and silver ores from all over the world, beautiful specimens of Indian handicraft from the various tribes throughout New York state and stone emblems hundreds of years old. This is the first collection offered as a gift to the state since the destructive conflagration at the capitol, and was acquired by the late Dr. Holden only after the expenditure of thousands of dollars.

SALUTES HIS OLD UNIFORM

Passengers on Board French Liner La Provence Witnessed Pretty Little Scene at Pier.

Among the passengers at the rail as the French liner La Provence was warped alongside her pier the other day was the trim figure of a young boy attired in the striking red and blue uniform of a French sergeant of infantry.

The lad, while eagerly scanning the faces of the awaiting crowd, finally caught a glimpse of a tall, white-haired man of marked military bearing, and, drawing himself in the attitude of a soldier saluting, with hand at cap, shrieked in a shrill, treble tone:

"Hela! mon grand pere!"

"Bon jour, mon petit colonel," the elderly gentleman quickly responded, his face aglow with excitement, and tears coming to his eyes.

The boy was Ford Hirschberg, who was returning from a trip to France with his mother. The elderly man was his grandfather, Joseph Koch, a veteran of the Franco-Prussian war.

To give the grandfather a surprise and to allow him to look again upon his favorite uniform, Mrs. Hirschberg procured the soldier's suit in Paris and dressed the boy in it for the homeward trip.

POLICE ESCORT LONE WOMEN

Chief of Police McWeeny of Chicago Has Plan to Assure Absolute Safety on the Streets.

Chicago.—Darkness and black, lurking shadows no longer need frighten unescorted women who visit in the evening if they will heed the plan mapped out for their safety by Chief of Police McWeeny and put into effect the other day. Ever since the attack upon Mrs. Charles F. Lob, 834 Leland avenue, who was choked and beaten when within a few yards of her home, the superintendent has been busy devising some plan for the protection of unescorted women who by chance are obliged to return home after dark. After deep thought the chief decided that the best way would be for unescorted women to telephone the nearest police station and ask that a uniformed patrolman be sent to meet her at a certain corner and escort her home. This scheme he put into effect.

"Not only is it chivalrous, but it is a duty," said the chief in speaking of his plan. "All a woman has to do is to telephone the nearest station and ask for a policeman to escort her home. The desk sergeant can direct him to the spot she designates and the patrolman can take her home forthwith."

LEAVES $3,500 TO PARROT

Sailor, Who Cured Pet Bird of Bad Habit of Profanity, Wills Money For Its Support.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—A will leaving $3,500 for the support and maintenance of a pet parrot has been drawn and witnessed by Thomas Billingsby, a capitalist of this city. The parrot is twenty years old.

Billingsby was a sailor many years ago and came into possession of the parrot in Polynesia. When he left the sea he carried the bird with him inland, and succeeded in reforming the bird, which at one time was an expert on profanity.

Three men are named in the will as trustees of the fund to be expended in the care of the parrot, and during the bird's lifetime the money cannot be devoted to any other purpose.

TRAINING IS NEEDED

Professor Suggests College of Domestic Relations.

In its Administrative Division Our Matrimonial Laws Require Drastic Revision at Almost Every Point.

Lincoln, Neb.—"A college of domestic relations"—a step in advance of Chicago's court of domestic relations—is strongly urged by George E. Howard, professor of sociology at the University of Nebraska.

"The sociologist, the economist, the household scientist, and other specialists should join forces in such an institution to give sound training in the problems of sex, parentage and the household.

"No more harmful blunder was ever committed by theological subtlety than the setting aside of marriage as par excellence, the divine institution."

Trained officers to perform the marriages in districts and revision of the matrimonial laws of the country were suggested by Professor Howard.

Improvement of the present marriage customs in the United States Professor Howard proposes as follows:

Endowment of motherhood by the state.

Abolishment of the common law marriage.

Twenty days' public notice before the issuing of license.

Limiting marriage to those who are of age.

Of the endowment of motherhood, Professor Howard says:

"Recognising parentage as a social service, a social duty which should be paid for at the public expense, looks very much like social justice.

"In its administrative division our matrimonial laws require drastic revision at almost every point. We need a better and a uniform license system, so as to secure full publicity and a faithful compliance with the spirit of the law.

"It is time that in school and college the family and its related institution should be as freely, and openly, and unsparingly subjected to scientific investigation as are the problems of modern political and industrial life.

"The time honored American plan of optional civil or religious ceremony, at the pleasure of the persons contracting, is crude, illogical and unsafe. There is the clergyman, and here is the justice of the peace. Take your choice.' That is the system in a nutshell.

"No standard of legal, mental or moral fitness is established. Often this important function of social control is exercised with incredible ignorance and levity. The frivolous or mercenary magistrate and the fleet parson flourish on American soil. The story of our marriage resorts or Gretna Greens shows that we have small reason to boast."

TOAD AIDS DISTRESSED ROBIN

How the Two Divided Reluctant Angle Worm is Graphically Described—Bird Got its Share.

Bridgeport, Conn.—A big red robin on Wood avenue bit off more than it could swallow. Perhaps it would be more accurate to say that it tried to swallow more than it could bite off. Cock robin in looking over a fine big lawn for his breakfast fell upon what looked to him like a good meal in a big worm which came to the surface to get a drink of fog. The robin seized the head of the worm in its bill and began to pull and swallow at the same time. The worm began to back water immediately and would have pulled the hole in after it. The robin, however, had a good grip and a tug-of-war followed. The robin danced around and tried to brace itself for a steady pull.

The worm stretched almost to the breaking point. And yet after several minutes of struggling the worm stubbornly refused to follow its head into the robin or follow its tail back into the hole. It stood pat.

The robin was in just as awkward a position because it couldn't let the worm go. Each had a hold on the other. He looked around beseechingly for help. A hoppy toad, one of the first of the season, who was out grubbing, having enjoyed the tug-of-war from the start, made a bee line for the contestants and neatly bit the worm in two. The robin flew off with the forward part of the worm and the toad quickly made way with the aft portion.

PLANS SIGNALS FOR FLYERS

German Aero Club Official Would Paint Signs on Roofs of Big Buildings to Guide Aviators.

Berlin.—A complete system of signals for airships and flying machines has been elaborated by Captain von Frankenburg, chairman of the Imperial German Aero club, and submitted to the international committee.

Captain von Frankenburg has worked out a code based on single letters and figures, and he proposes that signs and signals shall be painted on the roofs of churches, gas holders and other prominent buildings in sufficient numbers to be visible from a considerable altitude.

Some of these signals for aerial navigators could be illuminated at night. The signs and signals would enable the airmen to recognise the locality beneath them and thus get their bearings, just as seamen shape their course by lighthouses and buoys.

GO BACK TO WOOD AS FUEL

Director of Pennsylvania State Forestry Believes We Will Get to That Situation Within Near Future.

South Bethlehem, Pa.—That wood for fuel will rise again to an important or the most important domestic fuel even hereabouts, so near the coal fields, was predicted by E. A. Ziegler, director of the State Forestry school at Mt. Alto, in a most interesting address at Lehigh university. Mr. Ziegler spoke on the "Financial Aspects of Forestry," but before taking up the subject of finance gave a lucid description of the Forest academy at Mt. Alto, an institution conducted more in the German sense. He said:

"The primary aim of forestry is to grow trees as a crop—trees for lumber, trees for railroad ties, trees for paper, trees for staves, posts, poles, fuel wood and so on down the long list of wood uses. And the growing of this tree crop will bring in a profit if properly handled, as we shall presently see. If I should predict that wood for fuel will again rise to an important or the most important domestic fuel, here so near the coal mines, I should hardly be taken seriously. But that very thing is coming—I need not try to foretell the moment. Coal is rising in price gradually, and it is only a matter of reaching a certain point (one cord of wood equals, roughly, one ton of coal) when the financial advantage will go to the wood fuel—in fact, in many districts where the transportation charges on coal are high, wood is today in universal domestic use.

"In southern California the high price of coal and scarcity of wood put the price of fuel wood delivered at $12 a cord. A plantation of trees for fuel is a very remunerative investment there. In Washington, D. C., I paid $7.50 to $8 a ton for anthracite coal delivered in the suburbs. A cord of air-dried white oak cost me $6 to $7. The wood was the cheaper fuel and I used it largely in the kitchen range, using coal only as a more convenient fuel in the furnace. The significant fact is that coal beds cannot be renewed, but forests can."

HENS LAY AN EGG EACH DAY

Small Flock of Rhode Island Reds Make Remarkable Record—Owner Has No System.

Wallace, Ida.—Twelve eggs a day, seven days in the week, for twenty-eight consecutive weeks is the record of twelve hens kept in the center of the Coeur d'Alene mining district. Only in the last few days, when one of the number began to sit, was the record spoiled.

The twelve hens are Rhode Island Reds and are the property of Peter Caw, who lives seven miles northwest of Wallace. Mr. Caw's home is well up in the mountains at an altitude of more than 3,500 feet. Throughout nearly nine months the ground is snow covered. It is only now that the last of the snow is leaving. At more than one time during the winter the snow has been banked around the building, nearly ten feet deep.

Mr. Caw has no steam-heated houses for his chickens and he neither cares for them nor feeds by any book system. The home of the fowls is an old barn, their feed selected scraps from the table. With these they have prospered and with clock-like regularity have furnished a neat income. Eggs in Wallace during the months past have ranged from 25 to 50 cents. Figured at the low price, the twelve hens made a gross earning in the twenty-eight weeks of $49.

BIG ORGAN IN CLARK'S HOME

Finest Chamber Instrument in World Placed in Former Senator's $10,000,000 Gotham Mansion.

New York.—A $135,000 pipe organ, the largest and finest chamber organ in the world, has just been installed in the $10,000,000 Fifth avenue residence of ex-Senator W. A. Clark of Montana. It occupies one end of the senator's main picture gallery, one of the half-dozen rooms which have been finished in the big mansion. The whole house, which has been nine years in process of building, will be completed in five or six months.

The new organ is declared by musicians who tested it, as the senator's guests, to be the most perfect toned instrument in the country.

It was built in Los Angeles and contains 4,000 pipes. Its owner has engaged as his organist Arthur Scott Brook, formerly of the Memorial of Los Angeles and organist of the giant organ at the Chicago world's fair.

MARRIAGE ENDS BABY FLATS

Owner Marries Waitress, Who is Not Fond of Children and Prefers Families Without Them.

Brockton, Mass.—Brockton's famous "Baby Flats," built exclusively for families with babies, will hereafter be rented to babyless tenants, says John Hill Bartlett, the owner, whose venture had resulted in ex-President Roosevelt sending him a personal letter of commendation.

Two years ago Mr. Bartlett announced that he saw no reason why families should be barred from tenements because they had children. A years ago he married a waitress. Now he says he renounces his former opinion of babies.

Mr. Bartlett does not express himself as opposed to babies, but Mrs. Bartlett frankly admits she prefers families without them.

FEET ARE AWKWARD

Great Many English Women Are Pigeon-Toed.

Neighbors From France Declare They Should Have School for Teaching of Foot Deportment—Hobble Skirt Blamed.

London.—The Englishwoman would be the most graceful woman in the world if she could only learn the graceful management of her feet.

That, at least, was the verdict of a party of Frenchwomen who visited Hyde Park, and who speared to derive considerable amusement from watching the awkward way in which the English women in the penny chairs placed their feet.

"Maladroit," "gauche," were a few of the criticisms overheard expressed in tones of varying intensity.

It was noticed that the ladies sitting in the row—the objects of these comments—were apparently all unaware of the criticism their feet were causing.

Though not, perhaps, the usual habitnes of the park, they were mostly well dressed women, wearing the customary "hobble" skirts and the rather conspicuous shoes of today, which are made in various shades of leather to match the stockings.

One of London's leading teachers of dancing and deportment later in the day said that most English women need a course of "feet discipline."

"It is another example of the danger of adopting a fashion set by a foreign country," she said. "The 'hobble' skirt—the present mode—was evolved by French costmers to suit Frenchwomen, and Frenchwomen are renowned the world round for their graceful feet.

"English women hastily adopt the fashion without thinking that, practically for the first time in the history of fashion, the feet form a conspicuous part of the tout ensemble. There are no crinolines or loose plaited bell skirts to hide them.

"Beyond a little drilling in the management of her feet which she gets in the hobbledehoy, short skirted period of her life, the English woman is never taught the necessity of graceful control of her feet.

"Now comes suddenly this tight skirted vogue and her feet are revealed in all their pigeon toed or sprawling awkwardness. Not all of them, of course, for some English women are naturally graceful from the top of the head to the tip of the toe.

"English women are fully aware that the new skirt makes smart shoes and stockings absolutely de rigueur, but they forget that smart shoes and stockings draw special attention to the feet and make it equally compulsory that they should place them gracefully."

ONE-ARMED SCHOOL TEACHER

New England Educators Encourage Cripple, Barred From Other Pursuits, to Take Up Teaching.

Stamford, Conn.—Is it worth while for a girl with but one arm, who must be self-supporting, to prepare herself for a career as school teacher? The physical disability shuts her out from typewriting and stenography, dressmaking, millinery and other lines of work. Will it bar her from school teaching?

This question has been put to leading educators in Connecticut and Massachusetts by Stamford persons interested in the girl, whose name has not been made public, and later by the school board of Stamford. The answers, while varying, on the whole are encouraging to the girl to continue.

The question was asked in order to prevent a girl, if it were hopeless, giving the time and money necessary to a high school and normal course of training. One normal school principal wrote that the state board has ruled that it is not proper to put a teacher with striking physical defects in charge of children. Others said it would not be a serious handicap and that children pay little attention to such defects.

JAPS WILL EAT FROGS' LEGS

Student Returning Home From Eastern College Takes Jumpers Along for Breeding Purposes.

Storrs, Conn.—Kemaq Inouya, a Japanese student who has just received his diploma from the Connecticut Agricultural college here, is on his way back to Japan, carrying with him, carefully crated, a dozen of the largest and best specimens of bullfrogs he has been able to gather from the ponds in the surrounding country. It is his intention to use them in the propagation of the species in his native land, where the frogs are small and not edible.

Four-Year-Old Fresh Egg.

Williamsport, Pa.—Harry Burns of Hornell, N. Y., worked in a cold storage plant in this city four years back. One day he took an indelible pencil and wrote in small letters his name, address and the year "1907" on an egg.

Burns has since returned to Hornell to live. The other day he went to market and bought a dozen "strictly fresh" eggs and paid the extra price. Among them he discovered the identical egg bearing his name, address and date of four years ago.

The grocer says he "bought them for strictly fresh eggs."

CIRCUIT COURT.

The August term of the Boone Circuit Court convened last Monday with Judge J. W Cammack, of Owenton, presiding and all the local court officials at their post of duty.

The first business was the organizing of the grand jury, which was given the usual charge by the court. The jury is composed of the following gentlemen:

G. W Ransler, foreman, Walton.
Chas. Stephens, Bullittsville
Harry Wilson, Union.
Oliver Walton, Big Bone.
Anderson Gadd, Union.
C. G Smith, Hebron.
A. G Fisk, Florence.
Owen Ross, Florence.
Ira Aylor, Richwood.
R. H Stephens, Rabbit Hash.
V. W Gaines, Bullittsburg.
W. O Rector, Petersburg.

The prosecutions against the following were continued and alias processes ordered to issue: Kenny Warner, etc., J B. Clark, etc. John Land, Sterling Jackson, J. C Byland.

The prosecutions against the following were continued for the Commonwealth: O.P Morton, etc., Walter Lonaker, O. W Scott, etc., Thos. Ryan, Wm Parrell, James Stapleton.

The indictment against John Weisickle was dismissed by the Commonwealth.

The petit juries were organized as follows:

No. 1—Hubert Conner, John D. McNeely, W. T Stott, E. C. Garrison, Ely Conley, O. H Craig, W. C Johnson, Elmore Ryle, Geo. McGlasson, Wm. McSwain, L I. Crutcher, L. I Weaver.

No. 2—W. C. Goodridge, Ezra Aylor, Luke Bradford, J. P Blyth, C. M Delph, Jake Youell, Stephen Gaines.

Harry Roberts, R. A Brady and E. S Graves were appointed and qualified as jury commissioners.

COURT NOTES.

Petit Jury No. 2 was never completed.

The grand jury returned five indictments.

The attendance upon court each day was very small.

Considerable business was disposed of during the term.

It required only $156 to pay the grand and petit jurors.

N. W Burkett, of Union, was doorkeeper for the grand jury.

Commonwealth's Attorney Winn was not present during the term.

Court adjourned Wednesday afternoon—only in session three days.

Atty. Joel C Clore, of Cincinnati, came out to look after his business in court.

The docket was small and did not require much time to put it over.

Attys. Castleman and Rogers came over Monday to see that the court made a proper start.

Hon. W W. Dickerson, of Cincinnati, came out Monday and saw the wheels of justice put in motion.

Alvin Steiger, clerk of the Owen county circuit court, is keeping the record for Circuit Clerk J. A Duncan.

Judge Lassing, of the Court of Appeals was p[illegible] Monday and Tuesday and met many of his Boone county friends.

In the case of the Burley Tobacco Society against Jas. Stapleton they found for the Society the amount it claimed—20 per cent of the amount of tobacco Mr. Stapleton sold

One of the grand jurymen took the grounds in an argument at the dinner table one day that a man would not spend his money for government license unless he intended to deal in the criter.

Atty. John L Vest, of Walton, arrived Monday evening to look after the business of the firm of Tolin & Vest in court. Mr Vest was very much on the limp, having a sprained ankle, the result of an accrobatic stunt he tried when coming down stairs at home last Sunday.

Residence Burned.

The old Joseph C. Graves residence in the Bullittsville neighborhood, owned and occupied by Mrs. Martha Graves, widow of the late M. T Graves, was destroyed by fire last Saturday afternoon. The fire is supposed to have resulted from a defective kitchen flue. Mrs Graves and her daughter, Miss Carrie, were the only persons at home. Miss Carrie discovered the fire about the time the kitchen roof was ready to fall in, and before any of the neighbors responded to the alarm the fire had gained such headway that the main building was doomed. Some of the furniture and a small quantity of wearing apparel were saved. The building was insured for $1,500 and the furniture for $200 in the county insurance company. It was one of the oldest brick buildings in the country, and was erected after the substantial style of architecture that prevailed 75 and 100 years ago.

Mrs. Graves hereby invites her neighbors and friends to assist her remove the debris caused by the fire next Saturday, at which time she will serve a fish dinner.

Following is the temperance plank in the Democratic platform adopted by the State convention at Louisville, Tuesday, is as follows:

"Temperance is essentially a moral, non-political and social question, and should not be made a partisan issue between political parties.

"We favor the extension of the present local option law, as applied to the sale of liquors, which has been upheld by our highest court as valid and constitutional, so that the citizens of each and every county in the State may determine for themselves whether spirituous, vinous or malt liquors may be sold therein."

LIVE STOCK NOTES.

Do not feed corn to the breeding ewes; it is too heating.

Pigs that are carelessly weaned are likely to be given quite a setback.

The sheepfold should be liberally bedded and the bedding should be changed often.

For horses at hard or fast work in the summer time, clover hay may prove too laxative.

In order that sows may use oats to the best advantage they should by all means be ground.

If the silage has been properly put in, there is no reason why it should not keep through the summer.

After pigs are weaned, one of the most common causes of runts is the feeding of a straight corn diet.

Peas should be well podded before hogs are turned in, and after that stage they may be hogged off with profit.

For stallions, brood mares, young horses, and horses at light work, good quality clover or alfalfa hay can not be excelled.

Silage is very nearly as cheap as pasture and in composition is practically the same, pound for pound, as timothy pasture.

Peas alone make a valuble pasture for hogs, although the hogs should not be turned in on the crop as soon as either cattle or sheep.

Corn silage is an excellent feed for steers on account of its succulence and palatability, and because of its comparative richness in carbohydrates and fat.

In preventing and treating all diseases of young pigs, it is well, in addition to giving feed of the best quality, to allow plenty of exercise, sunshine, and pure air.

To check scouring in the pigs it is recommended to give the sow two or three teaspoonfuls of tincture of opium or place a few drops on the pigs' tongues.

The laying of the corner stone for St. Paul's new church building at Florence, last Sunday, will ever be a big event in the history of "Stringtown on the Pike." When completed the building will be a very handsome structure, and a credit to the congregation that occupy it. A supper was served at the fair grounds, Sunday evening for the benefit of the church, was patronized by an immense crowd. The corner stone was laid by Bishop Maes and the sermon was preached by Rev. Gorey

Dear Sirs.—In answer to your letter of recent date, in which you explain that certain reports are being circulated thru your community to the effect that you are not our exclusive agents, and that another party claims he can solicit and fill orders for the genuine Columbus, made by the Columbus Buggy Company, let us say emphatically that such is not the case. You are the only representative we have in your community, and the only one we authorize to sell our vehicle.

Should we receive orders from other parties than you, we should decline to fill them, unless authorized in writing by you to do so.

You have our consent to give this letter wide publicity if you care to; it will soon establish in the minds of your friends and customers who the real agent of the genuine Columbus is.

Yours Very Truly,
Columbus Buggy Co.

DEMOCRATIC MASS MEETING'

Delegates Instructed to Vote as a Unit on all Questions.

The Democratic mass meeting was called to order last Saturday afternoon by County Judge P. E Cason in the absence of A. S. Renaker, chairman of the county committee.

Judge Cason was elected permanent chairman and W. L Riddell, secretary.

N. E Riddell, J. F. Blyth and T. F Curley were appointed a committee to select delegates and alternates to the State Democratic convention on the 15th inst.

The committee reported the following and the report was adopted:

Delegates—
Hon. A B. Rouse, Burlington.
Hon. J W. Berkshire, Petersburg.
David Hajey, Walton.
H. H Hays, Bullittsville.
Edgar C. Riley, Burlington
T. F Curley, Walton.
Ben Berkshire, Petersburg.
Dr. F L Peddicord, Burlington
Ben Stephens, Florence.
T. J Dempsey, Beaver.

Alternates—
Chas. Maurer, Belleview
Wm. Ramsey, Big Bone
Robt. Wilson, Rabbit Hash
J. A Huey, Union.
O. K Whitson, Walton.
G. E Carroll, Walton.
Malchus Souther, Constance.
S. W Tolin, Burlington.
Ed Sydnor, Florence
Ed. Farrell, Florence

The delegates were instructed to vote as a unit on all propositions that came before the convention.

We notice that the work on the Lincoln Way is being carried on with a vim. It occurs to us that there are ways in Boone that if not repaired before bad weather they will be impassable. During this dry time roads may be worked to an advantage and no farmer will object to rock being hauled off his land to build a road on which he may travel this winter. Overseers, what do you say about road working. Sound the alarm.

Many a Suffering Woman

Drags herself painfully through her daily tasks, suffering from headache, nervousness, loss of appetite and poor sleep, not knowing her ills are due to kidney and bladder troubles. Foley Kidney Pills give quick relief from pain and misery and a prompt return to health and strength. No woman who so suffers can afford to overlook Foley Kidney Pills. Out door amusements will be plentiful during the remainder of this month. Next week the Erlanger fair will be in progress, and at the same time the teachers will be holding their institute at the court house and the week following the Boone Fair will open up for a three day's meet, and the indications are that the best fair in the history of the association will be held this year.

Best Story In the Bible.

One of our exchanges in discussing the best story in the Bible says: "It may surprise you, but it's about Noah and the flood. We say this before educated folks, who turn up their noses and say the story is a fake. You remember Noah had to work a long time on the ark. It was uphill business, too, at best, to go on toiling and sweating day after day in the hot sun building a boat away out on dry land while the local anvil and hammer club sat around spitting tobacco juice on the lumber, whiling up his boards with their jackknives and telling him what a big fool he was to expect a big rain in a country where it was too hot to grow alfalfa. But he kept at it. Finally the flood came and every mother's son of the croakers were drowned. This is the only instance we know of in either sacred or profane history where a bunch of knockers got exactly what was coming to them."

Foley Kidney Pills will check the progress of your kidney and bladder trouble and heal by removing the cause. Try them. For sale by Jone's Drug Store, Walton, Ky.

In Memory of Miss Ida Berkshire.

On Friday morning, August 11th, after a comparitively short illness occurred the death of Miss Ida Berkshire at the home of her sister, Mrs. Nannie Gaines, in Petersburg. "Miss Ida" as her many friends loved to call her was born Oct. 28, 1857, and lived practically all her life in Petersburg "Where none knew her but to love her, none named her but to praise."

The keynote of Miss Ida's beautiful life was service for others. A more unselfish woman never lived! As was said of Jesus so can we say of her: she "went about doing good." She was always thinking and planning how she could be of help to her sisters whom she loved passionately. Even when lying so pitifully weak they were in her thoughts till the last and with such a Christ-like quality transfiguring her in the hour of death her gentle spirit returns to God who gave it.

Miss Ida was a follower of the Great Galilean, uniting with the Christian church in Petersburg in early girlhood. She loved her church devotedly. The familiar words of the grand old hymn express her own deep motions:

"I love thy kingdom, Lord
The house of thine abode
The churches the blest Redeemer saved
With her own precious blood."

Miss Ida's christian life was of deed not creed; of character not dogma. While she dearly loved to worship in the old church her religious life was as beautifully loyal to Christ on week days as on Sunday. She never spoke unkindly of anyone. She lived above the gossip and small talk that to some is as bread and water. She was never critical or fault finding; she was to busy helping others. Her life was gentle and the elements of faith and love so intermingled in her character that the community might stand up and say: Here was a christian!

To bless ever her memory Miss Ida leaves three sisters, Mrs. Gaines and Miss Sally at home, and Mrs. Woodward, of Detroit, besides other relatives and friends by the score.

The fuueral was conducted at the church in Petersburg, Sunday afternoon, August 13th. The writer delivering the address, L N. Early, long Miss Ida's friend and neighbor, assisted. The beautiful earthly career of Miss Ada Berkshire has ended, but we think of her now as having entered into that larger sphere where her life is "grafted on the infinite and begins an illimitable work."

The life-lesson of this dear good woman is summed up for us in one of the great deathless phrases of the Master: "I am among you as one who resteth." After such lofty and useful way of living may we all strive until "the day break and the shadows flee away."

Clover Leaf Creamery which started business about a month ago made its first test the first of the month and statements and checks were sent out to the patrons on the 10th inst. and so far there is no complaint and everyone seems to be satisfied. Such an enterprise cannot succeed, however, without the co-operation of the people and it behooves the farmers of this immediate neighborhood to lend a helping hand to the creamery. A well conducted creamery is sure to help any community, if it receives the proper encouragement.

More people, men and women, are suffering from kidney and bladder trouble than ever before, and each more of them turn for quick relief and permaneut benefits to Foley's Kidney Remedy, which has proven itself to be one of the most effective remedies for kidney and bladder ailments, that medical science has devised. CROW STOLE POCKET BOOK

Long Lost Money, for Which Hired Man Had Been Accused of Stealing, Found in Old Nest.

Waterville, Pa.—Abram Kenter of Blockhouse is $80 better off and the name of a former hired man, who was discharged under suspicion of theft, has been cleared. Kenter has an old orchard of 50 or more trees on his place. He had been reading in the newspapers that old orchards pruned and sprayed and scraped could oftentimes be made to treble their production. He began the work of cutting out the dead and superfluous limbs.

While at work in one of the trees the other day he saw something sticking out from underneath an old robin's nest that had been built in one of the lower forks of the tree. The thing looked like a little book of some kind, and when he had torn the bird's nest loose and picked up the article the mystery of his stolen money was solved. The article he found was an old pocket book which he formerly owned, and upon opening he found in it, badly mussed and water-beaten, and yet perfectly redeemable, the eight $10 bills which he had accused his former hired man of stealing two summers ago. The money is believed to have been carried there by a tame crow which the Kenter children had around the house. The crow was a notorious thief. It once carried off a piece of sticky fly paper and one of the boys found the bird a helpless prisoner in the stuff in the corn crib, to which it had carried the paper, and there attempted to pick it to pieces, the result being that the sticky side adhered to its feathers and feet and the more it struggled the worse it got tangled up.

EARLY TO BED RULE A MYTH

London Specialist Says Brain Workers May Retire Any Time—Eight Hours Sleep Needed.

London.—The old proverb, "Early to bed and early to rise," was very popular with our grandfathers, but, according to a leading London physician, a specialist in mental diseases, there is little truth in the statement that such action will make you either "healthy, wealthy or wise."

"Go to bed as late as two in the morning if you like and if you get eight hours' sleep it will make no difference in your health," he says. "Some people who lead lives of mental activity make the mistake of hurrying to bed at 10 or 11 o'clock because they are obsessed with the idea that one hour's sleep before midnight is worth two afterward. They go to bed, switch off the lights and flatter themselves that they are doing the right thing, but it often happens that they begin to worry and fidget simply because they have gone to bed too soon.

"It's all right for the workingman to get well to bed before midnight—his fatigue is purely physical; but with the mental worker there is little physical tiredness. If he comes home at half past 11 from a theater or a long day's work he should take at least an hour to go to bed. He should read something light which will not disturb him mentally, then go quietly to rest."

RIB GRAFTED ON MAN'S HEAD

Remarkable Surgical Operation Performed on Skull at St. Louis Hospital—Says He Feels Fine.

St. Louis.—George Williams, a City hospital patient, put his hand to the back of his head and felt his sixth rib yesterday, and said he was feeling fine. He is, perhaps, the only man in the world who has a rib in his head, surgeons at the hospital say.

Williams, whose home is in New Orleans, was admitted as a patient March 25. A year and a half before this he had been struck on the head with a club, and in order to save his life a portion of bone at the back of his skull was removed. The pressure of the scalp on the unprotected membrane beneath it caused an irritation of the brain cells, and the effect was that Williams became subject to paroxysms.

Dr. A. H. Sewing, resident physician at the hospital, says there have been many cases of bone grafting, but heretofore the operations have been confined to taking a slice of bone from one part of the skull and putting it on another. In Williams' case this was impossible because so large a portion of the skull had already been removed. Williams has recovered since a piece of his rib, four inches long, was put in his head.

Sues Slayer of Skunks.

Buffalo, N. Y.—James L. Doty, former coroner of Erie county, but now a trapper, is being sued by his wife for divorce on the ground that he smells from the skunks he kills. She is seventy-three and he is seventy-four. They were married in 1909. Doty is the woman's seventh husband.

The old man explained on the stand, when asked if he had ever told stories, that he was a good hand at coon stories, but he would not lie in a business deal.

Bees Capture Busy Street.

St. Louis.—A swarm of honey bees took possession of Main street, in St. Charles, near the highway bridge. Several horses were stung, and there were narrow escapes because of running blows. The bees settled on the roadway at the bridge over the Missouri river, and remained until [illegible] a hive.

NOTES FROM MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Pitt

Spray potato plants for bugs.

Use barnyard manure for fertilizing.

Study the comforts of the cows and young things.

No kind of young stock grows so fast as a draft foal.

Raspberries are propagated by seeds, sucker plants and tip plants.

The currant should not be cultivated deeply, for it is a shallow-rooted plant.

Twenty acres of good corn put in the silo will feed 30 cows for a whole year.

The raspberry and blackberry, like the strawberry, will succeed on any good corn soil.

Water the horses before feeding. When fed first there is often more danger of colic.

Care should be taken that the cow does not have to wade through filth in the barnyard.

Very few farmers take enough time in fitting the field for planting either corn or potatoes.

Watch sweet clover. It begins to look as if it had a very valuable place among our farm crops.

Horses that are clipped dry off fast at night. This is better than having them stand around in a heavy wet coat.

A teaspoonful of coal tar to a peck of corn, moistened with a little water, is said to be a protection against gophers.

To be on the safe side cabbage plants should be started in soil which has not been previously used for cabbage culture.

The production of pure milk means obtaining the milk under scrupulously clean conditions and handling it in a cleanly manner.

Farmers make more clear money from a flock of hens than from any other livestock, but they are more careless with them.

Much may be done to increase the value of a woodlot by cutting out the unsound or unlikely trees which are crowding more valuable ones.

When buying a sprayer, get one that throws a mist spray, as no other will get the solution uniformly distributed over all parts of the plant.

Where orchard trees have been heavily pruned early in the season, many water sprouts or "suckers" will be apt to grow in the center of the trees.

The chief value of alfalfa meal over alfalfa is that it is all fed up, and thus saves the waste impossible to prevent in woody or coarse alfalfa.

The horses and oxen should be kept in good, thrifty condition, not too fat nor too thin, and this can only be had by regular grain feeding throughout the year.

The fertilization of the crop is only one of the several important considerations in growing a crop: seed, preparation of the soil and cultivation are equally important.

The best way to start in the poultry business is to get a few hens and set them on good eggs. These should always be bought from a reliable breeder and should be from pure-bred stock.

Barnyard manure is the best general fertilizer to use about young fruit trees; care should be taken, however, not to pile it up about the tree trunk as it is liable to burn the bark.

In order that the hen may be able to manufacture eggs she must be given material that will not only build up the wasting tissues, but will also furnish the right ingredients to make the eggs.

A catalpa grove will yield its first crop in about ten years, when each tree should produce one first-class post, one second-class post and two or three stays. From the small and crooked limbs considerable firewood is secured.

The farmer who complains that his hens lay all over the barn is apt to be a man that does not think cleaning the hen-house necessary. Stray eggs indicate the hens do not like home, or nests with mites, abode bugs and mould.

Keep on cultivating the corn.

The foolish man sells his best cows.

Electricity is coming to be a farm possibility.

Carelessness is the greatest cause of failure in farming.

The teeth and the feet of the horse should receive special attention.

Protein, starch, fat, sugar and fiber are the nutrients that make up foods.

A rest just after foaling is worth more to the brood mare than just before.

In building a dairy barn one of the main points is to see that it is light enough.

A good tomato plant should yield 30 pounds or one-half bushel, at a low estimate.

The feet of the horse should be cleaned every morning before he leaves the stable.

Government whitewash will preserve the wood of old buildings more cheaply than paint.

Corn grown to rid land of weeds should be check rowed. On clean land drilling is satisfactory.

A fully ripe tomato taken from the vine will weigh 20 per cent. more than one pulled and ripened indoors.

The new born colt must have milk during the first half hour of its life, or the chances are that it will die.

Apple trees should be sprayed immediately to kill the eggs and the hatching young of the apple aphis.

The west has probably reached its limit in sheep production. Now the native lamb will get better attention.

The churn should be thoroughly scalded and cooled with clean, cold water before the cream is put into it.

It is said that 20 acres of corn put into the silo is worth more in feeding a dairy herd than 30 acres in the crib.

The best dairy cow is the one that will convert the forage raised on the farm into the greatest amount of butter fat.

White pine is one of the most profitable trees to raise, and can be planted to advantage on cutover land or worn-out pastures.

Brush the mud off the cow's udder and flank, then wipe off with damp cloth. You can't strain mud out of milk. Keep it out.

No man or woman to whom the chickens are mere machines to swallow corn and shell out eggs can ever hope to get best results.

There are some excellent dry chick feeds on the market at the present time, ones that are both cheap and possess a good feeding value.

The white grub, or larva of the June beetle, is found in sod land; hence the best preventive is not to plant strawberries on freshly-broken sod.

For black loams, clay and limestone lands, the sod should be deeply plowed in the fall or early part of winter to the depth of six to eight inches.

Tender chickens for table use are a rarity in the cities at practically all seasons in the year, and it seems that this particular demand will never be satisfied.

About 8,000 Dutch farmers are coming to America to settle upon farm lands in Iowa, Illinois and Wisconsin. About 350 have already arrived and all have large families.

For the thrift and product of the hen—to keep her in a good, healthful condition and produce many eggs—both carbonaceous and nitrogenous foods must be used with proper balance.

If chickens are confined in the henhouse until late in the morning they are sure to fly off the roost as soon as it is light and scratch around in the filth, thereby laying the foundation for disease.

A blanched ration, in poultry diet, means a sufficient amount of carbonaceous material in a mixture to counteract any bad results that might arise where an entirely nitrogenous ration is given, and vice versa.

Groom the horses in the morning and rub down at night; bathe the shoulders with cold water both morning and evening; the horse collar should be scraped clean before putting on in the morning.

While it is true that April weather is sometimes a little severe on young chicks, it must not be forgotten that June heat is too. It is really better to be a little too early with chicks for next winter's laying than a little too late.

Chicks hatched under a hen are quite apt to have lice. Do your best to have the sitting hen free from these pests. Sprinkle the nest boxes with insect powder when the eggs are first set and look out for the lice all the way through.

She'll Tell You---Quick!

Just ask your wife which of these two dish pans of cream separator parts she would rather wash. She will tell you quick—the one with the single piece in it. This single, tiny, instantly removable piece is all there is inside.

Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator Bowls

Which Kind for You?

All other separators have heavy, hard to wash, complicated "bucket bowls." The disks in the full dish pan are all from one common "bucket bowl" and are just a sample of the trouble and work of washing "bucket bowls" as compared to washing the Dairy Tubular. Think of washing these disks twice a day. Imagine the chance rust and hard knocks have at such a complicated machine.

Milk skimmed with a Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator is skimmed right—it is the cleanest skimming, quickest skimming, lightest running, longest lived separator built. Bring your wife to see it—inside and outside—and learn how it may double your butter money. The helpful dairy book, "Business Dairying," is yours for the asking.

The Business Principle

of successful lives is the habit of saving, depositing what can be spared in a good bank to meet the emergencies of the proverbial rainy day. A little at a time makes a snug sum in a short time. The Equitable Bank and Trust Co., Walton, Ky., will accept any sum on deposit and pays four per cent. interest on what remains a year, or three per cent for what remains six months. Remittances by mail given prompt response and careful attention. This Bank has assets of over One Hundred Thousand Dollars. We qualify as administrator, executor, trustee, guardian, etc., of estates, which is much more satisfactory than a private individual in such capacity. Mail communications given careful attention. The official statistics of the United States Department of Commerce and Labor for the month of June, 1911, indicate a good sized increase in the volume of foreign leaf tobacco imported into the country, and about a normal import trade in cigars cigarettes and cheroots brought in duty-paid. Products of the Philippine Islands entering duty-free continue to show the same ratio of decrease which has existed for several months past.

Tortured for Fifteen Years.

by a cure-defying stomach trouble that baffled doctors, and resisted all remedies he tried, John W. Modders, of Moddersville, Michigan, seemed doomed. He had to sell his farm and give up work. His neighbors said, "he can't live much longer." "Whatever I ate distressed me," he wrote, "till I tried Electric Bitters, which worked such wonders for me that I can now eat things I could not take for years. Its surely a grand remedy for stomach trouble." Just as good for the liver and kidneys. Every bottel guaranteed. Only 50c at all dealers.

Falls Victim to Thieves.

S. W. Bends, of Coal City, Ala., has a justifiable grievance. Two thieves stole his health for twelve years. They were a liver and kidney trouble. Then Dr. King's New Life Pills throttled them. He's well now. Unrivaled for Constipation, Malaria, Headache, Dyspepsia. 25c at all dealers.

The Kenton county commissioners are thinking seriously of purchasing and making a free road of so much of the Covington and Lexington turnpike as lies in that county. The commissioners realize that it is the best avenue of trade that reaches the city of Covington, and if made free to the county line, that the volume of travel over it will naturally increase and the result will be more patronage for the merchants. People who reach Covington in their wagons and buggies are those upon whom the Covington merchant must rely for his trade, and so long as the city is fenced in by toll gates they cannot expect an increase of travel to their town, hence the move the commissioners are considering.

VISITING CAPT. COBB

CALLERS HAD A GOOD TIME WHEN HE WAS THAWED OUT.

Only Genuine American Resident of Casablanca on the Moroccan Coast Is a Connecticut Skipper Who Lost His Ship.

If an American anywhere along the Moroccan coast announces his intention of visiting Casablanca, somebody will say, declares Mr. Forbes in "The Land of the White Helmet," "Be sure to see Captain Cobb," and Mr. Forbes saw him.

A diminutive follower of the prophet led us to one of Casablanca's institutions, a sawmill and a flour-mill combined. Here lives the one genuine American resident of the town, a Connecticut sea captain who lost his ship off Gibraltar some 30 years ago and who has never gone home. The unfinished structure of Brooklyn bridge is his most distinct recollection of New York city as he last saw it.

Stepping inside the doorway we saw a lean Yankee with white, whisk-broom chin whiskers hammering away on a broken cog wheel. With him was another retired sea dog, Captain Taylor of the Royal Mail.

The Connecticut skipper poised his hammer for a moment while we explained that we were two of his fellow countrymen. We expected when he heard the news he would throw his hammer at the Englishman, seize us in his arms and do a war dance. Instead he spat deliberately and resumed his anvil chorus.

"Take 'em into the sittin' room, Taylor; I'll be along directly," was all he said. Lewis and I looked at each other in a dazed sort of way; then, in silence and without enthusiasm, we followed the Englishman.

He led us into a large room; it was plain New England from ceiling to floor. I began to feel at home. The old captain sauntered in. Miffed by his air of indifference, we began to reach for our hats, after a few commonplace remarks that stuck in our throats. To our surprise, Captain Cobb would not listen to any talk of fairwell; we were going to stay for dinner. He expressed a vigorous opinion regarding Americans who would think of leaving his house without eating with him.

Little by little the old man thawed out. He entertained us with reminiscences of the home land, with incidents that he witnessed during the bombardment of Casablanca, and with stories of the sea. Hours passed before we again reached for our hats, and he reached for his also. He insisted upon closing his mill and escorting us all about the town.

Standing together on the beach, we invited the old captain to come home and see the subways and the 40-story buildings and the old New England hills. He shook his head and pointed to the old mill.

"I reckon I'll weather it out here," he answered.—Youth's Companion.

Not Going That Way.

"Miss Adkins, there is something I desire very much to ask you."

"O, Mr. Williston—I mean Fred—I'm sure I should be delighted to hear—I'm sure I mean, what is there that you can possibly wish to ask me?"

"Would you be willing to go on a long journey with me?"

"A very, very long journey, Fred?"

"Yes, a very, very long journey."

"Yes, I will go with you—of course. I — I suppose it is the journey that a man and a woman take together only once in a lifetime?"

"Well, as a rule, I suppose it wouldn't be taken more than once. You see, my mother and I are thinking of taking a trip to Japan, and she thought it would be nice if I could find someone who would be willing to go as a sort of traveling companion and maid to her in return for having her expenses paid."

"O! — Well, you just tell your homely mother that when I wish to hire out I'll look for some other kind of a job."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Jumping Cocoons.

Many visitors to the southwestern states and Mexico have amused themselves by watching the queer motions of "jumping beans," the seed vessels of a plant, each of which contains the pupa of an insect whose spasmodic movements cause the bean to hop and roll about.

More remarkable are the "jumping cocoons" found in South Africa. The cocoon is formed by the mother insect, and is very hard. The pupa, when ready to emerge, must cut its way out. The front of its head has a sharp, chisel like edge, and by driving this against the inside of the shell it gradually makes a hole. The violent motions of the pupa within cause the cocoon to leap so that one has been seen to spring out of a small glass tumbler.—The Sunday Magazine.

The Place for Butterflies.

"You can't bring that chorus girl into my house."

"Dad, she's the sweetest butterfly on earth."

"All right, let her flutter about in the yard."

None Left.

"I should think with all your money you would have a nice yacht."

"I would, only I can't think of any outlandish name for a yacht that has not already been used."

ONE BROILER WAS MISSING

Rastus Couldn't Bear to See Thirteen at Table, So He Removed One.

Colonel Dobson was making his usual daily tour of his preserves, inspecting the gardens, both flower and vegetable, and had now come to the livestock. As far as the eye could see everything in the stables and the barns was in ship-shape order, and the colonel was somewhat inclined to compliment Rastus on the general condition of matters in his charge, but decided to withhold final commendation until the chicken-coop had been inspected. And here it was that the only noticeable shortcoming was to be found. A careful count of the spring broilers showed that there was one missing. The brood had hatched out some time before just 13 little chicks, and they had safely reached the point where the colonel's mouth watered in anticipation of their immediate service upon his table. Three careful counts demonstrated beyond all question that their number had been reduced by one. Twelve broilers and no more were [illegible] a colonel turned a cold eye upon Rastus.

"There are only 12 broilers here, Rastus," he said, with a steely cut to his voice.

"Yassuh, Cunnell," said Rastus. "Jess 12 nice fat broilers, suh. Mighty fine lot o'chickens, Cunnell."

"There were 13, Rastus," said the colonel, severely.

"Yassuh, dey certainly was dat number, suh," said the old darky.

"Well?" said the colonel, incisively. "Go on."

"Wuh—well, yuh see, Cunnell," stammered the old man. "Ah wanted to save dat air brood foh you table, suh, an' when I done remember, suh, dat 13 am a onlucky numbah, suh, an' found dem 13 broilers a-setting down to deir tables a-eatin' togeddah, suh, Ah jess couldn't set dah mahself and see dem takin' no chances, so I jess done removed one ob 'em, suh."

"Did you kill it?" demanded the colonel.

"Wuh—well, Cunnell, ah—ah wrung his neck, suh, and nacherilly he died," said Rastus.

"And what then?" persisted the colonel.

"Wuh—well, Cunnell," said the old man, with an appealing smile, "yuh know, suh, dey ain't many niggahs as would waste a dead chicken, suh."—Harper's Weekly.

When Genius Becomes Insanity.

Where my eugenic friend goes wrong is in failing to realize that a great many of the maladies which he calls degeneracy are just too much of the highly developed nervous system which is the special endowment of the gifted families, writes J. A. Spangler in Westminster Gazette.

Overcharge the battery ever so little and genius becomes insanity; give one member of the family a volt too much and the delicate balance of physical and mental qualities on which sanity depends is broken down. Extinguish the family and you will rid the world of some degeneration, but you will also and at the same time rob it of some of its most gifted men.

The doctrine of heredity should never be forgotten by parents or remembered by children. To the first it is the assertion of their responsibility; to the second a reminder of their helplessness.

When Sleeping.

It is well to sleep from infancy with the head uncovered, as the hair thus retains its beauty longer. On retiring the hair should be raised high above the ears, without pulling, plaited loosely in a single braid and tied with a silk or cotton ribbon. Avoid wearing starched nightcaps, as the starch is injurious to the hair. When old age approaches it may be well to wear nightcaps.

Brush the hair well, using a soft brush, on going to bed and in the morning. The best brushes are made with short bristles. If the hair is combed from the roots downward without being divided in several parts, much harm may be done to it. The hairs would certainly be broken off, become uneven and could never be made to look cared for. It is an excellent thing to smooth the hair with the hands.

Whistling Stimulated His Courage.

Whistling "Home, Sweet Home," as a substitute for an anesthetic was tried at Clayton when Dr. O. W. Snodgrass probed for a .22 caliber bullet in the back of Perry Ritchie, 11 years old, who was shot accidentally by his companion, Edward Toy, while hunting in the woods near their homes at Spring Avenue Heights.

When asked to "keep up his nerve" the boy started to whistle the refrain. It was necessary to repeat the chorus several times before Dr. Snodgrass succeeded in extracting the bullet. The accident occurred the other morning just after the Toy youth shot and killed an owl. Young Ritchey ran to pick up the bird and was stooping over when Toy tripped and fell. The rifle was discharged and the bullet plowed a furrow four inches long in the boy's back. The wound is not serious.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Devoted to Duty.

"Are you ever coming to bed?" he called out.

"I don't know," she replied. "I promised Mrs. Jones that I'd keep track of her husband while she is away, and I'm going to know what time he comes home, if I have to stay up all night."

TO FIND DEFORMITY

Child's Curved Spine Often Escapes Doctor's Scrutiny.

Dressmakers' Measurements Disclose Defect When the Time for Any Effective Treatment of Trouble Has Passed.

Chicago.—"If your child has a backache and your doctor can't cure it, send for the dressmaker; she knows more than the doctor about crooked backs."

Such is the advice given by Prof. Henry D. Thomas of the Northwestern University Medical school in a lecture to the members of the Chicago Visiting Nurse association at the Wesley hospital.

"In the clinic records there are the histories of 4,000 cases of bowed-legs and 2,000 cases of scoliosis, or curvature of the spine, which were treated in the last ten years," he continued. "In the cases of spinal trouble the disease began when the child was from three to eight years old usually.

"No one knew anything of the disease in many cases until the child was old enough to go to the dressmaker. Then it is too late for any effective treatment. The girl's mother—girls have 75 per cent. of the cases—never sees it, the family doctor overlooks it, and not until the dressmaker begins to do some measuring does the deformity appear. Once started, the process continues with terrible effect.

"The number of children who suffer from this disease is very large. Some estimators state that it is as high as 60 per cent.; others place the figure as low as two per cent. My own calculation, based on an examination of the school children in Chicago, is three per cent. My examinations, however, were made without removing the clothing, and so the real figures may be higher.

"Sometimes the curvature is congenial; sometimes it comes from rickets; often the position which a child assumes in school is the cause. The child has a slight deafness in one ear, an astigmatism in one eye too slight to be noticed, or perhaps is simply weak. Sitting all the time in some crooked position day after day and year after year will develop a good case of curvature.

"The only way to effect a cure is to begin the treatment early. Hence mothers, family physicians and nurses should examine children very carefully, and especially carefully when the child complains of some weakness or shows signs of being always tired."

NEST OF PASSENGER PIGEONS

Pair of Birds of Race Almost Extinct Raising Young—Specimens Worth $1,000 Apiece.

Independence, Mo.—What is believed to be a pair of passenger pigeons, supposed to be almost extinct in this country, where once there were millions of them, has been found in the deep woods east of Independence, and members of the Independence patrol of boy scouts are guarding the nest until the young are hatched. After that, probably, the birds will be taken and efforts made to propagate them under conditions as nearly as possible in their wild state.

The only other known survivors of the once vast flocks of these pigeons are, or were until recently, in the zoological gardens at Cincinnati, O.

Ornithologists here say that if the birds now being guarded are real passenger pigeons they are worth at least $1,000 apiece. For fear of frightening them away, no effort has been made to observe them closely, but from what the ornithologists have been able to see of them with field glasses they have every characteristic of the true passenger pigeon. Their color is a dark, slaty blue on top, fading off to a soft brownish tinge underneath.

The pasenger pigeons once were so plentiful in this locality that they could be killed with clubs, and during their migrations so many of them were killed that they sold as low as 50 cents a barrel.

BOY WAS LISTED AS A GIRL

Lockport (N. Y.) Youth Must Continue as "Maid" Until He Can Locate Doctor Who Made Mistake.

Lockport, N. Y.—When James Clark, son of Thomas Clark, called at the city clerk's office to get a certificate of birth that he might go to work, he found that the records show that he is a girl and that his name is Carrie.

Assistant City Clerk Fitzsimmons dug into the records of the day of James' birth and found that Carrie, a daughter, had been born to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clark.

The mistake evidently was caused by the doctor in filing the certificate.

So James must continue to be a girl on the records until he finds the doctor.

Kerosene Life Preserver.

Pine Bush, N. Y.—James H. Lawrence, who has just celebrated his ninety-first birthday, holds the record of having been employed by the Ontario & Western railroad for thirty years as a cleaner of engines. During that period Lawrence and his assistants cleaned 70,000 engines, using a large quantity of kerosene in the work, which the aged man claims prolonged his life.

HIS JOB A HARD ONE

RED-HEADED OFFICE BOY WAILS ABOUT HIS FATE.

Shifted the "Long Guy" From Room to Room in Effort to Do Duty and Then Was Scolded by the Boss.

"That job of mine is awful tough," said the red-headed office boy, slumping down dejectedly. He reached for a piece of pie on the quick lunch counter, while his friend of an adjoining office peeled an orange.

"All jobs is tough," commented the other boy.

"You bet," agreed the injured one. "I ain't done a thing this mornin' but be hollered at somethin' fierce."

"What's he jumpin' on you now for?" inquired the other boy, with growing interest. "Some extra kick, or just th' regular grouch like all bosses has?"

The red-headed boy shook his head gloomily. "Extra kick this time," he said, "an' all about nothin', too. You know yourself how they're always poundin' it into a feller that he ain't to let in them book agents an' irrigated land sharps an' guys without an appointment, an' all that?"

"Sure," said the other boy.

"Well," went on the aggrieved one, "at a quarter t' 'leven this mornin' a gent walkz into th' office an' asks for th' boss. He's a long guy with a sort o' grin in his eye, an' before I knowed what I was doin' I'd showed him into the boss' private office, an' tells him the boss is out, but for him to wait. The gent says, 'Much obliged' an' sits down comfortable an' pulls a book out of his pocket.

"Then o' course it hits me what a fool trick I done in showin' him in there. So I fusses around outside, figurin' out what I oughta do about it. Pretty soon I goes in an' finds the feller readin' his book. 'Excuse me, mister,' I says. 'I'll show you into Mr. Simms' office. That's the boss' secretary.'

"'All right,' says the gent real pleasant, 'just as you please.' Cleanin' day in here?'

"'Nope,' says I. But I shows him into Simms' office, that joins the boss'. Then I fusses around some more in the waitin' room, an' after awhile I thinks to myself that just as likely as not the boss is goin' to fire me for lettin' that guy in there at all, so I walks in again.

"'I hope you'll excuse me, mister,' I says. 'The boss is likely to come in any time an' I wisht you'd just step into Mis' Adams' room.'

"The feller sets an' looks at me for a minute an' his face gets solemn.

"'Shall I not be—er—inconveniencin' the lady?' says he.

"'Nope,' says I. 'She's out to lunch.'

"So he gets up an' follers me into th' s'nographer's room, an' I let's him set there—me expectin' to get called down for it at that. An' then all of a sudden I think to myself how Mis' Adams leaves her rubbers an' her pocket book lyin' around loose half th' time, an' how suspicious th' boss is. I know this here guy ain't no thief, but I'm feelin' desprit, so in I goes an' braces up to him again.

"'I hope you'll excuse me, mister,' I says. 'Y'understand how it is, but we've been missin' inkstands an' paperweights around here lately an' I wisht you'd let me show you into the waitin' room, where it's nice an' warm,' says, to be polite.

"The gent don't say a word, but he begins to cough, violent. He gets up an' follers me into the outside office, an' just then in walks th' boss, an' he jumps over an' shakes th' gent by th' hand an' leads him into his private room. An' pretty soon I hears th' long guy in there roar out laughin' fit to bust."

The red-headed boy swallowed the last of his pie with a gulp. "An' then," he ended bitterly, "after all my trouble the boss comes out in half an hour an' jaws me because the long gent was one of our best customers. The boss called me a red head, too," he added, "an' me hair ain't red. Me sister sez it's awburn."

Just Like a Vacation.

An eminent English physician stands authority for the statement that if any one will spend twenty-four hours continuously in bed he will secure the equivalent, in health giving results, of a week's vacation of the ordinary kind.

Those unfortunately so situated that they will be unable to take a vacation can try the remedy. Almost everyone has one full day in the week which he can make a day of absolute rest, should he choose. But the majority of those who are in a position to take vacations will doubtless continue to do so, and they will do well thereby.

There is something more in a vacation than a mere resting of the tired muscles and mind from the strain of daily labor. The great advantage is that it affords a relatively long break in the monotony of daily life.

NOTHERN MOB BURNS NEGRO

Women Assist In Wreaking Vengeance.

Taken From Hospital and Fired In Bed.

Coatesville, Pa., Aug. 13.—Zachariah Walker, a negro desperado, was carried on a cot from the hospital here to-night and burned to a crisp by a frenzied mob of men and boys. The negro, who last night shot and killed Edgard Rice, a special policeman of the Worth Iron Mills, was first dragged to the scene of the shooting, begging piteously for mercy.

He had been arrested by a posse late this afternoon after a search which had stirred the countryside. When the posse finally located him he was found hiding in a cherry tree and with the last bullet in his revolver shot himself in the mouth, falling from the tree. He was removed to the hospital and placed under guard.

A few minutes after 9 o'clock a crowd numbering almost 1,000 persons appeared at the hospital. The leaders were denied admission, but they quickly smashed the window frames and crawled through the corridor. When Walker was first taken to the hospital he was strapped down in order to prevent his escape. The mob seeing this, gathered up the bed and, placing it on the shoulders of four men, started for the country.

When half a mile from the hospital they entered a field and quickly gathering up a pile of dry grass and weeds, placed the bed containing their victim upon it.

A match was applied and the flames shot up quickly, entirely enshrouding the screaming victim. That not a vestige of the murderer be left, the mob tore down the fence along the road and piled the rails upon the burning negro.

After waiting for half an hour the mob dispersed. A curious feature of the burning was the fact that there were almost as many women in the crowd as men.

During the march from the hospital to the scene of the burning of the negro not a policeman was encountered by the mob. Even a man on duty in the hospital made no effort to stop the leaders who had gained admittance to the institution.

The only mask worn by the members of the mob were handkerchiefs drawn over their faces.

Coatesville is a town of about 10,000 persons, and is located on the main line of the Pennsylvania railroad about thirty miles west of Philadelphia.

COMING HOME

To Celebrate the Completion of the Fern Bank Dam.

Not only Cincinnatians, but former residents of other sections of the Ohio Valley are preparing to make a flight homeward during the week of Monday, September 4th, when the business men and citizens generally of Cincinnati will celebrate the completion of the Fern Bank Dam, providing a week of free entertainment such as has never before been offered anywhere in this section. In sending out their 250,000 invitations to former residents of Cincinnati and vicinity, asking them to "Come Home" during the week named in order to visit old friends, renew old acquaintances, and to see how the city has progressed in recent years, the Fern Bank Dam Celebration Association has not neglected to request these former Cincinnatians to ask other erstwhile residents of the Ohio Valley to come along as the celebration is in honor of the completion of the Fern Bank Dam and lock, which will give Cincinnati a continuance stage of nine feet of navigable water, and will redound to the benefit of the entire valley, from Pittsburg to Cario. The celebration will begin on Monday, with a reception to distinguished visitors and a "Home Coming Meeting" at Music Hall at night. On Tuesday there will be a steamboat parade of all craft in the harbor to the Dam, and return, with other amusements at night. Wednesday will be Covington, Ky. Day, the citizens across the river providing ample entertainment for visitors, while the Cincinnati feature will be bands and contests in the morning and afternoon and a $3,000 display of fireworks at night, Thursday will bring on the parade of several hundred decorated pleasure boats, with band concerts at night. Friday there will be motor boat races on the river and an allegorical street pageant at night, while on the final day, Saturday, September 9th, there will be automobile road races of from 125 to 250 miles over a 7-mile course, and a number of aeroplane flights.

A CHALLENGE.—The Burlington base ball club, which, for six years, have been the undisputed champion of the county, does hereby challenge any club or any combination of clubs in the county for a series of games to be played on any grounds in the county. Series to be played in September.

HOME BUTTERMAKING

By M. A. Scovell, Director, Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station.

There is always a surfeit of inferior butter bringing from ten to fifteen cents per pound and scarcely fit for use. First-class creamery butter always finds a ready market at double the price of the ordinary country butter.

The creamery butter maker knows how to manage the cream and churn the butter, removing the buttermilk without overworking the butter, and he puts the product up in neat packages. Often he has dirty milk and cream to work with, conditions which he cannot control and which may be regulated by the home buttermaker, who by observing a few principles in preparing and putting up the butter can obtain creamery prices and often better.

The heat is the greatest difficulty at this time of the year and frequently causes the cream to be churned at a high temperature or makes the cream over ripe before churning, which causes strong butter. Buttermaking without a thermometer is guess work. A floating dairy themometer may be bought for twenty-five cents and is almost indispensable.

Cream ripened until distinctly sour will churn out more butter than sweet cream. The churning should not be delayed, however, until the cream is over ripe. A temperature of 65 degrees to 68 degrees will ripen cream in six to eight hours at this season, but the cream must be cooled to 58 to 60 degrees before churning. A satisfactory method is to keep the cream in spring water at 58 to 60 degrees for 24 hours, stirring frequently. The proper churning temperature in summer is about 58 to 60 degrees and in winter 60 to 62 degrees. In other words, use a temperature for churning that will bring the butter in not less than thirty minutes, preferably in about thirty-five or forty minutes. This insures a firm butter and the removal of all the butter from the buttermilk. Warm cream churns quickly but not completely. Difficult churning in winter is generally caused by unripened cream, churned too cold.

Do not over churn, but stop when the butter is in granules the size of wheat or slightly larger. Never "gather" butter for this incorporates buttermilk in the mass, necessitating over working, and destroys the body of the butter, making it soft and oily, and preventing it from keeping well.

Butter is frequently ruined by trying to work out the buttermilk and water. Buttermilk should be washed out and not worked out. When the butter has come to the granular form, drain out the buttermilk from the bottom of the churn through a strainer or fine colander; wash the butter down with cold clean water, tipping the churn back and forth three or four times for each operation as long as any buttermilk remains. If the butter is too soft to work, use wash water a few degrees colder than the buttermilk. Allow the butter to stand in the water until firm. When the water is drained out, salt the granular butter in the churn, for this method insures the holding of the water and the distribution of the salt more evenly and also requires less working. Work with a large butter roll, or if more convenient, work in the churn. It may be finished with a worker or in a wooden bowl. Working should cease when the salt is well mixed. More working is injurious.

The water should be left in the butter, as this makes better butter, more of it, and causes it to stand up like creamery butter. Fourteen to 15 per cent of water is desirable, and will not be exceeded unless the butter is very soft, and warm wash water is used.

Obtaining granules will be impossible with warm cream that churns in ten to fifteen minutes, or with high geared dashers in the churn. Use a hollow churn without dashers or paddles. A barrel, box or swing churn is satisfactory. Square or rectangular molds are best, being most easily wrapped and packed. Avoid waxed paper; use parchment only. A satisfactory one-pound mold can be obtained for forty cents. The hand separator will insure more and better butter than hand skimming. Cream testing 30 to 35 per cent butter fat is most readily churned.

A number of Kentucky dairies using these methods are selling butter for a higher price than the creameries because they make better butter.

Hay Fever, Asthma and Summer Colds

Must be relieved quickly and Foleys' Honey and Tar Compound will do it. F. M. REPORT

Of the Financial Standing of The Burley Tobacco Society and the Burley Tobacco Company.

From the statement filed at the meeting of the Burley Tobacco Society Company held in Lexington on the 9th and 10th inst. the following summary is made:

Total receipts $7,336,167.19
Total disbursements 721,581.51 leaving a balance of $70,355.60 on hand. The society has on hand 25,000 hogsheads unsold which at values at $3,000,000.

The statement says that after paying the company's 10 per cent in full there will be an estimated balance for an average distribution of 13 per cent.

The report shows the estimated net earnings of the Burley Tobacco Society Company to be $328,531.51 and the stock to be worth 132 if the company is continued and 115 if the company is discontinued, the difference being the loss on realestate.

The Committee on Pooling Plan submits the following report:

We recommend to the District Board that the tobacco be pooled on a ten-year contract by pooling the farms, but where a pooler owns more than one body of land, he can pool as many as he chooses, but must pool all that joins; with the understanding that the tenants can pool their one-half in crops grown on pooled farms at any time prior to the division of said crop or crops. With the further understanding that the landlords can take one-half of their one-half interest, or one-fourth of the entire crop in stock in the Burley Tobacco Company, or some other company to be organized for the purpose of manufacturing or handling tobacco, or doing any other kind of business that might prove to be for the best interests of the growers and with the understanding that the pool is declared on from the time the second signature goes on paper. The idea being to manufacture at least one-fourth of the tobacco grown on pooled farms. All the pooled tobacco not invested in the Company on pooled farms. All the pooled tobacco not invested in the Company stock shall be commingled and sold by the Burley Tobacco Society, either on the hogshead or loose leaf markets, or privately. Then, should the tenant desire to pool his one-half interest and not care to take any stock in the Company, he should not be forced to do so, and in that event, he would receive his fifty per cent. of the net proceeds of the 75 per cent of the pooled crop, or two-thirds of the net proceeds of the 75 per cent. of the pooled tobacco The tenant could take any amount of stock in the company he might choose, provided it does not exceed twenty-five per cent. of the entire crop.

We further recommend that the Burley Tobacco Company be continued and that it will be for the best interests of the Company and in our judgment, profitable to the stockholdere, to invest the net earnings when the tobacco is all closed out, that is, the old pooled tobacco, in an insurance company, one-half of which should be in stock, and one-half in surplus and thereby not only save to the poolers and stockholders an immense profit going to other insurance companies, but also be in a position to insure any property which the stockholders may have in the way of residence, barns, merchandise, as well as any other property inside the border of the State of Kentucky. Then, the remainder of the real capital of the Burley Tobacco Company could be used not only in manufacturing tobacco, but to protect the best interests of the Burley in manufacturing tobacco, but to protect the best interests of the Burley growers in the way of handling not only pooled tobacco, but unpooled; and they could establish sales warehouses, more re-driers and up-to-date storage houses.

We recommend to the District Board that the day be set for closing the pool not later than January 1st, 1912.

We further recommend that if this plan should meet with the approval of the District Board, that it be referred to our attorneys for their approval.

We further recommend that the pool may be declared off at any time by a two-thirds vote of the original signers or their heirs.

The following motions made by Mr. LeBus were seconded and adopted:

First—That a separate contract be presented so that members in the present Burley Tobacco Company not desiring to pool, could sign, leaving their stock intact for ten years unless dissolved sooner by a two-thirds vote of the stockholders.

Second—From present crop conditions, it would be unwise to dispose of any of our 1909 pooled tobacco on the present low market.

Third—That we add to the pledge a clause showing that each signer agrees to leave his stock in the Burley Tobacco Company from the 1909 crop for a period of ten years, unless dissolved sooner by a two-third vote.

Mr. Ferguson then answered the question, why the sales of the 1909 pooled tobacco had been discontinued. He stated that the Federal investigation of the American Tobacco Company had established the fact that the American Tobacco Company manufactures 90 per cent of the Burley tobacco grown, and that at present the American Tobacco Company is not buying tobacco. The average price of Burley tobacco now selling on the city markets is $6.50 per hundred

In view of the short crop of 1911, the price of tobacco is certain to advance, when the manufacturing interests adjust to changed conditions. It would therefore, be bad business to sacrifice the remainder of the 1908 pooled crop.

Newspaper Work.

Editing a newspaper in some respects is a good deal like preaching. The gospel truth must be presented in the form of generalities or some fellow will get hit and howl, says a recent writer. Few persons like the truth, even in homeopathic doses, if it hits them. But while preachers and editors are criticised for what they do say, no one thinks of giving them credit for what they do not say. Yet what they keep to themselves constitutes the major portion of what they know about people. Very many people harbor the belief that newspapers are eager to publish derogatory things. It's a mistake, says the Maffett (Colo.) News. There isn't a newspaper that could survive printing a knock in the community at any time by merely telling what it knows. There is not a newspaper that does not keep under the lock of secrecy scores of derogatory things which never meet the public eye nor reach the public ear. Deciding what not to print is the most troublesome part of newspaper work. How many good stories are suppressed for innocent relatives and for the public good nobody outside a newspaper office has any idea of. In some instances he who flies into a passion because a newspaper prints something about him which he considers uncomplimentary has every reason to feel profoundly grateful to the newspaper for publishing so little of what it knows of him. And oft times the loudest bluffer is the most numerable to attack. A big noise is often a device employed to cover trepidation. News papers put up with more bluffing than any agency on earth, and endure. It is not because they lack courage; it is because they are unwilling to use their power to destroy or ruin unless the interests of society imperatively demand it. It might be well for some people to reflect upon these facts and in silent gratitude accept mild admonition lest worse befall them.

It costs a country newspaper money every time it takes a stand on any question. Almost any citizen besides a newspaper man can do it without injuring his business. If the editor advocates improvements the scoreheads go after him and sometimes stop their paper. If he opposes improvements the progressive sort get on him and call him a back number or a knocker. If he publishes politics the opposition gets in to his hair, and if he does not he is charged with being afraid to stand out for his opinion. If he condemns mail order houses, there are some people who ask him to attend to his own business, as they have a right to trade where they please. If he publishes a mail order ad. some of the merchants are after his gore. No country paper can come out squarely without making enemies and losing money, and in the run of a year or more will incur some criticism from everybody. The newspaper that hankers to please everybody will please nobody; if it is honest and sincere and thoughtful, the public will respect it.—Ex.

The Stability of this Country.

From time to time we have had war, earthquakes, bitter partisan fights among our own people together with other ills and yet our country has pulled nobly thru it all growing stronger, upon a firmer foundation. It has increased in population to nearly a hundred million, providing for them liberally and furnishing millions of dollars worth of products to other nations keeping the trade balance in our favor. Our prosperity has carried us up safely on until our nation is respected by all the world, our school system planned after and our business principles imitated. Each citizen has cause to be proud because the responsibility rests upon each individual. The country is either better or worse for any one to have lived in it. Our banks are strong, our factories are many, the greatness of our agriculture cannot be imagined. All brought about by industry and education along progressive lines. In our schools are taught lessons that safeguard our nation and make it strong. The principles shed out in example from our constitution of liberty and protection for all of both life and property, welcoming people from all the world to come and build their homes among us, after which they become one of us and are willing to give their lives for their adopted nation and from out the homes of a satisfied people comes our stability.—Ex.

Why Editors Get Rich.

After long and careful research, much reflection and prayerful consideration, a great deal of worry and study, we have at last figured out how so many country editors get rich. Here is the secret to their success. There is a child born in the neighborhood. The attending physician gets $10. The editor gives the loud-lunged youngster a great send-off and gets $5. It is christened and the minister gets $5 and the editor gets $00. It grows and marries. The editor publishes another long-winded, fawning article and tells a dozen lies about "the beautiful and accomplished bride." The minister gets $10 and a piece of cake the editor gets $000 and a request to carry the groom's subscription account another year. In the course of time she dies. The doctor gets from $5 to $100. The editor publishes a notice of her death and an obituary two columns long, lodge resolutions, a lot of poetry and a card of thanks, and gets $2.50. No wonder so many country editors get rich.—Ex.

Indians will take the lead this year in the production of onions. It is said there are many more than 1,200 acres of Indiana soil planted in onions this year and that the state will ship 1,-200,000 bushels this season.

The Supply Not Equal to the Demand.

This county never has too many mules. There is always a buyer at a fair price for every mule that is raised. They are easy to raise and hard to kill off by hard work, so at each end of their lives they are money makers, according to government estimates the average farm price of mules in this country has always been higher than the average farm price of horses. There is not so much value put upon the best mules for show and advertising purposes as upon the best horses, and on the other hand, there are probably not so many plugs among mules as among horses. Privation and hardship are borne bravely by the mule. His spirit is seldom in an ecstasy of exhuberant enthusiasm, nor does it succumb to the discouragement of an unremitting grind of toil. Patient and equable in temper and hardy in body, the mule is fitted for the hardest, most wearing kind of labor. Is it any wonder that market prices reflect his wide appreciation? So great is the demand for mules that parties on the Pacific coast have recently been investigating the feasibility of importing mules from China.

Loss of Time Means Loss of Pay.

Kidney trouble and the ills it breeds means lost time and lost pay to many working men. M. Belenti, 1214 Labile Penna St., Ill., was so bad from kidney and bladder trouble that he could not work, but he says: "I took Foley Kidney Pills for only a short time and got entirely well and was soon able to go back to work, and am feeling well and healthier than before." Foley Kidney Pills are tonic in action, quick in results—a good friend to the working man or woman who suffers from kidney ills. For sale by Jones' Drug Store, Walton, Ky.

NORTHWESTERN CANADA

Boone County Man Visits This Great Agricultural Section

And Tells of Its Charms and Attractions.—Nights Only Three Hours Long.

[BY D. B. WALLACE.]

Having just returned from an extended trip through Western Canada and believing that an account of the journey would be interesting to the readers of the Recorder, we will give to them a slight idea of the greatness of the country of which our people have but little conception.

In company with J. G. Tomlin, of Walton, a visit of about three weeks was made in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the richest small grain growing sections in the world. Winnipeg, the capital of Manitoba, the first important city in Western Canada after leaving the United States, via St. Paul, is an up-to-date city of about 150,000, starting with a population of 241 in 1871. It has all the modern improvements and its citizenship is highly enlightened.

The next important point in our line of travel was Regina, the capital of the province of Saskatchewan, almost a new city of about 25,000. Here the provincial fair, or exhibition as it is called, was in progress. It was fully up to our Kentucky State Fair in exhibits of livestock, agricultural products, farm machinery, fancy horses, though the heavy draft horses predominated, being the kind most generally used in Canada.

The new Parliament House, a beautiful structure equalling our State Capitol, is just being completed, and greatly resembles our State Capitol, and is used for about the same purpose. Although a new city real estate is very high, lots ranging from $500 to $3,000 a front foot in the principal parts of the city. The population is about 25,000 and is increasing very rapidly. Moose Jaw, a city of about 20,000 in the same province, is a strong rival, and real estate there is in about the same proportion in price. Medicine Hat and Swift Current both attract attention as thriving cities in Saskatchewan in the southern part, and Saskatoon rivals Regina in the northern part of Saskatchewan. In the Province of Alberta the city of Calgary is a marvel of growth and enterprise. From a little hamlet it has grown to be a city of nearly 50,000 in a few years. Coal mines are situated close to Calgary and add much to its importance. The capital of the Province of Alberta is Edmonton, and, with the exception of Winnipeg, is the most important city in Western Canada in promise, and we believe, general business interests. Three transcontinental railroad lines pass thru this city and make it a divisional point. Besides, Edmonton is apparently the gate-way to the great Peace River country extending to nearly 600 miles to the north and within the Arctic circle. The Peace River country is just being opened up for settlement, and is said to be the finest grain-growing section of the world. People are going there in large numbers. Railroads are being projected into that country, and one line has about 50 miles of steel laid in the direction of Athabasca Landing, to which point a stage ride of about 40 miles is necessary, where a boat is taken on the Athabasca river, six steamboats of the sternwheel type taking care of the business during the summer season. At the end of the boat journey an overland trip of about 14 days reaches the Grand Prairie, the heart of this fertile country. In the summer the weather is warm and the grain grows very rapidly. During that period there is only about two hours of night, the sun setting about 11 o'clock and rising about 1 o'clock. The Chinook winds from the Pacific coast make it a very mild climate except in midwinter when the thermometer will register from 40 to 60 degrees below zero. Those who have been there claim this section to be the paradise for the sportsman seeking fish and game. The class of people going there are inured to hardship and do not pay much attention to the weather conditions. There is no rain in the winter and the snow is dry and light, with no moisture in the atmosphere the cold at 40 degrees below zero with little change in temperature in that part of Canada is felt no more keenly than zero weather in this quarter with the variable changes. While there is not over one per cent of the land in Saskatchewan and Alberta under cultivation, yet most of the land in other settled parts of these Provinces has all been taken up by homestead or preemption, or bought by speculators, outside of that reserved for schools, a section in every township, or that given to the railroads, approximating millions of acres, and for the purpose of getting cheap land many are going into the Peace River country, believing that railroads will soon be built to that country.

Many of the people who went into the Provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta within the past ten years have become wealthy through the advance in the price of land. Homesteaders acquired 160 acres and preempted 160 acres, and then bought land as they could at from $1 to $8 per acre. The land is now selling at from $20 to $60 per acre, and is still considered cheap. One man who endured the hardships of the pioneer, starting in very poor, has acquired six sections of land that he can close out for $160,000, it being situated close to the market and of fine producing quality. But the hardships of the early settlers can hardly be realized now. Many were frozen to death, and the suffering was extreme. There was no coal accessable, and wood had to be hauled from 60 to 100 miles by the settlers themselves. Sod houses about four feet in thickness were built by the early settlers, and many lived in these houses all winter without fire. But the new era is on and most of the old settlers have forgotten their hardships in the possession of the stream of gold that is pouring in on them. Most of the western part of Canada is level flat prairie land. The other part is covered with shrubs and small trees. The rain fall is very light and comes in the months of May, June, July, chiefly, and there is hardly any swamp land. The prairie land is cultivated in wheat, oats, flax, barley, and the broken land is used for mixed farming. Wheat produces from 20 to 50 bushels per acre, oats from 60 to 100 bushels, flax from 8 to 25 bushels. Much of the land is broken by a gang of from 8 to 12 plows drawn by a steam or gasoline traction engine. Many attach behind the plows disc harrows and behind that the seeder, doing all the work at one time. This method is used chiefly in sowing flax. For the other grain it is best to summer fallow the land, breaking and harrowing it carefully again in spring when the seed is put in. For breaking the land the traction engine owner charges from 4.50 to $5 per acre. One man with a little help can easily handle a section of land. Horses are used, but not so much land can be handled. The Percheron horse is used chiefly and costs about $600 for a span of good ones. A few mules are used but a good pair will cost $1,000 to $1,200. Oxen are also used for hauling and plowing, hitched in harness the same as horses, without a yoke. They cost $200 per pair, and are sure bnt slow. Wheat sells for 90c to $1; flax from $2 to $3 per bushel; oats 30 to 40c., but nearly all the oats are used for feeding purposes. Potatoes grow abundantly as do most other vegetables, with the exception of those requiring a very warm climate; sugar corn of the early variety does very well.

We spent a couple of days with Clarence W. Worthington and wife, and Chas. G. Worthington and wife who have about a section of land near Ronleau, Saskatchewan, and was most pleasantly entertained and heartily welcomed. Their brothers, Wm. and Melvin Worthington, are farming with them, and Lee Blackburn, of Zion Station, is also in the same locality. Chas. Worthington has been in Canada about three years and Clarence Worthington went there a little over two years ago. The boys farm in partnership. Their fine crops brought in the neighborhood of $5,000, and this year it will sell for $10,000. They have 16 horses and all necessary farm implements, representing an investment of not less than $6,000. They have every promise of being rich men in a few years as they are hard workers. The Kentucky home is still very dear to them and Clarence and his wife and baby will spend part of the winter with his father, M. L. Worthington, near Elliston Station. The land is very rich near Ronleau, being a black gumbo soil, and it is very hard to plow, and especially to break from the prairie. The land in Alberta and in western Saskatchewan is of lighter quality, and chocolate color. It is all very productive, and the more it is cultivated the more heavily it produces, the weeds being kept down by cultivation of the land. The moisture is conserved by the deep freezing of the soil during the winter season, when the ground is frozen to the depth of six to seven feet. The top part under the influence of the sun and seeding time germinates the seed, and as the days grow warmer the lower strata of frost thaws and gives up its moisture to the surface and the plant food thrives without the assistance of much additional rain, especially as the clay subsoil underlying all the land helps to retain all of the moisture.

The crops are something beyond comprehension. While there is not two per cent of all of the land under cultivation, yet last year with what was considered a small crop the money realized from the sale of the crop produced a percapita of $150, and this year the crop will produce in money $250 for every man, woman and child in Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba and in round numbers will produce two hundred millions of dollars for wheat alone.

During the whole trip through Canada we never met a single "kicker." Everybody was a "booster" for Canada, from the native to the last arrival from the "States." You cannot find anyone in Canada who favors annexation to the United States. Even the Americans say that Canada has better laws and a more rigid enforcement, no graft or dishonesty in public office, and better general conditions. There is a thorough Democratic spirit among the people, and all are courteous and polite, and the morals are good. Sunday is a day respected in every way by the closing of all business and even the running of local trains is prohibited. The train that starts on its journey Saturday can go on through, but no train for local points can be operated. Churches are well attended. The finest school buildings and colleges are found there and in any country district where twelve children can be gotten togther the Government will build a school house and furnish a competent teacher. The land for schools is divided beween the Catholics and Protestants for iseparate schools.

In Alberta the principal cities own all the public franchises, such as lighting, street cars, water and general utilities. All have good electric car systems, and the Calgary street car line turned over to the city last month a net earning of $6,000. The absence of any dishonesty makes the system perfectly satisfactory to the people. The single tax system also prevails in Alberta, and it appears to be satisfactory to the people. Only the land and lots are taxed. If a person owned a lot in Edmonton and erected a $100,000 structure on it he would have no tax to pay, on anything but the lot at the same price that his less enterprising neighbor would have to p ay on the vacant lot he owns adjacent to his property. The argument is that the owner of real estate should not be taxed for his enterprise in improving it, and the system will encourage others to put up good property. All of the towns had handsome buildings, and several eight and ten story steel structures are in course of construction in Edmonton on lots on Jasper Avenue that cost from $2,000 to $4,000 a front foot One corner occupied by a church building on a lot 80x140 sold for $192,000 It was in the residence district but the business quarter has invaded that territory There are not less than 500 houses in course of construction in Edmonton alone, and Saskatoon almost equals the record Five room houses rent from $25 to $40 per month. Laborers get $2.50 per day. There was no evidence of poverty anywhere and everybody seemed to be happy and contented, but all concede it is very cold there in winter, yet many contend that they do not feel the cold there as much as in the northern States.

Everybody seemed to be loyal to Canada, and while it is under the jurisdiction of England, no one seemed to consider England as a part of it

The agricultural classes of Western Canada are all for the Reciprocity pact which most of Eastern Canada, and especially the manufacturers are opposed to the reciprocity agreement with the United States, many holding that it is the first step to annexation to the United States, which no Canadian desires

The Canadian election to determine the matter takes place September 21st, and the knowing ones say it will carry. If it does land in Western Canada will increase from $5 to $10 per acre in value and there will be a heavy immigration from all the northwestern States to the cheap lands of Canada, where taxes are low, in many instances not over $14 per year for a section of land, 640 acres, and as stated above there is no tax on improvements or personal property

The banks are all controlled by the government and there are no private banks of Montreal, Toronto, Quebec, etc

No one but a hotel keeper is permitted to have a bar to sell intoxicating liquors, and while there is a great deal of drinking there appears to be very little drunkenness and no disorderly conduct We met many fine people in every city from every part of the country, and the general impression seemed to be that Canada was but in its infancy and it would soon be one of the wealthiest and greatest of the western countries, and we feel that as a reward for their enterprise and general good qualities the people there are deserving of all the prosperity before them

Kentucky and Kentuckians stand well everywhere, and their affection for each other is a marked feature The genuine Kentucky greeting came from all of the Kentuckians met on the trip, and one of the most pleasant meetings was with Mrs. W. R. Ingram and her sister Miss Posey of Winnipeg, formerly of Paducah Mrs. Ingram's husband is in charge of the traffic department of Swift & Co's meat supply corporation, and Miss Posey was enjoying a visit to the great northwest.

The time is one hour earlier than in this quarter and it is not dark until 9.30 when a newspaper can be easily read The base ball games begin there at 6:30 to 7 o'clock p m. and the game is easily finished before dark sets in.

LOCUST GROVE.

Geo. Batchelor and son Jessie attended the Enterprise fair.

Everett Bruce spent Saturday night and Sunday with his brother, James, on Woolper.

Arthur Terrill left, Monday, for Kansas City, where he will make his future home with his daughter Mrs. Laws.

Willie White and Cleve Aylor, of Woolper, are pressing hay in this neighborhood. They are said to be experts.

Miss Nellie Kirkpatrick, who has been visiting her brother, Elmer, returned to her home in Burlington, Sunday.

P. E. Bruce and wife entertained at dinner Sunday, Marion Bruce, wife and daughter and Elbert Sullivan, of Woolper, and Elmer Jarrell, of Aurora ferry.

A great many melons are coming in from Belleview bottoms, in search of a country market.

GALVESTON, INDIANA.

Where The Recorder Go He Can Get The News From His Old Kentucky Home.

In remitting for the Recorder, John L. Conner, of Galveston, Ind., writes:

"As I have not seen anything but a Republican paper for a long time, I feel that I would like to hear what the Democrats are saying. Enclosed you will find P. O order for your valuable paper for one year. This is a great country, but I can't say that I like it as well as old Kentucky. Everything here is so different. It seems that I can't get used to it. I am now engaged in the ice business with my brother-in-law, and am trying to raise some pigs. I did not put out any tobacco this year. I shipped my last year's crop to Cincinnati, last winter, and, as you know, tobacco was very low, so I concluded to cut it out. This is a fine country though. One can see more corn, oats and wheat here in one week than you would see in old Boone in six months. The farmers here farm all their land. A farm of 160 acres here won't have enough grass to keep two cows. This little town, Galveston, is a thrifty place. There are two elevators, a lumber yard, four grocery stores, two dry good stores, three blacksmith shops, drug store, one hardware store and three that handle merchandise, 4 churches and one of the finest school houses I expect in the State, for the size of the place. It cost $35,000 and has the very latest heating apparatus. The cemetery here is said to be second to the nicest in the State. We are about half way between Cincinnati and Chicago, about 13 miles from Kokomo and 16 miles from Logansport. This country is full of automobiles, nearly every farmer having one. We live between two pikes that lead to town, and near the railroad so we have plenty of noise."

MORE INVESTIGATING.

International Harvester Co., to Be Investigated by Congress at Its Next Regular Session.

Washington, August 15.—Another comprehensive Congressional investigation, this time into the the affairs of the International Harvester Company, will be under way during the next regular session of Congress if a resolution introduced by Representative Foster, of Illinois, is passed by the House. Mr Foster suggests an investigation by a committee of nine members of the House, to be elected in the same way as the committees of inquiry into the so-called Steel and Sugar Trusts.

The Foster resolution was referred to the Rules Committee. It contemplates a determination as to whether the Harvester Company has violated the provisions of the Sherman antitrust law, either by the relation of the company to its subsidiary companies and corporations or otherwise.

Many questions would come with in the scope of the inquiry, it is said. Among them would be whether the Harvester Company has destroyed or restricted competition; whether it has increased the prices on farm implements or machinery and what has been its policy in obtaining control of the Keystone Manufacturing Company, the D. M Osborne Harvester Company and other independent concerns.

The committee also would be expected to go into the relation of the company to socalled independent concerns, what means are used to control the business of local agents of farm machinery and the reported advance in wages.

Soap Versus Perfume.

The department of agriculture has recently called attention to the backwardness of this country as a producer of the particular kind of crops that go to the making of perfumes says the Washington Post. Swift in the development of other industries, we have been extremely neglectful of our opportunities in this particular, since, it is claimed, we can raise in one part of the United States or another all of the plants needful for an innumerable variety of sweet colors from ylang-ylang to attar or roses. This information doubtless is intended to serve as a timely spur to our industrial and commercial lethargy. And yet the news fails to carry with it any great sense of shame. It is difficult to assign the reason why the possibilities thus pointed out produce little or no enthusiasm, yet such is the case. It must be because the making of perfumes is not pre-eminently an indication of national vigor or greatness. Certain it is that their universal use by a people is not a sign of virility. Weak and effeminate nations have been given proverbially to the use of unguents and ointments, whereas soap and civilization have been inseparably conjoined. So long as we lead in soap, it matters little who manufactures the aromatics. A good bath is better than much costlie oils, while civet and musk may cover a multitude of sins, especially those of omission.

The Courier-Journal's editorial the morning following the Democratic State Convention was somewhat a two-edged sword, and the Democratic State ticket got it did the Republican. The editor in [illegible] is the [illegible] is [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

FENCE POSTS

A Problem That Is Causing Many Land Owners Much Trouble.

The problem of the supply and cost of fences is one of much importance. Where to get and what to get, trouble many land owners.

The use of wire fencing requires that the posts be substantial and lasting to make such fencing cheap and effective. The objection to the concrete post is its weight and clumsiness.

Iron posts would do if they could be kept firm in the soil. Cast iron posts are like the concrete, unsuitable from weight. By combining the iron post with a concrete base one might procure a cheap and lasting post.

The small cedar posts about 4x4 and costing from 14 to 18 cents each make fencing a dear thing on the farm. We had such a fence put in two years ago and it is in need of new posts now.

Farmers would act wisely were they to plant a tract in tree seed suitable for fence material. In the meantime they could resort to the other kinds until they could have their own.

The too common habit of cutting green posts and setting them before they are dried out results in shortening their usefulness one-half or more.

If posts are seasoned and the bark removed they would last as long again. Or if they were coated with a tar paint as far as they go below the surface they last much longer.

What our farms need is more fencing in order to give range for pasturing but the exorbitant cost of posts combined with that of the fencing make it necessary for farms to curtail as far as possible.

We know where soft wood posts even willow are being used in the absence of other more durable kinds. Let the fence post matter be talked over for a fence post famine is not far off.

Russian mulberry, osage orange or the locust soon grow into post size and can be produced at one-fourth the present cost.—J. H. H in Indiana Farmer.

200 ACRES OF CHILLI PEPPER

Texas Farmer Expects a Net Profit of $150,000 From Vegetable—Cleared $30,000 Last Year.

One not familiar with the uses of the vegetable would very naturally wonder what a farmer expects to do with 200 acres of chilli peppers.

So much pepper on one farm and that, too, of the hottest kind grown, recalls the exclamation of the old gentleman who prayed that one of his neighbors in want be sent an abundance of everything good to eat including a barrel of pepper, and noting that that amount was too much said: Don't do it, Lord, that's too much pepper for one man."

But it seems that 200 acres of peppers is not too much for one Texas farmer. W. P. Walker, residing near Austin, grew 40 acres of peppers last year, which brought him a gross return of $30,000. His success in the cultivation of this plant prompted him to try 200 acres this year. He expects a net profit of $150,000 on the venture.

Defending the Jay Bird.

Because the jaybird is supposed to eat the eggs of other birds, and occasionally play the role of cannibal and eat fledglings, the country boy who wishes to improve his marksmanship regards its bright plumage as a legitimate target. The argument is hardly logical or ethical, since it is merely saying that if a bird eats eggs when it is hungry a boy may murder the bird when he is hungry. But there is an additional argument that is somewhat more defensible. The jay is equipped with a bill somewhat like that of a crow and is said to be fond of corn.

An effort to protect jays in Georgia aroused considerable discussion as to whether such birds ought to be protected or exterminated. The records of the Department of Agriculture were brought forth by the jay's defenders and it was shown that of 298 birds whose crops were examined only three showed traces of egg, and only two of the birds had recently practiced cannibalism. Only 2 per cent of the diet of the jay, according to these records, is corn. The investigators reach the conclusion that the jay, as a destroyer of insects, does a good deal more good than harm in agricultural districts. It might be added that if the jay does, as alleged, that the jay goes to the infernal regions on Fridays to get a new coat of feathers that should be regarded as a point in his favor. His plumage is always bright, and his disposition, if not exactly jovial, is, at least, buoyant. He should be put upon the list of birds that deserve protection, along with many others that have been ruthlessly shot regardless of their usefulness to the farmer and the prominent role they play in adding to the charm of country life.

A new enemy to young chickens has been discovered in this county. One of the most reputable citizens of the county, Anail Campbell, says he heard a chicken weighing about a pound, yelling as though it was in distress, and upon going to it found it partly pulled into the ground. He took hold of it and pulled it out, and when he did this there was hanging on, with all its might, a monster crawfish. This is the first instance ever heard of in this county where a crawfish killed anything as large as a chicken.—Irvine Herald

GALLATIN COUNTY

(Leader, August 15.)

The home-grown peaches and apples in the market are small in size and poor in quality.

Chas. Kirby has been given the position of captain and pilot on the St. Hattie Brown, taking the place vacated by Capt. Wm Moody. He will assume his duties Monday.

The potato crop is almost a failure all over the country as well as in Gallatin county. It is predicted that they will go to $3.00 per bushel The crop in this county will not average one potato to the hill.

The local Masonic lodge has taken in quite a few new members during the past two weeks and is in a flourishing condition and will no doubt remain so in the future as the new members are all young men who will be an incentive to others who have been thinking of becoming Masons.

Miss Myrtle Barker left Saturday for Korea where she will be engaged in the work of Foreign Missions for the next five years under the direction of the Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist church. Miss Barker has many friends here who hope for her success in the work she has chosen.

Wharfmasters White and Beall have contracted with John E. Lyons of Higginsport, Ohio, for a wharfboat to take the place of the one now in use. The new boat is to be 32x140 feet which is five feet narrower and forty feet shorter than the present boat. It will be made of the finest white pine and will have a square bow and stern. The cargo box now on the old hull will be used on the new one. The new hull will be finished in about three weeks.

The river, during the past week, has been as low as it was ever known before. Navigation was suspended Monday below Fernbank, where the water was so low that people were able to wade across the river. The Hattie Brown was unable to get over the shoal water at the Florence dam Monday night and her passengers and freight had to be transferred by wagons to Warsaw, something that was never known to happen before to such a light draft boat. A slight rise occured Monday night and the boats resumed Tuesday.

(Warsaw Independent.)

For a fine watermelon, we thank you, Judge DeLong. The Judge has pulled and sold 3,000 melons and will have 3,000 more.

Commonwealth's Attorney E. E. Winn returned home Wednesday from an enjoyable trip to Norfolk, Va., and other summer resorts along the coast.

A good rain fell here last Sunday and broke a very severe drouth which had prevailed for several weeks. The rain, unfortunately, was not general, and in some parts of the county there was scarcely any rain fall.

Seed Wheat.

We call attention this week to the discussion of the importance of selecting seed wheat and in cleaning it so that it shall be free from noxious seeds, and only the plump grains shall be secured for seed.

The fact is very well known that where care is taken to grade wheat and other grain in this way with good graders and fanning mills, securing only the plumpest and most mature seed for sowing, that the largest yields per acre are secured. Indeed, it is very well known by good wheat growers that where this is done the increased yield from the plump, mature seed, has been from one-half to double the yield per acre. The fact is well set forth in our Experience Department this week on another page, by excellent and successful farmers and wheat growers. We cannot too strongly impress upon the minds of wheat growers that they take pains to not only remove all noxious seed from the wheat that is to be shown, but to secure also only plump mature grain for seeding. Graders and fanning mills are now made that do this work effectively. Labor and pains in the care of selecting is doubly paid by the increased yield of wheat.—Indiana Farmer.

Valuable Birds.

An exchange says: "After the quail has been almost exterminated, the scientists tell us that each quail is worth its weight in gold to every farmer. From September 1st to April 1st each Bob White eats 260 pounds of weed seeds. From April to September it lives upon insects as well as seeds and industriously consumes the most active crop pests in this country, such as cinch bugs, cotton worm, wheat weevil, cucumber and bran beetle, potato bugs, cut worms and grasshoppers. One stomach, when examined contained more than 100 grasshoppers. The wise farmer will protect the quail and give them the run of the farm."

(Trimble County Democrat.)

Old Topsy is dead. Topsy was the old family mare belonging to Mr. Pliny Joyce in that she had been a treasure for years. "True as steel" up until two years ago she did service for the family. Topsy was about 37 years old, some placed her age at 38 years. Mr. Joyce owned her ever since she was two or three years old. He says that for 25 years she has averaged 52 trips yearly to Madison Ind. This mare undoubtly holds the record in Trimble county for age and service.

INDIANA NEWS

Gathered From Our Exchanges From Across the River.

(Lawrenceburg Register.)

Col. Jack Axby's spotted dog was poisoned Monday night but his life was saved by heroic treatment. "Jack," who is the guest of Florence Marmet at York ville, had a premonition that something was wrong and telephoned home to find out what was the matter only a few minutes before the sick canine was discovered.

A short while ago, before the ferry at this place was purchased by the present owners, the Kentucky people drove to Aurora to cross the river. Now the order is reversed and hucksters and others are driving to the Lawrenceburg ferry to cross. At present the Aurora boat is high and dry upon the bank. The large crowds of last week were handled without a complaint from anyone.

Will Junker bet John Bieger a furlined overcoat that he could not eat a dozen and a half of roasting ears in thirty minutes, and when the cobs were counted at the end of that time it was found that John had disposed of 19 ears. Will was so pleased to think he had discovered a new champion that he added a pair of ear muffs and red mittens.

(Lawrenceburg Press.)

Charles Junker waded across the river at this point Sunday morning. At the deepest place the water was barely five feet. In minstream it was only knee deep.

Carter & Stott of the neighboring village of Petersburg had a fine showing of chickens at the fair. Especially attractive were their pure bred White Orpingtons, a variety comparatively new in this section of country. Carter & Stott were awarded premiums on all the pens they exhibited.

Fitch Bros., on Monday sold their fine matched team of white Arabian horses to Johann & Sons undertakers, of Evansville. The deal was made within half an hour after a member of the firm had seen the horses. Twenty minutes later the man refused an offer of $1,500 for them. The animals are in splendid condition, perfectly sound, and without blemish.

What to do with the old records is getting to be a serious question at the courthouse. The books and legal papers of other years have been consigned to the attic until it is crowded. The drawers, shelves, and tops of shelving are filled to overflowing and yet they come, more and more every year. Just what to burn and what to keep is a serious question.

The county fair which was held here last week was one of the most successful fairs in the history of the Lawrenceburg Fair association, both in point of attendance and in the quality of the various attractions and exhibits. There were good crowds on the first three days of the fair, and on Saturday the park was thronged, the crowd on this day being one of the largest ever on the grounds.

James Allen Delph of Petersburg entertained Lawrenceburg friends and visitors at the fair with selections on his violin. Mr Delph does not call himself a violinist—he is simply a fiddler of the old school, who loves music himself and feels sorry for the fellow who doesn't like it. By the way, did you ever know a fiddler who wasn't a good man at heart?

What We Most Need.

Men who can not be bought.

Men who put character aoove wealth.

Men who possess opinions and a will.

Men who will not lose their individuality in a crowd.

Men who will not think anything profitable that is dishonest.

Men who will be honest in small things as well as great things.

Men who will make, no compromise will questionable things.

Men whose ambitions are not confined to their own selfish desires.

Men who are willing to sacrifice private interest for the public good.

Men who are not afraid of failure.

Men who will not have one brand of honey for business purposes and one for private life.

The Missouri college of agriculture has opened a new 4-years course for women; leading to the degree of Bachelor of Science in Agriculture. Besides Home Economics the course includes Farm Crops and Soils, Botany, Gardening, Fruit and Flowers Culture and Dairying. It is reported that the classes of young women will be large.

Strong objection is being urged against Representative Cantrill's tobacco bill on the ground that the publicity which it would cause might greatly handicap the efficiency of the internal revenue bureau. Representative Langley had a conference with the Treasury officials about it. Nearly all the information asked for by Mr. Cantrill is now collected by the internal revenue bureau, but the publication of it is regarded as a matter of doubtful policy. Mr Cantrill would have a census taken of all unmanufactured tobacco on hand after it leaves the original producers.—Winchester Democrat.

Over Fifty Teachers Enrolled and An Interesting Meeting Is in Progress.

The annual session of the Boone County Teachers' Institute began at the High School building in Burlington, Monday morning. The Institute was called to order by the county school Supt., Edgar C Riley, and after the song, "Will there be any Stars in my Crown," devotional exercises were conducted by the Instructor, Prof. Sharon, of the Richmond Normal School. Song, "America" A. M. Yealey was elected secretary of the Institute, and after brief talks by the Superintendent and Instructor, outlining the course they would pursue during the week, the following teachers were enrolled, and will teach this year at the schools indicated opposite their name:

A. M Yealey, Florence.
Elijah Stephens, Hathaway.
J. H Huey, Woolper.

Doris Hood, Hebron.
W. Keene Souther, Hebron
Sadie Reiman.
Edna Beall, Burlington.
Ida Hodges, Big Bone Church.
Mrs. S L. Dix, Burlington.
Leslie Harrison, Taylorsport.
Shirlie Eddins.

The afternoon session opened with a song, after which Prof. Sharon took for his subject, "The Child," dividing it into three divisions, viz: His Physical Nature; His Intellectual Nature; His Spiritual Nature, giving the teachers a good talk, especially emphasizing the former and latter division.

Miss N. E Hamilton gave a good talk on Scholarship.
Prof. Dix made a good talk on Manual Training.
The following Committees were appointed:

On Resolutions.—
A. M Yealey,
E. L Dix,
T. W Skinner,
N. E Hamilton,
C. V. Brooks.

On Time and Place of Association Meetings.—
Elva Melvin,
H. L. Harrison,
Stella Carpenter,
J. G. Prather,
C. V. Brooks,
Omer Dix.

The Institute adjourned to meet at the Court House Tuesday morning.

Tuesday Morning.—
Supt. Riley called the meeting to order. After a song, devotional exercises were conducted by Prof. Dix.

Prof. Skinner gave a 15 minute talk on Nature of School Organization. The Superintendent also gave a good talk on the same subject.

Prof. Sharon took the subject of Obtaining the Position, and gave a lengthy talk.

The Superintendent then conducted a Round Table talk on Common Mistakes in Teaching. Madge Wood, N. E. Hamilton, Jean Chambers, Nannie Chambers, Katie Craig and the Conductor, took active part in the discussion.

The afternoon session was opened by singing "America."

The subject of Reading was discussed by Madge Wood, C. V. Brooks, L. H. Harrison, Jean Chambers, and N. E. Hamilton, who advised the teachers to usse the classic published by C. W. Parker, Taylorsville, Ill., for supplemental reading.

The Supt., and Conductor gave helpful thoughts on this most important subject.

Question: What is the best method of teaching reading? Answered by Prof. Sharon. Use the word method and analyze the words in order to make better readers and spellers.

The following teachers were enrolled:

Anna May Cleek, Walton.
C. V. Brooks, Berkshire.
Katie Craig, Somerset.
Omer Dix, Union.
Hannah Hearne.

Wednesday Morning.—
Supt. Riley called the meeting to order. Song, "America." Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Brooks.

The subject, "Agriculture," was discussed by Prof. Dix and in his talk he left the idea that it was the teacher's duty to teach the boys and girls to be farmers as there is more independence, less opposition and more joy in farm life.

Prof. Sharon continued the subject of Agriculture, making a strong plea, giving examples why the rural girls and boys should teach the rural schools.

Supt. Riley gave a lengthy talk in regard to the condition and welfare of the schools of our county, advocating harmony among the teachers and better equipment of teachers.

Wednesday Afternoon.—
The subject of History was ably discussed by Mattie May.

Supt. Riley and Katie Craig gave some useful history in regard to Boone county.

Prof. Woodford Dick, Superintendent of the Ky. Childrens Home Society, of Louisville, was present in the interest of the society and briefly outlined his purpose.

Miss Payne entertained the teachers for about twenty minutes, imitating the children reciting their selection on the last day of school.

A good paper on Civics was read by Elva Melvin, and Anna Cleek gave an excellent talk.

SMITH'S HOME RUN

With The Bases Full Broke Up The Game For Walton.

The Burlington base ball team went to Walton last Saturday afternoon and engaged in a battle royal with the team at that place. It was in the 4th inning that Walton put a man across the plate, which performance was equaled by Burlington in the 5th. In the seventh inning the Burlington crowd got busy and cleaned up on their opponents in a sensational rally. Kelly, the second man up made a home run on three base hit as the result of a bad throw to third. Clore made a hit and an error and a sacrifice put him around. Slayback, Wingate and White were each on a sack as the result of foozles on the part of Walton, when Smith who had fanned twice, broke up the game by a home run drive over the top of two large trees in center field. Having scored six runs in the seventh the score stood 7 to 1 and Brady loosened up and Walton made a single, double and a tripple in the eighth, scoring two runs, and there was no more doing, the final score being 7 to 3 in favor of Burlington.

Walton made 11 hits but scored only three runs, while Burlington made only four hits and scored seven runs. Coffman struck out 12 men and Brady 8.

It was a quiet game on the part of the players, but the Walton rooters, always loyal to their home team, made their presence known by their voices.

Coffman surely did have the Burlington batters on his wagon all the time except in the fatal seventh, while Walton was hitting Brady hard but getting no results.

Tavlin led at the bat, getting a tripple, a double and a single. It was his three sacker that let in Walton's first run.

The team that defeats Walton is very apt to know that it has been in a game.

The nice treatment accorded them makes the Burlington boys like to go to Walton to play ball.

Slayback and Jones each put up a good article of work behind the bat.

Some of the growers in Central Kentucky have insured their tobacco against injury by hail since that section was visited by a few local storms. The farmers of this county can protect themselves in the same manner. See the advertisement in another column.

The Democratic campaign which will begin in Kentucky early in September will be brisk from the start. Several speakers of national reputation from outside of the State will take part in the speech making.

A couple of auto tourists struck Burlington about 5 p. m last Monday. They claimed to have made the run from Indianapolis, Indiana, in six hours. They went on to Erlanger from where they intended to go to High Bridge via Lexington.

Do not allow your kidney and bladder trouble to develop beyond the reach of medicine. Take Foley Kidney Pills. They give quick results and stop irregularities with surprising promptness. For sale by Jones' Drug Store, Walton, Ky.

A bill to define the extent to which "reasonable" restraint of trade shall be permitted under the Sherman antitrust law was introduced in the Senate by Senator LaFollette, of Wisconsin. The bill specifies that whenever a combination, trust or conspiracy is shown to exist, the burden of proof that the combination is not unreasonable shall rest upon the party who contends that the restraint is reasonable.

Lady teachers are largely in the majority at the Institute this week.

Local Happenings.

August has been a very decent month.

This is teachers' week in Burlington.

Some of the local gardens are about exhausted.

The nights have been quite cool for the past week.

The Boone fair will begin one week from to-day.

Some farmers have begun breaking land to seed to wheat.

Erlanger fair is now in full blast, having begun yesterday.

Hewitts threshing machine is in the Waterloo neighborhood.

Several local fruit men have been bringing peaches to market.

Many farmers are devoting their time to cutting weeds and briars.

No game of ball at the Burlington park next Saturday afternoon.

Already the foliage on the trees begins to snow the approach of fall.

John Hogan and son Joseph, of Hebron neighborhood, were in town last Friday.

Notwithstanding the drought corn in Walton neighborhood is looking fairly well.

Some healthy looking weeds about town are very inviting material for a scythe.

The half mile track at Erlanger fair grounds is in fine condition for the races this week.

Hubert White began the construction of a large barn, last Monday. It will have a basement.

Hear that D. M Snyder has purchased residence property in Erlanger, to which he will move shortly.

John Crisler, one of the old reds. in the Union neighborhood, was looking after business in Burlington, last Monday.

The horse which Mrs. G M. Terrill, of Lawrenceburg, drove to W. J. Rice's, took sick and died, Sunday.

James Tanner, of Florence, is making fine progress remodeling his residence which will be roomy and convenient.

Quite a crowd of the young population enjoyed a day's outing at Middle creek cliffs one day the past week.

Ed. Wolfe and J C. Hughes, of Richwood, are prizing tobacco at very reasonable rates, and satisfaction is guaranteed.

Many of the farmers in the northern part of the county are pleased with their prospects for a very large yield of corn.

Jesse Eddins began work on his new house, last Monday. It will be near the residence of Wm. Carpenter in Locust Grove neighborhood.

Very little if any tobacco will be cut in August this year. The weed is growing better now than at any time since the crop was pitched.

If you want your lot in the I. O. O. F. cemetery at Burlington, cleaned nicely hand or send to Frank Rouse 25 cents and he will have it done.

Foley Kidney Pills will check the progress of your kidney and bladder trouble and heal by removing the cause. Try them. For sale by Jones's Drug Store, Walton, Ky.

A wagon containing a camp outfit and a lot of racing paraphernalia passed thru Burlington Monday enroute to Erlanger from East Enterprise, Indiana.

While the crop situation is not at all what it might be, there still are pretty clear indications that the output of cereals and other farm products will come pretty close to the normal standard.

Edison Riddell's auto collided with the toll gate pole out on the Florence pike Sunday afternoon. The only damage done was the breaking of the poll, which, fortunately was very weak.

J. W Conner, of Union, has refused an offer of $30 a ton for his hay. He has a large number of cows to winter and will need all his hay and then some as the corn crop in that part of the county is very poor.

No mail of any consequence arrived at the Burlington postoffice last Monday morning. The failure on the part of the daily papers to come in shows that the Burlington mail was not properly handled somewhere along the route.

Rev. Bradley preached his last sermon this conference year at the Burlington church, last Sunday. He has served this circuit very acceptably for three years, and has endeared himself to his congregations. He was accompanied by Mr. Ed Witham, of below Petersburg.

EXECUTED BOND.

John C. Byland, Who Was Arrested in Detroit Last Saturday by Sheriff B. B. Hume

Brought to Burlington Monday Morning and Released by Givind Bond in The Sum of $10,000.

Sheriff B. B Hume returned Monday morning from Detroit, Michigan, to which place he went last Friday, and caused the arrest of John C. Byland, who is charged with embezzlement. It will be remembered that Mr. Byland was cashier of the Richwood Deposit Bank and his son, Raymond, was his assistant. The bank failed for about $15,000 and the Bylands were charged with the embezzlement of the banks funds. The younger Byland was apprehended by Sheriff Hume in Sacramento, City, California and brought back, and at the last April term of the Boone circuit court he plead guilty and was sentenced to serve five years in the penitentiary.

Sheriff Hume had been informed that Mr. Byland's assumed name was Boyd, and when he called at a boarding house in Detroit and asked the landlady if she had a man there by the name of Boyd, she said, "no, but I have one named Brown." Sheriff Hume then showed her Mr. Byland's photograph and asked her if that looked anything like Mr. Brown, when she exclaimed, "my God, I believe that is him." The Sheriff was shown to the room and when he knocked on the door and asked, "is Mr. Brown in," Mr. Byland answered, "yes sir." The sheriff was not long in locating his man after he arrived in Detroit.

Sheriff Hume has kept up a hunt for the young man's father and several days ago he learned he was in Detroit and he went after him. The sheriff says Mr Byland was rather nervous when he was taken into custody and agreed to come as far as Cincinnati with him without a requisition, at which place he believed he could communicate with friends and arrange to execute bond for his appearance at the next term of the Boone circuit court to answer the indictment against him. Sheriff Hume and his prisoner reached Cincinnati last Saturday night, where he made arrangements to give two bonds required, each for $5,000, and Monday morning they came on to Burlington where the accused executed his bonds with J. M. Lassing and Thornton Snyder as sureties, when he was released from custody.

Mr. Byland told the Recorder that he had arranged to be in Burlton on the 21st inst., not expecting to be confronted by Sheriff Hume in Detroit; that he will be able to show to the satisfaction of all that he did not got a dollar of the money belonging to the Richwood Deposit bank; that he did not know of the bank's condition until the day before the failure was announced; that he acted under the advice of friends when he left home, altho he thought then and believes yet he ought to have remained in Walton. He says that while he was gone he met several of his acquaintances in this part of the country to all of whom he spoke. He saw Atty. Samuel Adams, of Erlanger, in a restaurant in Kansas City, but did not approach him to speak to him, for which he was sorry thereafter. Mr Byland says there is lots of good in this old world after all, and everybody treated him well while in exile. He was engaged in the life insurance business and Detroit was his headquarters, from which city he worked out into Illinois, Indiana and Ohio.

Mr. Byland says that the dispatch from Detroit saying that he admitted getting the amount of money with which he was accused, is not at all correct, that the statement he made was exactly the contrary to that reputed to him in the dispatch.

A party of five men who were making an endurance run from Detroit, Michigan, to Louisville, in a Cadilac auto, struck the town about 9 o'clock Sunday morning, have come across the country from the toll gate near Union on the Florence and Union pike. They were inquiring the way to Warsaw, and were vexed when they found that they was the breaking of the pole gate as they claimed. About two years ago the same parties were making the same run and struck Burlington about midnight, having left their route at Florence.

James M. Utz Dead.

James M. Utz, 71, of Limaburg, died of heart disease last Tuesday morning after an illness of several weeks. He was a quiet unassuming gentleman of the old school. He spent his entire life in the neighborhood of his birth. He leaves a son, a daughter and one brother and many friends to mourn his departure. The remains were laid to rest in the old family burying ground on W. L B. Rouse's farm. Elder Edgar Riley conducted the short funeral service at the residence.

WHO WAS THE GOAT

BACHELOR NO LONGER IS AID OF MARRIED FRIENDS.

He Finds That for Years Their Wives Have Been Taught to Blame Him for Leading Husbands Astray.

A bachelor living just off Times square, New York—who shall be called Strunk for anonymity's sake—has been cured of certain ideas he had of doing favors for wives of husbands afflicted with too much of what is often called good-fellowship. He has long been noted among his friends for his propensity to take care of married friends when in their cups and see that they got home safely and at a reasonable hour.

It was one of these friends—Banks for anonymity—whom he encountered in Times square recently. Banks had evidently cast off responsibility and Strunk was immediately solicitous. He had seen Mrs. Banks and had admired her as a woman of beauty and refinement. His solicitations, however, were met with the rollicking:

"My wife's in the country. Don't you care."

Nevertheless, Strunk, as was his habit, did care. He inveigled the waiter at a cafe to serve an antidote for liquor as a substitute for a rickey and then had black coffee brought forward. By the early hour of 11 o'clock responsibility was again beginning to perch on the shoulders of Banks. Suddenly he started.

"What day's this?" he asked.

"Thursday," answered Strunk.

"Gee-whillikens," gasped Banks, "I forgot. My wife was to get in on the nine o'clock train and I was to meet her."

"Well, I guess she's home all right," said Strunk comfortingly.

"Home?" gasped Banks. "The house is boarded up and I've got the keys and her folks are all out of town."

Strunk was a man of action. He called for a taxicab and they were soon driving along a street in the West Eighties. In the block he saw several parties still out on stoops. As the chauffeur finally slowed up Strunk saw another stoop party, a woman guarding two children. Banks alighted and insisted that Strunk also should do so and meet his family. As he went up the steps he said ingratiatingly:

"My dear, I want you to meet Mr. Strunk."

"Mrs. Banks was really refined, freezingly so.

"I have heard of Mr. Strunk," was all she said, looking at anything but at him. Banks fished out his keys and gave them to her and she entered the house. Then Banks laughed hysterically. Strunk failed to see any cause for merriment and said so.

"You're the goat," Banks finally puffed out. "I've been telling her for years that you're the one that gets me off the wagon—and now she's sure of it, and she'll be mad at you, not me."

Strunk in the taxicab on his way back hardened his heart.

Very Practical Arithmetic.

Mental arithmetic on a melting day—and while the cool river gleamed tantalisingly from the schoolroom window! No wonder that small minds grew confused under the strain, and small calculators calculated with even smaller success.

"Now, boys," said the jovial dominie, who was himself aching for a swim, "here's your last problem today. See if any of you can get it right. Suppose I have a piece of beefsteak."

The boys supposed it obediently.

"And suppose I cut it into sixteen parts. What would you call those pieces?"

"Sixteenths!" piped a dozen voices.

"Right!" exclaimed the dominie, "And suppose each of these pieces were cut again into four pieces, what would they be?"

A dead, awful silence reigned, while the small brains worked desperately. Suddenly a hand was held up, and one of the lightning calculators cried:

"Hash!"

A Bitter Controversy.

The Shakespeare-Bacon controversy formed the subject of debate at a well known theatrical school not long ago. On both sides the orators were would be actresses, and pro and con the discussion was feminine and furious. It seemed at first that the ardent partisanship of the fair opponents would preclude the possibility of harmonious conclusion; but the last speaker, in the nervousness of her first public speech, suggested common ground.

"Ladies," she said, speaking rapidly, "I think there has been much misapprehension as to the real truth of the Baconian theory. I stand ready to show that the great plays we know so well were written not by Shakespeare or by Bacon, but by Bacon and Shakespeare in collision!"

Amid laughter and applause the debate was declared a tie.

Man with the goggles—Yes, there's a speedometer—the little figmarce, you know, that tells how fast you're going. That's saved me many a fine.

MONSTER OF THE DEEP SEA

Some Strange Living Creatures That Inhabit the Dark Abysses of the Ocean.

The ocean water at depths of a mile or more is so dense, and its pressure is so great, that glass bottles forced down into it are crushed to powder and tubes of metal are twisted and flattened out of shape. Yet living creatures inhabit these dense and heavy depths. From the underworld of the sea, where the pressure is two and a half tons to the square inch, the explorers' dredges bring up curious fishes, with bodies constructed with special reference to this environment of weight.

Their bony and muscular systems are not fully developed; the bones are permeated with pores and fissures. The calcareous matter is at a minimum, and the bones of the vertebrae are joined together so loosely that the larger fishes often fall apart while being lifted out of the water. The muscles are all thin, and the connective tissue seem almost wanting. Yet these fishes are able to dart about and capture their prey.

It is another interesting fact that no light penetrates these ocean abysses—all below 1,200 feet being total darkness—and this necessitates another adaptation [illegible] habitants. They carry lanterns. Many of these deep-sea fish have special organs upon their sides and heads that are known to possess a luminous quality.

One of the largest of these deep-sea torch bearers is a fish six feet long, with a tail dorsal fin extending nearly the entire length of the body. Along the sides of the body is a double row of luminous scales. One of the most ferocious of these deep-sea forms has a mouth full of teeth that protrude in a most formidable manner. The fins are all tipped with flaming spots, while along the dorsal surface extends a row of spots that appear like so many windows through which light is shining.

The little fishes called "Bombay ducks" are luminous over their entire surface, and when numbers are collected together they present an astonishing spectacle. Another species has a jaw so arranged that it can seize fish twice its size and easily swallow them. Its stomach has the elastic quality of india rubber. It stretches to enormous proportions, and appears like a great transparent balloon hanging under the fish, and containing its prey.

The last expedition sent out by the prince of Monaco brought to light some remarkable forms. The dredge off Morocco brought up from a depth of one and a half miles a fish that apeared to be all head or mouth. It was of small size, and the length of the mouth was about four-fifths of the entire body; so that if the body had been severed behind the head it and two or three like it could have been stowed away in its capacious pouch. It probably moves very slowly, scooping mud and ooze into its mouth, sifting out the animal parts and rejecting the rest.—Harper's Weekly.

No Time to Scold.

A western physician has two children. Ernest and Alice, aged nine and eleven, respectively. Recently the doctor and his wife made a week-end trip to the country, leaving the children at home with the servants. They were to return Monday night on a train due at 10 o'clock. The children wanted to meet them at the depot, and of course received very definite instructions not to do so.

When the parents arrived at 11:30, their train being an hour and a half late, they were surprised to find Ernest and Alice waiting for them, and all alone. The mother rushed forword to expostulate, but was cut off by the shrill voice of Alice crying, "Hurry up, mother. Don't stop to talk. The taxi's up to $7.60 already!"—Harper's Magazine.

The Gallant Corespondent.

Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, in an interview in Reno, praised her Reno audiences.

"They are the most brilliant and the most intelligent," she said, "that you can imagine. The women's jewels glittered, and the men's wit shone."

Mme. Bernhardt laughed gaily.

"One of these men was presented to me," she said, "between the acts. He had been, by-the-way, corespondent in eight suits. Well, his compliments were so glowing that at last I cried:

"But, monsieur, remember, I am 65 years old!"

"'Madame,' he replied, 'to me you are just 23. For I, seared as I am by scandal, am too charitable ever to believe more than half what I hear.'"

Girls and Ball.

John J. McGraw, at a baseball banquet in Pittsburg, said of a baseball man:

"His ignorance of ball is astonishing. It is as bad as a girl's.

"A girl once said to me:

"'I adore baseball. I have a brother, you know, who plays on the Yale team.'

"'What does he play?' said I.

"She hesitated.

"'Well,' she said, 'I forget just for the moment, whether he's a foul tip or a high fly.'"

Incomplete.

"There's nothing in my play to bring a blush in anybody's cheek," said the author.

"Well," replied the producer, "bring the manuscript around when you get it finished."

ALL WOMEN ALIKE HERE

In the Long-Distance Telephone Booth They Get Flighty and Squander the Time.

The reason he wouldn't call up the Connecticut town that night to learn how Aunt Lucinda was, the man said, was because Bill's wife was pretty sure to come to the telephone, and he couldn't stand it to talk to Bill's wife. Wait till morning and he would call Bill up at the office and find out.

"What is the matter with Bill's wife," asked Aunt Lucinda's New York niece.

"She's a fool," said the man, "especially over the long-distance telephone. I telephoned up there once. Bill's wife answered. I cost me four dollars for the three-minute conversation, and the only thing I could get out of Bill's wife was: 'Hello, hello. Who is this, please?'

"At the very last second she understood and said: 'Oh, it is you, is it?' I call that pretty expensive identification. But I will say this for Bill's wife. She is no worse than other women. The most level-headed of them get flighty when suddenly confronted with a long-distance telephone message."

The woman's defense of her sex was cut short by a call to the telephone. She stepped into the hall and closed the door.

"Hello," she said. "Hello. Who is this, please? What's that? Yes, that is the right number. Who are you, please? What's that? I can't make it out."

Seconds ticked away and still she reiterated: "Hello, hello. Who are you, please?" Finally, in desperation the man took the receiver from her hand. He talked for five or ten seconds and then said: "Good-by."

"That was Bill," he said. "He wanted to tell me something about Aunt Lucinda, but time was up and he didn't get a chance."

Fat—A Body Requisite.

The popular view of the close connection between fat and good nature and weight and balance is not wholly without rational foundation. Fat, unpleasant and stodgy as it is, is one of the most valuable tissues in the human body, and any man who reduces his share of it below a certain reasonable level, not only takes the smooth edge off his temper and balance of his powers of judgment, but exposes all of his higher tissues, notably the muscular, nervous and secreting, to danger of both starvation and disease. A moderate cushion of fat is one of the best buffers and bucklers against the "slings and arrows of outrageous fortune," whether in the form of disease or in strains upon endurance. The man who makes himself into a lean and hungry Cassius, even with the best of intentions, is very apt to get himself into a state of both mind and body where he is more fit for treason, stratagem and spoils than for comfort, wholesomeness and a happy life.—Outing.

Thicker Than Water.

Rather significant was the celebration of the Fourth of July in Honolulu, with two British cruisers to participate in the exercises and with British officers in attendance upon an official public reception of Independence day.

This is strongly indicative of the brotherly feeling existing between the two countries, of the oft-quoted sentiment that "blood is thicker than water," and of the kinship of the English-speaking people.

The mingling of the British army and navy officials with the Americans in celebration of the anniversary of this country's independence is suggestive of the old soldiers' reunions in which veterans of the Union and Confederate armies fraternize and march together in procession and are brothers under the skies who have forgotten any past differences that estranged them for a time.—San Antonio Express.

Strauss Has New Orchestral.

Richard Strauss is writing a new orchestral work to be called "An Alpine Symphony." The development of the motives parallels the journeys of an Alpine climber, who hies to the mountains to be away from the cares of the world.

Musical description is to be given of the characteristics of the ascent, a waterfall, a deep gorge and a mountain thunder storm. At the summit the climber raises his voice in praise of the splendors of Alpine scenery.

The descent is occupied with the struggle in the wanderer's heart between the feeling of Nature alone and the higher feeling for the divine, each feeling being represented by its own melody.

Finally the melody of faith dominates the other, and the symphony concludes with a hymn praise to God.

Altered His Plans.

"Papa is going to give me an automobile for my birthday," said the fair young thing.

"Is he?" said the caller, surprised. "I was thinking of that myself, but now I shall bring you a box of sweets."

Same Girl.

"Dad, I want to marry Tottie Twinkletoes. I hope you won't blame me for wanting to marry a chorus girl."

"Not at all, my boy, I wanted to marry her myself when I was about your age."

She'll Tell You---Quick!

Just ask your wife which of these two dish pans of cream separator parts she would rather wash. She will tell you quick—the one with the single piece in it. This single, tiny, instantly removable piece is all there is inside.

Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator Bowls

Which Kind for You?

All other separators have heavy, hard to wash, complicated "bucket bowls." The disks in the full dish pan are all from one common "bucket bowl" and are just a sample of the trouble and work of washing "bucket bowls" as compared to washing the Dairy Tubular. Think of washing these disks twice a day. Imagine the chance rust and hard knocks have at such a complicated machine.

Milk skimmed with a Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator is skimmed right—it is the cleanest skimming, quickest skimming, lightest running, longest lived separator built. Bring your wife to see it—inside and outside—and learn how it may double your butter money. The helpful dairy book, "Business Dairying," is yours for the asking.

The Business Principle

of successful lives is the habit of saving, depositing what can be spared in a good bank to meet the emergencies of the proverbial rainy day. A little at a time makes a snug sum in a short time The Equitable Bank and Trust Co., Walton, Ky., will accept any sum on deposit and pays four per cent. interest on what remains a year, or three per cent for what remains six months. Remittances by mail given prompt response and careful attention. This Bank has assets of over One Hundred Thousand Dollars. We qualify as administrator, executor, trustee, guardian, etc., of estates, which is much more satisfactory than a private individual in such capacity. Mail communications given careful attention. Negro Farmers.

Government statistics show that more than half the total number of farms in South Carolina are owned by negroes, and the number of negroes owning their own little farms, is increasing three times as fast as the whites.

Tortured for Fifteen Years.

by a cure-defying stomach trouble that baffled doctors, and resisted all remedies he tried, John W. Modders, of Moddersville, Michigan, seemed doomed. He had to sell his farm and give up work. His neighbors said, "he can't live much longer." "Whatever ate distressed me," he wrote, "till I tried Electric Bitters, which worked such wonders for me that I can now eat things I could not take for years. Its surely a grand remedy for stomach trouble." Just as good for the liver and kidneys. Every bottel guaranteed. Only 50c at all dealers.

Falls Victim to Thieves.

S. W. Bends, of Coal City, Ala., has a justifiable grievance. Two thieves stole his health for twelve years. They were a liver and kidney trouble. Then Dr. King's New Life Pills throttled them. He's well now. Unrivaled for Constipation, Malaria, Headache, Dyspepsia. 25c at all dealers.

Beef Cattle.

The statistician of the Union Stock Yards of Chicago, Mr. Horine, says that many states have marketed their fat cattle and many markets East are short of their demand. He says that the present condition had its origin in the drought conditions of last summer, which forced all the regions west and southwest of the Missouri river to prematurely market young and growing stock which was largely absorbed by Illinois and surrounding States. Then followed a magnificent corn crop and a splendid winter feeding season, resulting in abundance of fat cattle.

PLATFORM

Adopted By the Democratic State Convention

Held In The City of Louisville, August 15.

We the Democrats of Kentucky, in delegate convention duly assembled and held in the city of Louisville, Kentucky, on August 15, 1911, do hereby pledge anew our faith in and devotion to the time-honored and eternal principles of our party first promulgated in the Declaration of Independence and since reaffirmed in successive platforms of the party, and we especially reaffirm our faith in and devotion to the national Democratic platform adopted at Denver, Colorado, in the year 1908.

We denounce the Republican party and the present Republican President for their flagrant and willful betrayal of the trust reposed in them by the American people and call attention especially to the fact that they have willfully disregarded their pre-election promises to the effect that they would revise downward the unjust tariff system and would relieve the masses of the people of the heavy burdens of unjust and unnecessary taxation.

On the contrary the Republicans enacted the odious Payne-Aldrich tariff law of 1909, pronounced by Mr. Taft to be "the best Republican tariff law ever passed," which law was a gross breach of the Republican President and his political party. This tariff law in order to enrich the few, increased the burdens of the many, and authorized those favored few not only to continue but to increase, their robbery of the many under the forms of law.

We point with pride to, and heartily indorse the patriotic record made by the present Democratic members of Congress and Democratic Senators, in their efforts over determined Republican opposition to, in good faith, redeem the promises of the Democratic party to repeal unjust and oppressive Republican laws, and to enact wise and just laws for the benefit of the great masses of the people, and we invite all to contrast the aims and record of the Democrats in the House and Senate of the present session of Congress with the aims and record of the Republicans and especially with the Republican session of 1909 which enacted the Payne-Aldrich tariff law.

We especially indorse the record of our Democratic Congress men and Senator from Kentucky for their fidelity in keeping the promises of their party and representing the people and not the interests, and we denounce the record of the Republican Congressmen and Senator from Kentucky because they have represented the privileged, protected interests of the country.

Kentucky is, and of right ought to be, a Democratic State, and the Democratic party in appealing for the support of the electorate of the State eagerly invites an intelligent comparison of the records it has made with those made by its political adversary during the temporary occasions it has controlled the affairs of the State.

As against the Republican record in Kentucky of assassination bloodshed, and disregard of law, we present the Democratic picture of peace, scrupulous regard for human life and a strict observance of, and respect for law; as against an empty treasury and rejection and shaving of honest demands against the State, we present a picture of a magnificent State Capitol erected and paid for without any extra tax, and every just claim against the State promptly met and paid in full; as against platform pledges and promises broken and made to be broken, we present a record of all pledges and promises faithfully kept; as against hypocrisy, demagogy and incompetency we present a record of sincerity, fidelity, competency and statesmanship.

We denounce the action of the Republican Governor for his partisan and unjust action in pardoning the men indicted for participation in the assassination of Wm. Goebel, the Governor of our State, and we assert that those pardons were granted for political reasons, and not upon the merits of the cases.

We charge the Republican party both in the State and in the nation with [illegible] extravagance and willful waste in the [illegible]

[illegible] to responsible [illegible] and to an economical administration [illegible]

We are in favor of [illegible] primary election law, providing that all primary elections shall be conducted under lawful authority and at public expense, and to be regulated in the same manner and subject to the same penalties for violations, as in case of regular elections.

We favor the enactment of an explicit and effective corrupt practice act, which shall determine what [illegible] expenses shall be legitimate and which shall provide for compulsory publication [illegible] under heavy penalties [illegible] expenses of every candidate for public office.

We favor the enacting of such additional laws as will make our entire common school system more efficient and more practical. We pledge our support to our school system and the educational institutions of the State which is [illegible] and economically administered. [illegible] appropriated for the education of the people is an investment [illegible] and we favor a system of free [illegible] school terms sufficiently long [illegible] all children [illegible] to be had [illegible] rigidly responsible for adequate returns on every dollar so invested. We charge the Republican party with neglect of and indifference toward our school system.

Recognizing that a large majority of the teachers of our common schools are women and that women are now eligible to be elected school trustees, county school superintendent and to hold office, and are frequently so elected, we favor the extension women of suffrage in all school elections, subject to such wise regulations as to qualifications as the General Assembly may determine.

We favor such laws as will, under appropriate penalties, destroy all corrupt lobbying seeking to influence any legislative body in the Commonwealth on the subject of legislation or the election of officers by it, or in any other matter; but we recognize the constitutional right of the people to petition and to be impartially heard on all questions.

We favor, under wise and proper restrictions, the creation of a State Utilities Commission, having ample powers to discharge its duties.

We favor a change in the present method of selecting the Prison Commissioners of the State, and the removal of all politics from the management of our penal institutions. While commending the present Board of Prison Commissioners for its successful management of the institutions under its care, we recognize that the system of election by the Legislature, under which they are elected, is unwise, and we therefore favor such a change as will place their appointments in the hands of the Governor, subject to confirmation by the Senate, or some other method such as the General Assembly may provide.

We favor a law requiring that a uniform system of accounting be installed and conducted in all public offices charged with the collection and disbursement of public moneys.

We favor the General Assembly submitting to a vote of the people whether or not they desire to adopt an amendment of our State Constitution broadening the powers of the General Assembly, so that it may classify property for the purposes of taxation; but we are opposed to any law the effect of which would be to lighten the burdens of taxation on the wealthy and on corporations at the expense of the poor, the farmer or the laboring man.

Temperance is essentially a moral, non-political and social question, and should not be made a partisan issue between political parties.

We favor the extension of the present local option law, as applied to the sale of liquors, which has been upheld by our highest court as valid and constitutional, so that the citizens of each and every county in the State may determine for themselves whether spirituous, vinous or malt liquors may be sold therein.

We favor organization and co-operation among the farmers and laborers of the State, and the enactment of such constitutional laws as will protect them from the greed and oppression of the trusts and monopolies of the country, which are the direct fruit of Republican legislation.

We favor such wise and conservative laws as will encourage road and bridge building in Kentucky, and we favor reasonable State aid for the construction of roads and bridges, but only on condition that each county or local community, which is primarily benefited shall first do its part and discharge its duty to itself in this regard.

We favor the creation, removed from politics, of a Department of Banking, providing for competent inspection of all our State financial institutions, and similar to the system now existing for national banks.

We favor the enactment of such wise laws as will put into effect all sections and provisions of the State Constitution, and we declare that we are in favor of the enforcement of all laws.

We favor the enactment of wise laws for the protection from accident and injury of all laborers engaged in hazardous employments, and we favor a wise, conservative law regulating the arbitration of labor strikes and disputes.

We favor a law prohibiting peonage and female slave traffic, regardless of color.

We are opposed to all mobs and lynchings and are in favor of imposing the severest penalty possible, under our Constitution, [illegible] all officers who fail to prosecute [illegible] and investigate [illegible] and messengers intrusted to their keeping.

The Democratic party has always been the party of religious, as well as civil liberty in Kentucky and in the republic. It refers with pride to its noble and consistent record on this important question, to "dear to every true American heart." We are in full accord both in letter and in spirit, with the teachings of Thomas Jefferson, the founder of our party, on this question, and with the provisions of our State and Federal Constitutions, and we are unalterably opposed to raising any religious [illegible] as a [illegible] for holding any office [illegible] or nation.

We favor the nomination and election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people.

We denounce and are opposed to Cannonism or one-man power in all representative assemblies, whether it be in the Congress or in representative conventions. We favor the "rule of the people."

On the platform of principles and on the aims and purposes of our party [illegible] and in the nation, we appeal to all Kentuckians, irrespective of previous political affiliations, who are proud of the past and desire a still more prosperous, more progressive present and future for all our people, to support our magnificent State ticket, including our nominee for the United States Senatorship, and our nominees for General Assembly and for other offices.

In conclusion we call the attention of Kentuckians to the fact that Democratic principles are triumphant in the Nation and in almost every State, and that the Republican party everywhere is professing to adopt Democratic principles in its platforms, but we warn them that the Republicans of this State have placed in their platform some progressive Democratic doctrines, not with a view to carry them out or to attempt to carry them out in good faith, in the improbable event of their success at the polls next November, but only for the present purpose of catching votes and deceiving the people, so that they might get the offices and emoluments thereof. The broken promises of the present Republican State and National Administrations as well as the entire history of the Republican party, are sufficient to convince all fair minded citizens of insincerity of the Republican party, and that it is not the party of the people; while, on the other hand, the record and history of the Democratic party in the Nation and the State conclusively establish its devotion to duty and its purpose in good faith to redeem all platform pledges made to the people.

GRANT COUNTY ITEMS.

(Grant County News.)

During a severe electric storm which raged over the north end of the county last Saturday afternoon, a fine feed and stock barn belonging to J. Q Oder was struck. The bolt ignited the barn which burst into flames and was destroyed together with all of the contents, except a horse which was stabled in the barn.

The Grant County Assessment Fire Insurance Company suffered a fire loss amounting to $300. Each member of the company was assessed 5 per cent. on his notes to the company, which is one-fifth of one per cent. on the property insured. As this is the second assessment of the company has had to make in five years, it would seem that it has been extremely fortunate. In all its policyholders have paid less than one per cent. for their insurance for that period.

We are informed that the traction line from Dry Ridge to Owenton is progressing rapidly and that only a few miles of the road remains to be graded in Owen county. A contract has been let for sawing the ties and a stone crusher has been purchased for crushing the stone. Some of the doubters are beginning to change their opinion about the road being built. In the meantime Blackburn goes right along and says nothing, but works all the time which is a mighty good way to build a road.

A report is current that several automobiles have been purchased by Dry Ridge people during the past week and that delivery will soon be made. The sales are said to have been made by a local party and the machines will be delivered at once. The same authority states that an automobile garage and repair shop will be established here by the same agent who sold the machines. According to the report we have received the number of machines sold will aggregate from ten to fifteen and they are of one of the best makes in the country.

J. D Cobb, of Covington, who is connected with the Farmers and Shippers Tobacco Warehouse, Cincinnati, was in town Monday. Asked about the tobacco situation Mr. Cobb said that a representative of the Cincinnati warehouses had been all over the Burley district in an automobile, and that the reports that he had brought in about the growing crop were very discouraging. Of all the counties visited, he said, Grant county stood at the head of the list and said the best prospect for a crop. In many of the Burley growing counties the crop will be almost an entire failure.

Life Saved at Death's Door.

"I never felt so near my grave," writes W. R. Patterson, of Wellington, Texas, as when a frightful cough and lung trouble pulled me down to 100 pounds, in spite of doctor's treatment for two years. My father, mother and two sisters died of consumption, and that I am alive today is due solely to Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me. Now I weigh 187 pounds and have been well and strong for years." Quick, safe, sure, its the best remedy on earth for coughs, colds, la grippe, asthma, croup and all throat and lung troubles. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all dealers.

Sun Ruins Grindstones.

Sun is a fine thing for hogs and chickens; but it isn't good for grindstones. Its rays harden the part of the stone on which they shine and thus make the stone wear unevenly. If the grind stone is not under a shed, or if the sun strikes it, make a box cap for it—20 minutes' work. Few things are more satisfactory than a good-cutting, even faced, grindstone. Used freely, it is a great labor saver, for dull tools make work hard. If the stone gets grooved, hold the hoes or the spade upon it. This will soon bring the face level again—and it won't hurt the hoes or the spades a bit to give them keen edges.

S. L. Edwards, our genial and popular postmaster, left Sunday for Buffalo, New York, to attend the annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Jones, of Landing, returned home Monday from a visit of three weeks to relatives and friends at Kirksville, Missouri, where they had a most delightful welcome.

L. J. Spencer of Warsaw, spent the first of the week here writing life insurance. County Clerk W. R. Rogers of Burlington, was assisting Mr. Spencer in the business.

J. J. Hudson is able to be about after a confinement of about three weeks at his home from the effects of being crippled in the leg by a blow from a sheep while he was assorting the herd.

Virgil Holder, who has been employed in the train dispatcher's office of the Q. & C. Railroad at Danville, the past year, spent part of the past week here at his old home, enjoying a short vacation.

Hon. J. G. Tomlin leaves Sunday for Boston, Mass., to attend the annual meeting of the American Bar Association, and will then go to England, Scotland, Germany, and France for a visit of about two months.

Jno. L. Vest and S. C. Hicks have purchased the Mrs. Lora Rouse house and lot in Walton from Geo. F. Boughner, the Covington attorney, for $1,500 expecting to rehandle the property on a profitable basis.

William B. Northcutt and wife, of Covington, spent a few days here last week, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. F. Curley. Will, as he is familiarly known, formerly lived here and has a host of friends in this quarter.

Scott Chambers, our clever undertaker, spent a part of this week at his old home at Petersburg. Mrs. Chambers and two daughters Misses Aileen and Mary, who have been enjoying a visit there for a couple of weeks, returned home with Mr. Chambers.

Fred Miller who spent the past two weeks at the Kavanaugh Camp Meeting at Crestwood near Louisville, assisting in the music with his violin, returned home Monday. He also visited relatives at Louisville, and had a most enjoyable time at both places.

Dr. G. C. Rankin spent a part of the week at his old home at Sardis, Mason county. Dr. Rankin is very much pleased with his new location at Walton, and the people appear to be very much impressed with his excellent qualities of which he seems to be possessed in every way.

The members of the Walton Baptist church have bought the cottage and lot owned by Miss Lula Jones, known as the Mrs. Orrin Percival property. The consideration is $2,000. The residence will be used for a parsonage and a handsome brick church building will be erected on the balance of the lot.

Mrs. W. B. Johnson of Walton, and daughter, Mrs. Raymond Rennaker of Oxford, Kansas, left last Tuesday for Covington on a visit to the latter's brother Edmond Johnson and family, and will then go to Oxford, Kansas, Mrs. Johnson returning home after a visit of six weeks here, and her mother accompanying her for a visit.

McClure Chapter Royal Arch Masons conferred the Mark Master's and Past Master's degrees on Dr. C. C. Metcalfe, A. Ralph Edwards and R. F. DeMoisey last Saturday. A special meeting will be held Thursday, August 29th, to confer the various degrees, beginning at 9 o'clock a. m., and lasting all day. All companions in good standing are cordially invited to be present.

Lee Gaines, J. M. Stamler, Chas. Rogers and Chas. [illegible] the Mt. fair at Carthage last week. A large number of [illegible] see on exhibition, and captured first premiums in nearly every ring he showed for. Mr. Best is a splendid handler of horses and shows them to a very great advantage. He is at the Erlanger fair this week with a string of fine horses.

The sale of the personal property of Mrs. Orrin Percival, deceased, was very largely attended and everything sold well. The sale was held on the farm near Walton. Over $1,500 was realized from the sale. It was splendidly managed by the administrator Dr. J. G. Slater, who deserves much credit for the able and prompt manner in which he is managing the disposition of the settlement of the estate with a very light expense.

Mrs. Littleton Finley, a most estimable lady of Crittenden, died last Friday after a lingering illness, aged 76 years. The deceased was the wife of Littleton Finley, president of the Tobacco Growers Bank at Crittenden, and was a daughter of the late Judge A. G. Craig, of Gallatin County, Ky., where she was born. The funeral took place Sunday from the Crittenden Baptist church the services being conducted by Rev. H. C. Wayman, after which the interment took place at Crittenden. J. D. Doubman and Mrs. D. T. Buck of Walton attended the funeral.

Col. Jas. A. Duncan, Master Commissioner of the Boone Circuit Court, was here Saturday having the property of John C. Rogers appraised as a preliminary step to it being sold under decree of court to satisfy a judgment for $462.72 in favor of the Walton Building and Loan Association. The property consists of about 14 acres of land near Walton, on which is situated a small frame house. Dr. J. G. Slater and J. Waite Cross appraised the property and gave it a valuation of $462. The property is to be sold at the court house door in Burlington Monday, Sept. 4th. Mr. Rogers recently moved to Idaho.

The protracted meeting held at the Walton Baptist church the past two weeks closed Sunday night with 23 additions, 4 by letter and 19 by conversion and baptism as follows: Randall Shephard Queen Robinson, Hugh Shephard, Elizabeth Hicks, Frank Harmes, Emma Cook, Elizabeth Johnson, Delaney Johnson, Goldie Maxwell Maggie Fulliove, May Conley, Cecil Forman, Pearl Wilson, Asa Stephenson, Marian Brooking Tom kins, Nellie Johnson, Ruth Bolington, Bart Napier; By letter—Mrs. Sallie Boulton, Nora Greenwell, Grace Wayland, Mrs. W. B. Johnson, Wayne Byland. The preaching was conducted by Rev. P. C. Ecton of the Calvary Baptist church, Lexington, assisted by the pastor Rev. H. C. Wayman. Much regret was expressed at the early closing of the meeting, but Rev. Ecton had engagements elsewhere that demanded his time. There was a large attendance nightly, and the services were marked for their entertaining and instructive features.

FLORENCE.

Protracted meeting will begin at the Baptist church here in two weeks.

Everybody is getting ready for the fair. Boys, be ready to take your best girl.

Quarterly meeting, which was held here Saturday and Sunday, was well attended.

Mrs. Dora Cole, of Columbus, has returned to her home accompanied by her sister, Miss Nell Rouse.

Miss Ola Corbin is quite sick.

Miss Anna Walker, of Walnut Hills, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Walker.

Mrs. Sallie Snyder and daughter, Sallie, were guests of Hal Snyder and children, of Cincinnati, Sunday.

Mrs. Edna Roberts and son Melvin were guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Asa Cason, of Burlington, a few days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Hank Tanner and daughter, Annits, and Edgar Aylor and wife, of Hebron, were the guests of Butler Carpenter and family Sunday.

The boys from Belleview came over and played the Florence ball team and were defeated by a score of 14 to 13. It takes a good team to beat the Florence boys.

RICHWOOD.

John Rice and family were Sunday guests of J. C. Cleek.

The Misses Hearne entertained friends from Cincinnati, Sunday.

William Dobbins of Covington, was the guest of D. B. Dobbins, Sunday.

Mrs. Amanda Clutterbuck, of Erlanger, is the guest of Gaines Robinson.

Earl Robinson will return to his studies at Kentucky State, after Sept. 10th.

A mixed team from Corinth and Mason played a double header here. The morning game was a hard earned victory for Richwood by a score of 9 to 8. The afternoon game was never in doubt after the second inning. The score was 8 to 2. The Richwood boys and friends had a fine spread and plenty to eat and not a cross word marred the day.

At the Blue Grass Fair last week, Orange Frye, the noted colored hog raiser, of Duncan's Hill, took three blue ribbons, two whites and a championship ribbon on his fine Berkshire hogs. The one that carried away the championship honors of Kentucky was sold on the ground for $550. This is doubtless one of the finest hogs ever raised in Kentucky.—Danville Advocate.

Samuel H. Marshall, 60 and Mrs. Myrtle A. Clements, of the Hathaway neighborhood, were married by County Judge P. E. Carnes, at the court house, Wednesday morning at 9:30.

Renewing his subscription, Rev. John L. Presser, of Hallsville, Mo, writes:

"The drought here has played havoc with the oat, corn and potato crops. Wheat was good, but oats and potatoes were a failure. Corn will average about one third in this section. Gardens were completely burned up. The drought still continues and water is getting scarce. Fall grass is burned up and the prospects for winter are not very bright. In this section we have had three small, local showers since the middle of April and they practically did no good."

President Taft will designate Thursday, November 30th, as Thanksgiving Day this year. It always has been the custom to fix the last Thursday in this month. This year there has been some doubt because November happened to include five, instead of four Thursdays. The White House has been besieged by theatrical managers and those in charge of college football games to settle this doubt so that definite arrangements could be made for the usual array of special performances and sprouts that mark the day.

Mrs. Amanda Clutterbuck and grandson, of Erlanger, have returned to Erlanger after a visit here with relatives.

If J. C. Byland is as innocent of wrong doing as he says he is, we will take all back we ever said and thought and as we know how a father will protect a wayward son nearly always, even with his life, and will even forsake all friends to shield him in his wrong doing and such may be the case in this, and we hope he will come out of the wash as clean and white as the driven snow.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Robinson, a boy. It did not live long and for a while it was thought Mrs. Robinson would not live, but she is improving slowly. The babe was interred at Hopeful, Saturday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson thru our columns desire to thank Drs. Senior and Menefee and kind neighbors and friends who helped in their time of bereavement and illness.

Rev. W. McC. Miller who recently went to Ingleside, Ga., to take charge of a Presbyterian church, writes: "It was hard to leave good old Boone; we surely miss our many friends there, and our hearts often turn back to them with longing. Boone is good enough for anybody, and those who can stay there would hardly better themselves by leaving. We have met a kind and cordial reception here, and are very well pleased with our new charge. The crops are good, (better season than you have had), business seems brisk and the people generally are prospering. The concern of religion are well attended to and the state of the church compares favorably with the good as everywhere else. Remember us to all inquiring friends with our kindest regards."

Prof. J. G. Prather and bride arrived last week from Owenton and have gone to housekeeping in one of J. G. Tomlin's houses, recently vacated by Mrs. Wm. Stephens. Prof. Prather is the newly elected principal of the Walton High School. He is a native of Owen county, Ky., and a son of J. W. Prather, a prominent farmer of that county. He is a young gentleman of very bright intellect, and we feel that his work in the Walton school will be crowned with success because he is conscientious and painstaking in his work, and has a splendid lot of young people to work with. Prof. Prather was married at Owenton August 23d, to Miss Emma Roberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Roberts, the ceremony being performed by Rev. J. O. Jackson, of the Christian church of which Mrs. Prather is a member. The bride is a charming young lady of many attractive qualities of heart and mind, and she will become a favorite with the Walton people. It is to be hoped that Mr. and Mrs. Prather will be pleased with Walton and its people, and that their stay will be prolonged into a permanent residence. The best wishes of many friends in this quarter is extended the happy young couple for a bright, happy and successful future.

DROUTH

Fayette County In Its Withering Grip.

Crops Suffer and Water Scarce In Many Sections.

Ground Dryest In Recollection Of Oldest Inhabitants.

Lexington, Aug. 24.—It is said by many old residents of Fayette county that never before in their recollection have they seen the earth so dry at this season of the year as it is now. It is believed that Fayette county is perhaps the dryest spot in Kentucky. There has not been a general soaking rain for about two months, and while in a few localities the situation is not so bad, in most parts of the county the bluegrass is parched into the ground; the growing corn stalks have in many cases been unable to send out shoots for ears on account of the lack of moisture; the half matured tobacco is beginning to fire badly, and stock water is extremely scarce. In many instances farmers have sold their cattle and other livestock on account of the dearth of grass and water, and the expectation of high feed this winter. At J. B. Haggin's great Elmendorf stock farm, the famous Russell Cave Spring from which normally gushes one of the largest streams in the State, and from which water is pumped to all parts of the big estate, has gone nearly dry, and every economy is being used to conserve the water for absolutely necessary uses.

It is believed that in the interior of the cave the stream forks, and one branch is diverted to some distant outlet, and efforts have been made to enter the cave to this point and dam up the diverting stream. While the arch is high enough for a man to walk erect in several hundred yards of the long cavern, there are several low places, where an explorer would be required to crawl through very low openings and a competent engineer has not yet been secured to make the somewhat perilous journey.

The bluegrass at Elmendorf has become so parched from the dry weather that the 400 cows used in the great dairy and the other livestock on the place have to be fed for the first time, at this season of the year, since Mr. Haggin has owned the farm.

Convict Labor on Roads.

Convict labor is being utilized in building roads in 111 counties in Georgia. Under the road law of that State a county may take a certain number of prisoners to be employed on the public highways. The county is responsible for the safe-keeping of the convicts and must supply them with food, clothing and shelter and with the necessary tools that are required for road construction. The State is thus relieved of the expense of keeping the prisoners and the counties get the benefit of their labor. The plan appears to be working satisfactorily all around. The Atlanta Constitution recently said:

"If any American State is hesitating over the advisability of using her criminals in the creation of highways, Georgia's experience ought to prove the deciding factor. Every county that has taken convicts, kept them properly, undergone the slight expense, laid out a definite construction plan and stuck to it—has profited in a ratio that may be only guessed. The counties that have been most active and used most gray matter have gained large dividends in enhanced land values, increases of desirable population, enhancement of educational, religious and social activities and general development."

The State of Georgia has 135 counties. As 111 of these counties have seen proper to avail themselves of the opportunity to secure convict labor the inference is that they are getting good results. It is not to be doubted that employment in road making is better for the health and general welfare of the convicts than labor inside of prison walls. The benefits to the counties and to the State in improved highways are bound to be enormous. Assuming that the counties are able to care for the convicts properly and keep them safely—and this they seem to be doing—the Georgia method is worthy of consideration as an aid to the solution of the two important problems of convict labor and road improvement.

Kentucky has both a road problem and a prison problem to solve. The roads need to be improved and the present system of leasing out the convicts is generally conceded to be archaic and abominable. When we begin legislating on these subjects it ought be well for our legislators to make a thorough study of the situation in Georgia.—Courier-Journal.

SEALY TUFTLESS MATTRESS

We are featuring this Mattress because we firmly believe that it is far superior to the old style tufted Mattress. It is made without a single tuft and gently cosforms to the body in any position, giving it perfect rest and complete relaxation; will not get out of shape and lumpy, as the entire filling is long fiber cotton, so compressed that tufting is not required. We ask you to investigate this Mattress and we will leave it to your own judgment

We are sole agents in Campbell and Kenton Counties for this Mattress.

Things Worth Knowing.

Do not rub fabrics roughly between the hands when cleaning them. It will be found sufficient to rub the cleaning fluid in gently with a fresh cloth.

If a small piece of zinc is burned in with the coal occasionally it will coat the interior of the chimney so that soot will not form upon it.

If chicken is roasted or panned with the breast down instead of up it will be more juicy and tender. It should be turned over ten minutes before it is done to brown.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE

After An Interesting Session Of Five Days Adjourns.

Endorse The Anministration Of the County Superintendent

And Recommend That They Be Paid a Better Salary.

Thursday Morning—

Institute called to order by Superintendent. Song, "Tenting on the Old Camp Ground." Devotional exercises were conducted by Prof. Sharon.

The subject, Consolidation of Schools, was discussed by Alice Booth, T. W. Skinner, Prof. Sharon and the Superintendent. The only thought presented to prevent consolidation was bad roads.

Arithmetic was opened by Wielis Hance, followed by Hannah Hearne. N. E. Hamilton took a class of teachers and illustrated the one hundred per cent method in a very satisfactory manner.

Prof. Sharon also gave a lengthy talk on the signs used in arithmetic.

Dr. Payne assisted in the discussion, leaving many good points with the teachers which he had gained by two years work in Germany.

Afternoon Session—

The afternoon session was called to order by Prof. Sharon.

The subject of Geography was introduced by Mrs. D. M. Bondurant followed by Prof. Sharon, who devoted a one hour lecture devoting most of his time to Longitude and Latitude.

Supt. Riley took the subject of School Law, explaining the working of our new law step by step from the District Trustee to the County Board of Education.

The following two teachers names were omitted from the list of enrollment on Monday: Wielis Hance and Minnie Stephens.

The following teachers were enrolled Thursday: Helen Dickey, Nannie Maurer, Alma Corbin, Lutie Ryle, Lizzie Rogers, Pearl Stephenson.

Friday Morning—

The session was called to order by the Instructor. Song. Devotional exercises were conducted by Prof. Sharon.

The committee on Resolutions reported the following which were adopted as a whole by the Institute:

We the teachers of Boone Co. assembled in our annual Institute, adopt the following resolutions:

First—We thank the citizens of Burlington, who extended their hospitality to us during the sessions of the Institute, and those who encouraged us by attending the sessions.

Second—We thank the Boone County Recorder for continuously extending its courtesy and assistance in publishing school announcements and other matter of benefit to the schools.

Third—We heartily commend the work of Prof. Sharon as the Instructor of this Institute. We believe him to be one of the foremost educators of the State, and an excellent gentleman. We appreciate the inspiration which he has brought us and are glad to know him as a friend.

Fourth—We extend our thanks to Dr. and Mrs. E. George Payne for their entertainment and for the instruction and uplift which they have given us during their stay with us.

Fifth—We heartily endorse the work of our County Superintendent during his administration, and pledge him our co-operation and support in carrying out his plans for the improvement of our schools.

Sixth—We declare our determination of co-operating with each other more fully in the effort to make the schools of Boone county a great, well organized system.

Seventh—We advocate that if practicable in the future the Institute shall be the first week of the school sessions, all schools beginning on a uniform date and taking up their work immediately after the Institute, fresh from its instruction and inspiration.

Eighth—Whereas, the school system of Boone county uses a plant valued at $100,000 and annually expends some $25,000 in the work of education, and, whereas, the county places her business manager of schools, the county superintendent under a bond of $27,000 and requires heavy duties and places great responsibilities upon him at a salary of about a dollar a day, be it

Resolved, That we recommend that the Legislature pass a law raising his salary as well as that of the other superintendents in the State to a sum commensurate with the duties of the office, the minimum of which should be $1,600 per year.

The committee of district meetings reported as follows:

Beaver—October 7th.
Belleview—October 21th.
Big Bone Church—November 4th.
Hebron—November 18th.
Florence—December 2d.
Walton—December 16th.

The course of study was discussed by Prof. Sharon, outlining on the board a course that he thought would be a model for a school for one teacher.

A motion was made by Prof. Dix, that a Reading Circle be organized in each magisterial district. It was carried and the committee of each district meeting, is to act as chairman of that district.

Maude Cleaveland in a neat speech, behalf of the superintendent, was presented by the [illegible] with a [illegible] talk on Physiology and Hygiene, laying great stress on the conditions that existed in some schools in Kentucky.

After giving the teachers their cards of attendance and the closing remarks by the Superintendent, the Institute adjourned, the teachers feeling that they were better prepared for their year's work.

BIG DOINGS

At The Celebration of The Fern Bank Dam Whtch Begins Next Monday.

Nearly every commercial organization in the State Valley, from Pittsburg to Cairo, will be represented at the celebration which Cincinnati is arranging for the week of September 4th in honor of the completion of the Government Dam at Fern Bank, just below the city of Cincinnati. This dam is one of a series of 54 units which will be completed within the next ten years, and which will give the Ohio river a navigable stage of at least nine feet from source to mouth all the year round. Because of the significance of this improvement, which gives Cincinnati a deep water harbor for a distance of 26 miles, merchants and manufacturers along the Ohio river and tributary streams are joining with Cincinnati in making the jubilation a highly enthusiastic and impressive one. In order that visitors to the city during the week of the celebration may not want for amusement, the Cincinnati Fern Bank Dam Association has provided a series of free entertainments that will keep strangers within the Cincinnati gates well entertained during his entire stay. On Monday, September 4, there will be a "Welcome Home" meeting at Music Hall, at which prominent speakers will be heard and a magnificent musical programme rendered. Tuesday will be given over to the steamboat parade and a visit to the Dam where the ceremonies of dedication will be gone through. Wednesday will be Covington, Ky., Day, the citizens of that place providing much entertainment for visitors, while Cincinnati will offer a series of band concerts at the base ball park in the morning and afternoon and a magnificent display of fireworks at night. Thursday will see the picturesque parade of beautifully decorated pleasure boats on the river, with concerts in all parks at night. The Motor boat and rowing races are set for Friday afternoon, the power boat events bringing out the speediest boats on the Ohio.

Friday night there will be a magnificent allegorical parade, showing by means of a series of 20 illuminated floats, the evolution of navigation from the time of the ark up to the present day. On Saturday the automobile road races and aviation exhibitions will take place; the races being for distances ranging from 125 miles to 250 miles over an eight mile course. The aeroplane flights will take place within view of the spectators at the races. Other interesting events are being arranged for the week, so that there will be something doing all the time.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES

Of The Common School Graduates Will Be Held At

Library Hall, Burlington. Friday Afternoon, September 8.

Parent, you can't give your child anything that will be worth as much to him as an education. The Boone County High School is free to the boys and girls of Boone county. Surely you should do your part and help your child take advantage of this opportunity.

Don't send your child away to school until after graduation from your County High School. Keep him near you and among your own people as long as you can. You do not know what his surroundings may be in some distant school.

Send for a catalog of the Boone County High School. Our course is as strong as that of any school of a similar grade in the State.

Do you know that the High School graduate has an earning capacity twice as great as the common school graduate? Do you know that an education is worth more to a boy or girl than a farm?

The commencement exercises of the common school graduates will be held at Library Hall, Burlington, Friday afternoon, September 8th at 2 o'clock. Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, president of Kentucky Educational Association, will deliver the class address. The program will be good. Everybody invited.

Don't fail to attend the commencement exercises at Library Hall Friday, September 8th at 2 p. m.

Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, who will deliver the Class Address at the common school commencement has been called the most brilliant woman in the State. The public will miss a treat if they fail to attend.

Keep in mind the commencement exercises of the common school Friday, September 8th, 2 p. m. The program will be published next week.

Statistics show that the annual per capita liquor supply has reached above 23 gallons. There is a steady advance in the consumption of intoxicants among the people while of the last year [illegible] of the States have decreased consumption.

BECOMING STAGNANT

It is Claimed of The Woter Between Fern Bank Dam and Cincinnati.

CAUSING MANY FISH TO DYE.

It is claimed that the Fern Bank dam is causing the water in the pool it forms to become stagnant, and many fear that it will prove very detrimental to sanitary conditions along the river between Cincinnati and Fern Bank. Some say that the fish have already begun dying as a result of the water having become impure, and many water dogs are crawling out on to the shore where they die, having been driven from their element by its impurities.

The trouble complained of should be no surprise when it is remembered that the entire volume of sewerage made by Cincinnati, Newport, Covington and Ludlow is turned into the river which is dead water for many miles below these cities. This immense volume of sewerage is bound to pollute the river, a condition which surely was suggested by the proposition to construct the dam at Fern Bank. To say the least some people are becoming alarmed over a bad condition which they believe will become worse.

Points For Farmers.

Sow buckwheat for your bees.

Brood mares should be kept on the farm.

Corn shortage is said to be 500 million bushels.

Now is the time to begin to feed hogs for your meat.

Have your seed wheat and rye ready to sow when it rains.

September is the month to do your roof and house painting.

The peach crop in Kentucky is given at 49 per cent of a crop.

See that your feed barn and corn cribs have good roofs on them.

The condition of the burley crop this year is given at 66 per cent.

The apple crop in Kentucky is given in at 59 per cent of a crop.

Now is a good time to grub the meadows and clean off the rock.

If your milk cows are not what you want, beef them and get better ones.

Feed and get rid of all shoats and hogs except brood sows by February first.

Good roads enhance the value of farm lands and lessen the cost of transportation.

Now is the time to sell your fat stock, feed will be scarce this winter and fall grass will not be plentiful.

A Sure Remedy.

According to a negro "hoodoo doctor," hauled before the Police Court in Louisville, two fingers and a toe, cut from the corpse of a lynched negro, will cure a swelled hip or a "misery" or rising on any part of the body. The fingers and toes must not be applied to the swelling, but should be sewed up in a bag and placed under the carpet at the foot of the sufferer's bed, and four round pebbles must be worn next to the skin in a belt made of a snake's skin. This sovereign remedy is equal to that of Aunt America Coleman's for the toothache. In order to stop the pain all she had to do was to cut off a lock of her hair, or wool, rather, and place it in an auger hole on the north side of a walnut tree and then paint a white oak pin with poke-berries and drive the pin in on top of the wool.—Murray Gazette.

The Future Is Yours.

Welcome, Arizona. The long delayed right of statehood is now yours. By intelligence, courage and patience, your people have rescued a wide area from the desert and made it a fruitful land. Your climate, your minerals, and your fertile valleys invite an increasing multitude and give promise of a splendid career. Your constitution is one of the best in the union, wisely framed and bravely defended. The personal of a president, biased against a elective judiciary, compels you to eliminate the recall as applied to judges, but you can restore it—and should—as soon as you are a state. Be brave and wise—the future is yours. Thrice welcome, Arizona.—W. J. Bryan in his Commoner.

Thanksgiving Turkey Plentiful.

Turkeys are reported as being a good crop this season, while ducks will be short, as was the case last year. The drought has had a dire effect on the duck crop, inasmuch as the "waflers" need plenty of water to thrive. On the other hand, the supply of grasshoppers, so essential to the welfare of the young gobble, has not been found wanted and following the dry spring and summer, conditions warrant looking forward to plenty of Thanksgiving turkey, with a sufficient surplus to take care of the Christmas dinner also.

The Best County Fair in the State

THE FLORENCE FAIR

WILL BE HELD

Three Big Days Aug. 31st and Sept. 1st & 2d. Three Big Days

The Finest Horses, Mules, Hogs, Sheep and Poultry in Kentucky will be on exhibition, while Floral Hall will be a great attraction for the Ladies.

Good Music ALL the Time

A well conducted county fair, with its fine stock, household exhibits, its show rings and Floral Hall is an institution in which any county should take pride, besides its entertaining features it supplies a common meeting ground for farmers and a welcome diversion for the city folks. So let eyerybody take a few days off and attend the

OLD RELIABLE BOONE COUNTY FAIR

Aug. 31 and Sept. 1st and 2d.

General Admission 30c. Children 8 to 12 Years Old 20c

Children under 8 years old, Free. Automobiles Parked Free.

THE BOONE FAIR

Which Opens Its Sixteenth Meeting To-Day Promises to Excel All Previous Exhibitions.

A Fine Place to Meet Old Acquaintances and Form New Ones.

The Boone Fair which begins at Florence today ought to be a crackerjack, and no doubt it will be equal to if not better than any of the past if the weather clerk does not cut in and demoralize all the calculations of the management.

The towering shade trees and the beautiful carpet of blue grass places the fair grounds at Florence far ahead of anyother fair grounds in the State in the matter of beauty, while the comfort of the patrons has been amply provided for. The immense amphitheater that surrounds the excellent and commodious exhibition ring will seat 5,000 people in a most comfortable manner, and every individual has an unobstructed view of each and every exhibition while it is in progress.

The inviting grounds, comfortable and well arranged seats, fine stock and strong competition in the exhibition ring are the features that have acquired for the Boone fair its wonderful popularity both at home and abroad, while liberal premiums and fair treatment have made friends for it of the best and most noted breeders of fancy saddle and harness horses in Kentucky, and they are always well represented in the ring, some of the best horses ever produced in this State having been exhibited at Florence.

The stock pens are not neglected by exhibitors, and large crowds flock to them to view the fine hogs and sheep with which they are crowded every year. It is there that the merits of that class of stock are discussed by the breeders, and many a valuable pointer is given one farmer by another, that he takes home and profits by.

Floral Hall is the center of attraction for the ladies and year by year they increase the exhibits of art needle work and paintings, and while the dairy exhibit is by no means slighted, the product of the good cook is brought in profusion.

If you want to see in what the people of Boone county are engaged there is no better place to get a line on them than at the Florence fair, and there is no better place at which to meet old acquaintances and to form new ones. Go each of the three days and at the conclusion you will feel better towards yourself and your fellowman and be convinced there is something in [illegible] all.

A few days until the [illegible] sports throuout the [illegible] is in progress.

Drouth Broken.

Louisville, August 28.—Rain, on which a value of $1,000,000 is set by farmers, fell throughout Western Kentucky this morning, breaking a drought of many weeks.

During the last 24 hours the rainfall has been general in this locality.

Davies county reports 2 1-2 inches of rain and other districts fared almost as well.

Tobacco crops have been helped materially.

THE HARVEST HOME

Next Saturday, September 9th, Will Close The Rural Outings In This Part Of The Country.

The Harvest Home on Saturday of next week, September 9th, is a fitting conclusion of the rural outings, and for that reason, if no other, it should maintain its great popularity with the people of Boone county. It provides premiums sufficiently liberal to induce a spirited competition on the part of the people in the county who produce the articles upon which premiums are given, and there is always an exhibit that for size and merit surprises the large crowd. Field and garden products, livestock, poultry, pantry and dairy, flowers, fancy and plain needle work and paintings, and a nice exhibition of horses in the ring furnishes entertainment for the older people whose minds have turned from the pleasures of youth, while the commodious pavilion will be jammed with the young folks who never tire while they have an opportunity to trip the light fantastic in time to the excellent music the association always provides for them. Remember that at the Harvest Home will be the best opportunity of the year to meet a host of friends with whom you wil not have another opportunity to strike hands for another twelve months, therefore, resolve to attend, and, by way of a diversion, take anything you have on which a premium is given and see if you can't take home a blue ribbon with you. Remember the date and that the attractions are numerous.

Food Prices Will be Higher.

From present indications food prices will, within the next few months soar to a figure never reached before. But the United States will not be alone in this calamity—as Europe is going to suffer a shortage of crops just as this country will, due to the abnormal weather conditions and lack of rain. It is a foregone conclusion that the potato crop is a failure. Garden truck is largely in the same situation. The August crop report of the Department of Agriculture demonstrated a tremendous slump in condition and probable yield of most of the breadstuffs crops.

HATHAWAY.

The public school began here Monday, Elijah Stephens teacher.

Some few from near here attended the Erlanger fair last week.

All roads will lead to the big county fair at Florence this week.

A good rain fell here last week, which has been quite a benefit to fall pastures.

W. S. White and Ealy Conley sold to E. E. Utz four cattle last week for $139.

Will Smith spent last Saturday night with his uncle, G. L. Smith and wife, near here.

R. Lee Huey has recently had his residence brightened up with a fresh coat of paint.

The Ladies' Aid Society met with Mrs. Mary Love, last Thursday, near Orange Hall. The day was spent quilting.

Manley Ryle and wife spent Saturday night and Sunday at L O. Hubbard's near here.

Robert McNeely and wife were pleasant guests of his parents on Gunpowder, last Tuesday.

G. L. Smith sold to E. E. Utz one day last week, two fat cattle for $80 to be delivered this week.

A band of gypsies passed thru here last Sunday. They stopped in the town limits, ate dinner, fed their teams and rested quite a while.

Misses Fannie Smith and Julia Reed, of Union, spent a few days last week visiting their friends and relatives in this neighborhood.

Mr. John Keffer, Miss Bessie McNeely and two other lady friends of Gallatin county, spent Saturday night and Sunday at Jno. D. McNeely's.

W. T. Ryle and wife, of Belleview; Ira Ryle and family, of Commissary, and G. A. Ryle and wife were pleasant guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. White last Sunday.

The road now, but the will be pike, is quite a horrible looking road in places where rock has been hauled and piled in the middle of the road. When they are put on the road and the work completed they will have a nice pike.

Gov. Willson pardoned Joe Finley, a former resident of Grant county, who was indicted in that county for unlawfully ceiling pooled tobacco. The Executive said that Finley was forced into the pool and that vicious lawlessness had forced Finley to sell his farm and leave Kentucky.

Hay Fever, Asthma and Summer Colds Must be relieved quickly and Foleys' Honey and Tar Compound will do it. E. M. Stewart, 1094 Wolfram Street, Chicago writes: "I have been greatly troubled during the hot summer months with Hay Fever and find that by using Foley's Honey and Tar Compound I get relief." Many others who suffer similarly we will be glad to benefit by Mr. Stewart's experience. For sale by Jones' Drug Store, Walton, Ky.

Still Plenty in Sight.

There is no use of closing your eyes to the fact that this year our national crops will not be bounteous, owing to the long drouth in the spring and early summer. The official Government report states that he corn crop alone may be 400,000,000 bushels below last year's generous yield, also that the spring and winter wheat will be less than the harvest of 1910. In fact, statistics seem to be agreed that the product of cereals will be the smallest of the past ten years.

There is still plenty in sight, when we compare our harvests with those of other nations, and we need not be discouraged.—Washington Herald.

The crop prospects in the Kentucky districts are estimated by the Government as follows:

Burley, not good; Paducah, late, and inferior; Henderson, condition July 1, worst in years; upper Green river (one sucker) late, inferior; upper Cumberland, poorest in several years; Hopkinsville, shortest and poorest in years.

In one of the Blue Grass towns a few days ago a horse attached to a buggy became frightened at a yoke of oxen and ran off. A yoke of oxen on the streets are almost as much of a rarity now as an automobile would have been twenty years ago.

Special Premium.

I will give a premium of $5.00 each for the best horse and the best mare colt and $2.50 each for the second best colts, to be of the 1910 get of Jackshire, and exhibited at the next Harvest Home. W. H. ROUSE.

Local Happenings.

Next Monday is Labor Day.

Potatoes are small and very few in the hill.

Fine weather for breaking land to sow in wheat.

B. B. Hume sold two horses last week, to a Georgia party.

Threshing machines have completed their annual rounds.

The Kensington public school will begin September 4th.

The temperature Tuesday morning justified a persons being incased in a heavy coat.

This week has brought some as fine fall weather as could be desired by any person.

The teachers will never be admirers of the institute which they are compelled to attend.

Florence is the liveliest spot this week in Northern Kentucky. All roads lead to that town because of the fair.

The complete premium list of the Boone County Harvest Home the date for which is September 9th, appears in this issue.

With a big crop of corn and exuberance of melons the people in the Belleview-Ballwick are the happiest in the county.

The Recorder is under obligations to Prof. A. M. Yealey for favors granted during the recent session of the Teachers' Institute.

The rain the latter part of last week was not condusive to the Erlanger fair but made quantities of stock water and fall pasture.

At ten o'clock this morning the bell tapped and the Florence fair was on for a three days exhibition. Arn't you gwine two or three days?

J. M. Eddins, Democrat, of Burlington, and A. M. Edwards, Republican, of Walton, have been appointed Election Commissioners for this county.

Geo. Ousman, of Beaver, sold his farm to his neighbor, John Cleek, last Monday. Possession to be given any time before the first of the month.

The scarcity of flies in Burlington this summer is attributed by some to oiling of the streets. One thing is certain they have been unusually scarce.

Foley Kidney Pills will check the progress of your kidney and bladder trouble and heal by removing the cause. Try them. For sale by Jone's Drug Store, Walton, Ky.

Lawrence Phipps, who is employed as a detective by the Q. & C. Railroad Company came out home last Saturday to spend a few days recuperating.

The rain the latter part of last week put the land in fine order for breaking for wheat, a crop for which no great effort is being made in this county.

Begin to fill the coal bin right now, because winter is headed this way again. Remember how very inconvenient it is to be out of fuel in zero weather.

Mrs. Susan Kirkpatrick has moved to the telephone exchange building, and the exchange is now in charge of Miss Nellie Kirkpatrick and Sheba Roberts.

A cement walk will be built from the pike to the High School building, which will add considerably to the appearance of the premises as viewed from the road.

Mrs. J. E. Smith took a large number of premiums on her fancy needle work which she exhibited at the Erlanger fair last week. She is an expert with her needle.

By this time last year a very considerable tobacco had been cut, but the present crop has not begun to ripen, and was benefitted greatly by last week's rains.

Write this down where you'll see it every day. The time to draw business is when you want business, and not when you have more business than you can tend to already.

The base ball season is drawing to a close and as between the Cubs, Giants and the Pirates in the National League the race is anybody's, with each of these three clubs claiming it will capture the penant.

Correspondents' attention is again called to the fact that when a contribution reaches this office as late as Wednesday at noon there are nine chances out of ten that some of it will have to be omitted.

Many a Suffering Woman

Drags herself painfully through her daily tasks, suffering from headache, nervousness, loss of appetite and poor sleep, not knowing her ills are due to kidney and bladder troubles. Foley Kidney Pills give quick relief from pain and misery and a prompt return to health and strength. No woman who so suffers can afford to overlook Foley Kidney Pills. For sale at Jones' Drug Store, Walton, Ky.

RAINY WEATHER

Badly Crippled The Erlanger Fair On Friday and Saturday.

The Erlanger Fair which began on Wednesday of last week with every indication of a big success, was badly crippled by the rain that fell all day Friday. It not only wiped out the attendance that otherwise would have passed in at the gates that day, but reduced by several hundred dollars Saturday's attendance.

Friday's entire program was called off and some thought Saturday's fair would be on the double header order, but the management could not see how it would be possible to stack up for two days' premiums and purses out of one day's gate receipts, consequently the awards programmed for Friday never showed up, and some of those who had stock to exhibit Friday thinking they ought to have been allowed that privilege on Saturday, were not at all satisfied.

The races each afternoon were the drawing cards and afforded very satisfactory entertainment. Several of the races appeared to be neck and neck affairs, altho no fast time was made. The book maker was about the busiest man on the ground and got liberal returns considering the capital he had invested.

Notwithstanding only three days' exhibition were given the secretary announces that the receipts during the fair are sufficient to meet all expenses.

STOCK BARN BURNED.

One Horse and Considerable Other Property Consumed.—Amount of Insurance Small.

The stock barn belonging to James A. Huey, on what is known as the old Rice farm in Union precinct, was destroyed by fire last Saturday about 3 a. m. When Mr. Huey awoke it was very light in his room and he hastened to discover the cause and was shocked to find his barn being rapidly consumed by fire, the origin of which is a mystery, Mr. Huey never smokes and as he was the only person about the barn the evening before, many are inclined to the belief that some person had been about the barn during the night and dropped a match which was accidentally ignited, resulting in the destructive fire. The fire had gained such headway before it was discovered that it was with the greatest difficulty that Mr. Huey succeeded in saving his fine horse, while another horse, a large lot of hay, 84 bushels of seed wheat and numerous articles were consumed. The barn was insured for a small amount in the county insurance company, consequently Mr. Huey's loss will reach several hundred dollars above the amount of insurance.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE

Held An Interesting Two Day's Meeting, But Poorly Attended.

The Farmers Institute convened at the court house, Tuesday morning and organized by electing Prof. E. L. Dix as chairman. The attendance each day was very small, and the farmers of the county certainly missed a good thing, intended wholly for them. Few of those to whom subjects were assigned showed up, consequently local farmers' talks were not much in evidence. The lectures delivered by Messrs. Beckner, Strange and Witty, the gentlemen who the State sends out to meet the farmers, were full of instruction and very helpful, and it is a great pity that they were not heard by more of the county's tillers of the soil.

Dr. H. R. Carter, surgeon in charge of the Marine Hospital at Louisville, has warned the commanders of the Ohio river steamers entering that city against the use of Ohio river water for drinking or for washing the face or hands unless it has previously been boiled. Typhoid fever is rampant at the hospital.

Few people have any idea what an incentive it is to both teacher and pupils to know that parents and outsiders are taking a lively interest in their work. The "little folks" at school appreciate such interest more perhaps than the larger ones. Still the effect is not lost on any of them, and every parent will take a hint from this and place the public school on their visiting list.

Ed. Aylor's ship yard below Tay Insport was destroyed by fire a few nights ago. Mr. Aylor was engaged in building a very superior gasoline launch, quite a number of which ply the Ohio river at different points, and had several orders booked when the fire occurred, some of the crafts being partly constructed. Mr. Aylor's loss is considerable, having no insurance. The origin of the fire is a mystery.

The Rising Sun Fair Committee has added the following premiums:

$5.00 for best stick green tobacco and $3.00 for second best.

$1.50 as second premium on best display of knit work and needle work.

$1.00 1st premium on fancy quilt and 50 cents on second.

A special premium of $15.00 will be given for the best and $7.50 for the second best precinct display of farm products. This display is open to all the precincts in Boone county.

Nothing doing at this office tomorrow and Saturday. The entire force will be at the fair those two days.

DIED OF BLOOD POISON.

Richard Louden Succumbs To The Malady After A Brief Attack.

Richard Louden, who has lived on the farm of Miss Julia Dinsmore, near Belleview, for many years died of blood poison, last Friday night. Mr. Louden had cut his foot badly, and his melon crop being ripening rapidly and requiring shipping, he did not cease to work long enough after the wound was received, and the fatal disease developed, after which he lived but a short time. Mr. Louden leaves a wife and several children, most of the children being grown, while the others are nearly so. He was an honest, hard working man, a good citizen and father and a loving and indulgent husband, and his death is deplored by all who knew him.

The people in the dry zones this year are in favor of impeaching the weather on the ground of offensive partiality.

Notice to the Public.

August 9th, 1911.

Fred Pfalzgraf & Son,
Idlewild, Ky.

Dear Sirs.—In answer to your letter of recent date, in which you explain that certain reports are being circulated thru your community to the effect that you are not our exclusive agents, and that another party claims he can solicit and fill orders for the genuine Columbus, made by the Columbus Buggy Company, let us say emphatically that such is not the case. You are the only representative we have in your community, and the only one we authorize to sell our vehicle.

Should we receive orders from other parties than you, we should decline to fill them, unless authorized in writing by you to do so.

You have our consent to give this letter wide publicity if you care to; it will soon establish in the minds of your friends and customers who the real agent of the genuine Columbus is.

Yours Very Truly,
Columbus Buggy Co.

NO MACHINE MARKS ON THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM

The effort which is being made to create the impression that the platform adopted by the Democratic Convention at Louisville was due to machine methods, or that the adoption of the county unit bill was a personal triumph for Governor Beckham, or for any other one man, is due either to a misapprehension or a purpose to distort the facts.

It is to be expected that the Republican papers will take advantage of every statement made and every act done by any Democrat and lends color to such charges. They naturally desire to create as great dissension in the ranks of the Democrats as possible and also to minimize the impression created by the Democratic Convention, which was composed of earnest, intelligent, independent thinking delegates. Any consideration of the proceedings demonstrates conclusively that Governor Beckham, popular as he is influential, as he is, because of the long experience he and his associates have had in politics did not dominate the Convention and that it was not controlled by his personality, any more than it was dominated by his opponents. He is not a nominee on the ticket and his influence in the Convention was not more dominating than was that of other men who advocated the plank which he advocated. Conclusive proof of this fact is the action of the Convention in seating the contesting delegation from Franklin county. The Committee on Credentials presented a report that the delegation headed by Governor Beckham should be seated. There was no minority report, but the Convention decided by a vote of over two to one, a majority as we recall of some four hundred, to seat both delegations from Franklin county. There were strong indications that had it not been for the compromise proposed by Mr. Franklin, by which both delegations were seated, the Convention would not only have rejected the report of the Committee on Credentials but would have seated the contesting delegation. This was not because of opposition to Governor Beckham. It was because the majority of the delegates believed the contesting delegation was entitled to represent Franklin county. Neither Governor Beckham's personality nor his influence could have prevented, had they been exerted to the utmost, the action of the Convention in seating both delegations, nor in our judgment could he have kept it from seating the contesting delegation alone, had not the compromise been proposed by Mr. Franklin.

We cite this occurrence, which is illuminating, to show the character of the Convention and to prove that the delegates were neither merely cogs in a machine nor controlled by any one dominating influence, but were independent-thinking and acting representatives of the Democratic party.

When the vote was taken to substitute the planksubstituted by Mr. Watterson for the plank drafted by Mr. Sullivan, the Convention by a majority of some hundred odd voted to adopt the majority report of the Committee on Resolutions signed by ten of the Committee and to reject the minority report signed by three of the Committee. This action also was proof of the independence of the Convention. Many delegations who had voted to reject the report of the Committee on Credentials, which was a vote against Governor Beckham, voted to accept the report of the Committee on Resolutions advocated by him. They did not vote to accept that report because it was advocated by him any more than they voted to reject the report of the Committee on Credentials because he headed the delegation from Franklin county, the right of which to sit in the Convention was contested, but in such instances voted as they believed the facts and issues required.

No fair-minded man can study the proceedings of the Convention and analyze the vote without reaching the conclusion that neither Mr. Beckham's personality nor Mr. Watterson's personality was a dominating influence, and the more certain conclusion that the platform is free from any machine marks.—Lexington Herald.

Slavery Times.

An unique character in the person of a negro, giving his age as William Wheeler, 78 years of age, born at Tuscumbia, Ala., and reared in slavery, was in this city Tuesday desiring to deliver a lecture on Slavery and the Civil War. Wheeler was a butler to General Joseph Wheeler and was captured at the battle of Missionary Ridge and claims to have traveled with the Union army on its memorable march from Atlanta to the Sea. He is strongly of the opinion that the negro who had a good master was much better off as a slave than as a free man. He contemplated going from here to Aurora to enlighten our sister city on the subject nearest his heart.—Lawrenceburg Register.

Tortured for Fifteen Years.

by a cure-defying stomach trouble that baffled doctors, and resisted all remedies he tried, John W. Modders, of Modderaville, Michigan, seemed doomed. He had to sell his farm and give up work. His neighbors said, "he can't live much longer." "Whatever I ate distressed me," he wrote, "till I tried Electric Bitters, which worked such wonders for me that I can now eat things I could not take for years. Its surely a grand remedy for stomach trouble." Just as good for the liver and kidneys. Every bottel guaranteed. Only 50c at all dealers.

Lawrenceburg is to have a shoe factory that will occupy a three story building. The factory's output will be 1,200 pairs of shoes per day.

She'll Tell You---Quick!

Just ask your wife which of these two dish pans of cream separator parts she would rather wash. She will tell you quick—the one with the single piece in it. This single, tiny, instantly removable piece is all there is inside.

Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator Bowls

Which, Kind for You?

All other separators have heavy, hard to wash, complicated "bucket bowls." The disks in the full dish pan are all from one common "bucket bowl" and are just a sample of the trouble and work of washing "bucket bowls" as compared to washing the Dairy Tubular. Think of washing these disks twice a day. Imagine the chance rust and hard knocks have at such a complicated machine.

Milk skimmed with a Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator is skimmed right—it is the cleanest skimming, quickest skimming, lightest running, longest lived separator built. Bring your wife to see it—inside and outside—and learn how it may double your butter money. The helpful dairy book, "Business Dairying," is yours for the asking.

PLATFORM

Adopted By the Democratic State Convention

Held In The City of Louisville, August 15.

We the Democrats of Kentucky, in delegate convention duly assembled and held in the city of Louisville, Kentucky, on August 15, 1911, do hereby pledge anew our faith in and devotion to the time-honored and eternal principles of our party first promulgated in the Declaration of Independence and since reaffirmed in successive platforms of the party, and we especially reaffirm our faith in and devotion to the national Democratic platform adopted at Denver, Colorado, in the year 1908.

We denounce the Republican party and the present Republican President for their flagrant and willful betrayal of the trust reposed in them by the American people and call attention especially to the fact that they have willfully disregarded their pre-election promises to the effect that they would revise downward the unjust tariff system and would relieve the masses of the people of the heavy burdens of unjust and unnecessary taxation.

On the contrary the Republicans enacted the odious Payne-Aldrich tariff law of 1909, pronounced by Mr. Taft to be "the best Republican tariff law ever passed," which law was a gross breach of the Republican President and his political party. This tariff law in order to enrich the few, increased the burdens of the many, and authorized those favored few not only to continue but to increase, their robbery of the many under the forms of law.

We point with pride to, and heartily indorse the patriotic record made by the present Democratic members of Congress and Democratic Senators, in their efforts over determined Republican opposition to, in good faith, redeem the promises of the Democratic party to repeal unjust and oppressive Republican laws, and to enact wise and just laws for the benefit of the great masses of the people, and we invite all to contrast the aims and record of the Democrats in the House and Senate of the present session of Congress with the aims and record of the Republicans and especially with the Republican session of 1909 which enacted the Payne-Aldrich tariff law.

We especially indorse the record of our Democratic Congressmen and Senator from Kentucky for their fidelity in keeping the promises of their party and representing the people and not the interests, and we denounce the record of the Republican Congressmen and Senator from Kentucky, because they have represented the privileged, protected interests of the country.

Kentucky is, and of right ought to be, a Democratic State, and the Democratic party in appealing for the support of the electorate of the State eagerly invites an intelligent comparison of the records it has made with those made by its political adversary during the temporary occasions it has controlled the affairs of the State.

As against the Republican record in Kentucky of assassination bloodshed, and disregard of law, we present the Democratic picture of peace, scrupulous regard for human life and a strict observance of, and respect for law; as against an empty treasury and rejection and shaving of honest demands against the State, we present a picture of a magnificent State Capitol erected and paid for without any extra tax, and every just claim against the State promptly met and paid in full; as against platform pledges and promises broken and made to be broken, we present a record of all pledges and promises faithfully kept; as against hypocrisy, demagogy and incompetency we present a record of sincerity, fidelity, competency and statesmanship.

We denounce the action of the Republican Governor for his partisan and unjust action in pardoning the men indicted for participation in the assassination of Wm. Goebel, the Governor of our State, and we assert that those pardons were granted for political reasons, and not upon the merits of the case.

We charge the Republican party both in the State and in the nation with gross extravagance and willful waste in the expenditure of the people's money, and we pledge ourselves to retrenchment and reform, and to an economical business administration of public affairs.

We are in favor of a direct primary election law, providing that all primary elections shall be conducted under lawful authority and at public expense, and to be regulated in the same manner and subject to the same penalties for violations, as in case of regular elections.

We favor the enactment of an explicit and effective corrupt practice act, which shall determine what campaign expenses shall be legitimate, and which shall provide for the compulsory publication in detail, under heavy penalties, of the campaign expenses of every candidate for [illegible]

We favor the enacting of such [illegible] laws as will make our [illegible] school system [illegible] and more effective [illegible]

[illegible] rigidly responsible for adequate returns on every dollar so invested. We charge the Republican party with neglect of and indifference toward our school system.

Recognizing that a large majority of the teachers of our common schools are women and that women are now eligible to be elected school trustees, county school superintendent and to hold office, and are frequently so elected, we favor the extension women of suffrage in all school elections, subject to such wise regulations as to qualifications as the General Assembly may determine.

We favor such laws as will, under appropriate penalties, destroy all corrupt lobbying, seeking to influence any legislative body in the Commonwealth on the subject of legislation or the election of officers by it, or in any other matter; but we recognize the constitutional right of the people to petition and to be impartially heard on all questions.

We favor, under wise and proper restrictions, the creation of a State Utilities Commission, having ample powers to discharge its duties.

We favor a change in the present method of selecting the Prison Commissioners of the State, and the removal of all politics from the management of our penal institutions. While commending the present Board of Prison Commissioners for its successful management of the institutions under its care, we recognize that the system of election by the Legislature, under which they are elected, is unwise, and we therefore favor such a change as will place their appointments in the hands of the Governor, subject to confirmation by the Senate, or some other method such as the General Assembly may provide.

We favor a law requiring that a uniform system of accounting be installed and conducted in all public offices charged with the collection and disbursement of public moneys.

We favor the General Assembly submitting to a vote of the people whether or not they desire to adopt an amendment of our State Constitution broadening the powers of the General Assembly so that it may classify property for the purposes of taxation; but we are opposed to any law the effect of which would be to lighten the burdens of taxation on the wealthy and on corporations at the expense of the poor, the farmer or the laboring man.

Temperance is essentially a moral, non-political and social question, and should not be made a partisan issue between political parties.

We favor the extension of the present local option law, as applied to the sale of liquors, which has been upheld by our highest court as valid and constitutional, so that the citizens of each and every county in the State may determine for themselves whether spirituous, vinous or malt liquors may be sold therein.

We favor organization and co-operation among the farmers and laborers of the State, and the enactment of such constitutional laws as will protect them from the greed and oppression of the trusts and monopolies of the country, which are the direct fruit of Republican legislation.

We favor such wise and conservative laws as will encourage road and bridge building in Kentucky, and we favor reasonable State aid for the construction of roads and bridges, but only on condition that each county or local community, which is primarily benefitted shall first do its part and discharge its duty to itself in this regard.

We favor the creation, removed from politics, of a Department of Banking, providing for competent inspection of all our State financial institutions, and similar to the system now existing for national banks.

We favor the enactment of such wise laws as will put into effect all sections and provisions of the State Constitution, and we declare that we are in favor of the enforcement of all laws.

We favor the enactment of wise laws for the protection from accident and injury of all laborers engaged in hazardous employments, and we favor a wise, conservative law regulating the arbitration of labor strikes and disputes.

We favor a law prohibiting peonage and female slave traffic, regardless of color.

We are opposed to all mobs and lynchings and are in favor of imposing the severest penalty possible, under our Constitution, on all officers who fail to protect prisoners intrusted to their keeping.

The Democratic party has always been the party of religious, as well as civil liberty in Kentucky and in the republic. It refers with pride to its noble and consistent record on this important question, so "dear to every true American heart." We are in full accord both in letter and in spirit, with the teachings of Thomas Jefferson, the founder of our party, on this question, and with the provisions of our State and Federal Constitutions, and we are unalterably opposed to raising any religious test as a qualification for holding any office in the State or nation.

We favor the nomination and election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people.

We denounce and are opposed to Cannonism or one-man power in all representative assemblies, whether it be in the Congress or in representative conventions. We favor the rule of the people [illegible]

[illegible] proud of the past and desire a still more prosperous, more progressive present and future, for all our people, so support our magnificent State ticket, including our nominee for the United States Senatorship, and our nominees for General Assembly and for other offices.

In conclusion we call the attention of Kentuckians to the fact that Democratic principles are triumphant in the Nation and in almost every State, and that the Republican party everywhere is professing to adopt Democratic principles in its platforms, but we warn them that the Republicans of this State have placed in their platform some progressive Democratic doctrines, not with a view to carry them out or to attempt to carry them out in good faith, in the improbable event of their success at the polls next November, but only for the present purpose of catching votes and deceiving the people, so that they might get the offices and emoluments thereof. The broken promises of the present Republican State and National Administrations as well as the entire history of the Republican party, are sufficient to convince all fair minded citizens of insincerity of the Republican party, and that it is not the party of the people; while, on the other hand, the record and history of the Democratic party in the Nation and the State conclusively establish its devotion to duty and its purpose in good faith to redeem all platform pledges made to the people.

Reforming State Prisons.

Within ten years the elimination of every extraneous influence in the administration of the state prison of New York together with the introduction of scholastic and industrial training, has produced an almost complete change in the interior routine. A well fitting gray uniform has been substituted for the convict's former striped suit, and the military step has replaced the lockstep. His hair is trimmed neatly with shears, instead of being cut close to the scalp with clippers. Crockery has replaced the old tin cups and pans in the prisons of the state. An oculist and a dentist look after the eyes and the teeth of the prisoners. An electric light in each cell has replaced the old tallow candles. Infraction of rules in the New York prisons today merely consigns the convict to solitary confinement until he reaches a normal condition of mind and signifies his willingness to conform to discipline. The paddle, the rack, the ducking stool, and all other forms of corporal punishment have been abolished in New York's penal institutions.—Frank M. White, in World's Work.

A Railroad Man's Prayer.

Not long since an old railroad man drifted into a church where a revival service was going on, and was asked to lead in prayer. He said: "Oh, Lord, now that I have flagged Thee, lift up my feet off the rough road and put them safely on the platform of the train of salvation. Let me use the safety lamp known as prudence, make all the couplings on the train with the strong link of Thy love, and let my hand lamp be, the Bible, and Heavenly Father, keep all switches closed that lead off on sidings, especially those with a blind end. O, Lord, if it be Thy pleasure have every semaphore light along the line show the white light of hope, that I may make the run of life without stopping. And Lord give us the Ten Commandments for a schedule; and when I have finished the run on schedule time, pulled into the great dark station of Death, may Thou the superintendent of the universe, say, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, come and receive a check for Eternal Happiness."—Ex.

Life Saved at Death's Door.

"I never felt so near my grave," writes W. R. Patterson, of Wellington, Texas, as when a frightful cough and lung trouble pulled me down to 100 pounds, in spite of doctor's treatment for two years. My father, mother and two sisters died of consumption, and that I am alive today is due solely to Dr. King's New Discovery, which completely cured me. Now I weigh 187 pounds and have been well and strong for years." Quick, safe, sure, its the best remedy on earth for coughs, colds, hay fever, asthma, croup and all throat and lung troubles. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all dealers.

The apple growers around Peoria, Ill., have made so much cider this year that they are filling their cisterns with it, as good places in which to hold it for market. Lipscomb, deceased, making an appraisement of the personal estate of the deceased, which amounted to about fifteen hundred dollars. The Equitable Bank and Trust Company is the administrator of the estate, and Mr. Vest represented the administrator being the vice president of the bank.

S. L. Edwards, our clever postmaster, returned home Sunday from Rochester, New York, where he attended the annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, being one of its devoted members. Mr. Edwards had the pleasure of listening to the address of President Taft, and also received many kindly attentions while at Rochester. He also enjoyed a trip through Canada east, and was much benefitted by his vacation.

On Monday, Sept. 4th, the Walton Graded School will open for the eleventh session. The first day will be devoted to the opening exercises and to the assignment of pupils to their proper grades, etc. The public is invited to the opening exercises, and it is hoped by the school authorities that many of the patrons will assemble with the pupils in the chapel at the exercises and show their interest, and add their encouragement by their presence. Jno. L. Vest, A. K. Johnson, and others, will express their interest and expectations, etc. Rev H. C. Wayman will also make an address. Prof. J. G. Prather, the principal of the school, will outline the work of the school for the ensuing year and bring before the patrons their part in the school's success, and ask for their co-operation. The school faculty is composed of the following: Principal, J. G. Prather; Assistant Principal, B. L. Vallandingham; Miss Anna Cleek, High School Department; Intermediate department, Mrs. Alice Booth, 7th and 8th grades, Miss Helen Dickey, 5th and 6th grades; Primary department, Miss Nannie Chambers, 3d and 4th grades; Miss Jeannette Chambers, 1st and 2d grades. Owen S. Watts had the pleasure of attending the recent reunion of the McGlasson family [illegible] Kenton, and speaks of it as one of the happiest and most [illegible] he has ever attended. The reunion was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. McGlasson, and there were eight children and sixteen grandchildren present. The venerable grandparents, Henry McGlasson, aged 83 years, and Harriet McGlasson, aged 72, graced the head of the bountiful spread table placed under the shade of the trees in the front lawn, and a magnificent dinner was spread to the delectation of the entire assemblage, and so the day passed in delightful pleasure because it was a love feast and a genuine reunion of those between whom the greatest and tenderest bonds of affection exists. The McGlasson family is a remarkable one indeed. The head of the family were among the pioneers of Boone county, coming here from Virginia when this country was a wilderness and the provations were great. Since their coming to Boone there has not been a death in the family with the exception of one of the grandchildren in infancy. They now own not less than 1,300 acres of the best land in Boone county, and are not only prosperous, happy citizens, but are among the best citizens in the State, and are loved and respected by everybody. Archie McGlasson, one of the grandsons, is an ensign in the U. S. Navy, and he is ambitious to be an admiral. In every walk of life the members of this family have proven themselves to be worthy of public confidence, and their many friends wish them more such happy and

Appears On Mud Lick Creek, Among John Fitzharris' Herd of Cattle.

Local Livestock Inspector, O. S. Crisler, Working Hard to Stamp Out the Disease.

FOUR OF THE HERD HAVE DIED.

Considerable excitement exists on Mudlick creek, this county, as the result of the appearance of Black Leg among the cattle of John Fitzharris.

Last week Mr. Fitzharris noticed one of his young cattle appeared to be choked. It lived a couple of days. About the time the first animal died a second developed the same symptoms that attracted Mr. Fitzharris' attention to the first. The second animal died in a shorter time than the first.

After the death of the second animal Mr. Fitzharris noticed that two others were ailing, and he called local livestock inspector Dr. O. H. Crisler, and described the symptoms, and the inspector pronounced the disease Black Leg.

Dr. Crisler went down to Mr. Fitzharris' and found his cattle had Black Leg in a malignant form. No time was lost in vacinating the remainder of the herd, after which two more of the cattle died. The dead cattle were each cremated immediately after its death, and every precaution possible has been taken to prevent the spread of the disease.

From whence came the disease is a mystery, as Mr. Fitzharris' herd was raised on his farm, and the disease never before appeared on his farm or anywhere in that part of the county.

Dr. Crisler visited the neighborhood again yesterday, where he had request to vacciate 64 cattle belonging to the neighbors of Mr. Fitzharris, and he will take every step necessary to stamp out the disease.

Black Leg appeared on the farm of Rice Bros., in the Idlewild neighborhood seven or eight years ago, and killed two or three young cattle, but Dr. L. H. Crisler confined it to their farm and soon stamped it out by means of vaccination.

The symptoms of the disease are loss of cud and appetite, staring coat, arched back, rigors, lameness, unequal surface temperature fast pulse and reseration.

The disease is mostly confined to young animals, but it is well to protect the older animals by vaccination. Black Leg is said to be microbic and is communicated through abrasions or punctures of the skin or mucus membrane.

Joel C. Clore Married.

The announcement of the marriage of Attorney Joel C. Clore, of Cincinnati, was a very great surprise to his host of friends and relatives in this county, who, for many years, had regarded him so confirmed in his bachelor life, as to have no thoughts of ever becoming a benedict. His wife was Mrs. Ella T. Mendenhall, said to be a very charming lady, whose husband has been dead two years. The Recorder is informed that Mrs. Clore is a native of this county, where she has quite a number of relatives. Mr. Clore is an able lawyer and a most elegant gentleman, and his numerous friends wish for him and his wife all the blessings this life affords.

DOUBLE HEADER.

Belleview High School Team Looses Two Games to Burlington Labor Day.

The Belleview High School base ball team and the Burlington team indulged in a double header at the local park, last Monday afternoon. In the first session Brady and Slayback and Rogers and Scott for Belleview, were the batteries. It was an interesting game the Burlington team trying to pull off a shutout which would have resulted had Brady's orders at a critical point been obeyed. A Belleview man had reached third. Robert Brady got on first and made a dash for second when an attempt was made to run him down on the line to make the third out, but while the play was in progress and before it was put through the man on third crossed the plate and spoiled the shutout, although Brady was yelling for the ball to be thrown home. The upsetting of the old fox's calculations were made possible by his son's strategy. Score 9 to 1 in favor of Burlington. Hits—Burlington 14; Belleview 7.

In the second game the batteries were Robert Lassing and Andy Cook, for Burlington, and Robert Brady and Clore for Belleview. It was a very nice game for five innings at the close of which the score was 2 to 2. In the sixth inning the older players broke loose and in too innings scored eleven runs. Robert Lassing, though wild, pitched some fine ball, showing that he is good material for that position. Score 15 to 5 in favor of Burlington. Hits—Burlington 11; Belleview 3. Both of Belleview's young pitchers showed fine form for their age and experience, and in a few years they and the aggregation behind them will make a strong team

The Hebron base ball club went over to Delhi, last Monday, and beat the team at that place 8 to 1, with Ed. Sandford in the box and Ben Zimmer under the bat. Prospects for Stock Hogs.

The prediction made early in the spring of lower prices for pork has been upheld and for weeks and months there has been a steady advance until $7.85 was paid Saturday for a bunch of choice butcher hogs on the Chicago market. Farmers owning brood sows and growing pigs have an investment for rapid returns that is the best on the farm. The shortage of the corn crop and the consequent stiffening of prices for the great feed crop of the country is another factor that is going to hold up the price of porkers. In Central Kentucky there are many farmers and tenants who will have insufficient corn to feed their own meat hogs and the indications are that more stock hogs will be for sale than for many years, and at prices considerably lower than the natural range as compared to the finished product. Truly the hog is redeeming his supremacy as the [illegible] of the farm.—Blue Grass Farmer.

DRY FARMING TERM

As Much Misunderstood as Any In English Language.

Was Used in Irrigated Country Where Land Was Cultivated Above Ditches or Before Irrigation Was Inaugurated.

Dry farming is perhaps as much a misunderstood term as any in the English language. Many people seem to think it is some hocus-pocus system whereby crops can be produced on arid or desert soil where no rain falls. Nothing can be further from the truth. Dry farming was the term used in the irrigated country where the land was cultivated above the ditch or before the ditches were constructed to irrigate the land. Throughout the greater part of the irrigated belt from 10 to 20 inches of rain fell annually and many farmers having only a small acreage under the irrigating ditch supplemented this by farming more or less of the unirrigated land adjoining and to their surprise in many seasons it paid them better than the irrigated land as it was not nearly so expensive to work. Thus originated the term dry farming.

"Hellriegel showed by actual experimennt that 12 inches of effective rain during the growing season of wheat starting with the soil moisture in good condition should enable a yield of 40 bushels to be produced and that 25 bushels of wheat would require 7.5 inches of rain on the same basis." In but very few parts of the arid or semi-arid sections of this country are there less than ten inches of rain per annum. The whole problem of the dry farmer is to make as large a proportion as possible for his growing crops.

Rainfall is lost to a greater or less extent in two ways. First, by percolating down into the deep strata of soils beyond the reach of the roots of the plants, and, second, by surface evaporation. Over the first of these ways of losing the annual rainfall the farmer has no control except in selecting the farm. The dry farmer should avoid all land containing a sandy or gravelly subsoil or one containing layers of hard pan near the surface because if he selects the former he will lose all the rainfall by percolation and if he selects the latter he will lose it by surface run off or drainage.

What kind of land should the dry farmer select? A loam surface soil with a clay silt subsoil which can be readily dug with a spade without the aid of a pick although the hard clay subsoils will do very well, provided they are free from hard-pan layers. It is as important for the dry farmer to get a water holding subsoil as it is for the irrigated farmer to get a perpetual water right as the subsoil is the dry farmers' reservoir in which he stores the rainfall of one season for his crops of the next. The proper selection of the dry farm is the all important thing in preventing the loss of effective rain thru percolation; the proper cultural methods are the things to be considered in preventing the loss of effective rain thru surface evaporation.

These methods differ in different parts of the country. In the northern part of the United States and Canada surface evaporation is very small during the winter season. In the southern part of the United States and Mexico surface evaporation may go on quite rapidly thruout the entire year so that 30 inches of rain may not be as effective in Texas as 15 inches would be in Montana. Deep plowing is usually advocated in the dry farming region as such forms a good reservoir to catch the rains which are generally very heavy while they last.

The soil should always be compacted with a sub-surface packer or similar tool immediately after plowing so the soil around all vegetation plowed under is firm and thus hastens decaying. Compacting the soil also destroys large air spaces and establishes capillarity between the soil and subsoil. In order to prevent surface evaporation the plowing should be dragged immediately after subsurface packing unless the soil is very fine and mellow with a tendency to blow. The land should be dragged after every rain so as to bottle up that water in the subsoil and also prevent any loss of previous rains.

In regions of scanty rainfall (15 inches or less) it is generally advantageous to summer till a half or at least a third of the land each season. Such land should be plowed early in the season before any weeds have grown but any soil moisture and following it should be kept clean from weeds all summer and a dust mulch should be kept on the field to prevent all the evaporation possible. In regions of 15 inches of rain the same can be obtained but a well-cultivated crop. In this case not well done one year's crop may be for naught. Attacks School Principal.

A severe attack on school principal, Chas. B. Allen, of Sylvania, Ga., is thus told by him. "For more than three years," he writes, "I suffered indescribe torture from rheumatism, liver and stomach trouble and diseased kidneys. Thousands bless them for curing stomach trouble, female complaints, kidney disorders, biliousness, and for new health and vigor. Try them. Only 50 cents at all dealers.

Largest Peach in United States.

What is claimed to be the biggest peach ever raised in the United States by natural process is now on exhibition at Bentonville, Benton county. It measures one foot and two inches, a total of fourteen inches in circumference, and weighs 17 ounces. It was weighed three days after it was picked and undoubtedly shrunk to some extent after leaving the tree. The peach is of the Elberta variety and was grown by Mrs. Will Hartson, who resides near Bentonville. It will be preserved in alcohol and exhibited at the state fair and the World's exposition at San Francisco. Horticulturalists who have seen the fruit declare it is the largest known.—The Wynn Progress.

With harvesting of the best crop in California, already a month under way, a large crop seems assured. Weather conditions that prevailed during the maturing of the beet plant have been the most favorable in years, with the necessary moisture early in the year to provide the "wood" in the plant and the warm weather later to form the sugar, so that the quantity of the beet juice is greater per ton and the percentage of purity higher than in 10 years past.

in the State may defor themselves whether spirituvinous or malt liquors may be sold therein.

I voted for and I endorsed every section of this platform, and it is proper I should say in this connection that I voted for the first local option law passed by the Kentucky Legislature in 1874, I then being a Representative from Madison County.

At a local option election held in Richmond I was absent attending to my duties as Senator at Washington, except the local option election held March 3 last, and on that day I was compelled to be in Louisville to attend a meeting of the State Democratic Executive Committee called for that day by the chairman, the main business of which was to call off the primary election which I had advocated, and in which I was deeply interested.

At the recent Democratic State convention I advocated at the Democratic candidates' meeting a declaration to be placed in the platform in favor of extension of the present local option law, and it was agreed to by the Democratic candidates, and was put in the Democratic platform.

On this platform of principles Democrats appeal to all Kentuckians, irrespective of previous political affiliations, to support our State ticket and all other Democratic candidates.

Judge O'Rear in his speech at Mayfield on the 31st day of August asked me to answer the following questions:

Are you now in favor of the extension of the county unit law in Kentucky, etc., and when did you come to that conclusion?

I have already said in my speech today that I endorse every section of the Democratic platform at the State convention at Louisville on the 16th of August, 1911, but I will say now specifically—I am in favor of the extension of the present local option law as applied to the sale of liquors, so that the citizens of each and every county in the State may determine for themselves whether spirituous, vinous or malt liquors may be sold therein. These are the exact words of the State Democratic platform.

I came to this conclusion some time ago when the question of the extension of the county unit law became prominent, and I regard it as the best plan to settle an important questiom and I had no influence with, I asked McKnight to see them, and neither of them voted for you after that day."

In the allusions I have made to my distinguished opponent, I only desire to state facts and correct misrepresentations. "His long public career is familiar to all Kentuckians, and I would say nothing to disparage what ever merit he has displayed, or to detract from his standing as a party man."

The Democratic Platform.

The Democratic platform adopted at the State convention held at Louisville, Ky., August 15, reaffirms time-tried and time-honored Democratic doctrines, and it announces up-to-date Democratic principles which are worthy of the support of all Kentuckians.

I indorse the platform which was adopted by the convention. It represents the principles of the Democratic State ticket and presents the policies that will be upheld.

Speaking with candor and deliberation, I can say that in my opinion no better or more appropriate or progressive declaration of principles was ever made in Kentucky by an earnest, intelligent, patriotic body of men, representing the Democrats of every part of the State.

I shall not at this time discuss at length each section of the platform. I hope it will be read and carefully considered by each voter. It is sufficient for me to refer briefly to the subject matter of most of the sections.

The Democratic platform, after pledging anew our faith in and devotion to the time-honored and eternal principles of our party, and reaffirming our faith in successive platforms of the party, and especially reaffirming our faith in and devotion to the National Democratic platform adopted at Denver, Colo., in the year 1908, declares in favor of a direct primary election, the passage of a corrupt practice act, a more efficient system of public schools, woman's suffrage in school elections, abolition of the lobby, the creation of a State utilities commission, uniform accounting system.

Selection of the Prison Board by the Governor instead of by the General Assembly, subject to confirmation by the Senate.

Reform of our tax system by submitting to a vote of the people whether or not they desire to adopt an amendment to our State Constitution broadening the powers of the General Assembly so that it may classify property for the purpose of taxation.

Creation of a Department of Banking, providing for competent inspection.

Wise and conservative laws as will encourage road and bridge building.

Organization and co-operation among the farmers and laborers of the State, and the enactment of such Constitutional laws as will protect them from the greed of the trusts and monopolies of the country, which are the direct fruit of Republican legislation.

Favors laws for the protection from accident and injury of all laborers engaged in hazardous employments, and a wise, conservative law regulating the arbitration of labor strikes and disputes.

Opposition to all mobs and lynchings, and severe penalties on all officers who fail to protect prisoners entrusted to their keeping.

Law prohibiting peonage and female slave traffic, regardless of color.

Election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people.

Enforcement of the laws and rule of the people.

Religious and civil liberty and unalterable opposition to raising any religious test as a qualification for holding office.

Declares temperance is essentially a moral, non-political and social question, and that tariff revisions should grow out of reports are made on the different tariff schedules by a tariff board composed of men who have no more capacity and no better information on the tariff than the members of the Ways and Means Committees which reported the bills to which I have referred.

President Taft is the first President in all the history of our Republic who vetoed bills to cheapen the clothing of the poor people, cheapen bread and meat for the hungry, cheapen machinery and tools for the farmer and laboring men, and yet my distinguished opponent, Judge O'Rear, voted for, and indorsed his platform in 1908, and at the late Republican convention of Kentucky, held July 11, he wrote and voted for a resolution in the Republican platform which indorsed William H. Taft for renomination for President in 1912. The King of England has not in centuries exercised such a right as Taft has exercised, and, in my opinion, if the King of England were to veto such bills as Taft vetoed it would cost his crown, and indignant, determined people all over our country will see to it that Taft will lose his crown or office at the November election in 1912, and all those who support and uphold him in the matters to which I referred should lose their chance for office, also.

Asks Judge O'Rear Questions.

Judge O'Rear wrote the resolutions adopted at the Republican state convention, which indorsed the administration of President Taft and which recommended President Taft for renomination as the Republican candidate for president. In this connection I wish to ask the Republican candidate for governor, Judge O'Rear, questions which are very interesting to all the people of Kentucky and which involve cheaper clothing, cheaper goods, cheaper farming machinery and implements, cheaper mechanics' tools and also justice under the law.

Do you indorse President Taft's veto of the bill known as the farmer's free list bill?

Do you indorse President Taft's veto of the bill reducing the existing tariff taxes on wool and woolen goods?

Do you indorse President Taft's veto of the bill reducing the existing taxes on cotton goods?

Do you indorse the votes against the farmers' free list bill which were cast by Senator Bradley and Representative Powers and your campaign chairman, Representative Langley?

Do you indorse the Ryan-Aldrich tariff bill which President Taft signed and which he said was the best Republican tariff law ever passed?

Do you indorse the pardon by Governor Willson of Taylor, Finley, Howard and Powers?

You have been silent on these great questions, some of which involve the reduction of the price of clothing, food, farming machinery and mechanics' tools to the amount of hundreds of millions of dollars. These questions are of grave and vital importance to the people of Kentucky, and the people of Kentucky want to know where you stand. Come out candidly and say where you are.

Judge O'Rear Inconsistent.

Judge O'Rear appears to be inconsistent. He claims to be a progressive, yet he is for Taft for re-election as President, and for Taft as a standpatter, and O'Rear commended in his platform Senator Bradley and Representatives Langley and Powers, who are standpatters, and he has Langley as his campaign manager, and Bradley and Langley and Powers voted against the farmers' and laborers' free list bill, and the bills reducing tariff duties on wool and woolen goods and on cotton.

Democratic Tariff Vs. Republican Tariff.

President Taft started the tariff campaign a few days ago at Hamilton, Mass., when on the 26th of August he made a speech and severely criticized Speaker Clark and Representatives Underwood and Senator LaFollette and other Senators and Representatives for passing the bills he vetoed, and he accused them of ignorance of the effect of the legislation, and he reached his climax when he said: "Men of Massachusetts, it seems to me that the slogan of the Republican party should involve a National cry and not be confined to mere State issues. Democrats everywhere are ready to accept this challenge, and we believe our cause of justice, right and fair taxation, will be victorious.

Both of the great political parties in Congress now face the realization that the defeat by the President of so much needed, just and important tariff legislation at the special session of Congress makes certain a tariff battle at the regular session beginning on the first Monday in December, next, which will exceed in fierceness any tariff battle which ever occurred, and that the tariff will go into the Presidential election next year with force and fierceness never equaled before. In all the Presidential contests where the tariff has been the great issue, Democrats have always been victorious, and I hope and believe history will repeat itself in 1912. The arguments are convincing and unanswerable, in support of the Democratic position for tariff reduction so as to get tariff for revenue only as soon as possible.

The Robert Walker tariff bill, enacted in 1846, is said to have been the best tariff bill ever passed by the Congress of the United States, and its average rate was less than half the average rate of the existing tariff law. It remained on the statute books unchanged until 1857, a period of eleven years. James G. Blaine, in his book, "Twenty Years of Congress," stated that the eleven years of the Walker tariff were the most prosperous in the life of the Republic, and that the people were so satisfied with it that in 1856, after it had been in operation ten years, neither of the great political parties which presented Presidential candidates referred to the tariff in its platform.

The Morrill tariff bill was passed in 1860, after the Civil War commenced, and the Republican party has since that time in every National platform promised a revision of the tariff. The revisions have always been upward instead of downward, until we now live under the highest tariff schedule ever known in the world.

Republicans promised in the last National contest for President to revise the tariff downward in the interest of the consumers. They revised it upward in the interest of monopolies and manufacturers, but in doing this they made plainer and clearer to the people than ever before that the true Democratic doctrine as to the tariff is that the Government has no right in equity or in law to collect a dollar of taxation except for its economical support, and that Republican doctrine is that taxes may be levied for the benefit and protection of favored individuals and preferred classes, which is legalized robbery.

Look for a moment at a few of the inequalities of the existing tariff rates. On clothing worn by the laboring man it levies a duty of 86 per cent. On champagne the duty is 55 per cent. On woolen or worsted goods worn by multitudes of women it is 135 per cent, and on the fine silk costume of the rich the tax is 50 per cent. On the plain, coarse blanket of the poor the tariff is 165 per cent, while on the finest and costliest blanket it is 71 per cent. On carpets used by the owners of the mansions the tariff is 50 per cent, while on the cheap carpets used in the modest homes of the working man it is 127 per cent.

The existing tariff law contains 2,024 articles, and the report of the Department of Commerce shows that the total production in the United States of goods protected by the tariff last year was thirteen billions of dollars, and there was imported into the United States last year goods valued at $779,000,000, on which a tariff tax of $329,000,000 was collected by the United States Government, but the unparalleled outrage is that the producers in the United States of the thirteen billion dollars' worth of goods were enabled because of the protective tariff to increase the price of their goods so that they made ninety-two millions of consumers pay them a tribute of about four billions of dollars.

President Taft said in his speech at Cincinnati when a candidate for President, on September 22, 1908: "If I am elected President I promise the nation I will use every fiber of my being to carry out honestly and decently the tariff revision promises of the Republican platform." Two days later he said at Milwaukee: "It is my judgment that the revision of the tariff in accordance with the pledge of the Republican platform will be, on the whole, a substantial revision downward." After the Payne-Aldrich bill was passed which increased taxes he signed it, and called it "the best Republican tariff bill ever enacted."

According to Democratic faith in making all tariff schedules, the tariff tax should be lowest on the necessaries of life, and highest on luxuries. The enormous tax provided for in the schedules of the Payne-Aldrich bill increased the price on every article on which it is levied, and helped to make the cost of living 60 per cent higher than it was ten years ago. A good law is that law which benefits the greatest number of people, and the Payne-Aldrich law will not stand this test.

There are four things every man wishes to obtain as cheaply as possible:

A home for himself, wife and children.

Clothing to protect them from the cold.

Edibles to support life.

Farming implements and mechanics' tools with which to labor.

Republicans in the existing tariff law put a tax on lumber, with which the home is built, and a heavy tax on woolen and cotton goods with which clothes are made, and a tax on edibles, and a tax on farming implements and mechanics' tools. Democrats have done all they could to make these articles free or as nearly free as possible, but President Taft, as I have already stated, vetoed the bills and was sustained by the Republicans in Congress, as it required two-thirds of the members to pass the bill over his veto. The people have a great remedy—change of administration—elect a Democratic President of the United States and turn Republicans out of office.

The conditions are favorable in various respects for change of administration, and especially because the Republican party is divided into two factions, the Insurgents and the Standpatters. A distinguished Democratic Congressman said not long ago: "The difference between them is as to the amount of the loot." Insurgents say, "Rob by the protective tariff, but rob a little." The Standpatters say, "Take it all," but Democracy appeals to the command which comes from Sinai and says, "Thou shalt not steal."

Farmers and Laboring Men.

I know I am addressing today an audience composed largely of farmers and laboring men, and I confess I have strong feelings and sentiments for everything that concerns them. I was reared on a farm, and although I practiced law many years I have also owned farms many years, and have a farm now. All classes and all kinds of business depend upon the prosperity and success of farmers and laboring men. When farm crops fail or diminish, business of all kinds languishes. I am in favor of co-operation and organization, both among farmers and laboring men.

A majority of our population live on farms and more than half our State taxes are paid by the farmers and the majority of our farmers are Democrats. The Democratic party has from the foundation of our government championed the farmer's cause, while the Republican party has crippled his interests and the interests of laboring men by compelling them to pay tribute to trusts, monopolies and combines, and carry the burden of oppressive taxation.

There should be no stay-at-home vote among the farmers and laboring men at the next State election. GOVERNOR McCREARY'S OPENING SPEECH Democratic Campaign at Bowling Green in a Rousing Address That Is Received With Great Enthusiasm.

One of the Largest Crowds That Ever Attended a Political Meeting in the State Greets the Ex-Governor.

He Proclaims Himself in Favor of the Extension of the County Unit Law, and Leaves No Doubt of His Position.

A HEARTY, SINCERE, RINGING DOCUMENT

BOWLING GREEN, Ky., Sept. 4.—Governor James B. McCreary, Democratic nominee for Governor, opened his campaign in this city today. The largest crowd that ever attended a political meeting here was present. Democratic voters poured in from the surrounding counties to give their personal approval to their party leader and to indorse the platform upon which he is asking the votes of the people. The enthusiasm with which Governor McCreary was received gives evidence of an aroused party spirit, which augurs well for Democratic success.

His speech was a complete review of the political situation in Kentucky and the nation. It leaves no live subject untouched. It calls the Republican party to account for its failures to live up to its platform pledges.

Governor McCreary delivered a masterful speech. He heartily indorsed every plank in the Democratic platform, and left no doubt in the minds of his hearers where he stands on every public question.

His speech in full is as follows:

Fellow Citizens: I have the honor of addressing you today as the regularly nominated candidate of the Democratic party for the office of Governor.

No words I can utter seem strong enough to express my gratitude for the nomination given to me by the Democrats of Kentucky.

I can only say I am sincerely and earnestly thankful for the great honor conferred upon me, and I shall try with whatever energy or intellect I possess to carry the Democratic flag to victory, and if I am elected Governor of Kentucky I will have no personal schemes to advance, no individual aspirations to promote, but I shall do all in my power to discharge every duty required of me faithfully and efficiently, and try in every proper way to uplift Kentucky, promote progress, improvement, and advancement, preserve law and order and uphold all that will bring prosperity to the State and happiness to the people.

It will always be a source of pleasure to me that Madison County, where I have resided all my life and where I am thoroughly known, indorsed me for the office of Governor, will only 34 votes against me in the primary election and 2,400 votes for me, a very busy season, being not far from the full Democratic vote of the county, and in the Eighth Congressional district, which I represented in Congress for twelve years, I was indorsed by a majority in the primary election of over 6,000 votes.

At the outset I wish to say with emphasis, that if I am elected Governor I will not be controlled by a clique, machine or individual, but I shall be as I was before when I had the honor to be Chief Executive of the Governor of the State, according to the Constitution and the laws.

Duty of Democrats.

There was never a time in our State when Democrats should be more alert and aggressive, more harmonious and united, than the present time. Kentucky Democrats are to fight the opening political battle this year, which will precede the great National battle for President next year. Kentucky Democrats will help start the movement which I believe will result in the election of a Democratic President in 1912.

While Democrats in other States are carrying the Democratic flag full high advanced to victory and increased majorities, Democrats in Kentucky must not falter or hesitate, but rather be energetic, enthusiastic, invincible, victorious.

The State of Kentucky.

The first and foremost subject to enlist attention of all is the State of Kentucky. There is everywhere in our State a greater desire for progress, improvement and advancement than ever before. Our population, the climate, the resources are splendid and the attractions show that we have everything to make Kentucky one of the greatest States in the Union, if proper use is made.

I was born and reared in Kentucky, and I have always loved it with a positive love, and it is but natural that I should wish to see her outstrip all other States in every matter of progress and every desirable forward movement. Kentucky occupies a unique position. Great Mississippi Valley, the world shuts us in and retiring than that Atlantic from the Alleghanies to the Rocky Mountains, the Gulf of Mexico, a million and and having excellent world have been greatly quickened. Our State must keep step to the music of the age, and we must have united, aggressive efforts for industrial and commercial supremacy, and Kentucky must forge to the front as one of the leading States of the Union in farming, in manufactures, in mining, in education, and in all the varied interests of a great people inhabiting a great State.

Few States, if any, in our Republic have such geological formations, such diversity of soils and mines, and such varied attractions as Kentucky.

Great Agricultural and Mining State.

The soil of Kentucky is very rich for agricultural purposes. Nowhere can be found better-producing tobacco land, better producing hemp land, better producing corn, wheat, rye, oats and barley lands.

Our State produces nearly one-third of the tobacco grown in the United States and 90 per cent of the hemp of the United States is produced in Kentucky.

With an area of 41,283 square miles only about 1,500 square miles are unfit for agriculture. Our coal fields are unexcelled in any State, there being 15,680 square miles of coal-bearing area, with coking coal in seven counties of the western coal fields and ten counties in the eastern coal fields, and cannel coal in abundance.

Her timber districts are immense, comprising vast forests of merchantable timber of every variety, and iron ore, lead, zinc, building stone and pottery clay abound in almost inexhaustible quantities, while rich, paying oil wells have been opened in various sections of the State.

Kentucky has over 2,000 miles of rivers, including the Ohio and Mississippi rivers where they bound its borders, and over 3,000 miles of railroads are ready and convenient for travel and transportation, and her live stock is not excelled in any part of the world.

Will Be Great Manufacturing State.

Kentucky is not only a great agricultural and mining State, but her manufactures are extensive and increasing rapidly, and being situated halfway between the Northern Lakes and the Gulf of Mexico, and between the Eastern and Western ranges of North American Mountains, is on account of location and the after a while a State.

Republicans Can Refer to No Beneficial Legislation, and Their Record Does Not Deserve Indorsement.

Republicans can refer to no legislation originated or enacted by them in Kentucky which has increased educational facilities, added to internal improvements, adjusted or lightened burdens of taxation or benefited Kentucky in any way.

The record shows, however, a remarkable military history, in which the expenditures for active militia in three and a half years under Governor Willson amounts to $277,158.87, or an average expenditure per year of $79,188.24, as against $29,358.16, or an average expenditure per year of $7,333.79 for the four last years of Governor Beckham's administration.

Thus it will be seen that the Republican expenses are nearly ten times as much for active militia in three years and a half as Democrats expended in four years.

Since so much has been said in the newspapers about expenditures for active militia, I have been asked to state the expenditures for active militia the four years I was Governor, and I have obtained the statement from the Auditor's office, showing that for the four years I was Governor there was expended for the militia $20,401.68, or $5,100.17 per annum, being one fifteenth as much per annum as under the present Republican administration.

I have been asked also to state how many days I was absent from the State during my four years' service as Governor. The record shows I was absent from the State during my entire term thirty-four days, and the State paid to the Lieutenant Governor for that period $402, while the present Republican Governor has been absent from the State 239 days, and Lieutenant Governor Cox has drawn for this time $4,256.20 for acting as Governor, the per diem being $17.80, and Governor Willson drawing the same amount for the same 239 days.

The record also shows that the thirteenth section of the last Republican platform adopted in 1907 promised that if put in power Republicans would "reduce the taxes to the lowest possible rate consistent with an efficient administration of the State government." More than three years and a half of the Republican administration have passed and we have not heard anything more about the promised reduction in taxes. The people, however, have felt a movement of the opposite character. There has been no direct increase in the tax rate, but it was necessary to raise money to pay the increased expenses inaugurated by Republicans, and they have resorted to an indirect method of raising the rate. The Republican State Board of Equalization increased the valuation of property as turned in from the counties. Take the years 1910 and 1911 as examples. In several counties this raise has been as great as 25 per cent and in other counties 20 per cent, and 15 per cent and 12 per cent. In 1910 ninety-three counties were raised, the average raise being about 12 per cent. In 1911 seventy-two counties have been raised, the average raise being a little more than 9 per cent. Thus it will be seen that while the State tax rate was not actually increased, the result was the same in these counties as if it had been raised an average of 12 per cent in 1910 and an average of 9 per cent in 1911. This was equivalent to raising the State tax rate on these counties from 50 cents on the $100 to 55 cents in 1910 and 54½ cents in 1911.

Legislature, with the approval [illegible] power to [illegible] cent on lands [illegible]

[illegible] and $418,440 in personality [illegible] local rates for that year on Warren County property of $1,454,528.

For this year 1911, Warren County was raised 10 per cent on lands, town lots and personality, making a raise on lands of $555,106, on town lots $883,268 and on personality of $167,694, or a total raise on the property of the county of $1,046,068, thus making a total raise for the two years of $2,530,270 on the property of the county.

As the State tax rate is 50 cents on the $100 it will be seen that this raise on Warren County for the two years has added over $12,000 in taxes paid to the State alone. As this raise also affects county, city and district taxes, doubtless the raise caused an increase for all these local purposes of more than twice $12,000, as local rates are probably more than a dollar on the $100, as against 50 cents for the State rate.

So it can be stated that for all purposes the citizens of Warren County have had to pay, in the two years, because of these raises, about $36,000 additional taxes.

As long as Kentucky is a sovereign State the people will hold leading Republicans responsible for the record they have made in Kentucky when they brought soldiers to the Capitol of the State and made bayonets superior to law and soldiers superior to legislators; when they caused judges of the Court of Appeals and State Legislators to pass under bayonets on the way to their respective official duties.

When soldiers and gatling guns and cannons were placed on the Capitol grounds, when the duly-elected Governor was cowardly assassinated and Republicans made no protest, and made no effort to have the assassins of the Governor arrested, and when the assassins were brought to justice and tried and convicted, a Republican Governor pardoned them.

There is nothing clearer in our State than that Republicans have no right, because of anything they have done, to govern Kentucky. "They have been weighed in the balance and found wanting."

Republicans Are Endeavoring To Divert Attention of Voters From Their Record.

One of the principal issues in this campaign is, Shall the Republican party, with its record in Kentucky and in the United States, be given a new lease of power by the election of Republican candidates to the highest State offices, and thus put upon them the seal of approval by the people, and tell them to renew and revive the outrages and extravagance and burdensome taxation which they have upheld and advocated?

Republicans are endeavoring to divert attention of voters from the unparalleled record they have made, both in the State and the Nation, by injecting immaterial, irrelevant or unsupported issues, hoping to draw the people away from main questions. I have no [illegible] pitched on side questions. I believe the people have the requisite virtue and intelligence to rid the politics of the State of demoralizing and improper influences, and Democrats will see that Republicans are held responsible for their acts, both in State and in National affairs.

Clean Politics and No Bosses or Machines.

I have always been in favor of clean politics, and opposed to bosses, machines or rings.

When I had the honor to be Governor before, no Republican or any other man ever [illegible] were bosses, rings or machines at that time.

Judge O'Rear, in his speech at Elizabethtown, tried to appear as the apostle of good government and pure elections, and he spoke at length about political machines and boss rule in Kentucky.

These are strange utterances by a Republican who has voted so often to indorse National Republican rule, which has been conspicuous for the support of boss-ridden and machine-ruled Republican States.

When a Republican speaks in favor of clean politics and against machines after the record made by the Republican party in Kentucky, Illinois, New York, Pennsylvania, California and in Southern States, it must be regarded as one of the wonders of the present time. For years New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Ohio were under boss rule and machine control until a majority of the voters determined to overthrow bosses and machines, and Democrats and Republicans rose in their majesty and power and overthrew Republican rule and placed Democrats in control of the States I have named.

I know there is no boss rule or machine rule in Kentucky at the present time unless it is in the Republican party. There are some Republicans who believe there was a Republican machine when the last State Republican convention was held at Louisville, and the steam roller was run over a worthy ex-Federal soldier and other prominent candidates in order to carry out the "plan and specifications" determined upon by the bosses of the Republican party.

State-Wide Primary Elections—The Remedy.

Judge O'Rear said in his Elizabethtown speech: "State-wide primary election is the remedy for bossism and machine rule, etc."

I have always been an advocate of primary elections.

About eight months ago twenty-six Democratic candidates for the State offices met in Louisville by invitation of the Democratic State Executive Committee to consult as to whether the State Democratic candidates should be nominated by a State convention or by a State primary election. I advocated a primary election and I used arguments now [illegible] by Judge O'Rear in favor of the primary election. I said [illegible] the Democratic [illegible] mittee. It [illegible]

[illegible] The statutes of Kentucky [illegible] rules and regulations for conducting primary elections candidates for State, district, county or municipal offices. There is no statute regulating State conventions or county conventions.

Success is always greatly promoted if we have equal rights for all and special privileges for none, and opportunities given to all Democrats to assist in nominating the candidates they will support at the general election are encouraging to the voters. The humblest Democrat has as much right to participate in the nomination of Democratic State officers as the most prominent and influential Democrat, and the farmer in the country should have equal chances with the Democrats in a town or city. Comparatively few persons attend court-house conventions, often 100 persons; or a less number, in a court-house convention choose delegates or instruct for candidates, while several thousand Democratic voters of the county are absent at their homes.

Advantage of Primary.

The government should be brought close to the people, and there can be no bosses or rings or machines in connection with a primary legally and honestly held, and all who know me know I would not accept a nomination unless it came to me honestly and fairly. Experience has taught the people to appreciate primary elections. In every Democratic county in Kentucky primary elections are held to nominate the county officers, and every State south of Kentucky holds primary elections to nominate county and State officers, and many of the Northern and Western States nominate their county and State officers in primary elections.

A few months ago there was a conference of Governors and Governors-elect at Frankfort and Louisville, and in a discussion on primary elections all except one favored primary elections, and thirty-seven were present.

The State Democratic Executive Committee ordered a primary election to be held on the first day of July, 1911, in every precinct of the State, under the primary election law of the State of Kentucky, to nominate candidates for the State offices and a United States Senator.

I was nominated, as were all the other Democratic candidates for State offices, at the primary election held July 1, 1911, according to the plan suggested by Judge O'Rear as a remedy for machine rule, except that the State did not pay the expenses, but the Democratic platform recently adopted at the State Democratic convention contains a resolution declaring in favor of a direct primary election law at the public expense.

How Were Judge O'Rear and His Ticket Nominated?

Judge O'Rear and his associates on the Republican ticket were nominated by a convention held in Louisville, Ky. He wrote the platform, and he says the provisions of the platform were in the main set forth in the announcement of his candidacy three months before the convention was held. According to the statements of Republicans, he named the candidates to be nominated for the various State offices, and he also named the chairman of the State convention. About 2,000 Republicans voted in the Republican convention which nominated Judge O'Rear. Over 100,000 Democrats voted in the primary election in which I and other Democratic candidates for the State offices were nominated.

[illegible] little perception is required to see that Judge O'Rear's nomination and the nomination of the other candidates on the Republican ticket looked far more like boss rule and machine rule than my nomination and the nomination of my associates on the Democratic ticket by a primary election.

If ever there was in any State a fair primary election wherein the people, uncontrolled and uninfluenced, assembled at their respective voting places and nominated candidates of their choice, it was at the Democratic State primary election held on the 1st day of July last.

Turbulent Times and Disgraceful Scenes.

We all remember the turbulent times and disgraceful scenes that marked Kentucky's history about ten years ago, when a motley crowd of Republicans marched to our State Capitol, and cannon were placed in the Capitol grounds and legislators and Judges of the Court of Appeals were driven to the city of Louisville for safety and protection. Where was Judge O'Rear then and why did he not raise his voice then as he now for clean politics and law and order? Why did he not refer to these times in his platform, adopted by the Republican convention, as did Democrats in their platform, adopted by the Democratic convention?

While I am speaking of the late Republican State convention I must refer to conspicuous events in that convention, which have attracted wide attention.

That convention approved and indorsed the Republican administration of the affairs of the State and all means employed by that administration for the preservation of law and order, and although Judge O'Rear is said to have criticized Governor Willson's military exploits, he was quick to get on the platform which indorsed the very thing which he was the first to criticize and denounce.

A conspicuous omission of the convention which nominated my distinguished opponent and other members of the Republican ticket was that the delegates did not deign to mention in the convention or in the platform the name of the present Republican Governor of Kentucky.

The most dramatic event in that Republican State Convention was [illegible] O'Rear's undertaking to eulogize Senator Bradley by [illegible] was making a speech [illegible]

[illegible] Judge O'Rear in his address [illegible] speech, to excuse himself for resigning the office of Judge of the Court of Appeals while a candidate for Governor, referred to me as follows: "My distinguished opponent also holds an office of power and dignity as Peace Commissioner, perhaps with some profit, also. He has not resigned from that position, and I hope he will not resign."

If Judge O'Rear had asked me about this, I would have prevented him from misrepresenting me. I was President of the American Peace and Arbitration League, which has a large membership in various States, and whose main object is the settlement of international disagreements without war by an international arbitration tribunal.

When I decided to be a candidate for Governor I was unwilling to hold that office and not attend to its duties while a candidate for Governor, and I resigned, to take [illegible] y 1, 1911. My associates tried for a while to keep me in office, but my resignation was finally accepted, and I received no pay from the first day of January, 1911. The letter of the [illegible] General Secretary of the American Peace and Arbitration League accepting my resignation is as follows:

"April 20, 1911.

"Hon. James B. McCreary, Richmond, Ky.:

"Dear Sir—In compliance with your proposal at the directors' meeting of June, 1910, to retire January 1, 1911, in favor of Mr. Clark or Mr. Clews, if personal affairs require your attention in Kentucky, and in accord with your recent letter to Vice President Clark, reaffirming the same, your resignation as President of the American Peace and Arbitration League was accepted at an adjourned meeting of the Board of Directors, held at Mr. Clews' office, April 19, 1911.

"Vice President Clark declined the honor on account of business engagements requiring his absence many months in the year, and Mr. Clews was elected as President of the League.

"By unanimous vote of the board you were elected as Honorary Vice President. Kindly acknowledge receipt of this and oblige, Yours truly,

"ANDREW B. HUMPHREY,
"General Secretary."

I was under no obligation to resign, because I did not hold either a State office or a United States office, but I resigned because I was unwilling to neglect the duties of an important office while I was a candidate for Governor, and which I believed would consume nearly one year.

I should not have referred to Judge O'Rear holding an office while a candidate for Governor but for his reference to me.

Judge O'Rear has been, according to his own statement, a Judge of the Court of Appeals for eleven years. He has five years to serve as Judge before his present term expires. For two years it has been currently reported Judge O'Rear would be a candidate for Governor, and for a number of months before the Court of Appeals adjourned for the present summer recess he did not perform the duties of Judge, but was actively engaged making speeches and conducting his campaign and consulting with his political supporters, and he will be absent from his duties as Judge during the months of September and October. The average man will see Judge O'Rear's situation and the difficulty of discharging his duties as Judge during the years he was preparing to be a candidate for Governor, when voters, whose support he desired, had cases before him in the Court of Appeals which involved their property, liberty or life. They will also notice that during the months Judge O'Rear engaged in an active canvass for the nomination and in the campaign after his nomination, although not performing any of the duties of his office as Judge, he drew the salary of that office, which amounted to $5,000 per annum, or $416 per month, and announces that he will not resign unless elected Governor, and that he will appoint his own successor, and not have his successor appointed by Governor Willson. It is no excuse for him, as stated by some of his friends, that in all the history of Kentucky no other Judge of the highest court of the State has ever done before as the jurist candidate of the Republican party is now doing, and that this is the first act of that kind, and therefore should be overlooked.

The Cases Cited By Judge O'Rear Are Not Analogous to His Case.

The cases cited by Judge O'Rear to excuse him for holding the office and drawing the salary of a Judge of the Court of Appeals while a candidate for Governor are not in point, and are not analogous to his case.

Mayor Head discharged all the duties of Mayor while a candidate for Governor. Hon. Ben Johnson attended to all of his duties as a Congressman while a candidate for Governor, and Hon. Ollie James, while a candidate for United States Senator, attended to all of his duties as a member of Congress, and neither of these three men had cases before them in which the voters were interested, whose support they desired, and it may be also said of Judge Paynter, when a candidate for United States Senator only a short time, he remained in Frankfort and attended promptly to his duties as Judge.

Judge O'Rear seems to have overlooked entirely the seventh plank in the Republican [illegible] which he wrote himself, according to his own admission, and which provides that the judiciary of the State, both the Circuit and Appellate Courts, should be chosen [illegible] grounds, and the [illegible] ice of [illegible] should be [illegible] qualification [illegible]

Foley's Kidney Remedy (Liquid)

Is a great medicine of proven value for both acute and chronic kidney and bladder ailments. It is especially recommended to elderly people for its wonderful tonic and reconstructive qualities, and the permanent relief and comfort it gives them. For sale at Jones' drug store, Walton, Ky.

Some person attempted to enter J. E. Smith's residence at an early hour, last Friday night. They were heard by Mrs. Gaines at work on the blinds on one of the windows to her room. She informed Mr. Smith, who was sitting out in the yard, but the would be robbers fled before he caught sight of them. A suspicious character had been seen about the premises that day while the family was attending the fair at Florence.

Running up and down stairs, sweeping and bending over making beds will not make a woman healthy or beautiful. She must get out of doors, walk a mile or two every day and take Chamberlain's Tablets to improve her digestion and regulate her bowels. For sale by all dealers. 4t.

She'll Tell You---Quick!

Just ask your wife which of these two dish pans of cream separator parts she would rather wash. She will tell you quick—the one with the single piece in it. This single, tiny, instantly removable piece is all there is inside.

Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator Bowls

Which Kind for You?

All other separators have heavy, hard to wash, complicated "bucket bowls." The disks in the full dish pan are all from one common "bucket bowl" and are just a sample of the trouble and work of washing "bucket bowls" as compared to washing the Dairy Tubular. Think of washing these disks twice a day. Imagine the chance rust and hard knocks have at such a complicated machine.

Milk skimmed with a Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator is skimmed right—it is the cleanest skimming, quickest skimming, lightest running, longest lived separator built. Bring your wife to see it—inside and outside—and learn how it may double your butter money. The helpful dairy book, "Business Dairying," is yours for the asking.

NOTES.

Excellent order prevailed thruout the three days.
The exhibition ring was in fine condition all the time.
The refreshment stands all appeared to do a good business.
The entertainment outside of the exhibition ring was very limited.
The young people had three days fine enjoyment. Oh, you promenade.
It took an acre space to park the autos that entered the grounds on Friday.
It took the judge all day Saturday to pass upon the large display of poultry.
E. E. Fry, of Winchester, was on hand the second day meeting his host of Boone county friends.
Best & Co., and John H. Aylor were on hand every day and in nearly every ring with one or more entries.
The telephone in Floral Hall was a failure. The constant tramp above it on the promenade put it out of business.
The agricultural exhibits has been larger than that of last week. This was because of the drouth in a large territory tributary to the fair.
There was no uncertainty about the weather after the 1st day, and it could not have been better adapted to the occasion had it been made to order.
W. E. Baker, of St. Louis, an old Boone county boy was present Friday and Saturday and met many of his old time acquaintances who were glad to see him.
Dr. T. H. Baker, wife and daughter, of Louisville, were in attendance on Friday and Saturday. Their presence was the delight of a host of their Boone county friends.
The receipts exceeded the expenses this year by a very considerable little sum, and that too, after the entrance fee was reduced five cents from what it was the preceeding year.
J. T. Hughes, of Lexington, and one of the greatest breeders of fine horses in Kentucky, was in attendance the last day. He came down to see how the people liked the looks of Red McDonald.
Two of the finest specimens of horse flesh in Kentucky, Red McDonald, owned by J. T. Hughes, of Lexington, and Kate Hamilton, the property of C. E. Williams, of this county, were greatly admired by all.
The man who drove the winning roadster Saturday afternoon, was thrown out of his sulky. He was not hurt to amount to anything and his horse behaved admirable, showing no disposition to do anything ugly.
The man's coat was set on fire in the mixup, some say by the ignition of matches in one of the pockets, while others claim the fire resulted from the discharge of a pistol that fell out of the pocket. If a pistol was discharged the explosion was exceedingly faint.

VERONA.

One of the most pleasant events of the season took place at the beautiful home of J. M. Powers last Sunday, it being a family reunion and held at that time to celebrate the sixty-fifth birthday of Mr. Powers. This came as a surprise to Mr. Powers, he having no knowledge of the intended celebration until 9:30 o'clock a. m. when the brothers, sisters, children and grandchildren began to arrive Mr. Powers was more than pleased at having this remarkable respect shown by his friends and relatives. Each family came with well filled baskets of all the delicacies of the season. The bountiful repast was spread beneath the shades of the maple trees in the yard. There were seven birthday cakes presented. There were sixty persons present. Mr. Powers' three children, Mrs. Maud Johnson, of Walton; Mrs. Lula Roberts and Edgar Powers of Verona. Two brothers and one sister 13 grandchildren and 16 neices and nephews. One of the sigular features of the occasion was John Powers, sr., who came to Kentucky from Sheandoah Valley, Culpepper county, Va., in the 17th century, and located near Big Bone Springs, this being the third generation that has been reared with in a few hundred yards of the original settlement. At the noon hour a few appropriate words were spoken by Rev. H. C. Wayman concerning the fam ily, followed by prayer. Mr. Powers is the oldest member of New Bethel church, having served the Master 45 years. The coffee for this occasion was made in the old coffee boiler that Mr. Powers began housekeeping with 40 years ago. While writing this your correspondent sat on a block sawed from a pear tree over one hundred years old. A. K. Johnson photographed each family seperately. The day was spent very pleasantly, and after the shades of evening began to gather, each one wended their way to their homes, wishing Mr. Powers many more happy birthdays.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Chapman was the scene of a pleasant gathering last Wednesday, the occasion being the sixty second birthday of Mrs. Chapman. The father and children planned the affair which was a complete surprise to the wife and mother. Early in the forenoon the guests began to arrive with well filled baskets which is one of the first requisites in a Kentucky celebration. During the morning hours social conversation, interspersed with sweet strains of music by the Misses Dater, was enjoyed by the assembled guests. It seemed only a short time until the dinner hour was announced. Such a dinner as was spread under the boughs of the shelter ing trees in the front yard! After a beautiful and touching prayer by Mr. Keene, the guests proceeded to partake of the bountiful spread, which included everything usually prepared for such occasions, and the addition of fruits and ice cream, not forgetting the old fashion custom of watermelon for the last course. Mrs. Chapman was born and reared in Verona and has spent nearly all her life in this immediate vicinity, consequently she numbers her friends by her acquaintances; therefore, when about 60 guests, her nearest neighbors, were assembled it was the supreme test of a friendship that had existed all her life. What a thrill of pleasure that wife and mother must have felt when she saw how her loved ones had planned for her pleasure. The cordiality with which each and every guest was greeted by the hostess showed she appreciated not only what was done for her by her own family but that each one came in for their share of praise for making this day one long to be remembered by all present. The afternoon was spent in song service and pleasant conversation until four o'clock, when the guests departed, wishing their neighbor and friend many returns of the happy day and that no sorrow should enter her home ere they meet her again.

A Day at Sanders Fair.

Quite a delegation of Boone county people attended the Tri-County Fair at Sanders, Carroll county, last Friday. The day was exceedingly hot, but they saw a good show and a very large crowd of people. The greater part of the Boone county delegation was composed of Walton and Verona people. Logan Gaines, of Carrollton, was there giving the Boone county people the glad hand. Mr. Gaines' love for the people of his native county will never fail. Congressman A. B. Rouse, County Attorney N. E. Riddell and Sheriff B. B. Hume were among the Boone county people who took in the show, while Judge J. M. Lassing, of the Court of Appeals, was mingling with the large crowd. Robert Griffith, who conducted a box ball alley in Petersburg and Burlington, was inquiring about his acquaintances in this county.

Sanders has the appearance of being a considerable business place, and has become famous on account of its Blue Lick and Lythia waters. The Blue Lick spring is near the depot while the Lythia water is piped a considerable distance to a point near the depot.

Mrs. Mattie B. Tilley has filed a petition for a legal separation from Dr. Ralph C. Tilley. She charges the doctor with cruel and inhuman treatment. JUST AS GOOD AS VACATION

Mr. Gwillkinton Says He Reads the Booklets and in the End Is Satisfied.

"Where am I going this summer? Well, h'm, I haven't quite made up my mind yet," said Mr. Gwillkinton. "I'm still reading the booklets.

"Every year I get the booklets, a lot of 'em, and say, they're wonderful. Beautifully printed and delightfully illustrated. Why, it's as good as a vacation to read some of them, and I go over all of them and enjoy every one of them and try to make up my mind which place I'd like best.

"Of course in a general way one knows what sort of place one likes. Some like the seashore, some the mountains. For myself I like the seashore better, but I think it's wise to alternate to give oneself the benefit of the various sorts of air, and so sometimes I go one place and sometimes another—when I go.

"I don't always go. There are certain circumstances not always completely within my control that sometimes keep me in the city all through the summer, and at the present moment this looks to me like one of those summers.

"But whether I go or not I always read the booklets, always, as I am doing with profound delight now; about the shady nooks and the purling brooks and the grand old ocean and they are all a joy to me, even when, as this year, it looks as if I'd have to take it out of the booklets.

"Still I am not disturbed by that. How do I know what sort of a room they'd give me in the place where I want to go? They might put me over the kitchen or give me a cot in the barn. The table might not be just what I had expected and there might be mosquitoes there. I don't know just what I'd find; there might be various drawbacks, while sitting here at home I can revel in the booklets' perfect charm with absolutely no drawbacks whatever. You can see that, can't you?"

LEECH HAS BEEN DEPOSED

Few Are Sold Now, Though Not Long Ago the Traffic in Them Was Large.

Another of our cherished ideas will soon be no more. The leech has been deposed from its sovereignty and its "passing" forms the subject of an article in the "Mois litteraire et pittoresque" by M. Jacques Boyer, who tells us that prior to 1870 a dozen wholesale houses in Paris were engaged in the traffic of this "gibier pharmaceutique," and that they sold between 300,000 and 400,000 a month at the rate of 250 francs or $50 per 1,000. One house alone survives and the number sent out is 130,000 and the price has fallen to about 70 francs per 1,000.

What we may term the leech farmer for want of a better name we are told as l'hiridiculteur, who formerly exercised his calling in the neighborhood or Bordeaux in an artificial marsh. He had several infirm horses and these poor creatures were induced by trickery to take a bath in the marsh with the result that the growing leeches got a feed at the expense of the life blood of the venerable horses, of which they had no superfluity.

In Croatia, Dalmatia and Turkey they fish for leeches, which are taken in baskets like oysters. When these arrived in France they were packed in dark cellars without nourishment the better to fit them for their work on the invalid.

M. Boyer tells an amusing story of a lot of leeches purchased for the navy. They were duly registered as each was sent out. Five it seemed died a natural death, a fact which will be preserved in the archives of the ministry of marine.

Angel of the Battlefield.

Mrs. Maria Magee of Tipperary, who is, according to records, the second oldest Crimean veteran of her sex in the world, was one of the veterans present at the coronation dinner given in Belfast. She has been in the firing line in many a hard fought and historic battle, and has soothed the last moments of scores of British soldiers dying in foreign lands. She traveled with her husband through India, Egypt, New Zealand and the Mediterranean stations. Asked what her feelings were when in the thick of the fighting with the bullets whistling around, Mrs. Magee said: "I didn't think of it. I was looking after the poor wounded fellows. Everyone was shouting for his mother, or his wife, or his children. That's what the dying soldier always cries for, and he loves to send them a last message."

Elephants Killed by Rats.

In 1868 three of Hagenbeck's elephants, just brought from Africa, were attacked by rats, which ate through the wooden floor on which they (the elephants) stood and gnawed the animals' feet. All three died, no doubt from fright rather than from pain. Mr. Robinson, in quoting this story as "the most dreadful" apparently in his collection of anecdotes of elephants attacked by puny enemies, seems to be unaware that the same thing has happened in England. The first chronicled instance, we believe, belongs not to the Regent's Park Botanical Gardens, but to Cliffe [illegible] been duly recorded by [illegible] Zoological Gardens [illegible] Three [illegible] Four [illegible] Five [illegible] Six [illegible] Seven [illegible] Eight [illegible] Nine [illegible] Ten [illegible] Eleven [illegible] Twelve [illegible] Thirteen [illegible] Fourteen [illegible] Fifteen [illegible] Sixteen [illegible] Seventeen [illegible] Eighteen [illegible] Nineteen [illegible] Twenty [illegible] Twenty-one [illegible] Twenty-two [illegible] Twenty-three [illegible] Twenty-four [illegible] Twenty-five [illegible] Twenty-six [illegible] Twenty-seven [illegible] Twenty-eight [illegible] Twenty-nine [illegible] Thirty [illegible] Thirty-one [illegible] Thirty-two [illegible] Thirty-three [illegible] Thirty-four [illegible] Thirty-five [illegible] Thirty-six [illegible] Thirty-seven [illegible] Thirty-eight [illegible] Thirty-nine [illegible] Forty [illegible] Forty-one [illegible] Forty-two [illegible] Forty-three [illegible] Forty-four [illegible] Forty-five [illegible] Forty-six [illegible] Forty-seven [illegible] Forty-eight [illegible] Forty-nine [illegible] Fifty [illegible] Fifty-one [illegible] Fifty-two [illegible] Fifty-three [illegible] Fifty-four [illegible] Fifty-five [illegible] Fifty-six [illegible] Fifty-seven [illegible] Fifty-eight [illegible] Fifty-nine [illegible] Sixty [illegible] Sixty-one [illegible] Sixty-two [illegible] Sixty-three [illegible] Sixty-four [illegible] Sixty-five [illegible] Sixty-six [illegible] Sixty-seven [illegible] Sixty-eight [illegible] Sixty-nine [illegible] Seventy [illegible] Seventy-one [illegible] Seventy-two [illegible] Seventy-three [illegible] Seventy-four [illegible] Seventy-five [illegible] Seventy-six [illegible] Seventy-seven [illegible] Seventy-eight [illegible] Seventy-nine [illegible] Eighty [illegible] Eighty-one [illegible] Eighty-two [illegible] Eighty-three [illegible] Eighty-four [illegible] Eighty-five [illegible] Eighty-six [illegible] Eighty-seven [illegible] Eighty-eight [illegible] Eighty-nine [illegible] Ninety [illegible] Ninety-one [illegible] Ninety-two [illegible] Ninety-three [illegible] Ninety-four [illegible] Ninety-five [illegible] Ninety-six [illegible] Ninety-seven [illegible] Ninety-eight [illegible] Ninety-nine [illegible] One Hundred [illegible]

Birds as Money Savers.

The destruction of insect-eating birds should not be overlooked by those attempting to explain the increased cost of living. Government statistics show that our agriculture has suffered the extent of billions of dollars thru the ravages of insects. The animal loss has increased steadily until it has reached a figure which the human mind cannot grasp.

In the cotton belt of the South the boll weevil, which has increased with such rapidity as to become a plague, took as its toll in one year more than $25,000,000 worth of a product upon which every man, woman and child is dependent. And in this same section is permitted the wholesale destruction of birds, seventy-five per cent of whose food is the crop-destroying insect! We shall pay for this loss, sustained largely through folly and ignorance when we buy our clothes. Grains, vegetables and fruit culture in many localities is so hampered by noxious insects that the farmer "drags home the stingy harvest" discouraged and with good cause for abandoning his occupation. Every dollar's worth of damage which the bird guards could have prevented must come out of the pockets of the people.

Poison sprays and other artificial means do not successfully check the damage done by insect pests. We must look to the wild birds for substantial relief. They will not rail us, even if we do no more than simply let them live.—Dumb Animals.

An Agricultural Course.

In the haste to choose a calling have you ever thought of the happy days that may be enjoyed upon the farm? There is no other vocation in life that keeps one so close to nature and so far from the pitfalls that beset other callings. Farmers fail to succeed because they know but little of the knowledge necessary to be a successful business man of any kind.

To be a successful doctor or surgeon a thorough course in medicine is required after the high school education has been gotten. Yet a man starts to farming without a course of any kind. Is there any wonder he fails? He cannot analyze the soil, he cannot test his field seeds. He starts guessing and learns that a certain crop only by losing one year in trying it. He gets upon the erroneous idea that a man does not need an education to farm. That day is past since then schools have been established to teach boys and girls how to farm and farm profitably. Four years is necessary after the completion of the high school course, when you have completed a four year course in agriculture you can analyze your soil, improve your crops of all kinds by knowing how to select seeds and propagate the plants. You will know how to care for your orchard, do your own grafting and budding, you will know how to build any kind of a building you wish or to do any kind of work with hammer and saw besides many other things.

Prepare yourself to farm by going to the State University four years, taking while there a course in agriculture. Learn how to farm by developing mind and muscle.

An Early Winter.

The martins have flown and it is going to be an early winter. As infallible as the prognostications of the groundhog in spring are the forecasts of the little brown birds that aviate southward in the fall, and this year they have started a good month ahead of their usual time. Martinites say snow will fly in October.

Last year they set out awing for the magnolia groves about the middle of September, and weather-wise people said there'd be snow in six weeks. Sure enough there was a light fall of snow late in October.

"They never go wrong," said David S. Copeland, a Washington man.

Mr. Copeland has studied birds, and as weather forecaster, martins have Uncle Sam's expensive bureaus and the groundhog beaten. "No one knows just why it is," he went on, "but it is a fact that the martins fly south early when an early and hard winter is coming. Martins are a species of swallows and nest in chimneys.—Cattlesburg Tribune.

Then and Now.

Remember how we sometimes cut our wheat and oats with a cradle? Plowed the corn with a single shovel? Tramped out the grain and let the wind blow out the chaff? Turned the prairie sod and made a hole in it with an ax to plant the corn? Remember the team of oxen we hitched to the plow? Plowed from one acre to one and a half a day? Drove our hogs fifty miles to market and then sold them for less than three cents a pound? Kept your hogs till they were two-years-olds before they would fatten? Remember how we used to shock our hay? If you are sixty you can remember all these things and many more like them. Contrast that with today and see if you do not feel sorry for the poor fellow who knows it all about farming and that nothing new can be found out.—Ex.

The Business Principle

of successful lives is the habit of saving, depositing what can be spared in a good bank to meet the emergencies of the proverbial rainy day. A little at a time makes a snug sum in a short time. The Equitable Bank and Trust Co., Walton, Ky., will accept any sum on deposit and pays four per cent. interest on what remains a year, or three per cent for what remains six months. Remittances by mail given prompt response and careful attention. This Bank has assets of over One Hundred Thousand Dollars. We qualify as administrator, executor, trustee, guardian, etc., of estates, which is much more satisfactory than a private individual in such capacity. Mail communications given careful attention. GRANT COUNTY ITEMS.

(Grant County News.)

Thomas Marshall, a prominent farmer, living at Oak Ridge, fell from the roof of the dwelling which he was repairing last Monday, and broke an arm and collar bone, and was otherwise seriously used up.

—o—

There is not a forty acre tract of land in Grant county but can be made to support a moderate sized family if it is properly handled and properly taken care of. The land owner owes it to future generations not to destroy his land but to improve it.

A hail storm of considerable proportions swept through the country west of Williamstown Monday evening and several crops of tobacco were badly injured. The hail was worst in the Stewartsville neighborhood, where several crops were almost destroyed. Cross Roads and Hobrook also suffered and Corinth is said to have felt the effects of the hail.

—o—

The Crittenden High School is without a head. T. C. Chandler, who taught the High School department at that place last year, declined to accept the position this year. Another teacher was chosen but failed to pass the examination required for High School teacher. Still another was chosen, but too late to take the regular State examination, and an effort to secure a special examination was productive only of a failure.

—o—

The Law and Order League of Williamstown, against whom a judgment of $500 was secured in the Kenton Circuit Court some months ago, by Jas. O'Hara & Co., who brought suit to recover five thousand dollars, the amount of a fine in the Williamstown Police Court, filed a petition in Covington last week asking the Court of Appeals to set the judgment aside. The case has been pending now for many months and the end of the case does not seem to be in sight.

—o—

The town of Dry Ridge, which has recently been rechristened "Carlsbad," is the first town in Grant county to adopt stringent Sunday closing laws. So tight has the lid been clamped down that you can't even buy a cigar or a "chaw" of tobacco in that village on Sunday, and as for malt mead and kindred soft drinks, it is nix for them. A dry goods merchant is not allowed to sell a five cent piece of calico nor the grocer a nickel's worth of cheese to a starving hobo. Even the hotel cannot sell a cigar to one of its guests, the soda fountains are closed and the only thing free is water, and they are even talking of stopping the flow from the Carlsbad well on Sunday. As only the north end of town is included in the incorporation, however, it is pretty easy to step over to the south end where they have no violent Sunday closing laws and buy a loaf of bread and other things ad libitum, but the merchants of the north end have threatened to prosecute the merchants of the south end if they violate the Sunday law, which they claim is a state law and applicable to all. Some interesting developments are looked for in the near future.

Attacks School Principal.

A severe attack on school principal, Chas. B. Allen, of Sylvania, Ga., is thus told by him. "For more than three years," he writes, "I suffered indescribable torture from rheumatism, liver and stomach trouble and diseased kidneys. All remedies failed till I used Electric Bitters, but four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me completely." Such results are common. Thousands bless them for curing stomach trouble, female complaints, kidney disorders, biliousness, and for new health and vigor. Try them. Only 50 cents at all dealers.

The raisers of export cattle in this as well as other Central Kentucky counties have been hard hit this summer. Their choice "exporters" are failing away below the usual weight. This is because of the dry spring and summer and the consequent scarcity of grass. Not only is this season's stock injured, but unless we have good rains in the near future, sufficient to insure good fall grazing, many of the people who have been accustomed to raising export cattle will not buy feeders for the coming year.—Danville Messenger.

Mt. Sterling.—The large barn containing about 18,000 pounds of tobacco of last year's crop, on the farm of Judge Day, was burned by incendiaries. The loss is about $1,000, partially insured.

Mr. J. W. Jacobs, while around his corn field the other morning discovered three squirrels fighting over an ear of corn. He shot at them and killed them all at one shot.—Shepherdsville News.

Georgetown.—William Roberts, a leader in the Salvation Army, is in the country workhouse in default of a $5 fine for disorderly conduct. Roberts was preaching in front of the courthouse when requested by a policeman to move to one side of the building. Refusing to do this he was arrested and fined.

Mr. Dave Brown, of near town, wears the blue ribbon for raising the largest watermelons of the season. He sold a melon last Monday which weighed 50 pounds and one last week which "tipped the beam" at sixty pounds. He sells melons nearly every day weighing from twenty-five to forty pounds.—Elizabethtown Mirror.

Two weeks ago the Herald told of a big bronze gobbler belonging to Mr. D. B. Chatham that was setting on some game chicken eggs. He hatched the brood all right, and no mother hen was ever prouder of her chicks than was this barnyard strutter. But the old son-of-a-gun was so clumsy that he could not keep his big feet off of them and trampled them all to death.—Harrodsburg Herald.

Central City has had a regular butter famine for several weeks. Any old thing in the butter line was considered a lucky find and paid for at creamery rates. Why this state of affairs exists would puzzle an Edison, and it is said he can discover things thru a millstone. Good butter always brings good prices here and the market cannot easily be overstocked. There are plenty of farmers in easy touch with this city and it certainly would pay them to go into the butter business on a small scale.—Central City Argus.

Somerset.—Henry Vanover, deputy sheriff, shot and killed Leonard Ridner while the latter was resisting arrest at a picnic at Cumberland Falls, thirty miles south of Somerset, in Pulaski county. Vanover came here at once and reported to the sheriff. Ridner was shot three times. The trouble which led up to his death was an altercation with a young man named Warren. Ridner is a son of the Rev. George W. Ridner, of that section. This is the fourth killing which has occurred in Pulaski county during the last two months.

In conversation with Dr. Myrax Crouch, of Union, Boone Co. last week, he says the proposed electric line, the Covington, Big Bone & Carrollton Electric railway, is now in a condition to begin active operations. He says the company is in a position to sell all its bonds for the building of the road just as soon as the citizens along the right of way subscribe $100,000 stock toward the building of the line. This is one stipulation the purchasers of the bonds insist on. The subscribers do not give this amount outright as a promotion fund, but will be issued as stock to that amount.—Warsaw Independent.

While drilling a well on the Hartford and Hardinsburg road, about three miles from Barrett's Ferry and a mile from Sulphur Springs, Mr. E. F. Cook struck a fine and strong vein of oil. The oil was struck about eighteen feet below the surface and affords a constant flow. This is the third vein of oil that has been struck in this vicinity within a small radius in the last few years. Recent investigations of prospects give every assurance that it will not be very long until oil well drills will be pounding in several sections of the county.—Hartford Herald.

HARVEST HOME

Attended By About Two Thousand People Last Saturday.

The Large Crowd Highly Entertained by The Splendid Exhibits,

While The Young People Enjoyed Themselves on the Dancing Pavilion.

About 2,000 people attended the Harvest Home, last Saturday, and were entertained in a first class manner by the exhibits and the dancing.

In some departments the exhibits were a little short of what they have been in past years but the show of colts was exceptionally good, and the contests for the several premiums were quite spirited.

In the Plutarch colt show were a long list of entries each of which was a handsome young animal and a credit to its sire.

Pat Shire's exhibit consisted of quite a number of very handsome colts and it took the judges some time to decide upon which to tie the blue ribbon. T. E. Randall and W. H. Rouse owners of Plutarch and Pat Shire respectively, were delighted with the great show their colts made.

Atty. D. E. Castleman and Ben Snyder officiated as judges for the Association and give each animal exhibited a close inspection.

The two hitching contests and the sack and potato races were the exciting events of the afternoon. In the ladies' hitching contest there were two entries, Mrs. Harmon Jones and Miss Loris Beemon. In the first heat Mrs. Jones came under the wire first, but when the judges inspected their work they found that neither had a perfect score and declared it a dead heat, consequently they had to make a second trial in which Miss Beemon was declared the winner. In the first heat Miss Beemon's nag failed to step in between the shafts as desired, which delayed the contestant long enough to keep her from being the first in her buggy. In the second heat Mrs. Jones' nag got one of its feet on part of the harness, which, many claimed, caused her to lose the contest.

There were eight or ten entries in the gentleman's hitching contest but there was no contest, except between Lester Aylor and Clyde Ellis, the former being awarded the prize.

In the sack race for boys there were a dozen or more starters, Jameson Aylor and David Beall went under the wire in the order named, the other boys being left at various points along the course.

It took considerable time to get the potato race ready, ringmaster Hank Tanner, warning the boys that they must be very particular not to lose a potato none of which was much larger than a bean. The boys who took part in the sack race all lined up as starters in this contest, which was a hot contest, there being several close finishes, Jameson Aylor getting first and David Beall second money. The judge counted the potatoes to see that none had been lost and all being accounted for the 1911 exhibition was declared closed in so far as the contests for prizes were concerned, and the older people began wending their way homeward, but not so with the young people, who had possession of the dancing pavilion. They tarried yet longer, and it was with reluctance that they dispersed even when the shades of night began to encompass the grounds where they had so enjoyed the day in a most delightful manner tripping the light fantastic most gracefully in the latest dances of the season.

PANEL EXHAUSTED

And Another County Is Called on For Jury to Try Ellis and Helton.

Somerset, Sept. 12.—While the Sheriff today went to Lincoln county to summon 250 citizens to report Wednesday as prospective jurors in the trial of James Ellis and Fount Helton, charged with the murder of Magistrate A. J. Beatty and Constable W. F. Heath, at Burnside, in July, the prisoners were held in jail here under a heavy guard of State troops and deputy sheriffs. Mob violence was feared. The jury panels were exhausted yesterday at the opening of the trial. The men claim self-defense, both asserting they shot to prevent Beatty and Heath from shooting them, although no shot had been fired from the pistol of either of their victims. Ellis was arrested on the charge of selling liquor in dry territory, and Helton's arrest followed when he attempted to prevent the arrest of Ellis.

MAINE REMAINS "DRY" BY A SMALL MAJORITY.

Later Returns Indicate Less Than Five Hundred.

Change From Apparent "Wet" Victory a Surprise.

Portland, Me., Sept. 12.—After a day of almost constant surprises, during which the result was many times hanging in the balance, it appeared at midnight on the face of returns from town and City Clerks in all but 196 towns and plantations, that prohibition had won in the special election of yesterday by 465 votes. Most of the towns yet to be heard from have been unofficially reported by small majorities favoring retention of the prohibitory amendment in the Constitution, and any change in the vote of these places is likely to help the prohibitionists.

In addition to the 465 majority shown by the clerks' returns, there are fifty more "dry" votes known to exist in Portland which are not included in the City Clerk's report because of an admitted error. If necessary the anti-repealers will petition for a recount.

The change from an apparent victory for the "wet" side by 700 votes to 500 votes in favor of the "drys" came as a big surprise. The prohibitionists had practically conceded defeat, while representatives of those who sought the repeal of the constitutional amendment had sent out numerous statements on the strength of their apparent safe majority.

On the other referendum questions before the people yesterday, that proposing to make Augusta forever the capital of the State and that favoring the direct primaries act were carried by large majorities, according to returns at hand tonight.

TO KEEP THE CITY CLEAN.

Move Recently Made by People of New Britain, Conn., Is Well Worth Copying.

Recent years have witnessed movements upon the part of citizens and officials in many municipalities to secure better sanitary conditions. The assemblage of a large number of persons in a restricted area inevitably creates problems involving the health of the community, and the proper solution of which requires constant and intelligent attention. Civic uplift should be both an ideal and a practice. Among the cities whose citizens recently took hold of the matter is New Britain, Conn., and a committee there issued a series of recommendations which may well commend themselves to inhabitants of other municipalities. One of their tracts was entitled: "What you can do to help make New Britain a clean city," and reads:

Take away all the ashes and dirt from your back yard immediately. Send your rubbish to the dumping ground.

Clean out your cellars, stables and sheds. Whitewash your cellar walls.

Burn all rubbish that will burn. Clean your vacant lots and alleyways.

Avoid mixing ashes and garbage. This is against the law. You may be fined five dollars.

Refrain from throwing old paper, banana or orange skins into the streets.

Plant some grass and flower seeds to make your home beautiful. Every house should have a little green grass and a few trees.

When you have cleaned up for Easter, keep your yard clean all the time.

Dirty yards cause fleas, sickness, death.

Old tin cans hold water; water breeds mosquitoes.

Rotten garbage makes bad air, bad air makes weak bodies, weak bodies make big doctor's bills.

A large stock and tobacco barn belonging to M. J. Worthington, at Elliston, was destroyed by fire Monday night between ten and eleven o'clock. The building was burning so fiercely when Mr. Worthington discovered the fire that he was unable to extinguish it. There was four or five tons of hay in the barn, five or six thousand tobacco sticks, a sow and six pigs and quite a little poultry, all of which was burned. There was no fire about the barn and Mr. Worthington thinks it was the work of incendiaries. He has offered a reward of $50 for the apprehension of the guilty party.

Lexington, Sept. 10.—The terms of three prisoners expiring this morning, Deputy Jailer William Finnell went to the cellroom called out their names, and as three negroes presented themselves in responses he opened the doors and gave them their liberty. Some time later it was discovered that one of the three who walked out was Lester Clinkagate, alias Jesse Greene, of Chatanooga, who was being held for trial on the charge of maliciously cutting John Brim here last May. Clinkgate observing that one of the negroes to have been liberated was asleep when his name was called, promptly responded and passed out quite easily.

Building Good Roads.

Some of the citizens around Beckton, a village in the Eastern part of Barren county, have caught the enthusiasm of the good roads movement and are setting themselves to work to put Beckton a little closer to somewhere than it has been in the past.

Beckton, be it known is the hilt region. It is about the next thing to inaccessible in winter and it has not been an easy matter to get there in summer. A few of the more enterprising spirits took counsel with one another after corn had been "laid by" and resolved among themselves to do something to make life more comfortable in the vicinity of the village. There was one hill in particular that was a bugbear to teamsters. It was a long hill and a hill that was so high that the jaybirds didn't care to fly over it very often, but it had to be traversed by the citizens of Beckton with their wagons, buggies and other vehicles in the absence of aeroplanes, and they decided to muster their forces and trim it up a little in advance of the winter season.

On an appointed day thirty men met on the hill with a dozen wag ons and teams and settled down to business. They didn't stop to talk politics, but they went for that hill road. They dug it up and graded it down and filled up the ruts and rolled out the rocks and when the day's work was done they had piked the road with stone and had done about all that could be done in the limited time to make it a safe and "negotiable" highway. The outcome was so satisfactory that some ten days later they tackled a third one. In the meantime the road overseer with his hands put in two days on the smaller hills and rough stretches of the road with the result that one entire section of it is in splendid shape. It might be better yet, but it is sufficiently good that a two-horse team can draw twice the load that it was wont to haul in the days before the improvement began.

The citizens of Becton say they are going to keep up the good work and it is hoped they will make good on the assertion. They at least have gone about roadmaking in the right way and have made a splendid beginning. —C.-J.

Silage as Feed.

A series of exhaustive tests at the Indiana experiment station has demonstrated beyond doubt that good silage used judiciously is an extremely desirable feed for sheep in winter. It has an excellent effect upon the digestive system and upon the general health and thrift of the lambs. Ewes fed during the winter on rations including a liberal amount of silage gain an average each winter of 20 pounds, while those similarly fed without silage gain only 15 1-2 pounds. Those receiving the silage also consume more than 7 per cent less grain and over 32 per cent less clover hay than those maintained exclusively upon dry feed. It also had a valuable effect upon the fleece, those receiving silage having a slightly heavier coat of wool. Of the lot of fall lambs which were finished as hothouse lambs during the spring of 1909 those fed on silage rations were considerably fatter and better than the ones receiving dry rations.

It should not be assumed, however, that an undue amount of silage will prove satisfactory in the feeding ration. Extreme care should also be observed not to feed frozen or partially decayed silage or silage unusually sour. Balance the ration up with plenty of clover or alfalfa hay, or other good, palatable roughage and dry grain.

The Burley crop of 1911 is estimated at sixty million pounds and the Burley Tobacco Society insists that a pool will be formed to handle it. A press dispatch from Lexington says:

"Thousands of farmers did not grow any tobacco this year, fearing a resumption of night-riding outrages if a pool was to be formed. Officials of the society now declare that big land owners favor a ten-year pooling contract and as the present crop will be ready to cut soon, a campaign to carry out the project successfully will be launched at once. They also say that the proposition to build a $2,500,000 warehouse in this city to handle pooled products on a mutual basis has given great stimulus to the effort to pool the 1911 crop.'

More than 300 men are employed in the various quarries in Rockcastle county. The payroll amounts to $500 per day. This includes stone and sand quarries. The limekilns and brick plants add their quota to wages paid. The output increases every year, especially in the stone and sand products. Added machinery at crusher plants gives greater facilities as the days go by. The county is now the greatest producer in the State. It is believed that there is enough material within the limits of Rockcastle to furnish ballast for every railroad in the United States, with enough concrete, stone and sand left to construct sidewalks in every town, village and city within the Commonwealth and several States added.—Mt. Vernon Signal.

Sleet, at their delightful home in Kenton county, near Crittenden in Grant county. Mr. Sleet owns 250 acres as fine farm land as can be found in Kenton county, and the improvements are not surpassed. Many years ago Mr. Sleet held for two terms the office of Sheriff of Kenton county. Eleven years ago he sold his farm near Beaver [illegible] seated in his Kenton [illegible] making a ten strike [illegible] did so.

[illegible] and Mrs. Noah Surface lived together in Boone County, Kentucky, on her loved meadows, and among her beautiful hills the greater part of their lives; and surrounded by their loving descendants they received their Golden Wedding day in married love and peace, but there were no presents of gold and none desired. Their union was blessed with the sacred number of children, seven of they had sixteen grandchildren; and many of the fourth generation sat upon their knees, and played around their hearthstone. The prophecies of the Bible, in regard to him that serves the Lord, were certainly verified in their case.

Mr. Noah Surface was a man that seemed to suggest the idea of the Puritan, of John Alden, or Miles Standish: he was of Saxon blood, square built, of broad shoulders and great muscular strength, also, fine physical health; and his wife was as beautiful as Prescilla, she had a soft rich voice, and she liked to sing; for music was as natural to her, as her breath of life. Mr. Surface's education was like that of the Puritans, practical, moral and religious; his will power was strong, and his industry and energy were indomitable.

He ploughed the acres of others when he was a young man, and by thrift and economy, as the years went on, he ploughed his own. He liked the comforts of this life; he worked for them, and enjoyed them; but he seemed to live above the pleasures of this world, its luxuries, its fashions and its styles, they were naught to him. He was a Lutheran in faith, and Luther himself did not believe his own doctrine more strongly, than did Mr. Surface. He was a Deacon in his church for many years, a Sabbath school teacher, an honrary member of the Bible Society, and of a Tract Society, and he was intimately associated with ministers, and leading members of the Synod. He always heard the cry of the far off starving in China, and the plague stricken of India, and his money was ready to help them.

He lived in the strict performance of all his religious duties, even as the Puritans did. He brought up his children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord: seven men and women stood around his table, while he invoked the blessings of the Lord on the food they ate, and the life they led.

His last beautiful home overlooked the church he loved, and there he died, full of honors and full of years. But the most wonderful characteristics of this man was his strong faith in God; it was with him in his youth, and in all the trials of his manhood; and as he approached the end, the joy of his salvation became a "blessed assurance", and he was anxious to depart, and be with Christ where, "Faith is lost in sight, and Hope in glad fruitition."

Farm Notes.

To be profitable, sows must be sure breeders.

—o—

Examine the collars of your work horses often.

—o—

Don't let the nursing sows run down too much in condition.

—o—

Don't feed the young pigs intended for breeding purposes altogether on corn.

—o—

Ashes have good effect on the pigs' digestion, besides killing intestinal worms.

—o—

Your horse may intend to please you, but does not understand your wishes.

—o—

Don't neglect to commence feeding the colts some grain before they are weaned.

—o—

The pure-bred draft breeding mare will do as much work as a grade, and her colt will be worth much more.

—o—

Cold, exposed sleeping quarters that compel the cows to pile up in order to keep warm are usually responsible for the dead pigs at this time.

—o—

If you are suspicious that some of your cattle are affected with tuberculosis, the sooner you have your herd tested and made free from the trouble the better it will be for your pocketbook.

Local Happenings.

Dirt roads are in a bad condition again.

Everybody was ready for the Harvest Home, last Saturday.

The roasting ear has been superseeded by the pumpkin pie.

William Utz, of Limaburg neighborhood, was among the business visitors to Burlington, last Monday.

The melon crop in the river bottoms will soon be exhausted. The yield and prices this year were very satisfactory.

Hubert Gaines' fine roadster black filly has been exhibited ten times and she has taken ten first premiums. That's taking some premiums.

Mrs. Lucy Holton, of Petersburg neighborhood, who spent several days last week with relatives in Burlington, left, last Thursday to visit relatives at Union.

The heaviest of the rain fall last Sunday afternoon was south and east of Burlington. In some places the Lexington pike looked like a creek on the rampage.

Burlington did not send delegates to the Fern Bank celebration last week. It was a big thing, much of which was on wheels.

W. H. Clayton, of Hebron, one of Boone county's most successful growers of fruit, is at the Kentucky State Fair in progress at Louisville this week, where he is acting as judge of fruit.

If you knew of the real value of Chamberlain's Liniment for lame back, soreness of the muscles, sprains and rheumatic pains, you would never wish to be without it. For sale by all dealers. 4t.

J. M. Craven, of Limaburg, whose reputation as a successful breeder of the Hampshire hog is becoming national, was called to the Indiana State Fair last week to judge that breed of swine.

Clayborn Campbell, of Latonia, and Harry Passons passed thru Burlington, last Friday, in an auto, enroute from Petersburg neighborhood, where they had been visiting friends and relatives for several days.

Herbert Kirkpatrick took 2,000 pounds of old rubber to the city, last Thursday, being the last of his 10,000 pounds purchase of that material, which he bought in lots ranging from a single old rubber shoe to 100 pound bunches.

Elmer Conley, mail carrier on route No. 2, having rendered honest and faithful service for Uncle Sam, laid off last week for a rest, and during the time, Newton Sullivan, his substitute, dispensed the mail along route 2.

Elsewhere in this issue appears the advertisement of the Big Agricultural Fair at Rising Sun on the 21, 22 and 23 of this month. Liberal premiums will be awarded, and Rising Sun will extend to Boone county people a royal welcome each day.

Farmer Earl Smith housed his briar exterminator last Thursday afternoon, having severed the earthly connection of every briar that appeared on the broad acres of his father. Earl is a good farmer, a great base ballist and some lady's man.

We, the family of Richard Louden, deceased, desire to thus publicly express to our neighbors and friends our gratitude for the kindness they showed us during the recent illness and at the time of the death of our dear one. The Family.

By the close of another week most of the rural schools will have begun their school work for the coming term. We shall be glad to publish education items from the rural districts furnished by teachers and patrons. Please send them in not later than Monday of each week.

The Burlington ball team will play the first of a series of three games with the Hebron team at Burlington park next Saturday afternoon. Brady and Sleyback will be the battery for Burlington, and Sandford and Lostutter for Hebron. Play will be called at 2:30 p. m.

During the past nine months of the year 1911, twenty-one marriage licenses were issued by Boone county clerk to parties of which were issued in the month of March and June—six each. Thus it appears that March is the month for weddings as well as June in this county.

At the annual session of officers held on the grounds at Florence, last Wednesday afternoon, the North Kentucky Agricultural Society reelected the old board save in one instance—John B. Dixon, of Devon, succeeded Henry Kelmer, of Covington, who declined a reelection.

The County Board of Education of Fayette county has fixed the term of schools at nine months and will pay the lowest salary of a teacher at sixty dollars and the highest salary of a teacher at one hundred dollars per month. The salary of the superintendent will be one hundred and twenty-five dollars per month.

Big game of base ball at Burlington park next Saturday afternoon.

Harry Roberts was transacting business in Cincinnati, last Friday, and trying to get a squint at the air ship.

Now is a good time to go fishing. Some very fine fish have been caught recently in both Gunpowder and Woolper creeks.

The rain last Friday night knocked out the dust so it disturbed nobody going to the Harvest Home nor while they were there.

Malchus Souther, secretary of the Boone County Mutual Fire Insurance Company, was transacting business in Burlington last Friday.

Mrs. Susan Kirkpatrick and family now occupy the residence in which is located the Boone Co. Consolidated Telephone exchange in Burlington.

Considerable tobacco was cut in this county, last week. There is an occasional fair crop but in many fields the stand was not good and the plant small.

The Recorder's estimable friend and correspondent, J. C. White, of Hathaway, presented the office force with a box of delicious Kentucky bananas, last Saturday.

The highest price paid for corn this season was at Maysville. John McGill was arrested charged with stealing forty ears of corn and the Judge fined him one dollar for each ear.

The rain last week damaged the Burlington and Florence pike considerably in places, and Edward Sydnor and a force of hands went to work immediately following the rains repairing the damages.

While at the Sanders fair last Friday, a pickpocket relieved Congressman A. B. Rouse and several others of their cash. An attempt was made to riffle Commonwealth's Atty. Winn's pocket but was not a success. Congressman Rouse's loss amounted to five or six dollars.

Few, if any, medicines, have met with the uniform success that has attended the use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. The remarkable cures of colic and diarrhoea which it has effected in almost every neighborhood have given it a wide reputation. For sale by all dealers. 4t.

INVITATION.—Everybody cordially invited to attend the grand lawn fete given at the residence of John Bricking on the Lexington pike, by the young ladies Society on the afternoon and evening of Saturday, September 16, for the benefit of the new church building at Florence.

The implicit confidence that many people have in Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is founded on their experience in the use of that remedy and their knowledge of the many remarkable cures of colic, diarrhoea and dysentery that it has effected. For sale by all dealers. 4t.

In another column is advertised the public sale of the personal property of C. E. Lipscomb, deceased, one and a half miles west of Walton, beginning at 10 a. m., on Saturday, September 30th, J. D. Doubman, auctioneer. Considerable property will be sold, and Mr. Doubman is the auctioneer who can make articles bring all they are worth.

On account of the drought which lasted from the first of May until ten days ago, the corn crop of Boyle was cut short more than one-half and the high price record of the past decade has been established. Buyers are unable to secure corn at $1 per barrel in the field. A number of sales of old corn have been reported at $5 per barrel.

The filing Monday of a suit by Pate & Keeney, owners of the Rising Sun wharf, against Josie Platt, owner of the Rising Sun-Rabbit Hash ferry, and Benjamin Wilson, her agents and present lessees of the ferry, to enjoin the defendants from further use of the Rising Sun landing and also asking $1,000 damages, has proven somewhat of a sensation in this city's business circles.—Rising Sun Local.

Joseph G. Stephany, of Covington, general manager of the Covington Monument Co., was a caller at this office while in Burlington, one day last week. The company which he represents very recently erected monuments on the lots of the late Dr. H. C. Lassing and Samuel Taylor in Richwood church cemetery, while it has a contract to erect a fine monument in the Hopeful cemetery for Eli H. Surface. The Covington Monument Co., has a large plant and does an extensive business.

Rye as a Cover Crop.

Cover crops should be grown in Kentucky much more than they are. No matter in what section of the State one may travel, he may see, during the winter, many corn and tobacco fields lying bare. The writer has seen many such fields in the most fertile sections of the State as well as in the poorest. To leave cultivated fields in this condition means great loss. The fields wash, some very badly, all of them some unless they are absolutely level. The cultivation of the previous season has developed available plant food that the crop did not use. Much of this may be lost by leaching. A cover crop will bind the soil and prevent washing. It will use up the available plant food left by the preceding crop. This will be returned to the soil whether the cover crop is turned under or pastured. The roots of the cover crop greatly improve the physical condition of the soil, especially is this true of rye. Fields of poor tilth are sometimes put in good condition by one rye cover crop.

Rye is the best non-leguminous crop for Kentucky. The seed is cheap. It will grow on a wide variety of soils. It may be sown as early as September first or as late as November first. It will make a better growth on poor soils than any other winter cover crop, yet it responds to the use of fertilisers and manures. When 4 to 6 inches high it is a most excellent pasture for pigs, while in its later stages it is a splendid pasture for all animals. The remnants may be turned under in time to prepare the ground for the next crop. The Experiment Station makes a practice of sowing rye in the corn ground. This is pastured and the ground then prepared for cowpeas or soy beans, which are planted about June first. This crop comes off in time to give the ground good preparation for wheat. Clover follows wheat. Use two bushels of rye per acre, and put it in well.

The cover crop not only prevents washing saves fertility, and provides pasture, but it adds humus to the soil. Try rye as a cover crop if you have not done so.

North Bend Association.

North Bend Association held with Sand Run Baptist church Wednesday and Thursday of last week was attended by a very large crowd each day, there being many visitors present from a distance, some of them being ministers, who, in the past, had been pastors of one or more churches in the association. The home of every person in the neighborhood was thrown open for the entertainment, and a more successful and enjoyable session of the association was never held. The association next year will meet with the East Bend Baptist church. Rev. C. V. Brooks, pastor of Sand Run church sends the Recorder the following:

"Dear Sir:—I wish to publicly acknowledge the very generous cooperation on the part of Bullittsburg church, and the good, splendid people of other churches in the recent entertainment of the North Bend Association. Boone county hospitality seems unlimited. The fellowship of saints is sweet. East Bend will entertain the association next year.

C. V. BROOKS,
Pastor Sand Run Church."

I wish to inform the Recorder that I have recently arrived from Stark County, Ill., with a couple of fine Clydesdale colts which I purchased from the Avondale Stud Farm for a large sum, but a fair price considering their quality, as both of these youngsters are first-class individuals and of the best blood that old Scotland produces. One is the two year old filly Avondale Lady, 14661; the other is Avondale Laddie, 15960. Laddie is a yearling stud and has the action and gayety of a Kentucky trotting bred horse, the middling of a shire, the beauty of a Percheron and the breeding which belongs to the right sort of a Clyde. This colt should some day develop into a model draft horse.

Yours Truly,
HARRY ACKMYHR.

For Sale—18 months old Thinrind boar eligible to register. Apply to Thomas Safer, near Hebron.

Foley's Kidney Remedy (Liquid) Is a great medicine of proven value for both acute and chronic kidney and bladder ailments. It is especially recommended to elderly people for its wonderful tonic and reconstructive qualities, and the permanent relief and comfort it gives them. For sale at Jones' drug store, Walton, Ky.

Notice of Annual Election.

Notic is hereby given that the annual election of directors of the Boone County Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Co., will be held at the office of the Company in Burlington, Ky., Monday, October 2d, 1911. Directors to be elected by the policyholders and officers to be elected by the directors—all directors are earnestly requested to be present. Any policyholder desiring his name placed on the official ballots will notify the secretary by Sept. 25th.

...Professor Alexander Thom Says That ... Evidence is Not ... Science, Despite the Able ... Opinion Derogatory to ... Rendered by Judge Sullivan ... the Supreme Bench of Ne...

... opinion was so favorably re... and was shown such respect ... in other states that its char... as a precedent seemed to be well established. But now an ... of precisely the opposite im... has been handed down by so near a ... tribunal as the supreme court of Kansas. The ruling is that the "testimony" of bloodhounds is something that may be properly considered, especially in connection with other evidence concerning the competency of which there is no dispute.

The court refuses to set aside a verdict of murder against a man convicted solely on the evidence of shoe prints and the trailing of footsteps by hounds. The dogs took the trail from the tracks around the body of the murdered man and followed it for six miles to the home of the man, who was then accused and later convicted. The shoe tracks around the body and the home of the man accused corresponded with the shoes he wore. It was contended that if the trailing by the hounds were eliminated from the evidence the evidence from the shoe prints alone would not be sufficient for conviction on a capital charge, but the court held that the "testimony" of the hounds was competent to corroborate that of the prints.

OLD-FASHIONED GIRLS GOOD

Those Who Find Their Way Into Juvenile Court Are Dressed in Latest Style.

Mrs. Virginia Murray, matron of the Juvenile Detention Home in Columbus, is authority for the statement that the old-fashioned girl doesn't find her way into the juvenile court. She says that girls with the gingham dress and hair tied with ribbons never appear before the juvenile judge, but nearly all of the girls appearing before him are dressed in the latest style.

A majority of the girls appearing before the juvenile court are devotees of the latest fashion. "It is no uncommon thing to see a little girl of twelve or thirteen dressed like a woman of mature years, in bobbie skirt and decollete gown," says Mrs. Murray, and she adds, that "we have an awful time trying to get the girls to discard rats' and 'puffs.'"

Even this good woman who sees so much waywardness, who comes into daily contact with so many youthful incorrigibles, gives this splendid advice to mothers:

She advises mothers to pay more attention to their daughters' wardrobes. Pretty hats, high-heeled shoes, openwork stockings and very low cut dresses are articles to be tabooed.—Springfield News.

Gray Uniforms in Night Battles.

Probability of much night fighting in future gives added value to the new gray uniform of the German soldiers. While this attire proved its superior invisibility at the recent maneuvers during the daytime it was in the night fighting that its effectiveness was best demonstrated. In daylight men engaged in patrol duty and security service was unseen by the enemy; but those in dark blue in the hostile forces at once drew their fire. Numerous fights took place at night with searchlights, and then it was found that the gray was universally appreciated.

Troops wearing the old uniform were clearly visible on the ground, even when lying down, while those in gray were extremely difficult to discover, even when in close order. It is obvious that any color harmonizing with the paleness of artificial light will be more effective as a shield from detection.—Army and Navy Journal.

Modern Photography.

Motion photography is so far perfected that a London photographer advertises that he will make motion portraits composed of six hundred and forty separate pictures for a guinea ($5.25). They can be shown by a hand stereoscope, reproducing perfectly the movements of the subject. Child pictures are said to be particularly pleasing, for the reason that the child in motion is natural and unconstrained. Parents who can preserve the voices of their children in phonographic records and their actions in the new motion pictures are fortunate indeed.—Youth's Companion.

His Sense of Humor.

Mrs. Youngwedd had been taking cooking lessons through a correspondence course.

Although there was a marked improvement in the culinary department of the Youngwedd homestead the husband lost no opportunity for poking fun at his wife's cooking. One morning he was leaving for business she asked:

"Dear, what would you like for dinner this evening?"

He replied, smilingly, "Lesson four with the exception of lesson 3 and perhaps the lesson 13 for dessert."—Good Housekeeping Companion.

ENGLISH OF SUPREME COURT

Justices of Highest Tribunal Often Use Ungrammatical Language on the Bench.

"There is a delicious reminder of boyhood grammatical breaks in the questioning by the honored justices of the supreme court," remarked William R. Maddock, of Boston, at the Willard. "During my frequent trips to Washington I have visited the supreme court, often listening to arguments and the questions put to lawyers by the grave and solemn members of the court. With so much formality and dignity surrounding the famous tribunal, I have ... a little at the breaking of the rules of syntax by the justices, who know better and would never dream of incorporating their offhand remarks in a written decision. It is not unusual to hear a justice use the expression 'he don't, and 'they ain't' is quite as often used without jarring on the nerves of the attending lawyers, and without causing the fellow justices to smile. The justices know better, and they also know that there are more serious infractions of grammatical laws in the nearby house of representatives every day of the session.

"I heard one big lawyer, who had noticed the grammatical breaks, one day remark that the lapsus linguae may be consequently thought atavistic. Now, just what this lawyer meant by this sentence I cannot explain, and I would prefer the good old-fashioned colloquial methods of the justices, even if they do violate a rule of primary grammar."—Washington Post.

OLD SLEUTH'S FREAK METHOD

Mayor Gaynor Compares It to Certain Ideas of Civil Service Recommended by a German.

Mayor Gaynor, at a dinner in Brooklyn, condemned certain ideas of civil service that a German visitor from Berlin had recommended.

"Those ideas may do well in Berlin," he said, "but I don't think they'd do well here. We are opposed to freaks, and this new sort of civil service examination is as freakish as Old Sleuth's.

"Old Sleuth, the detective chief, was once examining a new applicant for the detective bureau. He thrust into the young man's hand a pale mass of ruffles and lace and cambric—a woman's skirt—and:

"'Find the pocket in that,' he said.

"But the applicant shook his head.

"'No, chief,' he admitted frankly. 'That's beyond me.'

"Then Old Sleuth slapped him heartily on the back.

"'If you're smart enough, my boy,' he cried, 'to know it's no use to look for the pocket in a woman's skirt, you're smart enough to be a detective. Here's your star.'"

Serving in Tennis.

In serving, it is most important to acquire speed and accuracy in placing. Variety in the use of these essentials is also necessary. If your adversary excels in cross-court shots, serve down the middle line as near the corner as possible—if he has a deadly backhand stroke, give him balls on his forehand, and vary your game, but not always striving for a hard ball. It is much more important to serve your second ball reasonably hard than to try for a very severe first ball, which rarely goes in, and then fearfully serve an exceedingly easy second one, which is generally placed out of your reach. If you do not dare serve a hard second ball, at least serve a long one which is fairly difficult to handle, and in this, as in all other departments of the game, learn to cover your strokes as far as possible, so that it is difficult for your opponent to foretell just what your intentions are.—E. Willis Scott, in August St. Nicholas.

Benefit in Blowing Bubbles.

"When I was up in the Saranac Lake region recently I was surprised to see a lot of persons in one of the villages blowing soap bubbles," said a New York vacationist just returned from his fortnight's rest. "A good many of these people were middle aged and some were elderly, but all of them had their clay pipes and glasses of soapy water and were vying with each other as to who could make the biggest bubble.

"I inquired of one resident if the place had become a retreat for the mildly insane, and he told me that they were all people who had—or thought they had—weak lungs. A doctor from New York was up there last winter and introduced soap bubble blowing as one of the aids in the cure of consumption. It makes the patients breathe deeply."

Sassafras Oil for Mosquito Bites.

It is not generally known how valuable a preventive against the bites of mosquitoes, fleas, gnats, midges and sodorth oil of sassafras is. If in a susceptible person the oil is applied at once to the place that has been bitten it almost invariably prevents the poisoning altogether.

If applied to the inflamed spot a day or two after the bite it at once stops the irritation. To those who live in the country and whose life is made a burden by undue susceptibility to insect bites and to those who have not yet returned from holiday making in regions infested by biting insects oil of sassafras should be a great boon, and it is harmless as an external application.—Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette.

She'll Tell You---Quick!

Which Kind for You?
Just ask your wife which of these two dish pans of cream separator parts she would rather wash. She will tell you quick—the one with the single piece in it. This single, tiny, instantly removable piece is all there is inside.
Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator Bowls
All other separators have heavy, hard to wash, complicated "bucket bowls." The disks in the full dish pan are all from one common "bucket bowl" and are just a sample of the trouble and work of washing "bucket bowls" as compared to washing the Dairy Tubular. Think of washing these disks twice a day. Imagine the chance rust and hard knocks have at such a complicated machine.
Milk skimmed with a Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator is skimmed right—it is the cleanest skimming, quickest skimming, lightest running, longest lived separator built. Bring your wife to see it—inside and outside—and learn how it may double your butter money. The helpful dairy book, "Business Dairying," is yours for the asking.

Lexington Pike,

...was most ... did not seem ... chance of cultivating it and he could not find ... offered to buy land ... taken. Now he wants to "go back" as they say in horse-trading circles, and is suing for a recall of the valuable consideration he gave in exchange for some 300 acres of chronically waterlogged sod.

It is a risky business to buy land "sight unseen." A man who contemplates investing any considerable sum of money in real estate should know what he is buying before the transfer is made and the consideration is paid. Land values vary greatly and one who buys land should know from personal inspection the character of the soil, the advantages or disadvantages of location and the possibilities as to income or as to future increase in value. In addition to this he should know that in buying the land he is not buying a lawsuit" and should exercise all needful precaution to satisfy himself that the property is free from incumbrances and otherwise clear of title. In so doing he will save himself many hours of worry to say nothing of the saving in time and money.

It is not a sensible proceeding to "buy a pig in a poke" or to buy a tract of land on the win-or-lose principle on which one purchases a lottery ticket. Good land is a good investment when purchased at a reasonable price. Even poor land may prove a good investment where the consideration is not exorbitant. In every state of case the purchaser should have some better assurance than the mere word of the party of the first part that he is not being scandalously bunco'ed. —C. J.

Buying a Pig In a Poke.

At a recent meeting of State Commissioners of Immigration in Chicago, considerable attention was given to the activities of the land sharks in various parts of the country. As a remedy for the trouble it was decided to issue a book of information containing a description of the farming and mineral lands in every State in the Union. This book, it was agreed, will be compiled upon scientific investigation and will be given general circulation as a means of combating fraudulent promotion schemes or other projects which have little or no merit and are primarily intended to separate the public from its money.

The object of the Commissioners is laudable and the circulation of authentic information, such as is contemplated, would have a good effect. It probably will not put the land sharks out of business, but it will help some toward putting prospective purchasers on their guard. One book of the kind could hardly be sufficiently comprehensive as to leave no loopholes. It would require a series of books to cover the subject thoroughly. Besides, there is a large element of the American people which really seems anxious to be humbugged and so long as the yearly crop of suckers continues to be large and flourishing the land shark will not despair of finding ways and means whereby to gather the harvest.

Every State should prepare on its own account a volume containing reliable information regarding its agricultural lands and its mineral resources and such volumes should be revised at fitting intervals and circulated where it will do the most good for the State. A better plan perhaps, at regular intervals, these to be collected and published annually in book form. Persons who seek information as to such matters should be able to find it and there would be fewer openings for land shark activities if official publications were always available. Compilations of this kind would better serve the purpose than a general volume covering meagerly all the States.

Dairy Cattle.

There is no boom in dairy cattle, but prices rule high. Two reasons cause this condition. Dairymen are wanting better stock and are willing to pay for it, and the scarcity of good cows grows more apparent all the time. While milk and butter prices are lower this year than twelve months ago, and scrub cows sell much cheaper, yet cows, heifers and bulls of known worth are in great demand at remunerative figures. It pays to breed the best stock obtainable. In the Central West Jerseys lead among the dairymen, with calls for Guernseys but they are unobtainable. It would pay northern breeders of the better class to advertise in the South and hold sales so as to introduce their cattle. They would be readily taken and a market established.—Our Country.

Coughs and colds must be taken seriously. For unless cured they sap the vitality and lower the vital resistance to more serious troubles. Protect your children and yourself by the prompt use of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. Sold by all druggists and dealers everywhere.

Dear Sirs.—In answer to your letter of recent date, in which you explain that certain reports are being circulated thru your community to the effect that you are not our exclusive agents, and that another party claims he can solicit and fill orders for the genuine Columbus, made by the Columbus Buggy Company, let us say emphatically that such is not the case. You are the only representative we have in your community, and the only one we authorize to sell our vehicle.

Should we receive orders from other parties than you, we should decline to fill them, unless authorized in writing by you to do so.

You have our consent to give this letter wide publicity if you care to; it will soon establish in the minds of your friends and customers who the real agent of the genuine Columbus is.

Yours Very Truly,

Corn Yield.

Boys' Corn Clubs have done much for the country and are destined to revolutionize corn growing in all the states, especially in the South, where the most marked results have been obtained. In the cotton state of South Carolina, a 15-year-old boy Jerry Moore, of Winona, has achieved the distinction of having grown the greatest yield of corn on one acre of any person in the world. His crop resulted in 228.3-4 bushels. This boy is the carnate symbol of the new life now arising in the South and represents the scientific application of fertilizers, manure deep plowing and cultivation. His net profit on the acre was $125. There are 5,000 boys in South Carolina alone enrolled in the corn clubs of the state and these clubs extend all over the South. A few years ago the average of yield in that state was 6 bushels; now it is 19 bushels, and the boys have helped to do it. Boys of the south state have held the record ever since they entered. Jerry has entered the race again [illegible] to break the record.

Mr. Wm. McFatridge has been greatly annoyed lately by the destruction of the cantaloupes and watermelons in his patch. The watermelons were simply skinned of their green rind and were otherwise unmolested, and holes were eaten in the cantaloupes, thus ruining them. For a long time he was at a loss as to what caused the destruction, but his vigilance was rewarded last week. He found that terrapins were eating holes in the cantaloupes and apparently enjoying a drink from the juice on the inside. Evidently they had been driven to extremity for a refreshing drink during the continued drouth. Mr. McFatridge has already caught several of the marauders and has also trapped some ground hogs, which he found were responsible for skinning his watermelons.—Hardinsburg Republican.

Some sort of hoodoo seems to have followed the county judges of this State since Gov. Wilson has been in office. Four county judges have died during the four years that Gov. Wilson has been chief executive than in any eight years before. Gov. Wilson has had the appointment of at least thirty county judges and nearly all of them have been in Democratic counties. In this way some of the counties have had Republican county judges for the only time in their history.—Frankfort News-Journal.

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound still retains its high place as the best household remedy for all coughs and colds, either children or grown persons. Prevents serious results from a cold. Take only the genuine Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, and refuse substitutes. For sale at [illegible] drug store, Walton, Ky.

Notice.—Persons indebted to the firm of W. A. Bullock & Co., of Hebron, must come forward and settle by October 11th, at which time all unpaid accounts will be placed in the hands of an officer.

W. A. Bullock, & Co.

M. Vauthier is a [illegible] attached to the Givet brigade in the Ardennes. He has done his military service in Algeria, says the Paris correspondent of the London Telegraph, and has been in the Republican Guard, and he got himself appointed to Givet in order that he might have more opportunity of prosecuting his historical researches in his native district, as that branch of study has been rather neglected in the Ardennes.

For M. Vauthier is no ordinary gendarme. He is an enthusiastic archivist, and his zeal and merit have been duly recognised, not only by the ministry of public education, but by the czar, while he has been warmly complimented by several embassies for notes which he has been able to furnish to them.

His researches in the Ardennes have chiefly borne on the periods of the revolution, the empire, and the restoration, and among many other matters, on the depot of English prisoners of war established at Givet by Napoleon, and on the Russian occupation of that district after 1815.

M. Vauthier will soon be retiring on a pension, and then he will be able to devote all his time to his favorite pursuit. "I have," he says, "always had a hobby for hunting for documents, though it is often more trying than hunting for thieves."

WOULD SAVE SWISS SCENERY

League Asks the Government Not to Grant Concessions for Any More Alpine Railways.

The Swiss Scenery Preservation society has presented to the government a memorial urgently calling upon it not to grant concessions for any more Alpine railways. Of late a strong feeling has arisen among the more thoughtful and intelligent Swiss that their country has already been sufficiently exploited. Many beautiful passes and minor summits have been disfigured by overhead electric railways or besmirched by smoking engines, yet concessions for fresh mountain railways do not cease to be demanded. Quite recently as many as fourteen were before the government at one time.

What has now aroused the Swiss Scenery Preservation society to energetic protest is the demand recently addressed to the government for a concession for a cogwheel line from Olten, via Brochet, to Sonchaux, with a branch line from Brochet to Gaux. This proposal they combat on the ground that another cogwheel line already exists in the neighborhood (Glion-Rochers de Naye); that the new line would hopelessly disfigure a beautiful piece of Alpine scenery, and that it is not justified by the circumstances of the surrounding district.

London Through the Ages.

It is proposed to establish in the British metropolis a museum to be devoted to the exhibition of relics pertaining to the history of London from the earliest times of its occupation by man. These times run back much farther than most readers are aware. The city that Julius Caesar found occupied a site which had been inhabited for unnumbered thousands of years. It is now known that during Paleolithic [illegible] Neolithic times the two great divisions of the stone age—man dwelt on the site of London, but it first became the settlement of a community at the opening of the historic age, when it was a stronghold of the Celts. The remains of its Roman period are the finest of the kind in Great Britain. The Anglo-Saxon and Danish periods are also finely represented, and even later periods, such as the Tudor, furnish relics that have been buried by that strange process of superincumbent growth which makes the soil under a great city resemble the fossiliferous strata of geology.—Youth's Companion.

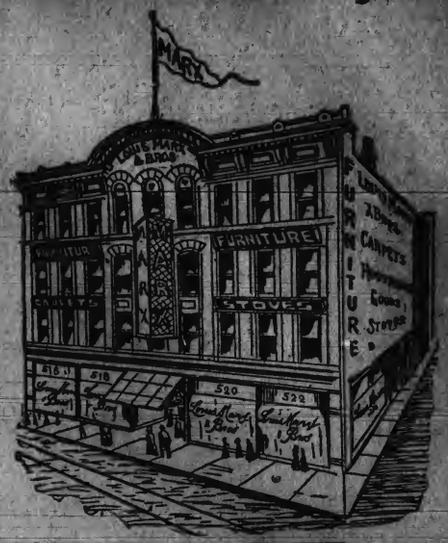
Big Game.

Larry Covington of the Philadelphia Evening Times, was in the city, says the New York Morning Telegraph. While in a Broadway cafe Mr. Covington was telling of a trip he once took to Savannah, Ga., with some friends.

"We decided to go out to Mrs. Bannon's fish lodge for supper," he said.

"We chartered an old sea-going hack driven by a negro. The driver was a knowing old fellow and pointed out to us all the places of interest along the route.

"As we were nearing Mrs. Bannon's place, which is six miles from Savannah, a squirrel appeared in the road.



"'George,' I said, after we had all noticed the squirrel, 'do you have any big game around here?'

"'Yas, indeed, sah,' replied the negro. 'We has baseball.'"

More Blonde Brides.

Blondes in Philadelphia have just three times as many chances to be married as have brunettes, according to the records kept at the license bureau. During the last year the clerks have kept careful tab on the complexion of women applicants for licenses and Robert H. Furgeson, chief clerk, announced that in 16,000 of 17,000 cases where marriage licenses had been issued, the brides had light hair. The clerks in the divorce courts here now have decided to keep a similar record to ascertain whether blondes or brunettes are the more peaceable.

...successful work under the management of the principal Prof. J. G. Prather, of Owenton.

Mrs. M. J. Vest and daughter, Miss Lizzie have moved back into their farm near Verona, after several months' residence in Walton. Her son D. Hess Vest who has a position as bookkeeper with the Baldwin Piano Co., at Cincinnati, still makes his home here for the summer months.

T. E. Dixon and son Henry S. Dixon of Richwood, spent Monday here with friends. Henry, who has been the assistant cashier of the Deposit Bank at Erlanger, is taking a vacation until January 1st, on account of ill health, but he is now rapidly improving with every prospect of resuming his position Jan. 1st.

Mrs. J. T. Boulton and daughter, Miss Ruth, moved to Covington, yesterday, where they expect to make their future home, and to be more convenient to Mr. Boulton, who is on the road for the Pittsburg Plate Glass Co.

Miss Lula Jones purchased from Robert Brown last week a tract of land in South Walton, containing about two and a half acres and has contracted with Geo. P. Nicholson for the erection of a handsome two story dwelling of seven rooms to be completed by November. Three new houses for residences have also been arranged to be built in the same quarter, in the new subdivision of Walton, the work to be completed at an early date.

Mrs. W. Edgar Stephenson died at her home near Walton Wednesday, Sept. 6th, after a lingering illness from consumption in the 28th year of her age. She was formerly Miss Maggie Craddock, a daughter of Thos. Craddock, deceased, of Pendleton county. Mrs. Stephenson was an excellent christian lady, and was beloved by many for her many virtues. She leaves a husband and three little daughters to mourn the loss of a kind and loving wife and mother. The funeral took place Friday from the Walton Baptist church, Rev. H. C. Wayman conducting the obsequies.

Dr. Charles F. Burkhardt of Effingham, Ill., was a visitor here Tuesday, going to Elliston Station to visit relatives and friends. Dr. Burkhardt was a former resident of Gallatin county, Ky., and was the County School Superintendent of that county for two terms, and was a very efficient officer. Dr. Burkhardt moved to Illinois some years ago and has been practicing his profession there. He has just returned from New York City where he took a post graduate course in diseases of the eye, ear and throat which he specializes.

The State Traveling Library, consisting of fifty volumes of good books, is again at Walton's school building, and those desiring books will please call at that place on Wednesdays and Fridays from 3:15 until 4 o'clock p. m. Each and all desiring books must present a card signed by some tax payer in the town of Walton, stating that he or she will be responsible for all books taken from the library by you. Some brought cards of that kind last year but they are no longer good. When getting a book of course you are expected to take good care of it, for these books are pure and clean and it is needless to say that they, if left in rooms or homes wherein sickness is, they are likely to gather germs and spread disease. Therefore be careful. When you get a book you will be allowed to keep it two weeks and for all books kept over that time you will be expected to pay a fine of two cents a day.

Vaccinaes Self by Picking Teetht.

Physicians have sent Miss Josephine Brown, of Sadieville, Scott county, to a Cincinnati hospital to be treated for "accidental vaccination."

The young woman picked up a vaccine point, thinking it was a toothpick, and picked her teeth with it. As a result her gums became sore. A physician was called. He was puzzled. The young woman told him about picking her teeth. The physician asked to see the instrument used.

Physicians at the hospital say the vaccination will have to take its course. The gums and throat are inflamed and swollen, which show that the vaccination is "taking."—Lexington Leader.

The opening Faculty Recital of the Georgetown College School of Music will be given at the college chapel on Monday evening, Sept. 18th, at eight o'clock. Mrs. Mettie C. Davidson-Joner will sing several groups of interesting songs. Prof. Henry will play pieces by Chopin and Moszkowski, and will also sing two songs. Miss Edn Gwynne will act as accompanist. The program will conclude with the Tannhaeuser March arranged for two pianos, played by Mrs. Jones and Mr. Henry. The public are cordially invited to attend.—Georgetown Times.

County Judge P. E. Cason has been considerably inconvenienced the past week, by poison resulting from the bite of a spider. The spider got into the Judge's clothes and bit him sixteen times on his side. It was not discovered but owing to the peculiarity of a spider's bite there is no doubt but what it made the sixteen small wounds above mentioned. The poison caused Judge Cason to be quite ill on two or three occasions for a considerable interval.

CITIZENS WONT STAND FOR IT.

Citizens of Rising Sun Protest Against The Interruption of Ferry Service

(Rising Sun Local.)

At a special session of the city council Saturday night, the outgrowth of a mass meeting of business men held at P. A. Davis' shoe store Wednesday night of last week, when a petition was framed asking that the common council of this city take steps to protect the city's interests incident to a law suit now pending in the Ohio circuit court, relative to the Rising Sun-Rabbit Hash ferry, the petition in the form of a resolution was favorably acted on by a unanimous vote of that body.

The suit in question is that filed last week by Pate & Keeney, in which suit is sought to oust Josie Platt, Benjamin Willson and Jerome Wilson from further use of the Rising Sun ferry landing and asking damage in the sum of $1000.

Ex-Scott Thompson represented the forty-three petitioners, and he placed before council the resolution, which follows:

That the Honorable Mayor and Common Council of the City of Rising Sun, Indiana, are hereby requested and urged to take all such legal steps in connection with said action that will protect the City of Rising Sun in her rights and privileges, as to use of streets, alleys, having right to establish ferry and landing for same for said city, and the citizens and business men of said city in their foreign and domestic trades, so far as wharfage privileges are concerned in said city of Rising Sun; and that such steps be taken immediately.

The keynote of Wednesday night's meeting was found in the fear of possible misunderstanding that might arise in the minds of the city's Kentucky friends in regard to the nature and the source of the suit.

It was brought out at that meeting that the responsibility for the action is strictly the private business of the firm of Pate & Keeney. It further developed that these present at the meeting will, to the man, do all in their power to bring about an uninterrupted service in the ferry, even though it be found necessary to establish transportation over the river under this city's control.

All stockholders of the Clover Leaf Creamery are earnestly requested to meet at the creamery on October 4th and as many as will to bring their teams and shovels etc., for the purpose of cleaning up and making a road around the creamery and putting up hitching racks—those who can't come will please leave fifty cents with M. Riddell.

AN IVORY STUNT

Loses The Game for Burlington In The Tenth.

Grand Stand Umpires Too Numerous for The Good Of The Game.

The game of ball played on the local diamond last Saturday afternoon was the best game of the season, and resulted in a tied score at the end of the eleventh inning, when the game was called on account of darkness.

The Hebron line-up was about the strongest it was possible to secure for the occasion, and was composed of the following players:

B Zimmer, ...catcher
Keen Souther, ...Second base;
Ed. Sandford, ...Pitcher;
Wilson, ...center field;
E. Zimmer, ...third base;
Mike Clore, ...short stop;
Tanner, ...left field.
H. Souther .....right field.
Vance, ...first base.

The Burlington line-up was:

Cleveland Snyder, ...left field;
Harry Shearer, ...2d base;
Hubert White, ...right field;
Mont Slayback, ...catcher;
Ray Conner, ...short stop;
Elbert Clore, ...first base;
Allen Black, ...third base;
Earl Smith, ...center field;
Hubert Brady, ...pitcher.

It was largely a pitchers battle in which the honors were about equal, the Hebron boys getting six bits and four errors off of Burlington, while Burlington got six hits and three errors off of Hebron. Sandford struck out 11 and Brady 9 men. The support given each team was about the same, the most serious trouble being with the Hebron out field while with Burlington the infield did the wabbling.

Following is the score by innings:

Hebron 0 0 0 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 0—2

Base hits by Burlington—Shearer 2, White 1, Slayback 1 two base hits—Conner, Snyder.

Base hits by Hebron—B. Zimmer & E. Zimmer 1, Vance 1, South er 1—two base hits—Tanner 1.

Had White run out his hit in the tenth Burlington would have won the game. Just such a play cost the New York National League team the penant a few years ago.

As long as some of the Burlington team have been playing ball they have not learned to run out a third strike—they invariably turn to see if the catcher holds the ball. This is an ivory stunt that grates on the spectators. The umpire will always tell the player when he is out.

It is sometimes very hard to secure the services of an umpire, but no sooner has the game begun than it develops that the crowd is composed of umpires, who can judge balls and strikes no matter what their position is as regards the plate.

It will take some ball playing to beat the Hebron aggregation as composed last Saturday.

Hebron defeated Bromley Sunday in an eleven inning game, 5 to 6.

Notwithstanding his bad luck Hubert White's batting and fielding was the feature of the game. It takes quick action to catch a fly in right field and make a throw home that holds a runner on third base, and that was what he did.

—o—

The Burlington and Hebron teams will again try conclusions on the Hebron grounds on the afternoon of next Saturday week.

The Ft. Thomas base ball team was trying to arrange for a game in Burlington next Saturday afternoon, but was unable to perfect the plans at their end of the line, everything at this end of the line being in shape to receive them. A few years ago the Ft. Thomas team was in Burlington several times, and became favorites with the local fans, although they flaxed the Burlington team often. A few days ago the gentleman who managed the team sent it use to visit Burlington, wrote manager Kirkpatrick that he wanted to play Burlington at least once more with Brady in the box before he quits base ball, and arrangements for a game was begun at once. It will be played on the first Saturday in October.

Protecting Trees.

There are several ways of protecting trees against field mice and rabbits. One of the most effective safeguards is to wrap tar paper about the trunk of the trees. The tar itself being very distasteful to rats and mice. Some use wood veneer which is tied about the trunk of the tree in the same manner except that sometimes the veneer is tied on with raffia instead of hard cord. Neither the tar paper nor wood veneer should be tied tightly, especially on young trees.

The rise in the river the past week has been annoying the farmers who are cultivating crops on land that is all ways submerged by the river or back water by a fifty foot rise. A fifty foot rise in September is unusual.

The young men were in the city with a load of melons, and they found ready sale, partly by attraction to the queer outfit.—Bowling Green Messenger.

CLOAKINGS FOR THE FALL.

Rating Cloths Are Certain to Be Much Used by All the Fashionable Costumers.

A great deal of interest is expressed in ratine cloths for fall. There seems no question that they will be considerably used by all of the best houses. The new idea is, of course, the double faced finish, and beautiful lines in two colors reversible, or in plain colors with plaid back are being shown.

Colors in cloakings are both dark and dull. In double faced materials we see such combinations as navy blue and dark red, two shades of Havana brown, sage green, and beige, dull blue and mode, navy and taupe, Bordeaux red and Oxford gray, olive green and khaki.

The newest ratine cloths are lightweight and thin also. The first of these cloths brought out last year were much heavier, and were found to be clumsy, and, therefore, were not a great success. This season's offerings are much thinner, and are, therefore, expected to please.

Diagonal and boucle weaves are both being shown in ratine novelties. These diagonal effects in both one and two tone colorings, often a lighter shade, such as blue or Bordeaux illuminates the background. These materials are called "velours de laine" as well as "ratine."

Hay of all kinds is selling at good prices and farmers are selling their surplus as rapidly as possible. It seems that if hay is worth such good prices at this time it will surely be worth more later as the supply diminishes. Those who have hay to sell in January will get better profits than if they sell now.

The Steamer Wave Rock, towing the government quarter boat No. 3, is just above Warsaw this week with a crew of forty-eight men in charge of Major Lytle Brown making a topographical survey of the Ohio river from Pernbank to Cairo. The survey is being made under the direction of H. H. Cartwright, Junior Engineer and is being made on both sides of the river for a quarter mile back from the banks of the stream to show the drainage, etc. A bench mark will be put in on one of the streets in town as a mark to aid in future surveys. The crew is able to survey about one mile of the river each day at present owing to the dense growth of willows and cornfields on both sides of the river.

The town of Petersburg, this county, which has been for many years dry by reason of a $500 license ordinnance, bids fair to become wet shortly. The town license for a saloon has been reduced to $300 per annum and a party has bought corner property with a view to opening up a saloon. The first location selected for the saloon was the old Loder Hotel property and a deal for it had been about completed, but when the owner learned that it was the purpose of the purchaser to open a saloon, he bolted and the saloon man had to look elsewhere. The man who is to have a charge of the business resides in Erlanger.

QUICK WORK

Made of the Assailant Of Girls—Ham Sentenced to Forty Years in Kentucky Pen in Trial of Less Than Two Hours.

Maysville, September 18.—In one of the shortest trials ever held in Kentucky, William T. Ham, 62 years old, was sentenced to 40 years in the Frankfort penitentiary for attacking three little girls.

The trial, the verdict of the jury, which was out but three minutes, and the taking of Ham to the prison immediately thereafter, occupied less than two hours.

The case was tried before Judge Newton. Ham, who was confined in the Covington jail since July, was brought here in a special car, under guard of a company of militia, commanded by Captain J. R. Sams. A lynching was feared, but developed that the troops were not needed, as no threats were made against the prisoner.

The crime for which Ham was sentenced was committed on July 11. He pleaded guilty to all the charges.

An Accidental Shooting.

(Pendletonian.)

A distressing accident occurred near Antioch church on last Sunday evening, when Carlos Aulick, of near Hightower, accidentally shot Quincy Riddell, of Antioch.

A number of young boys had gathered at the store near the church early in the evening, and were waiting for the hour set for the services to begin. They were engaged in friendly conversation when one of the boys showed a pistol for the inspection of the crowd. Other boys then drew their guns from their pockets, and were soon flourishing them recklessly. The boys believed that the guns were all unloaded, and therefore exercised no care with them. Finally, the Aulick boy pointed his gun at Riddell and, believing it to be unloaded, he snapped the weapon. The bullet entered the Riddell boy's neck and inflicted a serious wound. It is believed that he bled inwardly, and if this be the case, he is in a very serious condition.

Young Aulick is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Aulick, of near Hightower, and Riddell, of Antioch who formerly resided in this city. The boys are both young and were on friendly terms, and, according to all reports, there can be no reason for the shooting except that Aulick thought that the gun was not loaded.

The latest report from the bedside of the wounded boy is that he is improved a little.

Crop Conditions in Central Kentucky.

The Blue Grass Farmer publishing review of crop conditions in Central Kentucky:

"Wonderful has been the improvement moted in the growing tobacco crop as a result of the heavy rains throughout Central Kentucky, and compared to three weeks ago the crop has made rapid strides and a large per cent of the fields are as heavy in leaf and stem as in any year for the last decade.

"There is only one danger threat ening the tobacco grower and that is the lateness of the crop. Only a small per cent of the crop has ripened sufficiently to be cut and throughout the entire burley district growers have been warned not to cut the crop green.

"Held in check for months the crop practically stood still, and when the rains came the last week in August it took a forward bound that has developed fields of tobacco more than waist high with broad leaves firm in texture and waxy in appearance.

"Farmers are jubilant as the tobacco crop will be the only money crop of the farm this year, and as a precautionary measure have their sticks and barns ready and a force of cutters engaged to lay low the fields upon the first signal of a visit from Col. Jack Frost.

"The recovery of the tobacco crop means many millions of pounds more of tobacco of a much better quality than the crop of 1910. There is some slight damage as a result of a rotting of the leaves at the stalk, but the crop was never better, from the ravages of the worms being reduced to the minimum, and hail has been less frequent than in many summers.

"Grass is growing as in springtime and will succor live stock throughout the winter with the addition of small quantities of roughage, thus relieving the farmers of much anxiety on account of the high prices at which provender is selling. More confidence prevails as a result of the changed conditions and throughout the entire bluegrass district business of all kinds is rapidly recovering and fall trade is active in all lines."

Rev. [illegible] C. Riley will preach at [illegible] next Sunday night at the usual hour.

TALLEST MAN IN THE WORLD

(Tuesday's Enquirer.)

The largest human being in captivity was a caller at the Enquirer office last night. His name is George Bell and his home is in the little town of Zebulon, Pike County, Georgia. Indian Joe Gregg, the famous sporting character of Indianapolis, is acting as guide for the big fellow, who is seven feet seven inches tall. He could not get in the door at the Enquirer office without stooping. This is the first time that any of the noted giants has ever had to bow at the aforesaid door, so Bell is the tallest man of the bunch.

"Lawsy, what I could do to three watermelons right now!" remarked Bell, as he opened his mouth and showed a set of pure white teeth. "I done eat two big ones fur supper, but dat feeling fo' more am comin back on me."

Prof. Gregg, Bell's keeper, press agent and tamer, says that Bell can eat as much as three ordinary persons. His weight is 320 pounds and he is 19 years of age. He wears a 22 1-2 shoe, and it takes as much cloth to make him a suit of clothes as it would for three men of normal size.

Several hundred people followed Bell and Gregg as they walked along the street, and the report got started that Bell was a "White Hope," looking for a match with Jack Johnson. "I am going to train the big fellow," said Manager Gregg, "and see what he can do with the gloves. If he can make good he will be a big attraction. He should not have much trouble in landing, as his reach is three feet four and a half inches." When asked how the colored giant was discovered Mr. Gregg said: "He was sitting in the wilds of a watermelon patch trying to eat up the whole crop when I came upon him. He tried to seek a place of safety, but the melons had done their work. He could not move. Then I grabbed him." He will be known as the "Human Smokestack." He has all the other giants beaten in height, and is really the tallest human being on earth. Gregg and Bell leave to-day to join a street fair at Troy, Ohio. Yesterday he was measured for a drum major's uniform at a local house, and the tailor almost ran out of cloth trying to fill the order.

MAINE BATTLE SO CLOSE

That Slight Change Might Switch Victory—Majority For Repeal Now 26.

Augusta, Maine, September 18.—Complete official returns from the special election of last Monday, when the vote cast on the question of the repeal of the constitutional prohibitory amendment as canvassed by the Governor and Council to-night showed a majority of 26 votes in favor of repeal.

Various discrepancies were found in the official returns, as compared with the tabulations compiled by the Secretary of State's office. The latter indicated a majority for repeal of 136.

Some doubt still remains as to the correctness of the returns, and Governor Plaisted announced that city and town clerks would be given 20 days to check the results.

With the result standing so close a correction in the vote in any of the several townships would have a considerable effect upon the majority and, in the cases of Westfield and Athens, would be sufficient to turn the tide against repeal.

The total vote of the state as shows by the official figures tabulated to-night is as follows:

For repeal, 60,487; against repeal, 60,461. Majority for repeal 26.

Smith & Clore, of Belleview, had some of their 1910 purchase of tobacco on the breaks at Cincinnati a few days since. The prices that prevailed were not such as to make millionaires very rapidly. One hogshead they sold was a selection from their entire purchase, the selection having been made a few leaves on a hand at a time, until the hogshead was filled, consequently it was very fancy goods and the price it brought was entirely satisfactory.

The storm Monday night did considerable damage to the corn crop in the south end of the county. The ground was so thoroughly wet from the frequent rains the past ten days that the corn stalks were pulled out of the ground almost, and they will never rise enough to lift the ear off of the ground, consequently many of the ears will rot, an extremely dry fall not being sufficient to prevent it.

Enrollment the first week of school in Burlington was 88. Of these 37 were in the High School. This is an excellent showing for the High School, being a larger number than are enrolled in many High Schools in much larger towns. It is expected that the enrollment will reach 100 by next week and that the entire enrollment will reach 150 at least. Prospects are fine for a successful year's work.

Mrs. Klopp Run Over by His Team And Seriously Injured.

Chas. Klopp, of Petersburg, met with quite a serious accident last Wednesday afternoon. He was at work with his team of horses, one of which was young and not used to steam becoming frightened when the engine would open a valve to allow the steam to escape. When the horses began to run Mr. Klopp tried to check them, when he was knocked down and trampled upon by the horses, while one of the wagon wheels passed over his body, lacerating it badly. Three of his ribs were broken and he was seriously injured otherwise, and at last accounts his physicians were yet unable to give an opinion as to the result of the injuries. Mr. Klopp is in the prime of life, an industrious man and a good citizen, and his misfortune is deplored by all who know him.

LIGHTNING

Strikes Telephone Wire and Sets Fire to The Wall Afire

Lightning struck Rouse's residence about half way between Burlington and the same very near being followed by fire Monday, caused by lightning striking a telephone wire and the current running into the room where the paper on the wall caught fire. Mr. Rouse discovered the fire a few minutes after it had started and extinguished the flames before it had burned all the paper off the wall and ceiling. The smell of burning wood and shingles burned very rapidly, lucky that Mr. Rouse discovered the fire when he did.

[illegible] TO SWAT FLIES

[illegible] Request of Women's [illegible] League of Boston—Nine Joe of Computing.

Boston—Boston citizens are warned that they see one of the city's [illegible] waving his arms in the air and making a wild swing at space he should not yell for an alienist. The policeman is not crazy with heat; he is just following out the orders issued by the health department to help kill all the flies in our fair city.

Every member of the department is now a "fly cop," and there are almost 1,500 of them.

The Women's Municipal league of Boston has made the request for assistance in killing off the pests. The league has issued circulars, one of which has been placed in every police station in the city.

The circular gives a number of reasons for the destruction of the flies. One is that "one fly in one summer can produce normally 195,312,500,000,000,000 descendants." Somebody had a fine job computing the offspring from that one aforesaid fly.

As some flies are larger than others, and horseflies are common, a policeman would only be following out the mandates of his superiors if he used his club in killing them off.

The fly is to be killed, no matter where he is. It is possible that a fly may light on a man's head. The officer in swatting, of course, only will try to end that fly's existence, saving the head of the man so far as is consistent with his duty.

The policemen were somewhat taken back when the orders were first issued, and some were unwilling to believe that they were engaged in any such work. The vast amount of good that they could accomplish was made plain to them, and they have entered into the spirit of it with destructive zest.

TURTLE FOSSIL ON MOUNTAIN

Petrified Tortoise Said to Be 400,000 Years Old, Lived When California Was Sea Bottom.

Los Angeles.—Three thousand feet above sea level on the slope of Mount Baldy and 50 miles from the coast, Thomas Donlon the other day found a perfect fossil of a huge sea tortoise which Hector Alliot, curator of the Southwest museum, pronounced the most important discovery of the kind ever made in Southern California. Donlon has an apiary and was seeking rock to hold down the lid of a hive when he saw the shell protruding from the ground. He dug it up and it proved to be a solid stone weighing 100 pounds and showing the exact markings and even some of the original color on the back and bottom. The specimen is nearly 30 inches in diameter.

Alliot estimates that it is 400,000 years old and beyond doubt the most ancient ever picked up on the western hemisphere.

"It swam in these seas," he says, "when California and all other territory this side of the Rocky mountains was still a mile or two under water. When the great earth spasm occurred which lifted the peaks of Shasta, Ranier and Whitney out of depths and brought the new land into being, this tortoise undoubtedly perished, and already petrified was subsequently rolled and ground in the glacial period ice for 70 years. The marks of this show clearly. One flipper is intact. The head and edges of the shell were obliterated."

Hundreds of large petrified clams were found embedded in the shale near this tortoise.

CROW IS MAN'S COMPANION

"Jim Black" Also Plays Tag With Owner's Daughter—Friendship Started Over Worms.

New York.—Harry Schaefer, an engineer in the municipal pumping station at Grant City, L. I., has a crow for a chum. The bird follows Schaefer to and from his work, fluttering behind him or sitting on his shoulder. Every morning the crow is put out in the garden to meet Schaefer and to get worms. That is how the friendship started. Schaefer, digging in the garden one morning, presented the bird with some rarely fat and juicy worms.

The crow came back the next day for more and now comes every day. The bird has several times perched on the shoulder of Mrs. Schaefer, accompanying her when she does her marketing. Schaefer calls his chum —Jim—Jim Black Crow in full.

Not only has the crow made fast friends with Schaefer and his wife, but it is a devoted playmate of the engineer's daughter, Elizabeth twelve. The two play "tag" famously; the bird hopping and flying in pursuit of the little girl when she runs away from it and sawing triumphantly when finally able to alight on her shoulder.

SHEARED PUPPY'S HOT COAT

Story About William B. McKinley That Reveals the Wealthy Congressman's Kindly Heart.

Although William B. McKinley of Illinois is almost the wealthiest member in congress, he is one of the quietest and most unassuming of men. Those who know him at close range tell many a story of his kindly heart and generous nature.

"One hot day," says a man associated with Mr. McKinley in business, "we were at work in the office when a little dog came sneaking in to escape the misery of blistering sidewalks. A worse specimen of tatterdemalion dog I never saw. It was mud-stained and owned a bushy, unkempt coat that made hot weather a horror to it. Its ears were ragged, and there was a hunted, homeless look in its pathetic eyes. It turned these pathetic eyes on McKinley, who was trying to catch up with a hard day's work. In a few minutes he laid down his pen, left the room and returned with a bowlful of water. I was called away. When I came back I found the congressman with a newspaper spread over his knees, and upon it stood that dog. A pair of scissors which had cut off millions of dollars in coupons was shearing away at the ragged coat of the wretched little beast, which was looking up with almost human gratitude in its pathetic eyes.

"'What are you doing?' I asked.

"'I'm getting the hot coat off this poor little pup. He's in misery,' answered the congressman, in his quiet way.

"Since that day McKinley has had a shadow in the shape of a small mongrel that any dog fancier would cast outside the pale of classified canines."

IT WAS THE PROPERTY LIME

Bartender Admits It Was Filled With Lemon Juice for Each Gin Rickey.

The consumer of the gin rickey, who knew all there was to know about gin rickeys, detected something wrong about the taste of the one he was drinking. Study of the matter told him that, instead of lime juice, it was flavored with the juice of the lemon.

But no! There, in the glass, uncompromisingly green and genuine, was half a lime.

Still, there was something wrong. After taking two or three additional sips he decided to speak about it to the bartender.

"Isn't there lemon juice in this rickey?" he inquired.

The bartender realized that before him was one who could not be bluffed.

"There is," he confessed, shamefacedly. "You see, we ran out of limes long ago, so each time a rickey's ordered we take that half lime in your glass, squeeze it full of lemon juice to freshen it up, and serve the drink."

Some Fine Old Madeira.

An interesting fact that come to our notice through Livingston Thompson of St. Louis in connection with a case of Madeira wine which, on the occasion of the birth of the young Thompson, was presented by the firm of E. La Montagne's Sons to his father.

It was the understanding that this case was not to be opened until Mr. Thompson should reach his twenty-first year, and until that time it did so remain in his possession. The wine when presented was ten years old, and there are now three bottles, which Mr. Thompson is holding until his daughter reaches twenty-one years of age, when they will be opened. Mr. Thompson tells us that the Madeira when opened had a rich and delightful maturity and can be classed among the finest wines he has ever tasted.—Bonfort's Wine and Spirit Circular.

Hived Bees With Bare Hands.

A bet, a position and a swarm of bees were won at the same time a few days ago by G. L. Stone of San Francisco, when, with hands and face unprotected, he pulled from the top of a lamppost into an open box, buzzing masses of the honey makers. Stone was walking in a busy street, when a friend called his attention to the bees and remarked that a few dollars could be make by anyone "hiving" them. Stone said he could do it, with no covering on his hands or face. The friend laughed and said he would bet a good sum, he couldn't do it. Stone took the bet, got a ladder and box, then mounted the ladder and lifted the bees by the handful into the box. Among the crowd of interested spectators who watched Stone's feat was a show manager, who promptly offered a position to the man immune from bee stings.

She'll Tell You---Quick!

Just ask your wife which of these two dish pans a cream separator parts she would rather wash. She will tell you quick—the one with the single piece in it. This single, tiny, instantly removable piece is all there is inside.

Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator Bowls

Which Kind for You?

All other separators have heavy, hard to wash, complicated "bucket bowls." The disks in the full dish pan are all from one common "bucket bowl" and are just a sample of the trouble and work of washing "bucket bowls" as compared to washing the Dairy Tubular. Think of washing these disks twice a day. Imagine the chance rust and hard knocks have to such a complicated machine.

Milk skimmed with a Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator is skimmed right—it is the cleanest skimming, quickest skimming, lightest running, longest lived separator built. Bring your wife to see it—inside and outside—and learn how it may double your butter money. The helpful dairy book, "Business Dairying," is yours for the asking.

Imagine the [illegible] and feelings of the [illegible] American when twenty heavily laden wagons stopped next morning at his front door, each one filled with young orange trees, all ready for planting. She refused to pay for them because she said it wasn't her fault if the man was unable to read. The merchant, on the other hand, declared it was her duty to pay, as he wasn't to blame if customers couldn't write legibly. Experience is a dear school, but her approval earned what a big difference one little letter may make in a word.

Dear Sirs.—In answer to your letter of recent date, in which you explain that certain reports are being circulated thru your community to the effect that you are not our exclusive agents, and that another party claims he can secure and fill orders for the genuine Columbus, made by the Columbus Buggy Company, let us assure you positively that such is not the case. You are the only representative we have in your community and the only one we authorize to sell our vehicle.

Should we receive orders from other parties than you, we should decline to fill them, unless authorized in writing by you to do so.

You have our consent to give this letter wide publicity if you care to, as it will soon establish in the minds of your friends and customers that you are the sole agent of the genuine Columbus.

Very Truly,

PRINCE A LITERARY LUNATIC

Has Written Forty Volumes No One Will Buy—Now He Is a Pauper.

Prince Ferdinando Alfonso De Liguori, a scion of one of Italy's oldest families, was recently arrested in Rome for being unable to settle a cab fare. He has had a remarkable history.

His name is in the gold book of Naples, which shows that the title conferred upon his ancestors was a Bourbon honor.

One of the prince's sisters keeps a book shop in Milan, a brother committed suicide.

Prince Ferdinando is well known in the United States. At the age of twenty-five he emigrated to the new world and enlisted under the Stars and Stripes. Returning to Italy he married a Russian woman of great wealth, but a divorce followed and he was thrown once more on his own resources.

He then appears to have become a literary lunatic, publishing book after book, regardless of expense and of the mockery which attended his ridiculous efforts as a novelist. In this manner more than forty volumes were placed upon the market and if a few thousand copies were sold in all that was the limit.

He then tried to enter a monastery, but the pope prevented this move. He is now, as indicated by his arrest, in a state of abject poverty.

Bit of Old Printing Found.

Recently Prof. P. D. Sherman of the English department of Oberlin college, Oberlin, Ohio, in looking over an edition of Augustinian sermons printed in 1496, discovered on the inside of one of the oak boards what looked like a printed vellum sheet.

By carefully scraping away the paper fly leaf and soaking off the vellum a folio leaf 12 by 16 inches, printed in two fonts, with the paragraph marks, headings and capitals in red, was recovered.

Unable to identify the sheet Prof. Sherman sent it to the British museum. Word has just been received from Alfred W. Pollard, expert in the department of printed books in that institution, that the fragment is folio 40 of the Clementine constitution, done by Peter Schaefer at Mayence in 1467, and dates back to within one decade of the Gutenberg Bible.—Rosary Magazine.

Was Blacklisted.

In employment agencies it takes a blacklisted housekeeper many months to regain a reputation for humanity, no matter how sincere the reformation. For weeks one woman of bland countenance had traveled from agency to agency seeking a competent maid. Another woman to whom she had confided her troubles remarked to the agent that it was strange a woman apparently so amiable should find it so difficult to secure desirable help.

"It is the burglar alarm that queers her," he said. "She used to keep one in the house so the girl could not [illegible] eat before going to bed [illegible] the family. Many Curious Specimens of Marine Life at Los Angeles.

United States Ship Albatross Completes Remarkable Trip With Many Scientists on Board—What They Secured.

Los Angeles, Cal.—The United States ship Albatross has just completed a most remarkable trip. With a corps of scientific men on board the vessel made an expedition down the southern coast of California, round the peninsula and back to San Francisco. And the return trip was not made empty handed, for treasures and curios of the sea came back with them.

The party, in addition to the chief, Dr. C. H. Townsend, acting director of the American Museum of Natural History in New York, included Dr. J. N. Rose of the National Museum in Washington, botanist; Dr. Paul Barsch, also of the National Museum, zoologist; Waldo Schmidt, assistant naturalist of the Albatross, and Messrs. Anthony and Osborn, well known west coast collectors.

The Albatross cruised along the coast of Lower California, stops being made at Guadaloups Island, San Benita, San Bartolome Bay, Bay San Criatobal, San Roque Island, Point Abrojos and many other places of importance, and then passed on into the Gulf of California, going as far as Tiburon Island and the Angel de la Guarda islands.

Several adult elephant seals were killed at Guadaloupe Island, brought on board the ship and put into brine to preserve them, while six of the younger animals were captured alive. The full grown elephant seal is about 22 feet long and has a snout or nose closely resembling that of an elephant. At Guadaloupe Island also the party found excellent opportunities for research and exploration. Here, too, they obtained a fine collection of rare birds, mollusks and plants, and found animal and marine life not related closely to that found on the mainland.

Following along the coast and making frequent landings, and making during the trip 25 deep sea hauls with the dredge, ranging from 400 to 1,071 fathoms (2,400 to 6,426 feet), many interesting kinds of fish and other interesting specimens of marine life were secured. Brought up with the deepest haul were several kinds of deep sea fish, five kinds of crimson prawn, one with blue eggs; many worms that live in hard tubes and one great starfish, as well as several brittle stars.

On Carmen Island the party discovered a wonderful salt pond, on which there was a coating of salt four to five inches thick. The crust is removed in thick flakes and when ground produces salt of an exceeding fineness. This salt is shipped in large quantities.

What is believed to be a new species of mountain sheep was discovered on the west side of Concepcion Bay. The scientists were not able to get close enough to observe these animals carefully or to capture them, but obtained three sets of horns from natives of the place.

WALKING TAKES OFF WEIGHT

Newport Society Women Tramp in Heavy Polo Coats on Hot Days to Reduce Themselves.

Boston.—The latest novelty which has been enthusiastically taken up by the folk at Newport is plain, everyday walking.

The movement was started by Miss Beryl Kane and Miss Elizabeth Sands.

These two young women are well known in society at the executive resort. They decided that the automobile was too lazy, sea bathing too weakening, tennis too violent and golf too puerile for their purpose.

Newporters are growing fat and blame the automobile and the regulation lazy life. Walking is their salvation, they believe, and they have taken it up in earnest.

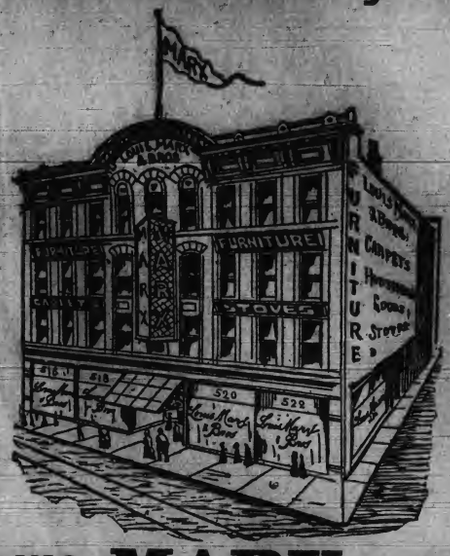
The walking costume as prescribed by Miss Sands and Miss Kane consists of a heavy baggy polo coat and a slouched Panama hat. Heavy soled shoes are worn.

The coats are as heavy as blankets and after a long, hard tramp in them the devotees say all the benefits of a Turkish bath are derived, in addition to muscular exercises.

SWALLOWED A PIECE OF GUM

Startled Gum-Chewer, Reproved by Court, Nearly Chokes Before He Can Explain to Judge.

Easton, Pa.—While presiding over a case in court here the other day Judge Staples of Monroe county, who is sitting in the absence of Judge Scott, took exception to the gum-chewing activities of a young man on the witness stand.



"Stop chewing that gum!" ordered the court sharply. The witness made no motion to remove the big wad that had distorted his cheek.

"Did you hear what I said? Remove that gum!" repeated the court, more sternly than before.

With flushed face and in a choking voice the witness replied: "Judge, I swallowed it!"

The other itself was forced to join in the [illegible] that followed.

R. A. Brady, who resides down on Middle creek, was in Burlington, Tuesday. He said he never saw as many heavy rains in so short a time as had visited his neighborhood in the last two weeks. Everything is washed to pieces, he says.

You're losing money!

Yes—frankly losing money, you may as well throw it away, when you buy a roofing that requires everlasting painting and eternal vigilance, watching and repairing leaks—and trust the coming winter to find and show them up.

Now--

Suppose you add a few pennies to the amount you've laid aside for your fall roofing—and make your order read JUSTRIGHT galvanized—the roofing with the double crimp—we venture to say that subsequent seasons will find your roof the best conditioned in your locality.

Suppose you write us to-day, for a little circular we have prepared that fully describes this "best of roofings."

All the tricks known to several persons were pulled off on a horse that balked on the street in Burlington, yesterday, but no results were obtained until Mr. G. S. Walrath appeared on the scene, and told the crowd that to make the horse go was easy. He obtained a small rope and placed it on the animals front legs, and stood in front of it and drew the rope back and forth a few times, and the horse moved off as though it did not know anything but to go.

The Assessors In The State.

...is the report the ... Board of Equalization made ... Augustus E. Willson, ... 31st, 1911:

The State Board of Equalization ... Assessment respectfully sub... the following report for the ... 1911.

In this, as in former years, there ... no occasion for reducing any ...county's returned assessment. Not ... of them was assessed at a ...measure of its fair cash value. Forty-seven counties were not changed—not for the reason that the board considered them properly assessed, but because, if they were increased, the counties that had a per cent. added would have to have been raised correspondingly higher.

The law governing the Board has not been changed in any particular during your administration. The Legislature has not seen fit to make an addition or change which would enable the Board to more probably arrive at an accurate conclusion in its endeavor to equalize values among the counties.

The transfer sheets upon which we are to primarily base our decision, as they are at present returned, are in most cases almost worthless; some for the reason that the purchase price is purposely hidden under "$1.00 and other considerations;" many have no value fixed by the assessor; much is listed with other property in numbers of instances the acreage is not given in nearly all some term is withheld, which makes a comparison between the sale value, assessed value and Supervisor's value impossible. In many cases it is a result of ignorance, carelessness or slovenliness; in others, shrewdness and duplicity—done purposely to mislead. When witnesses are sent, they oftener serve to confuse than otherwise. All witnesses who appear before the Board are appointed by the County Judge after he has received notice of a tentative raise by the Board. It is seldom that the Judge will select witnesses who has not formed ... opinion and expressed a desire to appear in defense of his ... All the evidence before ... is ex parte. The record ... up by the county officials ... witnesses selected for the ... of testifying for the de...

There are a few good assessors ... State—we say a "few" for ... lack of a general term that ... a lesser number.

The impression seems to be ... ground throughout the ... that we have a "single tax" ... system, and that personal property is exempt from taxation, ... inasmuch as real estate is ... called to bear the burden, it ... the privilege of the owner ... and the duty of the officials to ... to list all property at a ... low figure. In the matter ... personal property no witness ... urged that the assessor claim... to have assessed it fully, or ... the owners had intended to ... it in at its worth. In substance they contend that it is ... given in anywhere, and ex... themselves on the ground that it is a matter of perjury or poverty, and exercise their right of choice.

The result is that after the number of lists that the assessor arbitrarily increases is added to the number that the County Board of Supervisors raise, there remains about 95 per cent. of the people in the State who fix the sum themselves upon which they are willing to pay taxes, and it is a safe assertion that 90 per cent. of that 95 per cent. are not inclined to pay a great amount.

From the testimony of the average witness, who appears before this Board, there is very little good land in his section of the State, and what is there is mainly in adjoining counties; in his particular county there is a poor streak extending the length and width of the county from which all the timber has been cut and marketed; the process of erosion has carried all the fertile soil into the Gulf of Mexico; that a peculiar and unprecedented condition exists in regard to the bottom lands in his county, unlike the conditions along most streams that enrich the land as the current of the stream changes and washes it away, and if by accident there is a deposit, it is always of sand, that destroys its texture, productiveness; that there is here and there an occasional oasis of small area upon which the fireless farmer can eke out an existence, and, by the addition of a small mortgage, pay his taxes.

The cities do not labor under exactly the same difficulties, but their difficulties are just as difficult. It seems that in all the cities the railroads have secured quantities of land for terminal facilities that are withheld from assessment; in addition to which the smoke, noise and dust has destroyed the value of property for blocks on either side. Schools and churches have also acquired valuable property which is exempt from taxation; this also lessens their total. The money in banks is owned by non-residents, country banks and the federal government. The remaining few dollars left among their citizens is mainly for the purpose of street car fare. Business has been removed from the principal streets and is yet untaxed. In fact, the city would pass into the hands of a receiver if there were anything to receive or anybody who would receive it.

Many counties fear that any increase in their present assessment would seriously hamper them; possibly this explains the loud cries that

GINSENG

Suburbanite Harvests Big Crop Planted Five Years Ago.

Mr. Jessie Fite of this city has just completed digging a crop of ginseng root which he planted five years ago on a vacant lot on Rucker Avenue. Completing the digging and putting his product on the scales he found that his plot of ground, 30x30 feet, produced just 40 lbs. of roots. He has been offered $8 per pound for his crop by a local dealer, but he refused the offer and is now in communication with a New York firm and expects to get a much higher price.

Mr. Fite is an old Confederate soldier, serving three years in the Civil war as a member in the Fifth Kentucky Regiment. Five years ago he decided to try his hand at growing ginseng. He sowed this small plat of ground in ginseng seed, setting up posts around it about seven feet high, and then covered it with a thick layer of brush to keep the ground well shaded.

A yield from one acre of ground in proportion to the yield grown by Mr. Fite on this small plot would bring sufficient revenue to buy a good sized blue grass farm.—Georgetown News.

To Check Hog Cholera.

From almost every county of Missouri there have come to the Agricultural College during the past three months appeals for help to check the ravages of hog cholera. At the present time Franklin, Caldwell and Ray counties are centers of infection and every effort is being put forth to prevent the further spread of the disease in those sections. The Veterinary Department has been taxed to its utmost capacity to supply serum as fast as the calls have come but with its present equipment this has not been possible.

Over 54,000 doses have been sent out from the serum laboratory at Columbia during the first eight months of 1911. Fifteen thousand hogs have been inoculated for the prevention of cholera during the month of August alone. Four men are now in the field where the disease is most deadly, applying the serum treatment and advising other preventive measures.

Last winter the Legislature of Missouri appropriated $25,000 to aid the work of the Veterinary Department in fighting hog cholera. To say that double this sum is being saved to the farmers of Missouri every month of the year as a result of this original investment of $25,000 is an entirely conservative statement.—Missouri Exchange.

The People's Money.

In Graves county the Fiscal Court, having reason to believe that the Sheriffs of the county for years back had been pocketing the people's money, set on foot an investigation, with the result that former Sheriffs are shown to have collected almost $30,000 of taxes which they failed to report. Owing to the obstacles which were constantly thrown in the way of the men employed to make the investigation by the Sheriffs and those who had profited by their favors it is reasonable to suppose that these figures do not near cover the acual amount subverted from the public treasury. Under the laws of Kentucky the Sheriffs are the best paid, not to say overpaid, officers in the counties. So powerful has the Sheriffs office become that it dominates all other races when an election is held. In Graves county this has been particularly true for years. All factional differences in Graves county revolve around the Sheriffs office. Honestly administered the office pays so well that one term usually fixes a man to go into the banking business. The fault seems to lie in the fee system and the Legislature should take steps to put the office of Sheriff in the salary class or else trim the fees down to a point where the office would not pay out of all proportion to the other offices.—Clinton Gazette.

A Different Cry Now.

But a few weeks ago, many times during the day, the farmer would raise up from his work in the fields and cast his weather eye up skyward, taking in at one sweep the entire firmament. Sorrowfully would he shake his head as he bent to his task again, and his eye rested on the withered corn and stunted tobacco. "No rain in sight yet," was the inevitable soliloquy. To-day he scans his same weather eye upwards in the hope of finding a rift in the clouds, while his tobacco looks as though he would not get a chance to get it in the house before it is spoiled. September has been a wet month. Sunday one of the hardest rains of the year fell in this section, greatly delaying all tobacco cutting.—Blue-Grass Clipper.

The Business Principle

of successful lives is the habit of saving, depositing, something to be spared in a good bank to meet the emergencies of life or a rainy day. A little at a time makes a snug sum in a short time. The Equitable Bank and Trust Co., Walton, Ky., will accept any sum on deposit and pays four per cent. interest on what remains a year, or three per cent for what remains six months. Remittances by mail given prompt response and careful attention. This Bank has assets of over One Hundred Thousand Dollars. We qualify as administrator, executor, trustee, guardian, etc., of estates, which is much more satisfactory than a private individual in such capacity. Mail communications given careful attention. GRANT COUNTY ITEMS.

(Grant County News.)

C. N. Scroggin, of Cross Roads, died Thursday morning as the result of injuries received in a runaway accident Monday afternoon.

—o—

Quarterly Court will be taken up next week in trial of the indictments against W. C. Johnson, charged with the illegal sale of liquor. These indictments were returned by the last February grand jury and Johnson has forced a trial in the Quarterly Court by reason of his inability to give bond. A special venire of fifty jurors have been ordered summoned. The cases will be called Tuesday.

—o—

Parties who have been over the line of railroad now being graded from Dry Ridge to Owenton, say that five miles of the road from Jonesville to Harrisburg has been graded and that the grade is equal to that of any steam road in the country. About a hundred men and teams are at work on the line and more are being put to work every day. The pay roll it is claimed, amounts to about $2,000 a week.

—o—

County Court last Monday brought out the usual large crowd that a September court always brings out. A great many farmers were in town with this year's crop of weanling mules, but the price was so unsatisfactory that very likely less than one-third of those brought here were disposed of. About a hundred horses and mules all told were purchased and fully twice that many that were brought here for sale were taken home.

—o—

The trial of Millard Edwards, accused of assisting in the escape of Wood Edwards and June Harvey from the Williamstown jail some months ago, came up at the special term of the Circuit Court last Thursday. The jury got the case Thursday afternoon and were out all night Thursday seeking to reach an agreement seeking to reach an agreement. Friday morning they returned a verdict of guilty, Judge Cammack fixed the punishment of Edwards at from one to five years in the penetentiary but granted a stay of execution for 40 days to enable the prisoner to prepare a petition for a new trial.

—o—

Tobacco cutting commenced in this county last week and is in full swing now. Reports from farmers indicate that hands are very scarce, and some of them may be late in getting their crops housed. The crop in this county looks fine and many growers say they have one of the best crops they have ever housed. The drouth did not damage the tobacco crop in this county to any considerable extent, but the crop is late and much of the weed will be left standing in the field the first of October. If the frost holds off Grant county's tobacco crop will be well up to the average.

—o—

An organization known as The Farmers Union, is spreading over the county at a rapid rate. Three or four branches of the union have already been organized. One of these is at the Roundtop school house, another at Oak Ridge and another at Fairview. The organization came in by way of Pendleton county, where the movement is said to be growing like wildfire. Another branch or two will likely be organized this week. After five branches of the union have been organized in the county a county union may then be organized. The primary purpose of the organization is for the farmers to purchase a number of articles of merchandise at wholesale prices. Already the unions at Oak Ridge, Fairview and Roundtop have laid in their winter supply of coal.

Attacks School Principal.

A severe attack on school principal, Chas. B. Allen, of Sylvania, Ga., is thus told by him. "For more than three years," he writes, "I suffered indescribable torture from rheumatism, liver and stomach trouble and diseased kidneys. All remedies failed till I used Electric Bitters, but four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me completely." Such results are common. Thousands bless them for curing stomach trouble, female complaints, kidney disorders, biliousness, and for new health and vigor. Try them. Only 50 cents at all dealers.

James D. Conner was born near Connersville, Ind., Dec. 30, 1833 and died at Hebron, Ky., Sept. 27th, 1911, aged 77 years, 8 months and 27 days. He was the son of Wilson and Jane Dicken Conner and came to Kentucky when 19 years of age. On Oct. 3 9th, 1867, he was married to Lucinda Jane Perry by Elder John Theobald. Five children were born to this union one boy and four girls, the son and one daughter having preceded their father to his eternal home. He leaves a widow, 3 daughters and nine grandchildren to hold him in loving remembrance. "It is hard to part with one we love, but we trust he's at home with God."

The family desire to thank all their kind friends who so willingly assisted them during the sickness and death of their loved one. Mrs. Conner and daughters.

Chester Stephens, of the Locust Grove neighborhood, and Miss Janie Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Jones, were married at the home of the bride's parents yesterday afternoon.

HAD COLD FEET.

The Hebron Combination Trounces Burlington in a Severe Manner.

The Burlington base ball talent visited Hebron, last Saturday afternoon, when and where it received a severe trouncing. The High School team was beaten 3 to 0 while the Burlington team got it in the neck 11 to 4. From the appearance of the score sheet the boys had cold feet—very cold. They did hitting enough to have made a better showing, but their defensive work was wonderful because of the inexcusable boozles that were made. Misjudged balls and overthrows. Sandford and Lostutter, the battery for Hebron, were given excellent support, there being but one error behind them, while the team went after Brady in a lively manner, making 12 hits, two of them doubles and one a tripple. Sandford struck out seven men. Burlington made nine hits, one of them a double. Brady struck out six men and had 7 errors behind him. The game was broken up in the sixth inning, up to which time neither side scored. Ben Zimmer and Sandford each made two baggers, which followed by an error and four singles resulted in six runs.

After a long conference, Monday, the managers of the Burlington and Hebron base ball teams came to terms in regard to a game to be played by these teams at Burlington next Saturday afternoon, but after the Hebron manager slept over the matter he had a third party to inform manager Kirkpatrick that he had reconsidered the matter and would not bring his team to Burlington as agreed upon, consequently the date was transferred to the Ft. Thomas team which will be on hand and a good game can be counted on. Batteries—Marty Phiester and Hopkins for Ft. Thomas; Black, Brady and Slayback for Burlington. Come out and see the game, as but few more can be played this season.

Well Pleasd With Kentucky.

Three Columbus, Ohio, men, Messrs. A. W. Hagen, Nelson Watts, a son of Tom Watts, a pioneer of Rising Sun, Indiana, and Verne Warner, all of Columbus, Ohio, last Wednesday, made camp on the Parlor Grove farm now owned by Charles Hemfling. These men are making this trip in regular canoes, modeled after the style of the old birch. Primarially, they are out for their health and the experience that can be gained by such an undertaking. They were all very much interested in the growing and curing of tobacco, as carried on in Kentucky. Being well entertained by Mrs. Hempfling, they decided to stay over Thursday and left early Friday morning, after expressing their heartfelt appreciation of the general hospitality of all Kentucky people they have met along the route, always aiming to camp on Kentucky soil.

Has Quite a Reputation.

The butter produced by Clover Leaf Creamery is making for itself not only a good reputation at home but abroad as well. Several Erlanger people were after a supply of it last Monday, while a lady from the city, who is visiting in Burlington is so well pleased with the butter that she intends taking some of it home for herself and a friend, and wants the name of the commission merchant in the city to whom the butter is consigned in order that she can supply her table with it in the future.

Thomas Rouse, near town, filled his large silo one day last week. When he is ready to do that work he calls in enough of his neighbors to assist him and to make it a short job. The capacity of his silo is fifty or sixty tons. There are quite a number of silos in the neighborhood between Burlington and Constance and in every instance the owner is well pleased with the quality of the feed it produces and the rapidity with which the feed is procured. The silo made its first appearance in this county in the Union neighborhood several years ago where it at once became very popular, and it will not be many years before it will be used extensively in every neighborhood.

PART I.

CHAPTER I.

It was a quiet night in the Tivoli. At the bar, which ranged along one side of the large chinked-log room, leaned half a dozen men, two of whom were discussing the relative merits of spruce tea and lime juice as remedies for scurvy. They argued with an air of depression and with intervals of morose silence. The other men scarcely heeded them. In a row, against the opposite wall, were the gambling games. The crap table was deserted. One lone man was playing at the faro table. The roulette was not even spinning, and the gamekeeper stood by the roaring, red-hot stove, talking with a young, dark-eyed woman, comely of face and figure, who was known from Juneau to Fort Yukon as the Virgin. Three men sat in at stud poker, but they played with small chips and without enthusiasm, while there were no onlookers. On the floor of the dancing room, which opened out at the rear, three couples were waltzing drearily to the strains of a violin and a piano.

Circle City was not deserted, nor was money tight. The miners were in from Moosehead creek and the other diggings to the west, the summer washing had been good, and the men's pouches were heavy with dust and nuggets. The Klondike had not yet been discovered, nor had the miners of the Yukon learned the possibilities of deep digging and wood-firing. No work was done in the winter, and they made a practice of hibernating in the large camps like Circle City during the long Arctic night. Time was heavy on their hands, their pouches were well filled and the only social diversion to be found was in the saloons. Yet the Tivoli was practically deserted, and the Virgin, standing by the stove, yawned with uncovered mouth and said to Charley Bates:

"If something don't happen soon, I'm goin' to bed. What's the matter with the camp, anyway? Everybody dead?"

Bates did not even trouble to reply, but went on moodily rolling a cigarette. Dan MacDonald, pioneer saloonman and gambler on the upper Yukon, owner and proprietor of the Tivoli and all its games, wandered forlornly across the great vacant space of floor and joined the two at the stove.

"Anybody dead?" the Virgin asked him.

"Looks like it," was the answer.

"Then it must be the whole camp," she said with an air of finality and with another yawn.

MacDonald grinned and nodded, and opened his mouth to speak, when the front door swung open and a man appeared in the light. He would have appeared a large man had not a huge French-Canadian stepped up to him from the bar and gripped his hand.

"Hello, Daylight!" was his greeting. "By Gar, you good for sore eyes!"

"Hello, Louis, when did you-all blow in?" returned the newcomer. "Come up and have a drink and tell us all about Bone creek. Why, dog-gone you-all, shake again. Where's that pardner of yours? I'm looking for him."

Another huge man detached himself from the bar to shake hands. Olaf Henderson and French Louis, partners together on Bone creek, were the two largest men in the country, and though they were but half a head taller than the newcomer, between them he was dwarfed completely.

"Hello, Olaf," said the one called Daylight. "Tomorrow's my birthday. And you, too, Louis. Come up and drink, and I'll tell you-all about it."

The arrival of the newcomer seemed to send a flood of warmth through the place. "It's Burning Daylight," the Virgin cried, the first to recognize him as he came into the light. Charley Bates' tight features relaxed at the sight, and MacDonald went over and joined the three at the bar. With the advent of Burning Daylight the whole place suddenly became brighter and cheerier. The barkeepers were active. Voices were raised. Somebody laughed. And when the fiddler, peering into the front room, remarked to the pianist: "It's Burning Daylight," the waltz time perceptibly quickened, and the dancers, catching the contagion, began to whirl about as if they really enjoyed it. It was known to them of old-time that nothing languished when Burning Daylight was around.

He turned from the bar and saw the woman by the stove and the eager look of welcome she extended him.

"Hello, Virgin, old girl," he called. "Hello, Charley. What's the matter with you-all? Why wear faces like that when coffins only cost three ounces? Come up, you-all, and drink. Come up, you unburied dead, an' name your poison. Come up, everybody. This is my night, and I'm going to ride it. To-morrow I'm thirty, and then I'll be an old man. It's the last fling of youth. Are you-all with me? Then along, then. Surge along."

He waits in the back room being finished, the three couples, followed by the fiddler and the pianist and heading for the bar, caught Daylight's eye.

"Surge along, you-all!" he cried. "Surge along and name it. This is my night, and it ain't a night that comes frequent. Surge up, you Siwashes and Salmon-eaters. It's my night, I tell you-all—"

"A blamed mangy night," Charley Bates interpolated.

"You're right, my son," Burning Daylight went on, gayly. "A mangy night, but it's my night, you see. I'm the mangy old he-wolf. Listen to me howl."

And howl he did, like a lone gray timber wolf, till the Virgin thrust her pretty fingers in her ears and shivered. A minute later she was whirled away in his arms to the dancing floor, where, along with three other women and their partners, a rollicking Virginia reel was soon in progress.

Few men knew Elam Harnish by any other name than Burning Daylight, the name which had been given him in the early days in the land because of his habit of routing his comrades out of their blankets with the complaint that daylight was burning. Of the pioneers in that far Arctic wilderness, where all men were pioneers, he was reckoned among the oldest. Men like Al Mayo and Jack McQuestion antedated him; but they had entered the land by crossing the Rockies from the Hudson Bay country to the east. He, however, had been the pioneer over the Chilcoot and Chilcat passes. In the spring of 1883, twelve years before, a stripling of eighteen, he had crossed over the Chilcoot with five comrades. In the fall he had crossed back with one. Four had perished by mischance in the bleak, uncharted vastness. And for twelve years Elam Harnish had continued to grope for gold among the shadows of the Circle. Heroes are seldom given to hero-worship, but among those of that land, young as he was, he was accounted an elder hero. In point of time he was before them. In point of deed he was beyond them.

He was a striking figure of a man, of all the men in the Tivoli. Soft-tanned moccasins of moose-hide, beaded in Indian designs, covered his feet. His trousers were ordinary overalls, his coat was made from a blanket. Long-gauntletted leather mittens, lined with wool, hung by his side. They were connected, in the Yukon fashion by a leather thong passed around the neck and across the shoulders. On his head was a fur cap, the ear-flaps raised and the tying-cords dangling. His face, lean and slightly long, with the suggestion of hollows under the cheek bones, seemed almost Indian. The burnt skin and keen dark eyes contributed to this effect, though the bronze of the skin and the eyes themselves were essentially those of a white man. He looked older than thirty, and yet, smooth-shaven and without wrinkles, he was almost boyish. The impression of age was based on no tangible evidence. It came from the abstracter facts of the man, from what he had endured and survived, which was far beyond that of ordinary men. He had lived naked and tensely, and something of all this smoldered in his eyes, vibrated in his voice and seemed forever a whisper on his lips.

It was two in the morning when the dancers, bent on getting something to eat, adjourned the dancing for half an hour. And it was at this moment that Jack Kearns suggested poker. Jack Kearns was a big, bluff-featured man, who, along with Bettles, had made the disastrous attempt to found a post on the head-reaches of the Koyokuk, far inside the Arctic circle. After that Kearns had fallen back on his posts at Forty Mile and Sixty Mile and changed the direction of his ventures by sending out to the states for a small sawmill and a river steamer. Jack Kearns suggested poker. French Louis, Dan MacDonald and Hal Campbell (who

KENTUCKY NEWS.

Five thousand volunteers turned out in Pulaski county Tuesday to work on the roads, donating their services.

A pair of remarkable mules were shown at the California State Fair, where they attracted much attention. One five years old weighed 1,930 lbs., and the other, 6 years old, 1,810 lbs.

A tobacco freak is the latest that has appeared in Bedford. Mr. J. P. Powel brought in last week a bunch of tobacco blossoms that grew as a sucker from the root of a plant, there being no leaves on the bloom stalk. It was about 12 inches long and 6 inches in diameter, weighing about three-fourths of a pound. Mr. Powel says he never before saw anything like it.—Trimble County Democrat.

Dear Sir: I recd your letter a few days ago and said I owed you $2 for the Smiths Grove times I never describe for the Times I have been getting the paper for three years, but didn't know how come my name there. Somebody else sent my name there and I don't think I owe you anything and you can stop the paper if you want to for I never describe for it and I don't suppose paying for it. from Boone Lawrence.—Smiths Grove Times.

This office has a freak of the vegetable creation in the shape of a gourd, and its form is what renders it of the freak character. It is six feet five inches in length, weighs fifteen and a half ounces, and averages, perhaps, twelve inches in circumference. Being somewhat like the sensitive plant, it will winter and cease to develop if touched by the hand during its growth. It grew at the home of the editor's sister, Mrs. A. G. Roper, of Cynthiana. She has ornamented it with various painted characters, and Dr. Alton Weil calls it a totem pole, which is very appropriate.—Mt. Olivet Advance.

Drought Teaches A Lesson.

The dry summer has emphasized several things that our farmers would do well to remember. One is the necessity of being able to supplement the pastures in a season like the present. To have a green crop of some kind growing that can be fed to stock while pastures are dry. Another is the silo which is so common in the north and so seldom seen south of the Ohio river. Feed of all kinds will be scarce and high this winter, but there has been ample time after this fact was known to have filled the silos if they had been here. Another thing the dry spell has shown. The farmer who has plowed wisely and persistently will have a fair crop of corn despite the dry weather. A farmer told us this week of two farmers and their different methods of cultivation. One used a large plow and plowed deep, tearing off the roots of corn in the old fashioned way. The other plowed shallow and kept at it. The latter will raise ten barrels of corn to the acre, while his neighbor just over the fence will not raise half that amount on better ground. Other lessons have been taught by the drought which it will pay our farmers to remember and profit by.—Ex.

RAILROAD MEETING.

The railroad meeting at the Court House Tuesday night was well attended and a lively interest manifested in the proceedings. The meeting was called to order by O. A. Bogardus, who briefly stated its object, and introduced R. S. Holmes, counsel for the railroad, who stated the plan of the proposed road, and told of the benefits which had accrued to other towns by the building of traction roads. Mr. Holmes was followed by Mr. Weaver, who will have charge of the building of the road. J. Gordon Malcolm, of the brokerage firm which will have charge of the financing of the proposed road, also made a strong argument for its building. Being called upon by the chairman of the meeting, Rev. T. W. Barker and Rev. J. B. Yeager made short talks advocating the building of the road, and reciting some of the improved conditions which would necessarily follow.

J. L. Long, of the brokerage firm of J. Gordon Malcolm & Co., made the last statement for the building of the road, presenting facts and figures which it would appear would place not alone the building of the road, but its successful operation, as well, beyond the pale of doubt.

Mayor James Gayle of Carrollton, president of the C. & W. Railroad, was present, and being called upon made a short talk reviewing the work of his road from Carrollton to Worthville, and urged every citizen of Warsaw to contribute all he could to the building of an enterprise which would mean so much to Warsaw and the territory thru which the road would pass. Others present from a distance who are vitally interested in the proposed road are, J. W. Kennedy Dr. Myrax Crouch, both of Boone county; Louis Fritz, of Covington, and Attorney R. S. Holmes, of Covington.

At the meeting at the Court House that night Mr. Long, who closed the meeting, stated that subscriptions for stock would not be asked for that night, but that this would be done by personal interview on the two days following the meeting—Wednesday and Thursday.

The object of the promoters of the road is to secure $250,000 in stock subscriptions, Covington to take $150,000, leaving $100,000 to be raised between Carrollton and Covington. Soliciting for subscriptions in Warsaw was begun late Wednesday afternoon, and, as we go to press, we learn that the responses thus far have been very encouraging. The promoters went to Ghent Thursday night, holding a meeting there which was largely attended, and subscriptions for stock in the proposed road are now being solicited there.

Stock and Dairy Business.

We can readily judge of the future of this great industry by facts of the past and present. One thing is well settled, and that is, live stock and the dairy industry is the great hope of future fertility and productiveness of the soil. That there is no danger of overdoing the dairy business is seen from the facts of the census reports for the past forty years as follows:

Years	Cows	People.
1870	1 to every	3.8
1880	1 to every	4
1890	1 to every	3.9
1900	1 to every	4.5
1910	1 to every	5.1

These figures do not indicate that the dairy industry will be overdone. Of course it will be remembered that the dairy capacity of the cows of the country has been increased; but judging from the prices of dairy products and the rapid increase of our population in proportion to the increase in cows there should be no alarm, nor any one led to believe there is any danger of overdoing the dairy industry.—Ex.

Don't Buy Show Horses.

Of course, no one would think of advising the average farmer to buy show horses. These are a specialty, and the ordinary farmer who wishes to make his living out of his land should leave show horses out of his consideration entirely, unless he has special capacity for horses and horse raising, and this is not the kind of farmer for whom I am writing. Altho it would in ordinary circumstances, be extravagant and unwise to buy very high class show horses, cheap and inferior animals ought to be avoided. Old horses are very seldom inexpensive. An old horse may last fairly well but whether his time is long or short, he has to be worn out, and when his day does come he is a dead loss. Good useful young horses, four or five years old, are best to start with. To begin with, if carefully chosen, they will improve for a few years at least.

Midnight in the Ozarks.

and yet sleepless Hiram Scranton, of Clay City, Ill., coughed and coughed. He was in the mountains on the advice of five doctors, who said he had consumption, but found no help in the climate, and started home. Hearing of Dr. King's New Discovery, he began to use it. "I believed it save my life," he writes. "for it made a new man of me, so that I can now do good work again." For all lung diseases, coughs, colds, la grippe, asthma croup, whooping cough, hay fever, hemorrhages, hoarseness or quinsy its the best known remedy. Price 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottle free. The pawpaw and picnic season is a thing of the past.

Idle Horses Expensive.

Farmers are not accustomed to count the cost of keeping a few idle horses around for weeks or even months. Many would be surprised to find what a horse's board bill amounts to even on light grain feed, altho it would not be so serious on a farm as in this instance of discarded city horses. There were fifteen aged horses which the city of Chicago no longer needed in the municipal business, so according to law they were advertised for 60 days and the bids then were opened. On a basis of actual cost of feed and care the expense to the city during the two months has been about $300 and if the $20 for advertising, and the cost of the special council meeting to act on the sale and the time of various city employes were figured in the cost of selling these horses would doubtless exceed $400. When the bids were opened the highest offer for the entire lot was just $400. It was a cheap lot of horses but it was no cheap job getting rid of them. —Ex.

Repeal the Tobacco Tax.

The internal tax on tobacco yields 55 millions of dollars. It is under the protection of this internal tax that the Tobacco Trust has been built up. The tax requires certain rules and regulations that would make the manufacture of tobacco on a small scale impossible.

Moreover, the tax requires a vast sum of money to be paid in advance of any sale of the product, are this makes impossible the manufacture of tobacco on any small scale.

The Tobacco Trust has availed itself of this condition, it has monopolized the market, it has driven all but a few independents out of the market, it absorbed altogether the tax imposed during the Spanish-American war, when that tax was repealed. When the tax was put on they added it to the tobacco product. When it was repealed they maintained the prices which brought the whole tax into the coffers of the Tobacco Trust.

Now let the government repeal the tax absolutely. That would be a blow that would utterly demoralize the Tobacco Trust, as a trust. thwart its schemes for reorganizing on new lines with a purpose of maintaining its present ascendency.

Then let the government, if it needs the revenue, which it would not do if reasonable economy were practiced, levy an income tax to take the place of the tobacco tax and that oppression of co-operation and enterprise called by the President an excise tax. It is not an excise tax; it is a penalty paid by the poor for daring to organize co-operation to compete with the rich.—Louisville Post.

Mrs. Louisa Frances Rouse.

Mrs. Louisa Frances Rouse died of tuberculosis, Sept. 20th, 1911, aged 55 years, 4 months and 19 days. After an impressive service conducted by Rev. W. M. McMillan on the 22d, the remains were laid to rest in the Big Bone cemetery, a large concourse of neighbors and friends being present to pay their last tribute of respect. Mrs. Rouse had been a patient sufferer for several years although confined to her bed only a few week's before death. All that loving hands, medical skill and attentive care could do was done, yet God knew best and took her home where she will know no more pain or suffering. All knew Mrs. Rouse as a kind, good neighbor, a loving and indulgent mother. She united with the Big Bone Baptist church in 1900. On the 10th of Feb. 1875, she was married to Mr. Clark Rouse, who departed this life three years ago. She leaves three daughters, Mrs. Lafe Presser, Miss Nellie and Ora Belle Rouse, and two sons, Arch and Harry Rouse, a mother, five sisters and one brother. To these children, who have been bereft of both father and mother we can only offer our deepest sympathy, but commend them in this hour of trial and scrrow to the care and guidance of the father of the fatherless, who alone is able to heal the broken hearted.

The children wish to extend their heartfelt thanks to the neighbors and friends who so kindly and untiringly assisted during the illness and death of their mother. A Friend.

The Tobacco Pool.

Nothing is heard here among tobacco growers, concerning the proposed new pool with a manufactory attached and it is not believed that it will meet with much favor. If Mr. Haggin puts his millions into the plan he will insist on controlling it and it will be controlled in his interest. He cares no more for the growers of Kentucky than Duke, or any of the other millionaires and it looks more like a rival trust than a plan for the relief of the humble grower.—Ex.

At the instance of the Scott County Humane Society a warrant was sworn out against L. Herndon, a prominent farmer on Great Crossings, Monday on the charge of "Cruelty to Animals." The warrant charged that Mr. Herndon in an effort to break a rogish sow from getting into his corn field, had sewed up both eyes of the hog with a needle and thread Mr. Herndon appeared before Judge Bristow Tuesday morning, pleaded to the charge and was fined $10 and costs.—Georgetown News.

In writing to have the address of his paper changed to Birmingham, Alabama, S. L. Webb writes: "Will be glad to see any of you aristocrats as you are passing through to escape the Ice and Snow this winter. We find it pretty warm here yet, and likewise a few Mosquitoes on the side."

In this issue Henry Conner and brother, of Richwood, have a sale of personal property advertised for the 26th inst. Mr. Conner has the California fever and expects to start for that part of the country shortly after he gets his business in a condition to leave.

Joseph Clements has sold his farm west of town to Jas. (Bud) Goodridge. Mr. Clements expects to move to Illinois, near Chicago. Possession to be given Feb. ruary first.

Mrs. Martha Griffith, sister of Attorney James B. Finnell and Dr. R. L. Finnell died at her home in Covington, Tuesday morning.

A Good Deodorizer.

Formaldehyde is being used a great deal at this season for the treatment of seed wheat to prevent smut, but there are many other practical uses to which it may be put that might be of value to our readers. It is a good deodorizer for sinks, drains, vaults and cesspools. Simply pour in a small quantity of a solution containing two pints formaldehyde and five gallons of water.

For cleaning stables, kennels, chicken houses and other outbuildings, a scrubbing with a solution of one pint formaldehyde to three pints of water will do the work very successfully. For scrubbing floors use one pint formaldehyde to two gallons of water. To kill flies mix in a flat saucer nine parts water, one part formaldehyde and a little sugar. Place a sponge in the saucer. Flies will be attracted and upon drinking the solution will immediately die. Remove mixture every few days.

To clean ice box, meat safes, refrigerators and to get rid of foul odors and to make them sweet and clean, wash inside with a solution of one ounce of formaldehyde to two gallons of water.

The air in rooms which have been closed for any length of time and which has become musty can be cleared of the stale smell by hanging up sheets saturated with a solution of one part formaldehyde to five gallons of water. Evaporation will take place and the air be purified.

Formaldehyde is used for disinfecting rooms which have been occupied by sick people. It also aids in relieving colds in the head by placing a teaspoonful of it in a bowl of hot water and inhaling the fumes thro the nostrils.

Local Happenings.

The cider and kraut season is here.

Sunday was a grouchy kind of a day.

The rapid hand with the corn knife is having his day now.

Rye that was sowed in corn fields and not plowed in is coming on nicely.

J. F. Blyth caught a 18-pound string of line bass down on Gunpowder, one day last week.

L. N. Crigler has had a new tin roof put on his hotel building, the Boone House, in Burlington.

The Belleview and Petersburg turnpikes have suffered severely this year because of the heavy rains.

Mrs. Mary Grant, of Bullittsville, will have a sale of personal property next Saturday afternoon, beginning at one o'clock.

The first sales of the 1911 crop of tobacco have been reported from Jessamine county, and the prices ranged from eight to nine cents.

The local creamery is receiving about four thousand pounds of milk a day, which yields something over two hundred pounds of butter.

It has rained every Monday now for several weeks, and when it rains on Monday you may expect rain on at least two more days that week.

Congressman A. B. Rouse has secured a pension for the widow of Rabbi Sucky, of twelve dollars per month and six hundred dollars back pay.

Lost—11 young turkeys, about grown in size. Nine bronze and two gray ones. Will liberally reward any information of them.
J. W. Conner, Union, Ky.

There has been a very considerable increase in the number of pupils attending the Boone Co., High School this fall as compared with the number in attendance during last year.

It is getting to be the season of the year when flues should be inspected. Before starting your fires this fall, examine the condition the flues are in. It may save your house from burning.

"Burning Daylight" is the very interesting story that begins in the Recorder this week. It will interest the reader from start to finish and will run for several weeks. You cannot afford to miss it.

James W. Waters, of Limaburg, was a caller at this office Monday. Mr. Waters has quit raising tobacco and turned his attention to muskmelons and on one acre this year he raised over $400 worth.

David Sanders, colored, held the ticket that called for the plated silverware given away by M. L. Riddell—half dozen knives and forks, half a dozen tablespoons and half a dozen teaspoons. He was considerably elated over his good luck.

Considerable tobacco was cut last Saturday as a result of the nice weather, and the rain that began falling that night was very hard on it. There is seldom a season in which the growers have as much trouble saving their crop as they have experienced this year.

As Thomas Adams, of Constance neighborhood, was going to Cincinnati, last Wednesday, a street car struck his team, breaking the tongue to the wagon and injuring one of the horses so badly that Mr. Adams thinks it will be no more account. Fortunately Mr. Adams was not hurt.

Here is a woman who speaks from personal knowledge and long experience, viz., Mrs. P. H. Brogan, of Wilson, Pa., who says "I know from experience that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is far superior to any other. For croup there is nothing that excels it." For sale by all dealers. X

A nonsectarian Sunday school was organized at the Universalist church, last Sunday afternoon. Prof. E. L. Dix was chosen superintendent and Dr. F. L. Peddicord, assistant superintendent. A Teachers' Training class will be one of the features. The school will meet every Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

County Judge P. E. Cason went to a Cincinnati hospital, last Thursday, to have his side treated. His trouble originated from what was supposed to be a spider bite, which he received about three weeks ago, and since which time his side has been giving him considerable trouble. He was not able to return home to preside in the county court, last Monday.

A horse driven by Mesdames Dudley Rouse and B. B. Hume stumbled and fell as they were coming down the Jerry Beemon hill on the Florence pike, last Saturday afternoon, breaking the harness badly, but, fortunately for the ladies the horse was not frightened by the occurrence and did not act badly. An auto party came upon them and repaired the broken harness sufficiently for them to come on home.

Personal Mention.

Lieutenant Walter H. Lassing is stationed at Cincinnati, where he has charge of the recruiting office for the United States Navy. Lieutenant Lassing has seen a very considerable portion of the world since he graduated from Annapolis, there being very few coast cities of any importance he has not visited.

Missouri, with only one-third of a crop, produced more apples this year than any other state west of the Mississippi River. There are twenty million apple trees in Missouri and plenty of room for a billion or so more. These figures are almost as attractive as the ones prepared by the orchard land agents of the arid Northwest. The only difference is this. The Missouri figures are genuine and the appies are not hand painted. They are the kind you eat.

Table Making Contest.

Needing a couple of rough tables for use at the school house Prof. Dix inaugurated a table building contest which came off one day last week. The boys who entered the contest composed two teams, five pupils to the team. Each team was equipped with a square, a saw, a hammer and nails. The material, sufficient for a table, was placed before each team, and work began at the signal, "go." The tables were to be of substantial construction, and as soon as a team completed its work the captain jumped upon it to announce the fact. The professor held the watch and the work, which was done before all the other pupils who occupied seats in one of the large rooms, was fast and furious and came very near being a dead heat, the winners coming out ahead by only a stroke or two of the hammer, the time being six and one-half minutes. Both tables were well made.

NOTICE.

Ferocious Buzzards.

A press dispatch from Princeton Ind., says: Farmers thru this part of Indiana are complaining of depredations by buzzards something unheard of before, several young pigs have been carried off by them in this and adjoining counties. This is attributed to the health regulations. There is a heavy fine for allowing a dead animal to remain on the surface of the ground, and there is also a fine for killing the buzzard. With scarcely anything to feed upon under present conditions, the buzzards are being literally driven to ferocity by starvation and in some places are becoming a serious menace to barnyards.

Mrs. Henry T. Maret has a pepper tree at her home that has rather an unusual record. G. T. McGee, living about five miles north of this city, brought to town Monday morning two stalks of corn, one with six ears and the other with four ears. Mr. McGee says he has a field checked that will average three stalks to the hill, and that each hill will average sixteen ears of corn to the hill. Now that sounds like corn, but it will take more of a farmer and a better mathematician than we are to calculate how many hundred of bushels of corn it will make to the acre.—Wickliffe Yeoman.

"Seng" has long been one of the most precious herbs grown in this country, but it appears that it will have to take the second place on the market in a short time. Yellow root, a very common plant, which grows abundantly in this section, promises to surpass "seng" this price before the next season. While "seng" was being sold here at five and six dollars a pound, yellow root was ranging fifteen to twenty cents a pound. To-day it is worth $5.50 a pound with a steady upward tendency. Fluid extract of yellow root is selling for something like $4 a pint and will go higher. Yellow root is one of the important ingredients of proprietary medicine and its consumption for the last two or three years has been so great that the market is now unable to fill the demand.—Maysville News.

MILK CANS AS RAT TRAPS

How a Big Catch of Rodents Was Unwittingly Made by Boys at Play.

Talking with a farmer in an Ayrshire coast town the other day, writes a correspondent, he told me among other things of a curious affair that happened at his farm lately. Two or three boys were playing in an outhouse in which were five old disused milk cans. They placed these cans in a row and amused themselves for a time by pitching ears of corn at them to see who could put the most ears in a can. There were ears of corn in each can when the boys stopped playing and left the outhouse. A few days after the farmer himself had occasion to go to the outhouse and was greeted with certain sounds that rather startled him. It was a ceaseless grating and thumping and squealing combined. Going forward to one of the milk cans he looked in and was greatly surprised to see it alive with large rats struggling to get out. Each of the other four cans had also a number of similar occupants. It was not until he had learned of the boys and the corn that he could explain the presence of the rats in the cans. They had jumped into the cans to get the corn, but found it impossible to get out again. How to dispose of the rats was at first a puzzle to the farmer, but he finally hit upon a plan. Covering the cans so that none of the rats could escape, he rolled them to a pond, then, opening the covers just enough to let water run into the can, he filled each one and drowned the rats. When the cans were emptied the least number of rats in each can was found to be nine, while one had 21. There was a total of 79 rats in all. Not a bad bag.

How It's Done in Maine.

Readers of the newspapers will recall that the State of Maine, according to the press reports, went both wet and dry several times at the recent prohibition election. It has remained for a correspondent of the New York Sun to present a most illuminating document explanatory of the diversity and uncertainty of the election returns. According to the Sun's correspondent the following is a literal copy of the third official report made by a town clerk in one of the Maine villages:

"Dear Sir—I am submitting to you my third and, I believe, my final report for the official tabulation. When I telephoned election night that it had gone wet by thirty-two to seven I supposed that I was telling you the truth. I was not there myself, because I was busy at home, but I sent my sister's husband, whose photograph I enclose, if you see fit to publish it, to keep tally and let me know how it went. He was invited over to Hi Chase's house just before the polls closed, and when he got back the polks had gone home. His sakes, Ed Pease how it went and Ed, who is a great joker and once played in a show in Bath for two nights for the benefit of the Grange, said that it had gone 32 to seven, wet, just as I said to you. It went over the 'phone, as before reported.

"I now find that it has gone dry but I don't know by how much, as the figures are not yet available. I have asked everybody that I could find how they voted, and all of them said they voted dry, but I think some of them voted otherwise, and if I were you, under the conditions, I would make the figures, dry twenty, wet six. That makes allowance for Fred Pugsley, who was arrested for ill use of liquor just before the polls opened and who did not get bailed out till afterward, but I have put him down wet, as he was wet and would have voted so if he had a good chance, as he is a disgrace to the town, although his wife is a good woman and sings in the choir practically all of the time.

"If I get anything later I will let you know, but I think this is near enough.

"P. S. Change that vote to twenty wet and six dry, I find that money was spent here, although thus far I have obtained no genuine evidence, but a neighbor tells me the vote was wet, and he thinks there was bribery, as Elbert Hastings has a new pair of pants which cost him not less than two dollars if they cost a cent, and he has a gang that follows him. I will look into the details at once. It is an appalling revelation and I wish that I had gone to the polls. Times are very dull down here ——."

For the information of those who fear the coal supply of Kentucky may be exhausted soon we would say that the mining of coal has been going on for generations and up to the close of 1910, one ton out of every four hundred which is estimated to be in the state, had been marketed.

When you have a bad cold you want the best medicine obtainable so as to cure it with as little delay as possible. Here is a druggists opinion: "I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for fifteen years," says Enos Lollar of Saratoga, Ind., "and consider it the best on the market." For sale by all dealers. X

Compulsory Education.

The question of how to force people to send their children to school regularly and of the advisability of a compulsory law in our state is being agitated now, as never before. Some put forth the argument that facilities are so poor in a great number of places and that accommodations are too meager to meet the demands of the present school attendance and that buildings are now over crowded and teachers are over worked. While this is true to a large extent and the obstacles are many, as soon as public sentiment is thoroughly aroused and the people generally awaken to the situation there will be a material improvement in school buildings, school equipment and consequently in school attendance. A large per cent. of children of school age in our own county and town have never been enrolled and in many cases do not attend school a single day during the term. A new school building and a compulsory law would add much to the betterment of conditions in our midst and we earnestly hope the day is not far distant when we shall have both.—Warsaw Leader.

The Boy Who Wins.

Can you picture out in your own mind the boy who wins? He does not always belong to the rich class, but to the class who maps out a course in life and sticks to it. The boy who goes in with a determination, overcoming the obstacles that cross his pathway gains experience from his labors, gathers momentum, and in the end becomes a power. The boy who wins is not the one who is fed from a silver spoon, who is too good to work and do the chores, etc., the poor boy must do to get through. It is said that, "It is the rough sea that makes the skillful mariner." The boy who succeeds loves to do things. He hardens his muscles and trains his mind by effort. His work develops the body and a strong body helps to make a vigorous mind.

Pigs In Clover.

Pigs in clover means rules by which they are grown most successfully, and it is always in order and in season to consider such matters in laying the foundations for the future. Both clover and bluegrass grazing are succulent foods going along with the concentrates in successful hog feeding, as they promote the vigor and health essential in rapid growth. They are also strongly protein in quality, and as another has said, from weaning to six month's old, protein is the important element in the ration. Corn is nine tenths carbohydrates, oats contain more protein than corn, but hardly enough to meet the requirements of growing pigs. Rye is richer in protein than oats but as a pig feed barley excels all the above and is a sure crop in many localities where corn rarely matures. Clover and alfalfa are highly nitrogenous, but too bulky to suit the needs of young pigs. Cow peas, soy beans and Canadian field peas are well suited for pork growing where they can be grown. Various localities can produce feeds that may be used advantageously to balance up the ration. Linseed oil meal, wheat middlings and tank age all have their place in economical pig feeding, which must be regulated by the variety of farm-grown feeds at hand and the prices of these supplemental feeds in nearby markets.—Ex.

Saved His Mother's Life.

The dog crop of Kentucky remains on the average. There were 143,688 dogs reported to State Auditor James in 1911. This report means that after all the sheep that have been killed or died for want being killed are paid for there remains about $50,000 to go into the public school fund.

Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator Bowls

Which Kind for You?

All other separators have heavy, hard to wash, complicated "bucket bowls." The disks in the full dish pan are all from one common "bucket bowl" and are just a sample of the trouble and work of washing "bucket bowls" as compared to washing the Dairy Tubular. Think of washing these disks twice a day. Imagine the chance rust and hard knocks have at such a complicated machine.

Milk skimmed with a Sharples Dairy Tubular Cream Separator is skimmed right—it is the cleanest skimming, quickest skimming, lightest running, longest lived separator built. Bring your wife to see it---inside and outside---and learn how it may double your butter money. The helpful dairy book, "Business Dairying," is yours for the asking.

had made a strike on Moosehide), all three of whom were not dancing because there were not girls enough to go around, inclined to the suggestion. They were looking for a fifth man when Burning Daylight emerged from the rear room, the Virgin on his arm, the train of dancers in his wake. In response to the hail of the poker-players, he came over to their table in the corner.

"Want to sit in," said Campbell. "How's your luck?"

"I sure got it tonight," Burning Daylight answered with enthusiasm, and at the same time felt the Virgin press his arm warningly. She wanted him for the dancing. "I sure got my luck with me, but I'd sooner dance. I ain't hankerin' to take the money away from you-all."

Nobody urged. They took his refusal as final, and the Virgin was pressing his arm to turn him away in pursuit of the supper-seekers, when he experienced a change of heart. It was not that he did not want to dance, nor that he wanted to hurt her; but that insistent pressure on his arm put his free man-nature in revolt. The thought in his mind was that he did not want any woman running him. Himself a favorite with women, nevertheless they did not balk big with him. They were toys, playthings, part of the relaxation from the bigger game of life. He met women along with the whisky and gambling, and from observation he had found that it was far easier to break away from the drink and the cards than from a woman once the man was properly entangled. He resisted the pull on his arm by the mere negative mass of him, and said:

"I sort of feel a hankering to give you-all a flutter."

Tact and sympathy strove with him, and he smiled with his eyes into the Virgin's eyes as he said:

"You-all go and get some grub. I ain't hungry. And we'll dance some more by and by. The night's young yet. Go it, old girl."

He released his arm and thrust her playfully on the shoulder, at the same time turning to the poker players.

"Take off the limit and I'll go you-all."

"Limit's the roof," said Jack Kearns.

Once started, it was a quiet game, with little or no conversation, though all about the players the place was a-roar. Elam Harnish had ignited the spark. More and more miners dropped in to the Tivoli and remained. When Burning Daylight went on the tear, no man cared to miss it. The dancing floor was full. The luck at the table varied monotonously, no big hands being out. As a result, high play went on with small hands, though no play lasted long. But at three in the morning the big combination of hands arrived. It was the moment of moments that men wait weeks for in a poker game. The news of it tingled over the Tivoli. The onlookers became quiet. The men farther away ceased talking and moved over to the table. The players deserted the other games, and the dancing-floor was forsaken, so that all stood at last, fivescore and more in a compact and silent group, around the poker table. The high betting went on, with the draw not in sight. Kearns had dealt, and French Louis had opened the pot with one marker—in his case one hundred dollars. Campbell had merely "seen" it, but Elam Harnish, coming next, had tossed in five hundred dollars, with the remark to MacDonald that he was letting him in easy. MacDonald glancing again at his hand, put in a thousand in markers. Kearns, debating a long time over his hand, finally "saw." It then cost French Louis nine hundred to remain in the game, which he contributed after a similar debate. It cost Campbell likewise nine hundred to remain and draw cards, but to the surprise of all he saw the nine hundred and raised another thousand.

"You-all are on the grade at last," Harnish remarked, as he saw the fifteen hundred and raised a thousand in turn. "Helen Breakfast's sure on top this divide, and you-all had best look out for bustin' harness."

"Me for that same lady," accompanied MacDonald's markers for two thousand and for an additional thousand-dollar raise.

"I ain't got no more markers," Kearns remarked plaintively. "We'd best begin I. O. U.'s."

"Glad you're going to stay," was MacDonald's cordial response.

"I ain't stayed yet. I've got a thousand in already. How's it stand now?"

"It'll cost you three thousand for a look in, but nobody will stop you from raising."

"Raise—h—l. You must think I got a pat like yourself." Kearns looked at his hand. "But I'll tell you what I'll do, Mac. I've got a hunch, and I'll just see that three thousand."

He wrote the sum on a slip of paper, signed his name, and consigned it to the center of the table.

French Louis became the focus of all eyes. He fingered his cards nervously for a pace. Then, with a "By Gar! Ah got not one leetle beet hunch," he regretfully tossed his hand into the discards.

The next moment the hundred and odd pairs of eyes shifted to Campbell.

"I won't hump you, Jack," he said, contenting himself with calling the requisite two thousand.

The eyes shifted to Harnish, who scribbled on a piece of paper and shoved it forward.

"I'll just let you-all know this ain't no Sunday school society of philanthropy," he said. "I see you, Jack, and I raise you a thousand. Here's where you-all get action on your pat, Mac."

"Action's what I fatten on, and I lift another thousand," was MacDonald's rejoinder. "Still got some stuck, Jack?"

"I still got that hunch." Kearns fingered his cards a long time. "And I'll play it, but you've got to know how I stand. There's my steamer, the Bella—worth twenty thousand if she's worth an ounce. There's Sixty-Mile with five thousand in stock on the shelves. And you know I got a sawmill coming in. It's at Linderman now, and the scow is building. Am I good?"

"Dig in; you're sure good," was Daylight's answer. "And while we're about it, I may mention casual that I got twenty thousand in Mac's safe, there, and there's twenty thousand more in the ground on Moosehide. You know the ground, Campbell. Is that-all in the dirt?"

"There sure is, Daylight."

"How much does it cost now?" Kearns asked.

"Two thousand to see."

"We'll sure hump you if you-all come in," Daylight warned him.

"It's an almighty good hunch," Kearns said, adding his slip to the growing heap. "I can feel her crawlin' up and down my back."

"We'll Dance Some More By and By. The Night's Young Yet."

"I ain't got a hunch, but I got a tolerable good hand," Campbell announced, as he slid in his slip; "but it's not a raising hand."

"Mine is," Daylight paused and wrote. "I see that thousand and raise her the same old thousand."

The Virgin, standing behind him, then did what a man's best friend was not privileged to do. Reaching over Daylight's shoulder, she picked up his hand and read it, at the same time shielding the faces of the cards close to his chest. What she saw were three queens and a pair of eights, but nobody guessed what she saw. Every player's eyes were on her face as she scanned the cards, but no sign did she give. She laid the hand face down again on the table and slowly the lingering eyes withdrew from her, having learned nothing.

MacDonald smiled benevolently. "I see you, Daylight, and I hump this time for two thousand. How's that hunch, Jack?"

"Still a-crawling, Mac. You got me now, but that hunch is a rip-snorter persuadin' sort of a critter, and it's my plain duty to ride it. I call for three thousand. And I got another hunch; Daylight's going to call, too."

"He sure is," Daylight agreed, after Campbell had thrown up his hand. "He knows when he's up against it, and he plays accordin'. I see that two thousand, and then I'll see the draw."

In a dead silence, save for the low voices of the three players, the draw was made. Thirty-four thousand dollars were already in the pot, and the play possibly not half over. To the Virgin's amazement, Daylight held up his three queens, discarding his eights and calling for two cards. And this time not even she dared look at what he had drawn. She knew her limit of control. Nor did he look. The two new cards lay face down on the table where they had been dealt to him.

"Got enough," was the reply.

"You can draw if you want to, you know," Kearns warned him.

"Nope; this'll do me."

Kearns himself drew two cards, but did not look at them. Still Harnish let his cards lie.

"I never bet in the teeth of a pat hand," he said slowly, looking at the saloon keeper. "You-all start her rolling, Mac."

MacDonald counted his cards carefully, to make doubly sure it was not a foul hand, wrote a sum on a paper slip, and slid it into the pot, with the simple utterance:

"Five thousand."

Kearns, with every eye upon him, looked at his two-card draw, counted the other three to dispel any doubt of holding more than five cards, and wrote on a betting slip.

"I see you, Mac," he said, "and I raise her a little thousand just so as to keep Daylight out."

The concentrated gaze shifted to Daylight. He likewise examined his draw and counted his five cards.

"I see that six thousand, and I raise her five thousand . . . just to try and keep you out, Jack."

"And I raise you five thousand just to lend a hand at keeping Jack out," MacDonald said in turn.

His voice was slightly husky and strained, and a nervous twitch in the corner of his mouth followed speech.

Kearns was pale, and those who looked on noted that his hand trembled as he wrote his slip. But his voice was unchanged.

"I lift her along for five thousand," he said.

Daylight was now in the center. The kerosene lamps above flung high lights from the rash of sweat on his forehead. The bronze of his cheeks was darkened by the secession of blood. His black eyes glittered and his nostrils were distended and eager. They were large nostrils, tokening his descent from savage ancestors who had survived by virtue of deep lungs and generous air-passages. Yet, unlike MacDonald, his voice was firm and customary, and, unlike Kearns his hand did not tremble when he wrote.

"I call, for ten thousand," he said. "Not that I'm afraid of you-all, Mac. It's that hunch of Jack's."

"I hump his hunch for five thousand just the same," said MacDonald. "I had the best hand before the draw, and I still guess I got it."

"Maybe this is a case where a hunch after the draw is better'n the hunch before," Kearns remarked; wherefore duty says, 'Lift her, Jack, lift her,' and so I lift her another five thousand."

Daylight leaned back in his chair and gazed up at the kerosene lamps while he computed aloud:

"I was in nine thousand before the draw, and I saw and raised eleven thousand—that makes twenty good for ten more." He leaned forward and looked at Kearns. "So I call er five thousand."

"You can raise if you want," Kearns answered. "Your dogs are good for five thousand in this game."

"Nary dawg. You-all can win my dust and dirt, but nary one of my dawgs. I just call."

The saloon keeper finally spoke:

"If anybody else wins, they'll have to take a mortgage on the Tivoli."

The two other players nodded.

"So I call, too."

MacDonald added his slip for five thousand. Not one of them claimed the pot, and not one of them called the size of his hand. Simultaneously and in silence they faced their cards on the table, while a general tiptoeing and craning of necks took place among the onlookers. Daylight showed four queens and an ace; MacDonald four jacks and an ace, and Kearns four kings and a trey. Kearns reached forward with an encircling movement of his arm and drew the pot in to him, his arm shaking as he did so. Daylight picked the ace from his hand and tossed it over alongside MacDonald's ace, saying:

"That's what cheered me along, Mac. I knowed it was only kings that could beat me, and he had them.

"What did you-all have?" he asked, all interest, turning to Campbell.

"Straight flush of four, open at both ends—a good drawing hand."

"You bet! You could a' made a straight, a straight flush or a flush out of it."

"That's what I thought," Campbell said, sadly. "It cost me six thousand before I quit."

"I wisht you-all'd drawn," Daylight laughed. "Then I wouldn't a' caught that fourth queen. Now I've got to take Billy Rawlins' mail contract and mush for Dyea. What's the size of the killing, Jack?"

Kearns attempted to count the pot, but was too excited. Daylight drew it across to him, with firm fingers separating and stacking the markers and I. O. U.'s and with clear brain adding the sum.

"One hundred and twenty-seven thousand," he announced. "You-all can sell out now, Jack, and head for home."

The winner smiled and nodded, but seemed incapable of speech.

"Name your snake-juice, you-all—the winner pays!" Daylight called out loudly to all about him, at the same time rising from his chair and catching the Virgin by the arm. "Come on for a reel, you-all dancers. The night's young yet, and it's Helen Breakfast and the mail contract for me in the morning. Here, you-all Rawlins, you—I hereby do take over that same contract, and I start for salt water at nine a. m.—savvee? Come on, you-all! Where's that fiddler?"

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cram have moved from Williamstown to the Mrs. Julia West farm near Walton which he recently purchased. We gladly welcome such good citizens to our community.

Mrs. A. N. Slaughter of Harrisburg, Owen county, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Stautner, and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Ruble of Lynchburg, Ohio, were visitors here last week, making a tour thru Kentucky in their automobile.

Miss Eulla Campbell and Miss Orlando Wells, of Morristown, Tennessee, visited Miss Campbells cousin, Mrs. S. W. Beverly, last Thursday, and left Friday morning for Chicago, where they go to attend the Moody Bible Training School.

The meeting of the Baptist church held last week at the Jones' school house by Rev. H. C. Wayman resulted in two accessions to the church, Mrs. Ben. Hume and Miss Linda Bush. An effort will be made to establish a Sunday school at that place.

Dr. C. C. Metcalfe purchased the cottage near the postoffice from A. M. Edwards and moved to the property last week from the property recently purchased by the Baptist church for a parsonage and to which Rev. H. C. Wayman and family have moved.

Wm. McDaniel, a young man employed on the work train on the Q. and C. Railroad, was accidentally knocked off the train near Walton last Friday and sustained a badly broken arm. Dr. B. K. Menefee and Dr. G. C. Rankin rendered the necessary surgical aid to the unfortunate man, and he is now recovering. Mr. McDaniel resides at Walton.

Mr. and Mrs. Rivolette DeMoisey lost their infant daughter last Thursday from a sudden attack of gastritis. The little one was ill only a couple of days, and was about six months old. The funeral took place Saturday from the Baptist church, Rev. H. C. Wayman conducting the services. The sympathy of many friends is tendered the bereaved parents in their sorrowful affliction.

Judge Edward C. O'Rear, Republican candidate for Governor of Kentucky, will address the people at Walton next Friday, October 6th, at two o'clock p. m. This will be about the only address made by a prominent speaker at Walton during the present campaign, and as Judge O'Rear is a speaker of unusual merit a large attendance is expected especially as he is discussing issues that concern all of the people.

This season has been productive of some unusual agricultural products and some of our farmers are displaying evidences of the fertility of their farms. Jno. L. Vest has a fifty-eight pound pumpkin on exhibition at R. W. Jones' drug store as the product of his farm, and Chas. L. Griffith has a mammoth ear of corn containing over twelve hundred grains as a sample of his corn crop, while Joseph Glinn has a similar ear of corn representing the fine crop he is gathering.

Dr. M. J. Crouch and Hon. J. W. Kennedy of Union, were here last week enroute to Ghent to hold a meeting relative to the building of the traction railroad line to be built from Covington to Carrollton via Big Bone Springs. The enterprise has received great encouragement and it is believed the road will be built. It is proposed to build the road if $250,000 can be raised along the route and Covington parties propose to subscribe $150,000 if the outlying district will raise the balance of $100,000, which is believed can be accomplished.

The Walton School Improvement League will have an old fashion-League will have an old fashion-Oct. 13th, at the school chapel. The old blue back spellers will be used. Admission 10 cents. Captains will be chosen. There will be good music and refreshments served, and a good time generally is anticipated. The proceeds will be used in buying some needed supplies for the school. The school children will begin next week to collect a car load of rags and scrap iron, etc., to be sold and the proceeds to be used for school improvement.

The sale of the personal property of the estate of C. E. Lipscomb, deceased, was held at the Lipscomb farm last Saturday and was largely attended. The proceeds of the sale amounted to about $1,200, but did not include the crop, some horses, wagons, etc., which will be sold later when the crop is gathered. J. D. Doubman cried the sale and Chas. L. Griffith superintended its management. The ladies of the Walton Baptist church served dinner and realized about $40 from the occasion. The sale began at 10 o'clock in the morning and lasted until five o'clock in the afternoon.

Rev. Wm. McC. Miller who with his family moved from near Richwood to Ingleside, Georgia, writes that he is well pleased with his new location. He says cotton is being marketed rapidly at the large factories there, though the price is low. His daughter is attending the Agnes Scott College where four hundred students are attending, his eldest son is at the John Hopkins College, and Wm. Miller, Jr., is at the Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Virginia. Real estate is high at Ingleside and steadily advancing; money is in active demand at 7 and eight per cent interest on best security. Rev. Miller sends his kindest regards to all of his friends in Boone county.

If I live until next Saturday, the 14th inst., I will have passed the 64th mile stone in life, and have scribbled for the Boone County Recorder since 1875. I hope to present its editor with many more items of interest before I leave the shores of this life to take up my abode in the great beyond. I hope my labors have not proved unfruitful.

DELIGHTFUL MUSICALE

Enjoyed By the Citizens of the Lovely Village of Petersburg.

Our lovely village in its rich fulness of autumn beauty, was the scene of a delightful musical entertainment, last Saturday night in Krutz's Hall by the Orpheus Orchestra, of Cincinnati, in which an unusual interest was felt by many who had met several of the young men composing the orchestra during a vacation spent by them, last summer on Stephens Bros. farm. These young men are musical geniuses possessed of trained skill of the highest style in the art of music. Mr. W. Goodwin is the teacher of instrumental music in the College of Music, Cincinnati; Mr. Jacob Steinboenig the conductor, is the leader of the orchestra in the college. He is an accomplished violinist and his execution is so artistic that those who hear him cannot fail to note its beauty and precision. His touch was so delicate and he handled his bow with such skill and technique that the music appeared to steal quietly into the hearts of his hearers and he held them spell-bound. The same can be said of Messrs. Goodwin, H. Fauhle and A. Steinkenig, who assisted him in the string quartet. Their rendering of Padewewki's minuet was the occasion for long, continued applause and they were obliged to respond to the hearty encore of their eager hearers. Not being personally acquainted with all of the young men, I can only mention those whose names appeared on the program. Sixteen young men compose the orchestra and the rendering of their several parts was in perfect harmony. The singing of Mr. Ray Myer was so heartily appreciated by the audience that he was recalled the third time Mr. Gilbert Rickle, on the cornet, so pleased the audience, that he, too, responded the third time to the outburst of applause. I feel safe in affirming that the entertainment was a grand success, the audience large and appreciative, the receipts ample to meet the expenses, which was all that the young men wished. They will receive a hearty welcome any time they may return. G. C. G.

DEVON.

Robert Robinson and family will move to the farm recently purchased of Mr. Peitz, who will go to the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Afterkirk are receiving congratulations upon the advent of a son, Frank Senour, at their home.

Mr. Henry Peitz's sale, Saturday afternoon, was largely attended and everything sold brought good prices. We are sorry to have Mr. Peitz and family leave us, but he prefers base ball to farming.

An event of much interest to the young folks, last Wednesday evening, was the surprise they gave Eli Rice on his 21st (?) birth day. About 70 relatives and friends gathered at his home and enjoyed a delightful time. Eli's sisters, Mrs. Conner, Mrs. Grubbs and Mrs. W. A. Rice, served refreshments of fruits, ice cream and cakes, and they were untiring in their efforts to make all present have a good time. The evening was spent in conversation, and games and music. At twelve o'clock the guests retired to their homes after wishing Eli many happy returns of the day.

Absent Voting in Australia.

The Australian commonwealth, like the United States, is divided into states, with election sub-districts. By one method for absent voting the elector is permitted to cast his ballot at any polling place within the state or district for which he is registered on making a simple declaration that his name is enrolled on the records of one of the polling places within that state or district.

The second method of absent voting is by mail. An elector who has reason to believe that during the polling hours of an impending election day he will not be nearer than five miles to the polling place at which he is registered, on application may receive a postal vote certificate and a postal ballot. With these he may at any time on election day present himself before any government officer or employee at any place in the commonwealth and in his presence mark the ballot. He will then deliver the marked ballot to the government officer or employee, having first put it in a sealed envelope and the latter will mail it to the electoral officials of the district for which the voter is enrolled. The ballot so sent will be counted when received by the electoral officials in the same manner as if it had been regularly and personally cast at the polling place.

Both Parties Satisfied.

Louisville, Oct. 7—The registration of voters which took place thruout Kentucky this week was of much interest to the politicians who usually, in making their calculations, depend on the figures shown as to what will happen in the succeeding election. Now that registration is over both Chairman Van Zant, of the Democratic committee, and Chairman Langley of the Republican committee, are out in statements expressing gratification over the result. In Louisville the Democrats held their own and they lead the Republican and Independent vote combined by over 1,500. On the other hand, however, the Republicans claim to have made big gains out in the state. Recent elections have proved that too much importance cannot be attached to the registration returns as the election day results often are so much at variance with the registration day figures.

Glorious Climate of Indiana.

Speaking of climate, no part of the world has anything on old Indiana at this season of the year—and October in the middle west is finer than anything Colorado or California have to offer. Indiana's wealth of deciduous trees makes the Hoosier landscape in autumn as beautiful as most any effect Nature is capable of producing. The late summer rains have made the fields vividly green and above this carpet the flames of yellow and red are kindling in the forests. The man who leaves Indiana before the first of November is missing the finest climate and the most charming landscape that are anywhere to be experienced.—Rising Sun Recorder.

Bank Cashier Robbed.

Elizabethtown October 7.—Paul Kimball, cashier of the Farmers National Bank at Hogenville, LaRue County, was held up and robbed last night between this city and Hogenville. He was found on the roadside this morning in an unconscious condition, with an ugly wound on the side of his head. He left the home of John Goodwin, a farmer of Tonieville, last night about 11 o'clock and was found about eight o'clock this morning. A valuable gold watch and a diamond pin were taken by the robbers, but it is not known how much money was obtained. He has not regained consciousness. There is no clew to the robbers.

Mrs. Eliza Dye, aged 56, died at her home near Taylorsport, Ky., Tuesday of stomach trouble. A husband and two grown children survive her. Interment will be in the Wilson family burying ground.

Are you reading the story that is running in the Recorder? If not you ought to read it. It is a good one.

Yesterday was the finest day of this month.

Come out and see the game of ball next Saturday afternoon.

A CARD.

To the readers of the Boone County Recorder:

As manager of the Hebron base ball club, I wish to state the particulars concerning the series of games that we were to play with the Burlington club.

When I accepted the challenge of the Burlington manager, he agreed to play his regular team. When the first game was called we found in his line-up one player from Blue Grass League and one from Erlanger and the same thing on return game at Hebron.

I then went to the manager to make arrangements for the 3rd game and offered him fifty per-cent of the gate receipts if he would come to Hebron; but he would not agree to that, but offered me one-third to come to Burlington — would not agree to come to Hebron again under any consideration.

I will play the regular Burlington team on any neutral grounds, the winnera to take the gate receipts. I will play my regular team. HUEY AYLOR, Manager H. B. B. C.

In reply to the above card I desire to say that Mr. Aylor is in no position to complain about failure to keep agreements, as he and I had a perfect agreement as to the time and place to play the next game one afternoon and the next morning I was notified by telephone that he had backed down.

As to playing for the gate receipts I will say to Mr. Aylor that as manager of the Burlington team I never have nor never will accept a gambling proposition. If I can't play ball legitimately I will not play.

Oh, Huey, Huey, you only want some cheap advertising.

HERBERT KIRKPATRICK, Manager B. B. B. C.

Mr. Kirkpatrick was shown Mr. Aylor's card and he handed in the above reply thereto and there will be no further controversy over the matter in the Recorder. —ED.

The Ft. Thomas base ball team will be in Burlington next Saturday afternoon to play the local team. Game called at 3:30 o'clock.

TEACHERS ASSOCIATION.

The Boone County Teachers Association in Division No. 1 was held at Belleview, Saturday afternoon, October 7th. The teachers present were:

Anna Hudson,
Jane Hance,
Anna Cleek,
Willela Hance,
Hannah Hearne,
Profs. E. L. Dix and Omer Dix.
Supt. Riley called the meeting to order.

The devotional exercises and welcome address were delivered by Rev. Pilow, pastor of Hughes Chapel. Supt. Riley responded, thanking the patrons present for their interest in the advancement of education.

Prof. E. L. Dix gave an excellent talk on "Vocational Training in the Rural Schools," in which he said that vocational education means training that will prepare a child for some vocation, and since most boys and girls in our schools will be farmers and farmers' wives, more agriculture and domestic science should be taught.

L. H. Voshell, Ex-Supt., and for thirty years a teacher in Boone county schools, made some interesting remarks on the progress of education in this county.

"The Proper Use of Incentives," was ably discussed by Miss Anna Cleek, who gave some well outlined and practical plans for securing and holding the attention of pupils.

The subject, "Parent's Duty as a Patron of the Schools," Supt. Riley, might have been profitably listened to by every parent in the county interested in the public school. The need of parental cooperation with teacher was strongly emphasized.

Suggestions for the organization of a Reading Circle and Traveling Library were offered, and will be discussed at the next meeting. Adjournment.

Hannah Hearne, Secty.

The tobacco crop for 1911, as compared with former years, while smaller than the abnormal ones of 1909 and 1910, is the largest since 1893. The planting conditions were bad early in the season, as the ground was hot and baked, but the rainy weather later was favorable, and brought the crop around better than the experts expected.

On Friday night a crippled man walking with the support of a cane ran across several persons on the streets to whom he handed a small card which told of how he had been injured while at work. The little card asked for alms. It seems as though he met several who went down in their pockets and gave him money to send home to his wife and children, for he was seen on the streets Saturday afternoon badly under the influence of liquor. Later in the afternoon he fell into the hands of the officers, who took care in showing him the gates of the city and bidding him farewell.—Maysville Independent.

We learn there has been some discussion as to changing the name of our town from Midway to something else. It is argued there are so many Midways in the country that it would be better to have another name instead of a name that is so common. The Clipper is most emphatically opposed to any such change in the nomenclature. You may say that a rose would smell as sweet under any other name but this town would not be the same to us under any other name. Now we don't blame the people of Dry Ridge or Fool's Hollow, or Turkey Foot for wishing another name for their towns. But pray tell us what objection has been found to Midway?—Midway Clipper.

Mr. F. M. Rush, residing on the Nashville pike, had a narrow escape on Friday as he was coming into the city. He was driving past the home of Mr. Morgan Hughes, and had just driven out from under a historic old elm tree when a sudden gust of wind separated the limbs and blew the largest portion of the tree down leaving the splintered trunk only to tell the story of ante-bellum days, for the tree is said to be a hundred years old, and is the one under which Gen. Jackson camped when he was reconnoitering in this part of the country. The property was owned by the late Mr. Euclid Covington, uncle of Maj. Wells Covington, and there is a story told that the loyal old gentleman prized and protected the tree during his lifetime for its historic value, and stated in his will that his descendants should always spare that tree.—Bowling Green Messenger.

When the Providence branch road was built, more than a quarter of a century ago, he was the first engineer on the road, and he has been holding the same job ever since he made his frist run, when the road was opened for traffic. During this whole time he has never had a wreck that amounted to much. A few times there have been little troubles, but no accident that occasioned the loss of life or limb. He has also the distinction of having served all these years and has never yet received a scratch while in service.—Madisonville Hustler.

Select Seed Corn from Field.

There are very few stockmen and poultrymen who are not willing to use every practical means of improving their herd or flock by introducing better blooded stock and breeding up to a standard. As a general rule, however, not as much attention is paid to breeding up the farm crops although work along this line will show improvement in less time and at less expense but with as gratifying results as work in improving the herd or flock.

The seed corn that is to be used on any one place should be produced and bred upon or near that place. Those who send away for fancy seed corn are usually disappointed with the first crop or two. Corn becomes adapted to a soil and climate and for this reason it should be grown in the same locality for a number of years. For this reason every farmer should try to produce his own seed and improve it from year to year. It may be advisable at times to get a new start with seed grown elsewhere or with a new variety but when this is done every effort should be made to improve the future crops by seed selection. Many corn growers select seed from the crib in the spring when it is impossible to know anything about the conditions under which it grew. The whole plant and not simply the ear, should be taken into consideration in the selection. Prof. Roberts, of the Kentucky station, says in this connection:

"The reasonable way, then, is to go into the field when the corn is coming into maturity and select good ears or well developed stalks of the same maturity. The stalk should be of medium height, stock and vigorous, bearing the ear about four feet of the ground, with a good shank that gives the ear just enough drop to protect it from the rain. Select for two or three stalks in a hill, according as you expect to grow two or three in a hill. An ear that is good with one stalk in a hill might have been poor in competition with other stalks in the hill. See that there are no nubbin or barren stalks close to the selected plants as they are generally from weak seed, and the selected ear will have been cross fertilized by them. Mark the ears selected by tying a tag to them, and allow them to mature thoroughly. Gather as soon as mature, husk and hang up in a dry, well ventilated place where there will be no injury by mice. A very good way to hang corn is to string it up so that the ears do not touch each other, very much as boys hang up their popcorn. Select at least twice as many ears as will be needed for seed since many will have to be discarded as not coming up to the desired type. These points cannot be determined in the field."

All corn does not mature at the same time. There may be perhaps two weeks between the first matured and the last. In selecting seed from the field this point may be kept in mind and seed selected from early maturing stalks.

According to the Miss. Press Bulletin: "Freshly gathered seed corn should not be left in piles in a warm room, or on the floor. It will either sprout, mold or do both. Always store seed corn, where there is a good circulation of air, so it will dry out quickly. Never leave it in boxes in piles, on the porch or in the barn. It should be taken care of at once.

There are only three necessary conditions for storing seed corn; and, if these are followed, one may be reasonably sure that ninety-five per cent or more of his corn will germinate, provided it was properly matured. First, there must be a good circulation of air about each ear, to carry away the surplus moisture. Second, a temperature must be maintained above freezing, until the seed is thoroughly dry. Third, seed corn must be selected early enough, so that it may have plenty of time to dry before cold weather."

Cutting Down Expenses.

A press dispatch from Lexington says:

"In pursuance of a new system in conducting the Burley Tobacco Society as economically as possible, nearly all of the office force employed at the headquarters of the society here have been discharged. The retrenchment in expenditures includes also the abolition of President LeBus' $15,000 one year salary, and of the salaries paid to the executive committeemen and members of the district board. These officials will be hereafter paid simply for the services they render, and when the movement for the new pool is set on foot an office force only sufficient to transact the necessary business will be employed. There were about twenty persons employed at the headquarters and those who were dismissed were as follows:

Misses Bessie Osborne and Lena Leston, Mason county; Nettie Porter and Pearl Griffith and Lora Rankin, Winchester, all stenographers; Miss Annie Williams, Lexington, telephone operator; John Hall, Dwight Bowden and P. B. Winn, Winchester; Warren Wither spoon, Versailles; Walter Childs, Falmouth; Wm. Board, Paris; Wm. Sandy, Harrison county; George Graves, Louisville; John Nichols, Georgetown; Samuel Ashbrook, Cynthiana; F. Gilmore and Edward Clark, Lexington; J. Leslie Meyers, Vanceburg, and J. Tandy Ellis, Lexington, clerks and bookkeepers.

"J. B. Haggin has arrived at his country home near this city from New York, and it is understood he has come to Kentucky to complete the negotiations with the Burley Society with respect to the new ten-year pool, which provides for the building of a $2,500,000 manufactory, and the manufacture each year of at least one-tenth of all the tobacco pooled.

"The Executive Committee of the Society will meet here this week for a conference with Mr. Haggin, and take the necessary steps to start the campaign for the new ten-year pool. Copies of the new pooling pledge have been printed, and a large number of them will be sent out this week to all the Burley-growing counties of the country. It is expected that the Executive Committee will make arrangements for an active canvass for this pool."

TOBACCO SUIT FILED.

The Burley Tobacco Society is no sooner rid of one suit than it has another on hand. The suit filed at Lexington by certain Scott county men asking for the appointent of a receiver was dismissed, and on the same day another one was filed in the Federal Court at Frankfort by sundry growers and poolers of Brown county, Ohio. They ask for Receivers for the Burley Tobacco Society and the Burley Tobacco Company.

They also ask that the Burley Tobacco Society be enjoined from disposing of any of its property, or any of the books, papers or accounts in its possession.

It is alleged in the petition that the companies are insolvent; that the funds of the company have been misappropriated and wasted in political campaigns by hiring speakers and paying for campaign articles in newspapers. It is alleged that at least $150,000 have been spent in this manner. It also alleges that the officers of the company, and especially the president, have acted in such a manner as to prevent the sale of the crop and are now paying salaries to a number of persons not working for the company. It is also alleged that the company has sold tobacco on the open market which is in direct violation of the pool contract and that if the company is not restrained the remainder of the pooled tobacco will be sold on the open market.

The Care of Milk.

Immediately after milking strain the milk in the can and set in a tub of cold water. Stir the milk with a hardwood paddle, three feet long, for five minutes, or until perfectly cold. Then change the water and leave the can over night, with a thin cloth over the top. Do not strain morning's milk with the night's milk until cooled. Wash the cans with cold or lukewarm water, scald, and put them in the sun to air.

BURNING DAYLIGHT.

casionally leaping upon it and resting. As it through a wall, Daylight had passed from the hum and roar of the Tivoli into another world—a world of silence and immobility. Nothing stirred. The Yukon slept under a coat of ice three feet thick.

The cold snap continued. Only men of iron kept the trail at such low temperatures, and Kama and Daylight were picked men of their races. But Kama knew the other was the better man, and thus, at the start, he was himself foredoomed to defeat. Not that he slackened his effort or willingness by the slightest degree, but that he was beaten by the burden he carried in his mind. His attitude toward Daylight was worshipful. Stoical, taciturn, proud of his physical prowess, he found all these qualities incarnated in his white companion.

CHAPTER III.

At Sixty Mile they restocked provisions, added a few pounds of letters to their load, and held steadily on. From Forty Mile they had unbroken trail, and they could look forward only to unbroken trail clear to Dyea. Daylight stood it magnificently, but the killing pace was beginning to tell on Kama. His pride kept his mouth shut, but the result of the chilling of his lungs in the cold snap could not be concealed. They traveled till ten o'clock the night they reached Selkirk, and at six next morning they plunged ahead into the next stretch of wilderness of nearly five hundred miles that lay between Selkirk and Dyea. There was no letup in his pace. Twelve hours a day, six in the twilight and six in the dark, they toiled on the trail. Three hours were consumed in cooking, repairing harnesses, and making and breaking camp, and the remaining nine hours dogs and men slept as if dead.

The time came when Kama was unable to go in the lead and break trail, and it was proof that he was far gone when he permitted Daylight to toil all day at the heavy snowshoe work. Lake by lake they crossed the string of lakes from Marsh to Linderman, and began the ascent of Chilcoot. By all rights Daylight should have camped below the last pitch of the pass at the dim end of day; but he kept on and over and down to Sheep Camp, while behind him raged a snow storm that would have delayed him twenty-four hours. This last excessive strain broke Kama completely. In the morning he could not travel. At five, when called, he sat up after a struggle, groaned, and sank back again. Daylight did the camp work of both, harnessed the dogs, and, when ready for the start, rolled the helpless Indian in all three sleeping robes and lashed him on top of the sled. The going was good; they were on their last lap; and he raced the dogs down through Dyea canyon and along the hard-packed trail that led to Dyea post. And running still, Kama groaning on top the load, and Daylight leaping at the gee-pole to avoid going under the runners of the flying sled, they arrived at Dyea by the sea. True to his promise, Daylight did not stop. An hour's time saw the sled loaded with the ingoing mail and grub, fresh dogs harnessed and a fresh Indian engaged. Kama never spoke from the time of his arrival till the moment Daylight, ready to depart, stood beside him to say good-by. They shook hands.

"You kill um dat damn Indian," Kama said. "Savvee, Daylight? You kill um."

"He'll sure last as far as Pelly," Daylight grinned.

Kama shook his head doubtfully, and rolled over on his side, turning his back in token of farewell.

* * *

A crowd filled the Tivoli—the old crowd that had seen Daylight depart two months before; for this was the night of the sixtieth day, and opinion was divided as ever as to whether or not he would compass the achievement. At ten o'clock bets were still being made, though the odds rose, bet by bet, against his success. Down in her heart the Virgin believed he had failed, yet she made a bet of twenty ounces with Charley Bates, against forty ounces, that Daylight would arrive before midnight.

The Time Came When Kama Was Unable to Go in the Lead.

She it was who heard the first yelps of the dogs.

"Listen!" she cried. "It's Daylight!"

There was a general stampede for the door; but when the double storm-doors were thrown wide open, the crowd fell back. They heard the eager whining of dogs, the snap of a dog-whip and the voice of Daylight crying encouragement as the weary animals capped all they had done by dragging the sled in over the wooden floor. They came in with a rush, and with them rushed in the frost, a visible vapor of smoking white, through which their heads and backs showed, as they strained in the harness, till they had all the seeming of swimming in a river. Behind them, at the gee-pole, came Daylight, hidden to the knees by the swirling frost through which he appeared to wade. He was the same old Daylight, withal lean and tired-looking, and his black eyes were sparkling and flashing brighter than ever. His parka of cotton drill hooded him like a monk, and fell in straight lines to his knees. Grimed and scorched by camp-smoke and fire, the garment in itself told the story of his trip. A two-months' beard covered his face; and the beard, in turn, was matted with the ice of his breathing through the long seventy-mile run.

He experienced a thrill of surprise as the roar of welcome went up and as every familiar detail of the Tivoli greeted his vision—the long bar and the array of bottles, the gambling games, the big stove, the weigher at the gold-scales, the musicians, the men and women, the Virgin, Celia, and Nellie, Dan MacDonald, Bettles, Billy Rawlins, Olaf Henderson, Doc Watson—all of them. It was just as he had left it, and in all seeming it might well be the very day he had left. The sixty days of incessant travel through the white wilderness suddenly telescoped, and had no existence in time. They were a moment, an incident. He had plunged out and into them through the wall of silence, and back through the wall of silence he had plunged, apparently the next instant, and into the roar and turmoil of the Tivoli.

He drew a deep breath and cried: "The winner pays, and I'm the winner, ain't I? Surge up, you-all Malemutes and Siwashes, and name your poison! There's Your Dyea mail, straight from Salt Water, and no horn-swoggling about it! Cast the lashings adrift, you-all, and wade into it!"

A dozen pairs of hands were at the sled-lashings, when the young Le Barge Indian, bending at the same task, suddenly and limply straightened up. In his eyes was a great surprise. He stared about him wildly, for the thing he was undergoing was new to him. He was profoundly struck by an unguessed limitation. He shook as with a palsy, and he gave at the knees, slowly sinking down to fall suddenly across the sled and to know the stunning blow of darkness across the consciousness.

"Exhaustion," said Daylight. "Take him off and put him to bed, some of you-all. He's sure a good Indian."

A few minutes later, Daylight was whirling around the dance-floor, waltzing with the Virgin. And small wonder it was that the Virgin yielded herself to his arms, as they danced dance after dance, and sick at heart at the knowledge that he found nothing in her more than a good friend and an excellent dancer. Small consolation it was to know that he never loved any woman. She was sick with love of him, and he danced with her as he would dance with any woman, as he would dance with a man who was a good dancer and upon whose arm was tied a handkerchief to conventionalize him into a woman.

At one in the morning he saw Elijah Davis herding Henry Finn and Joe Hines, the lumber-jack, toward the door. Daylight interfered.

"Where are you-all going?" he demanded, attempting to draw them to the bar.

"Bed," Elijah Davis answered.

"Got to," Joe Hines added apologetically. "We're mushing out in the mornin'."

Daylight still detained them.

"Where to? What's the excitement?"

"No excitement," Elijah explained. "We're just a-goin' to play your hunch, an' tackle the Upper Country. Don't you want to come along?"

"I sure do," Daylight affirmed.

But the question had been put in fun, and Elijah ignored the acceptance.

"We're tacklin' the Stewart," he went on. "Al-Mayo told me he seen some likely lookin' bars first time he come down the Stewart, and we're goin' to sample 'em while the river's froze. You listen, Daylight, an' mark my words, the time's comin' when winter diggin's 'll be all the go. There'll be men in them days that'll laugh at our summer scratchin' an' ground-wallerin'."

Elijah laughed, gathered his two partners up, and was making a second attempt to reach the door.

"Hold on," Daylight called. "I sure mean it."

The three men turned back suddenly upon him, in their faces surprise, delight, and incredulity.

"G'wan, you're foolin'," said Finn, the other timber-jack, a quiet, steady, Wisconsin man.

"There's my dawgs and sled," Daylight answered. "That'll make two teams and halve the loads; though we-all 'll have to travel easy for a spell, for them dawgs is sure tired."

The three men were overjoyed, but still a trifle incredulous.

"Now look here," Joe Hines blurted out, "none of your foolin', Daylight. We mean business. Will you come?" Daylight extended his hand and shook.

Know What it Was.

It was a nice little home, built specially to the owner's plans, and had everything up to date, with a few reminders of the good old days. For instance, there was a sun dial placed at the foot of the garden.

On the first sunny day the owner compared his own reliable gold chronometer with Old Sol's timepiece, and found there was a difference of two hours. Obviously the figures on the sun dial had been misplaced. The builder was sent for and arrived.

"Have a look at that sun dial again," said the owner, significantly. "It makes the time 11:00 a. m., and as a matter of fact the correct time is 1:00 p. m."

The builder looked long and earnestly at his handiwork, and then slapped his leg.

"Ah!" he exclaimed, with a proud ring in his voice. "I see wot it is, sir. There's something wrong with the sun."

Mother of Clubs.

The first woman's club in America was organized in New Harmony by the late Mrs. Constance Runcie on September 20, 1855. This was nine years before the organization of the Sorosis Club of New York.

In 1867 Mrs. Runcie formed the Bronte club, and later became the head of an organization which has since that time borne her name and of which she was elected president for life.

At the biennial convention of the Federation of Women's Clubs held in St. Paul five years ago the title of "Mother of Clubs" was conferred upon her, and two years later, at a similar gathering in Boston, she was received with signal honors as the pioneer in the club movement.—The Outlook.

Impressions of Mr. Newrich.

When Mr. Newrich was asked, on his return to Tacoma, what he thought of Italy, he hesitated for several seconds. "I want to speak fair about every country I've been to in my travels," he said, slowly, "and there are points about some parts of that Eyetalian country that I'd like to see copied in Tacoma. I am referring," said Mr. Newrich, letting his slow and heavy gaze rest on one member of his audience after another, "to the natural beauties of the country, you understand. When you come to buildings, the whole of Italy, particularly Rome, has seen her best days, in my opinion, and seen 'em a good while ago, what's more."

Professional Amenities.

"When I am at home I like to lie at my ease."

"Humph! Nobody's ever noticed that peculiarity in you is confined to a home craving."

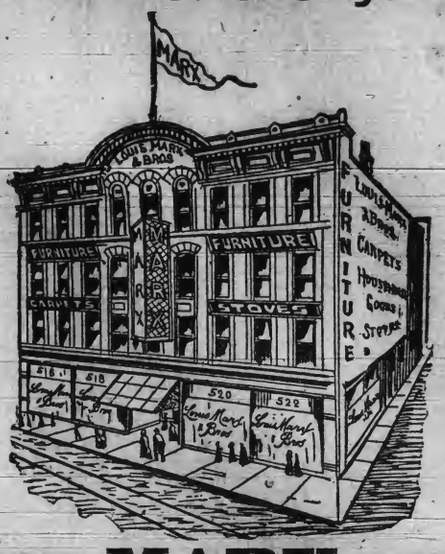
THE COUNTRY NEWSPAPER.

A grouchy subscriber complained to Bert Walker of the Osborne Kansas, Farmer because he would not reduce the price of his paper, said he could get a big daily almost as cheap. This led Mr. Walker to grow sentimental, and he moralized thus:



"Tis a thing of sentiment this little old country newspaper. When perchance disgrace paints the scarlet letter on the family circle, it listens to the pleadings of the broken heart and whispers not of it. When it does you a favor you come in and beg a few extra copies, but when it steps on your toes you drop around to lick the editor. Without your dinky country paper your towns and hamlets would be like the man who threw kisses at a girl in the dark—he knew it, but nobody else did. You might imagine you were alive, but other people would have to buy a railroad ticket and come out and see for themselves. This ends the brief tale of the blooming old thing that isn't worth three cents a week."

Kicked by a Mad Horse.

Samuel Birch, of Beetown, Wis., had a most narrow escape from losing his leg, as no doctor could heal the frightful sore that developed, but at last Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured it completely. More Stout Judges Needed.

Judge Stout, presiding over the Scott County Circuit Court, sent the chairman of the Scott County Democratic Committee, to jail, one day last week, for contempt of court. The grand jury was investigating the charge of fraud committed at the recent State primary election in Georgetown, and it was necessary that the jury have the ballot boxes, &c., in their investigation, and when the chairman of the Democratic county committee was ordered to produce them he failed to do so, and stated in his response that they had been stolen. The chairman being the legal custodian of the ballot boxes, Judge Stout held that he must produce them, adn continued the rule against the chairman several times in order that he might comply with the orders of the court, which he claimed he was unable to do and to jail he went. Judge Stout's action in this matter was in compliance with the law, and his oath as an officer, and should have the endorsement of a unanimous public opinion. A strict enforcement of the laws against corruption and fraud at elections is necessary to stop the tendency to reduce the choosing of nominees and officers, to a farce. If election thieves are permitted to continue their depredations upon the ballot box, thereby setting aside the will of the voters as expressed at the polls, the form of government of which this country boasts, is a farce. The man who steals a ballot is many times a worse criminal than the man who at night enters a residence and steals a purse, but the former has not been pursued by the law and its minions in the past as the latter has, but in the last few years the vote buyers and the ballot thieves have become so bold in their operations that the public demand that a stop be put to their nefarious work can no longer be disregarded. Very few of the worst element of criminals are behind prison walls in this country, but it is evident that with an increase of the number of public officials of the Judge Stout stripe the enlargement of State penal institutions will become necessary for the accommodation of election thieves.

"Marse Henri" Watterson and Judge O'Rear have been at each-other's throats during the past week. "Marse Henri" has been going after the Judge for trying to catch the temperance vote and at the same time having as one of the collectors of his campaign fund the genial distiller, Colonel J. W. McCulloch, of Covington. Marse Henry has also been prodding the Republican gubernatorial nominee for having as his campaign manager in the Fifth District a manufacturer of beer kegs staves. Mr. Watterson has been contending from the start that the Republicans were not sincere on the liquor question The controversy between the distinguished editor and Judge O'Rear has been quite interesting and has attracted state-wide attention.

The officers of Lawrenceburg called up the Sheriff's office here, last Friday night to inform that officer that they had in jail there a negro man who had broken down and confessed to the burning of several houses in Kentucky about Erlanger. Being informed that the Sheriff was not at home they said they would keep the negro several days longer, which will give time to investigate the matter. It is thought the negro is the fire bug who set fire to several houses and barns over in Kenton county two or three weeks ago.

The "oldest printer in Indiana' is dead again, viz: Thos. J. Gray, at Noblesville, aged 75 years, and retired. Rising Sun has a printer nearing his 81st year, and still in the harness. He was apprenticed to learn the business in December, 1844, at Vevay, Ind. —Rising Sun Recorder.

And that printer is the able editor of the Rising Sun Recorder.

There is in Texas a wide belt of artesian wells, drawing their supplies from a depth of 800 feet in many places. Geologists believe that the greatest underground river in the world flows from the Rocky Mountains underneath New Mexico and Texas. Ours is still an undiscovered country. Its discovery was only begun by Columbus in 1492.

Robert L. Westover, editor and publisher of the Grant County News, and Miss Frederika Brown daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. So far October has been dark and gloomy, rain having fallen on a majority of the days, and as a result many of the farmers are feeling rather gloomy because of the damage to corn and tobacco.

Been Here Thirty-Six Years.

With the last issue of the Recorder it began its [illegible] enth year, and the writer of this was the writer of the salutatory contained in the first issue. It was founded by Charles C. Conner and the present owner and publisher. Mr. Conner seeing a broader field of usefulness in the ministry sold his interest to the present owner and began preparing for the pulpit as a Universalist, and in his chosen calling he has made an eniment success being regarded as one of the ablest ministers of his denomination. His association with the Recorder terminated in about two years, since which time the paper has plodded along, giving its patrons its best efforts. It's subscription list at the present time is the largest in its history, and contains the names of many persons, who have been continuous subscribers ever since the appearance of the first number which was half the size of the Recorder of to-day. To these veterans the paper owes what success it has achieved, and for them it will ever entertain the highest esteem even after the present editor has succumbed and gone where all good editors are said to go.

Looking over the original subscription lists is a sad reminder of the many heads of families who have departed this life in Boone county since the Recorder was launched. Brief biographies of them dot the files of the Recorder, scarcely a month has passed in the last thirty-seven years that the death of some good citizen of the county has not been recorded and in nearly every instance it was that of a subscriber of this paper. The deaths of many of those whose births were published in these columns, have been announced, but, in many instances, not until they had become the fathers or mothers of families.

To the publisher of a country newspaper the uncertainty of man's sojourn here is demonstrated every week. He sees the columns of those who have been his most loyal supporters thinned out day by day, but in most instances the vacancies last a short time, and those who fill them soon become as loyal as those who went before.

The dissolution of families by death often brings to the local paper an increase of subscribers, the members of the family having become devoted friends of the paper which had been a regular weekly visitor to their home for a time to which they know not to the contrary. Along that line the Recorder flatters itself that it has been particularly fortunate as the young people who have been its readers while under their parental roof rarely consider their new home complete unless the Recorder is a weekly visitor. In the newspaper business as in everything else future success depends upon the support of those who are the children of to-day, and among the Recorder's list of patrons are hundreds whose silvery locks indicate that they are near life's meridian, but, who, at one time, were to it the children of to-day.

It has at all times been the policy of the Recorder to make no promises as to what it intended to do in the future further than to assure its friends that it will render them the best service possible, and as to how faithfully it has kept that promise is for them, and not it, to say, and that promise it now renews.

The drunkest man seen in Burlington in a long time made his appearance here late last Monday afternoon. He was riding in a buggy and claimed to have come from Aurora, to which place he wanted to return, but went on towards Florence. It was the opinion of those who saw the fellow that he was so drunk that he did not know who he was, where he was from nor where he desired to go.

Horace Johnson, Connecticut's champion weather prophet, says that this is going to be one of the longest and coldest winters that ever cheered the heart of a coal man. Mr. Johnson forecasted the blizzard in 1888, in which Roscoe Conklin lost his life, and several other little things, such as earthquakes, big blows and rainstorms.—Blue-Grass Clipper.

COVINGTON, - KENTUCKY.

This newspaper has taken occasion more than once to express its disapproval of a too prevalent disposition to characterize certain communities in a way to convey the impression of a lack of the finer qualities of citizenship in their composition. In doing this, we believe, we have simply voiced the sentiment of all right-thinking people. Satire, no matter how well intended, or how free from malice, may go so far at times as to do great injustice. We believe that the State of Kentucky has suffered far beyond its deserts in this particular. We also believe that, in common fairness, Kentucky should be released from further satirical attention, especially where it is based upon the existence of certain conditions far removed from the experience, the influence and the lives of the vast majority of its people.

Kentucky is not a lawless state. It is not a feud-ridden state Its people are not reckless and wild. Because of the peculiarity of certain offenses committed in the remote mountain counties, extraordinary newspaper notoriety has been given them. These offenses all put together would not equal either in enormity or in number those committed in many other sections of the country in a single year. They have been offenses characteristic of a certain small element, not of the mass. The moral sense of Kentucky revolts against them to as great a degree as the moral sense of any other part of the nation.

The Louisville Courier-Journal complains that the eastern press seizes upon every opportunity to bring the name of Kentucky into disrepute. This is not altogether true, but there is nevertheless ground for the complaint. It is too much the case, not only in the East but in the West, and in the South as well, that newspapers look beyond their own immediate neighborhoods for objects of satire and, criticism and condemnation. Better results might follow equal attention to affairs nearer home.

Kentucky as a whole, in its political life, in its social life, in its religious life, will bear comparison with any of the sister states. It must be judged, if judged righteously, by its general moral character. So judged we believe it will be privileged to demand better treatment not as a favor, but as a right.—Christian Science Chronicle.

He Relieved Hay Fever.

Dr. Grant, of Sparta, Gallatin county, treated two hay fever patients in Burlington, this fall—C. C. Roberts and this writer. Mr. Roberts took two treatments and this writer one. The hay fever season is now about past, and since being treated by Dr. Grant these two patients have felt slight inconvenience from the hay fever from which they have been severe sufferers for many years. Dr. Grant did not represent to them that he could cure the hay fever but was confident he could give them relief and he surely made good, and should the hay fever recur next fall this writer will certainly call on Dr. Grant for treatment, which, if followed up closely, he believes will cure the disease. Dr. Grant has a very successful treatment for asthma which he says he can cure, and is treating several persons in this county, and, so far as heard from, with success.

A BUSY MAN.

Congressman A. B. Rouse is a pretty busy man, his constituents seeking his aid at all times. Those who hold no office under Uncle Sam want him to help them secure one, while many who are in office want him to have them promoted, and in every instance he gives the applicant a respectable hearing, and renders what assistance he can. In dealing with Uncle Sam there is always a certain amount of red tape performance that has to be gone through before results are obtained and in many instances a Congressman is accused of dereliction when he is pushing matters as rapidly as possible, but no such charge has ever been made against Congressman Rouse who has been particularly fortunate in getting whatever he has gone after since he was installed in office.

They Want to Serve Uncle Sam.

Wanted to Hear O'Rear.

The Recorder's Republican friend G. W. Sandford, who resides out on the East Bend road donned a "biled" shirt and a standing collar, last Thursday afternoon, and came to Burlington expecting to hear Judge O'Rear, Republican candidate for Governor make a speech. When told there was no appointment for the Judge to speak in Burlington, he proceeded to produce a letter from Republican headquarters at Louisville, inviting him to come to Burlington that afternoon to hear the Judge. Several other Republicans in and about Burlington held like invitations, and were somewhat disappointed when they learned somebody had made a mistake in regard to the matter.

A Big Sale.

Sherman Riggs, of Pt. Pleasant neighborhood, came in last Friday, and placed an advertisement of sale of his personal property on the 8th day of November. It will be a considerable sale as Mr. Riggs will dispose of everything in the way of livestock, farm produce, farm implements and household and kitchen furniture. Mr. Riggs is selling out to go to Southern Cala., where he desires to be by the last of next month, the move being necessary on account of his wife's health which he believes will be fully restored by the salubrious climate of that section, and the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Riggs wish for them a full realization of their hopes. The sale advertisement appears in another column.

A County Superintendent in a neighboring county asked every teacher at the County Institute who took their local or county paper to hold up their hand, and only six responded. The Superintendent expressed great surprise and said: "You don't spend a dollar a year with those papers yet you expect them to print free of charge notices of all institutes, insert long programs, expect them to advertise you, thus assisting you to climb the ladder to better positions and better salaries without a cent in return.—Maysville Ledger.

Mrs. Kate Ashburn, who has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. F. A. Hall, left Tuesday for Newport, and after a few days visit with relatives there will leave for San Antonio, Texas, where she expects to spend the winter.

Assessor T. G. Willis is being importuned by many of the tax payers to reduce the valuation of their property from what it was last year, but he cannot see it that way, as with last year's valuation the State Board of Equalization added five per cent, and there is no telling what that board would do for the county if its total valuation should show a decrease this year. He is endeavoring to maintain his last year's valuations, and thus avoid the addition of a larger percent by the powers that be at Frankfort. Mr. Willis is aiming to give every taxpayer a square deal in the listing of their property, and should not be criticised by anyone whose assessment he refuses to take lower than it was taken in 1910.

The beginning of this week found a considerable quantity of tobacco standing in the field, and the growers becoming nervous in fear of the coming of a killing frost. Many persons worked late at night and by lantern light on several occasions the past week cutting tobacco. Owing to the cool, damp weather the weed has ripened slowly, and much of it has been put in the house in an unmatured condition. This has been one of the worst falls ever for handling a growing crop of tobacco.

CHAPTER II.

It was Daylight's night. He was the center and the head of the revel, unquenchably joyous, a contagion of fun. In between dances he paid over to Kearns the twenty thousand in dust and transferred to him his Mooseshide claim. Likewise he arranged the taking over of Billy Rawlins' mail contract, and made his preparations for the start. He dispatched a messenger to ront ont Kama, his dog-driver—a Tananaw Indian, far-wandered from his tribal home in the service of the invading whites. Kama entered the Tivoli, tall, lean, muscular, and furclad, the pick of his barbaric race and barbaric still, unshaken and unabashed by the revelers that rioted about him while Daylight gave his orders.

"Um," said Kama, tabbing his instructions on his fingers. "Get um letters from Rawlins. Load um on sled. Grub for Selkirk—you think um plenty dog-grub stop Selkirk?"

"Plenty dog-grub, Kama."

"Um. Bring sled this place nine um clock. Bring um snowshoes. No bring um tent. Mebbe bring um fly? um little fly?"

"No fly," Daylight answered decisively. We travel light—savvee? We carry plenty letters out, plenty letters back. You are strong man. Plenty cold, plenty travel, all right."

"Sure all right," Kama muttered, with resignation. "Much cold, no care. Um ready nine um clock."

He turned on his moccasined heel and walked ont, imperturbable, sphinxlike, neither giving nor receiving greetings nor looking to right or left. The Virgin led Daylight away into a corner.

"Look here, Daylight," she said in a low voice, "you're busted."

"Higher'n a kite."

"I've eight thousand in Mac's safe —" she began.

But Daylight interrupted. The apron-string loomed near and he shied like an unbroken colt.

"It don't matter," he said. "Busted I came into the world, busted I go out, and I've been busted most of the time since I arrived. Come on; let's waltz."

"Bnt, listen," she urged. "My money's doing nothing. I could lend it to you—a grub-stake," she added, hurriedly, at sight of the alarm in his face.

"Nobody grub-stakes me," was the answer. "I stake myself, and when I make a killing it's sure all mine. No thank you, old girl. Much obliged. I'll get my stake by running the mail out and in." With a sudden well-assumed ebullition of spirits he drew her toward the dancing-floor, and as they swung around and around in a waltz she pondered on the iron heart of the man who held her in his arms and resisted all her wiles.

At six the next morning, scorching with whisky, yet ever himself, he stood at the bar putting every man's hand down. The way of it was that two men faced each other across a corner, their right elbows resting on the bar, their right hands gripped together, while each stove to press the other's hand down. Man after man came against him, bnt no man put his hand down, even Olaf Henderson and French Louis failing despite their hugeness.

"The winner pays!" Daylight cried. "Surge along you-all! This way to the snake-room!"

"I'm busted higher'n a kite, and I'm hittin' the trail for Dyea—"

"Goin' out?" some one called.

A spasm of anger wrought on his face for a flashing instant, but in the next good humor was back again.

"I kony you-all are only pokin' fun asking such a question," he said with a smile. "Of course I ain't going out."

"Take the oath again, Daylight," the same voice cried.

"I anre will. I first come over Chilcoot in '83. I went out over the Pass in a fall blizzard, with a rag of a shirt and a cup of raw flour. I got my grub stake in Juneau that winter, and in the spring I went out over the Pass once more. And once more the fam ine drew me out. Next spring I went in again, and I swore then that I'd never come out till I made my stake Well, I ain't made it, and here I am And I ain't going out now. I get the mail and I come right back. I won't stop the night at Dyea. I'll hit up Chilcoot soon as I change the dogs and get the mail and grub. And so I swear once more. I'll never hit for the Outside till I make my pile. And I tell you-all, here and now, it's got to be an almighty big pile. I'll be real conservative, and put the bottom notch at a million. And for not an ounce less'n that will I go out of the country. I tell you-all I got a bunch. There's a big strike coming on the Yukon, and it's just about due. I don't mean no ornery Mooseside, Birch creek kind of a strike. I mean a real rip-snorter hair-raiser. Nothing can stop her, and she'll come up river. There's where you-all'll track my moccasins in the near future if you-all want to get on early in the country around Stewart river, Indian river and Klondike river. When I get back with the mail, I'll head that way so fast you-all won't see my trail for smoke. She's a-coming, fellows, gold from the grass roots down, a hundred dollars to the pan, and a stampede in from the Outside fifty thousand strong."

"She's a Comin', Fellows, Gold From the Grass Roots Down, a Hundred Dollars to the Pan"

"If I was you, Daylight, I wouldn't mush today," Joe Hines counseled, coming in from consulting the spirit thermometer outside the door. "We're in for a good cold snap. It's sixty-two below now, and still goin' down. Better wait till she breaks."

Daylight laughed, and the old sourdoughs around him laughed.

"It's a thousand miles to Dyea," Bettles announced, climbing on the chair and supporting his swaying body by an arm passed around Daylight's neck. "It's a thousand miles, I'm saying, an' most of the train unbroke, but I bet any chechaquo—anything he wants—that Daylight makes Dyea in thirty days."

"That's an average of over thirty-three miles a day," Doc Watson warned, "and I've traveled some myself. A blizzard on Chilcoot would tie him up for a week."

"Yep," Bettles retorted, "an' Daylight'll do the second thousand back again on end in thirty days more, and I got five thousand dollars that says so, and damn the blizzards."

To emphasize his remarks, he pulled out a gold sack the size of a bologna sausage and thnmped it down on the bar. Doc Watson thnmped his own sack alongside.

"Hold on!" Daylight cried. "Bettles' right, and I want in on this. "I bet five hundred that sixty days from now I pull up at the Tivoli door with the Dyea mail."

A skeptical roar went np, and a dozen men pulled out their sacks.

"Of course he'll make it," Kearns whispered in Bettles' ear. "And there's five hundred Daylight's back in sixty days," he added aloud.

Billy Rawlins closed with the wager, and Bettles hugged Kearns ecstatically.

"By Yupiter, I ban take that bet," Olaf Henderson said, dragging Daylight away from Bettles and Kearns.

"Winner pays!" Daylight shouted, closing the wager. "And I'm sure going to win, and sixty days is a long time between drinks, so I pay now. Name your brand, you hochinoos! Name your brand!"

Somebody opened the outer door. A vague gray light filtered in.

"Burning Daylight, Burning Daylight," some one called warningly.

Daylight paused for nothing, heading for the door and pulling down his ear-flaps. Kama stood outside by the sled, a long, narrow affair, sixteen inches wide and seven and a half feet in length, its slatted bottom raised six inches above the steel-shod runners. On it, lashed with thongs of moose hide, were the light canvas bags that contained the mail, and the food and gear for dogs and men. In front of it, in a single line, lay curled five frost-rimmed dogs. They were huskies, matched in size and color, all unusually large and all gray. From their cruel jaws to their bushy tails they were as like as peas in their likeness to timber wolves. Wolves they were, domesticated, it was true, bnt wolves in appearance and in all their characteristics. On top the sled load, thrust under the lashings and ready for immediate use, were two pairs of snowshoes. Daylight was saying good-by to those who clustered around him. The Virgin wanted to kiss him, and, fuddled slightly though he was with the whisky, he saw his way out without compromising with the apron-string. He kissed the Virgin, but he kissed the other three women with equal partiality. He pulled on his long mittens, roused the dogs to their feet, and took his place at the gee-pole.

"Mush, you beauties!" he cried.

The animals threw their weights against their breastbands on the instant, crouching low to the snow and digging in their claws. They whined eagerly, and before the sled had gone half a dozen lengths both Daylight and Kama (in the rear) were running to keep up. And so, running, man and dogs dipped over the bank and down to the frozen bed of the Yukon, and in the gray light were gone. On the river, where was a packed trail and where snowshoes were unnecessary, the dogs averaged six miles an hour. To keep up with them, the two men were compelled to run. Daylight and Kama relieved each other regularly at the gee-pole, for here was the hard work of steering the flying sled and of keeping in advance of it. The man relieved dropped behind the sled, go-

RAILROAD PROGRESSING.

Promoters Meet With Much Success and Railroad Practically Assured

The promoters of the proposed Covington, Big Bone and Carrollton railroad are hard at work selling stock along the route between Warsaw and Carrollton and are meeting with far greater success than they anticipated, especially is this so in the Ghent neighborhood, where everyone is taking hold with a determination to have the railroad, if a little hard work will pull together, will accomplish it. Warsaw citizens have awakened to the fact that three is "something doing along the line and almost every business man and property owner has or will subscribe for some of the stock. Everyone wants the railroad and it looks as if now we are going to get it this time. The promoters are enthusiastic as to the way their proposition was received here and at Ghent and they say there is no reason why the road cannot be built if this spirit of going after such improvements is maintained. A meeting was held at Vevay Tuesday night but as we go to press we have not been able to get the results. The Vevay Reveille and Democrat had favorable articles in their last issues and word comes from there that the citizens are interested in the project. Meetings will be held at Carrollton this week and it is thought that the necessary amount of stock will be rapidly disposed of and the matter placed before Eastern capitalists soon. If there is any section of the country that needs a railroad worse than the Ohio valley, we do not know where it is and we should not let this opportunity slip through our fingers if we intend to progress as our neighboring states of Ohio and Indiana have done during the past ten years.—Warsaw Leader.

Thus it seems that the traction scheme which for some time was considered dead and its obsequies properly conducted, was only sleeping, and is again creating considerable stir along the proposed route. The scheme has been pushed to the point where its success or failure will soon develop, and as the proposition is up to the people who will profit by the road if built its success or failure lies with them. The people of the country through which it is proposed to construct the road have long suffered from the inconvenience of poor facilities for reaching the markets, and it will now be seen if they will give the traction people sufficient encouragement to induce them to put the road through. They must not conclude that the road will be built without their assistance, and thus defeat it.

Midnight in the Ozarks.

and yet sleepless Hiram Scranton, of Clay City, Ill., coughed and coughed. He was in the mountains on the advice of five doctors, who said he had consumption, but found no help in the climate, and started home. Hearing of Dr. King's New Discovery, he began to use it. "I believed it save my life," he writes "for it made a new man of me, so that I can now do good work again." For all lung diseases, coughs, colds, lagrippe, asthma croup, whooping cough, hay fever, hemorrhages, hoarseness or quinsy its the best known remedy. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Some of the growers worked until nearly midnight on several occasions last week, cutting their tobacco.

Kentucky's Dog Census.

The dog industry in Kentucky is holding its own. The County Assessors report for 1911 a total of 143,688 dogs, and it is reasonably certain that a good many dogs were not at home when the assessors called. Some of them were out killing sheep. Some were visiting on neighbors farms, and some of them, like Brer Rabbit, were "layin' low and not sayin' nothin."

Including the wild dogs which are discovered from time to time by the rural correspondents there must be something like 200,000 canines in Kentucky. Most dogs are hungry three times a day, and then some. It requires a big lot of bread and meat and fresh mutton to satisfy the ravenous appetites of 200,000 dogs. It probably would not cost as much to feed 200,000 sheep, and the average sheep is worth a good deal more in the market than the average dog. Spring lamb sells like hot cakes at 15 cents a pound, and is likely to be goat meat at that, while the spring pups of the ordinary brand are not worth 15 cents a dozen, either dressed or "on the hoof."

There are 119 counties in Kentucky, and accepting the face of the returns, there are more than 1,000 dogs to a county. There is a big economical waste in feeding that number of dogs, to say nothing of paying taxes on them, and the vast majority of them do not earn their board and keep. Many of them not only eat their owner's substance, but on occasions eat up his neighbor or his neighbor's property. There are numerous products of which Kentucky needs more crops and bigger crops, but Kentucky would be better off with fewer dogs and smaller ones. There are some industries which require boosting, but the dog-raising industry is doing well without any extraneous assistance. In fact, it is flourishing and is progressing with a perseverance that would be worth millions to the State if it were exercised in a better cause.—Courier-Journal.

Prominent Minister Dead.

Lexington, Oct. 7.—The Rev. John W. McGarvey, D. D. president of the College of the Bible of Transylvania University, the most prominent teacher of the Christian church in America, and a noted preacher, scholar and author, died suddenly last night at 10:15 o'clock at his home, Fayette Park. He was in his eighty-third year.

Ten days ago Dr. McGarvey was stricken with a congestive chill and was critically ill for several days, but he rallied, and yesterday morning he took a long ride around the city in an automobile with his daughter, Mrs. John A. Stucky.

At seven o'clock last night he became suddenly ill while conversing with members of his family at his home, and sank to death at 10:15 o'clock, retaining consciousness and singing hymns until within a few minutes of his death.

About two years ago Dr. McGarvey's health began to decline but he continued to keep up under a great strain, never giving up preaching a sermon occasionally, attending the large annual convention of the Christian church, and taking a prominent part in the conventions, and also devoting much time to writing books, magazine articles and short religious stories, as well as to his duties at the College of the Bible and to local churches.

Take Your Common Colds Seriously.

Common colds, severe and frequent, lay the foundation of chronic diseased conditions of the nose and throat and may develop into bronchitis, pneumonia, and consumption. For all coughs and colds in children and in grown persons, take Foley's Honey and Tar Compound promptly. For sale at Jones' drug store, Walton, Ky.

SEEING GHOSTS.

A morbid condition of the organ of sense or of the mind, aggravated by a morbid state of the organism as under the influence of drink, opium or delirium, is sufficient to invest our mental conceptions with phantom shape. Our thoughts vary, according to the violence of our emotions, from faint mental pictures to vivid and almost corporal apparitions. The strength of these sensational influences is naturally proportionate to the susceptibility of the nervous organism. A consideration of these facts in conjunction with the acknowledged neuropathic tendencies of genius seems to illumine many of the mysterious anecdotes with which the names of great men and women are associated. The hallucinations of Mahomet and of Joan of Arc, the appearance of his dying wife to Dr. Donne in Paris and Luther's discomfiture of the devil by summary contusion with a missile ink bottle, to mention but few instances, prosaically resolve into cases of abnormal sensibility of the nervous system. Who would learn with surprise that Lucretius, Hawthorne or Emily Bronte saw ghosts? It should rather be an occasion for wonder that genius is ever free from the visitations of specters.

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

Mrs. Effie Graham, of Willard, Ky., says: "I was so weak I could hardly go. I suffered, nearly every month, for 3 years. When I began to take Cardui, my back hurt awfully. I only weighed 99 pounds. Not long after, I weighed 115. Now, I do all my work, and am in good health." Begin taking Cardui, today.

Owen S. Watts, W. Lee Gaines, Benj. B. Allphin and Dr. H. C. Black and Nicholas Sanning spent Monday at Williamstown attending the county court day sales.

Mrs. Sarah E. Holder, of Covington, formerly of Walton, has returned to her home after an extended visit to her sister, Mrs. E. A. Lermond, of Los Angeles.

Dr. Grover C. Rankins, who recently formed a partnership with Dr. B. K. Menefee, is to become a benedict and handsome invitations to the wedding have been issued as follows:

John Fink, the artistic painter, has been on the sick list the past week, but is now able to be about again. He has a lot of big contracts for painting, many being at Erlanger.

Ernest J. Buck returned home last week from Virginia, where he has been employed in the clerical department of the Buck—Snodgrass Lumber Company. They expect to move their plant to West Virginia, where the timber supply is better.

The many friends of Miss Adah Lermond, daughter of Mrs. E. A. Lermond, formerly of Walton, will regret to know that she died at the home of her mother in Los Angeles, Cala., on Oct. 7th, after a lingering illness.

Dr. J. Garfield Slater and Will D. Smith, represented Big Bone Odd-Fellows Lodge and A. Kirtley Johnson the Walton Lodge at the Grand Lodge of Odd-Fellows held in Louisville, Tuesday and Wednesday, and report a large gathering and a fine meeting.

Dr. O. S. Crisler, of Burlington, Dr. Elbert Glacken, of Florence, and Dr. H. C. Black, of this place, attended the State Veterinary Board in Louisville, Friday and Saturday, and report a very instructive meeting. Dr. H. C. Black has been appointed Assistant State Veterinary Surgeon.

Raymond Conley, aged 28 years, died at his home here Oct. 4th, after a lingering illness of consumption. He leaves a wife and a baby six months old. The deceased was the son of John Conley, and was a young man of many good qualities. The funeral took place Saturday from the Walton Baptist church, Rev. T. C. Eaton, of Lexington, conducting the services.

Judge E. C. O'Rear, Republican candidate for Governor, cancelled his engagement at Walton, last Friday, owing to a pressing call for him at the Republican State headquarters in Louisville, and A. J. Blakely, of Frankfort, and C. S. Wilson, Republican candidate for Clerk of the Court of Appeals, came to Walton to fill the engagement. As soon as it was learned that Judge O'Rear would not be here the speaking was called off and the prominent Republicans outside of town were notified by telephone.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvert C. Arthur cordially invite you to be present at the marriage of their daughter to

Mary Louise

on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 14, at half past two.

The card announces that the bridal couple will be at home after Nov. 1st, at Walton, Ky. The ceremony takes place at the bride's home at Mays Lick, Mason County, Ky., where Dr. Rankins formerly resided. Dr. Rankins has made himself very popular here with our people, and we know that his bride will be equally popular, and will be most gladly welcomed to our town.

Monday afternoon an elderly gentleman got off of the L. & N. Railroad train at Walton, and on his way to the hotel became suddenly ill, and fell to the ground in an unconscious condition. Kind hands took the unfortunate man in charge and as it was raining at the time he was taken to the hotel and given every attention. When he regained consciousness he gave his name as Bailey and stated that he was on his way from North Carolina to Paducah, Ky., and had run out of money and got off the train from Cincinnati to await funds. He was a fine looking old gentleman, very neatly dressed, and did not ask for financial aid. Tuesday he left the hotel with the apparent intention of trying to walk to Paducah. It was very sad to see as fine looking old man in such deep distress, but he was very independent, and even refused breakfast at the hotel because he could not pay for it, though it was most generously offered to him.

A. N. Slaughter, of Harrisburg, Owen county, was here last Friday and Saturday buying weanling mules colts. Mr. Slaughter is a member of the Board of Control of the Burley Tobacco Society, and says that he believes that the balance of the tobacco on hand when sold will pay, including the interest in the warehouse receipt, about twenty-five per cent in all, on the pooled tobacco. He says no man could have been more unselfish and devoted to the interests of the pooled tobacco people than President Liebus, who worked from early morn to late at night on the work, and no one deplored the failure of the pool more than the president. He stated that the farmers had everything in their own hands, the unsold tobacco being all under their power and control, and the failure of the pool was due to the farmers alone, who refused to pool and sustain their fellow tobacco growers in their struggle for living prices. If the pool had been ratified all of the tobacco would have been sold by this time at not less than fifteen cents per pound all around.

The hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Jones was the scene of a very happy gathering of relatives and friends on Wednesday, October, 4th, to witness the nuptials of their daughter Miss Jane Jones and Chester L. Stephens, the ceremony taking place that day at 2 o'clock. The large parlor was very tastefully decorated with ferns and autumn leaves in honor of the occasion, and at the appointed hour about fifty guests had assembled to witness the ceremony and to add their God speed to the two beautiful lives being blended into one at the marriage altar. As the bewitching strains from the wedding march from Lohengrin came from the piano under the masterly touch of Prof. A. Limberg, the attendants, Mr. Wilton Adams, of Union, and Miss Lutie Miller of Walton, gracefully entered the parlor followed by the contracting couple who took their position in front of the officiating minister, Rev. Pilow, of the M. E. church, who in a beautiful and lengty ceremony, pronounced them husband and wife. Then came the hearty congratulations of all present. The bride was charmingly attired in white massaline silk and carried a large bunch of bride's roses. The groom wore the conventional black. Miss Miller, who who is a cousin of the bride, wore white voile, hand embroidered in pink, and carried pink carnations. The bride is a very beautiful young lady with a large circle of friends, who who admire her for her many lovable qualities and her high christian character. The groom is one of this county's best young men, and is the son of Mrs. Charles Stephens, of Locust Grove neighborhood, with whom the young couple will make their home on the farm, that being Mr. Stephens' vocation. He is very worthy of the splendid young lady he has won as his bride, as he is a young man of the highest type of morality, and has all the characteristics of a gentleman. Following the ceremony light refreshments in two courses were served, and then the young couple left for Walton and Cincinnati to spend several days of their honey moone. The presents numbered over fifty, and consisted mostly of silver tokens, though one pot of potter's clay was an unusual departure from the general variety. The best wishes of their numerous friends are tendered the happy young couple for a long happy and prosperous life together.

Our community was greatly shocked, last week, by the announcement of the death of Mrs. Margaret Griffith, which sad event occurred at the Kentucky Hotel in Covington, Tuesday, October 3d. It was not known that she was ill as since the late domestic trouble her communication with her relatives here has been very slight. It was only by the merest chance that her death was learned, and that through the inquiry as to her age, as the parties in whose house she resided contemplated taking charge of the funeral and having the burial at Covington. Undertaker Scott Chambers was dispatched to Covington for the remains, and brought them to Verona for burial. Mr. Chambers had considerable trouble to get charge of the remains, but finally the authorities decided in his favor. Mrs. Griffith had been ill for some time but no word was sent any of her relatives. It is also stated that Mrs. Griffith executed a will in favor of a woman in Covington, with whom she had been living, giving her all of her personal property, to the exclusion of her two children. The poor woman's mind was considered by many to be impaired and she was confined in the insane asylum for a time. It was a very sad ending of a beautiful life begun under the most promising auspices. Mrs. Griffith was born in Boone County near Verona, about 52 years ago, and was the daughter of Vardiman Finneli, a prominent and highly respected citizen. As a girl she was a favorite with everybody and she developed into a beautiful and lovable woman. Her marriage with Charles L. Griffith, a most estimabel young man of the highest and worthiest qualities, was looked upon as the beginning of a long career of happiness and enjoyment, and it was so until a few years back when Mrs. Griffith became dissatisfied and then unhappiness began. She was naturally a good woman and up to a recent period was very devoted to her husband and their two children, and their home was a very happy one. Her mind evidently became affected and her loved ones became repugnant to her. Then followed strife and discord and legal processes that brought unhappiness to all. Of a personal estate of about $12,000 but about $1500 remains to Mrs. Griffith's estate. Her people were true and devoted to her, but she preferred the companionship of strangers, and for several months past has lived in Covington. Her death was greatly deplored by a large number, yet the closing of her eyes in that eternal sleep means rest if nothing more, and lifts the burden from her sorrow stricken mind and she is really better off than in the torment of her unhappy condition. She leaves a son Elmer and a daughter, Miss Nannie, and to all of her relatives the tenderest of sympathy is expressed. The large number of friends who attended the funeral at Verona on Thursday attested the respect and esteem with which the deceased and all of her people are held.

The chapel services at the school building are interesting and instructive. Every Tuesday morning.

Once a week the principal makes a talk on the care of the body.

Mr. Tom Hughes has taken charge of the music work in the school, and it is going nicely.

Miss Ruth Tildesley was given the elocution work and she is making a success of it. She comes out from Covington on Mondays.

Last year Walton school raised more for the Kentucky Children's Home Society than any school in the county and received $3 offered by Supt. Riley for that distinction. The $3 was recently invested in books for the library mainly to suit the lower grades.

Last Monday afternoon Grover Snyder caught a blue catfish in the lonesome hole on Gunpowder creek that weighed five pounds and three ounces on the scales in Burlington. It was the largest fish ever known to be caught in that neighborhood.

Lexington, Oct. 7.—The big tobacco barn on the farm of Mr. Leslie Combs, near this city, caught fire and was completely destroyed. The barn and its contents were fully covered by insurance.

Two comets are now said to be visible in the northern sky—one in the northwest under the handle of the big dipper and the new one low down in the eastern sky.

Charles Sullivan's barn on Ash by Fork was destroyed by fire shortly after twelve o'clock last Saturday night. Mr. Sullivan had both his 1910 and 1911 crops of tobacco in the building which, together with a calf and all his farming implements were consumed, the loss being total, as no insurance had been placed on the property. Mr. Sullivan had been firing the tobacco recently housed to assist it in curing, and it is thought that was the cause of the fire, although he says he was careful to remove all the fire from the building late Saturday afternoon.

Already have there been several days this month that to keep comfortable in doors a fire was necessary.

The pie social at the school house was a complete success. A large, well behaved crowd attended and the pies sold for a little over $14. Which will go to purchase a handsome case of maps and start a library, which is badly needed.

The teacher of Limaburg school extends sincere thanks for the hearty response of friends and patrons at the pie social last Saturday night. In spite of rain and threatened storm, goodly number was present. So beautiful and delicious a display of pies we had never seen, and surely the husbands and brothers who have such pie makers in their homes, are to be congratulated. After the sale we made known our desire to start a library. The pupils sang "Kentucky Schools" and a collection was taken. We realized in all about $14. We can now pay for our splendid case of maps and have $4 left for books. Parents, please visit our school. "Come in the evening or come in the morning, Come when you'r looked for, or come without warning."

On account of illness Supt. Riley could not be present on this occasion, much to the regret of all, as he is highly esteemed by our people here.

Remember the Mission to be given at St. Patrick's church, beginning Sunday, October, 22 at 7 p. m., and ending Friday October 27th at 7 p. m., by Rev. T. H. Beusen.

Delineating life as a three-story building; the lower floor representing the physical, the next upper the intellectual the highest the moral or religious. In a pleasant and convincing way, one was made to see that to live upon one floor alone to the exclusion of the others, would not be in harmony with a true life. As God has given these three natures to man, he should not permit spiders and cob-webs to infest either of the apartments, but should endeavor to enjoy to the fullest the entire structure. We are glad to have made the acquaintance of Prof. Gaw in our midst thru such an address.

On the evening of October 13th, the M. E. church was the scene of one of the most interesting exercises of the season. The class of Verona school, that satisfactorily passed the County Examination for the year 1911, having selected as a graduating theme, "Kentucky," presented this in a manner highly acceptable. Prof. E. L. Dix, principal of Boone County High School, and a man who is doing much for the advancement of education in Boone county, after a highly complimentary greeting to the audience as citizens of Boone, delivered an interesting and instructive address to the class; embodying this in the form of an Allegory.

Robert Gully, 22, son of Plumner Gully, of Petersburg, and Miss Nellie Pettit, 20, daughter of Samuel Pettit, who resides on Gunpowder creek, went to Lawrenceburg five weeks ago and were married, which fact the young couple kept secret until a few days since. There were no parental objections to the wedding, a love for the romantic prompting the desire on the part of the bride and groom that their nuptials be not made public for a time. They are now receiving congratulations of their many friends.

Miss Sarah Berkshire, of Petersburg, was born February 1st, 1851, and died September 17, 1911. Funeral at 2 p. m., this afternoon.

WALTON.

GRADED SCHOOL ITEMS.

The scarlet fever scare is about over. The building will be fumigated this week and whatever germs of any disease that might be lingering in any recesses of the building will have to give it up. No more danger is anticipated.

That spelling bee for which so many have been preparing will be next Friday night, that is the Friday night after school takes up.

The report has been either erroneously or maliciously spread that the present scarlet fever scare is due to second hand text books sold to school children by T. F. Curley. This report, if true, would be severe comment on the school management and on Mr. Curley. But no second hand books have been sold to any school child by Mr. Curley and any who have spread this damaging report should correct it.

Charles Russell and W. O. Myers, of the firm of Charles Russell & Co., bankers and contractors of Chicago, Edward E. Walker of Covington, Simon Bilitter of Williamstown, and Wm. T. S. Blackburn of Dry Ridge, were here Saturday and held an informal meeting in the office of the Walton Bank and Trust Company with some of the public spirited citizens of Walton to discuss the proposed traction line of railroad running from Owenton to Dry Ridge and then paralleling the Q. & C. Railroad into Covington. Messrs. Russell, Myers Walker and Blackburn made excellent talks in a convincing and sensible nature and impressed their auditors very much. The road has been graded from near Dry Ridge to near Owenton and Mr. Myers, who is an engineer, says it is one of the best grades he has been over considering the topography of the country, being only a two per cent grade in a very hilly country. The firm of Russell & Co., agree to finance the road and put up the necessary funds if the people along the route, including the city of Covington, will subscribe for $250,000 of the stock to be paid for when the railroad is completed and the cars in operation. The stock is being sold for 50 cents on the $100. About 40,000 worth of the stock has been subscribed for in this neighborhood. The general opinion of all is that the road would be profitable from the start. It would surely be of great advantage to this country in many ways. Too much praise and credit cannot be given Mr. Blackburn of Dry Ridge, for the work he has accomplished in the face of the greatest obstacles. All that has been accomplished has been due to his efforts and the people he has enlisted in the enterprise.

UNION.

Mrs. A. P. Dickerson visited her parents at Gunpowder, recently.

Mrs. Voshell has had as her guest her sister, Mrs. Sallie Hicks.

More Black Leg.

Dr. O. S. Crisler was called to James Allen's, near Hume, last Friday, to administer to a calf that had developed black leg and to vaccinate the remaining animals thirteen in Mr. Allen's herd. When black leg appeared among the cattle of John Fitzharris a few weeks ago, all the owners of cattle in the immediate neighborhood except Mr. Allen, had their cattle vaccinated and none of the animals that were vaccinated have had the disease. The vaccination of the cattle stopped the spread of the black leg among Mr. Fitzharris' herd none of them dieing except those that showed symptoms of the disease before the time the serum was administered. Dr. Crisler has no fear of a spread of the disease among Mr. Allen's cattle.

PROTEST

Against Tobacco Plan

Independents Declare Control Is Not Changed,

And That the Same Restraint Could Be Placed Upon Competition--Will Fight.

New York, October 15—The plan of dissolution announced by the Tobacco Trust on Saturday night was bitterly assailed to-day as a subterfuge which permits the entire tobacco business of the United States to remain in the hands of the same group of trust magnates who have controlled it heretofore. Statements to this effect were issued by attorneys representing the independent interests after an all-day session in which their clients participated.

It was definitely announced that Louis D. Brandeis, Felix H. Levy and other attorneys will go to the United States Circuit Court and fight to prevent the approval of the reorganization as proposed. One of the statements was issued by Lawyer Levy as coming from a well-known member of the Cigar Manufacturers of America.

"The United States Supreme Court has ordered that the tobacco combination be dissolved and competition be recreated," the statement asserts. "The present plan of the American Tobacco Co. conforms to this order in only an infinitesamal degree. It reshapes the combination without dissolving it, and apparently passes over the recreation of competition, which is the vital point in the entire matter.

"The competition can never be restored among 4 or 14 or 100 units, however physically separated, unless ownership is, as President Taft said of this very case, different.

"Ownership is the vital thing that regulates the future of these companies. The group of ten or dozen who now control the American Tobacco Company will possess the same properties as before. The fact that this ownership might not possess the same power or control as formerly thru the giving of voting power to other securities is of very little importance.

"If huge profits have been made by arranging that some companies shall not compete with others, why should the new companies compete when their owners are still the owners of concerns that should be their competitors?

"All this is on the presumption that, as the plan states, only 56 per cent of the present common stock of the American Tobacco Company is in the hands of the individual defendants and that the large majority of the preferred stock is in the hands of the public. Does the country stand ready to believe the word of interested parties on this point, which is the crux of the whole matter?

"If the country allows the proposed plan to be adopted it will have nullified all that has gone before in its fight against monopoly and restraint of trade."

The committee of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association said:

"It is evident that both the Supreme Court and President Taft have given the country the right to believe that no plan should be adopted which would leave the effective working control in the hands of the same group of individuals who were named by the Supreme Court as constituting a restraint of trade. The result would be that this condition would be worse than the old condition, because the same control would continue to be exercised as before, with the added advantage that it would have the sanction of the Courts."

R. D. No. 3.

The rain has delayed many of the farmers sowing wheat.

CHAPTER IV.

This time the trail was easier. It was better packed, and they were not carrying mail against time. At Forty Mile they laid over two days for the sake of the dogs, and at Sixty Mile Daylight's team was left with the trader. Unlike Daylight, after the terrible run from Selkirk to Circle City, they had been unable to recuperate on the back trail. So the four men pulled on from Sixty Mile with a fresh team of dogs on Daylight's sled. The following night they camped in the cluster of islands at the mouth of the Stewart. Daylight talked town sites, and, though the others laughed at him, he staked the whole maze of high, wooded island.

"Just supposing the big strike does come on the Stewart," he argued. "Mebbe you-all 'll be in on it, and then again mebbe you-all won't. But I sure will. You-all 'd better reconsider and go in with me on it."

But they were stubborn.

"You're as bad as Harper and Joe Ladue," said Joe Hines. "They're always at that game. You know that big flat jest below the Klondike and under Moosehide Mountain? Well, the recorder at Forty Mile was tellin' me they staked that not a month ago The Harper & Ladue Town Site. Ha! Ha! Ha!"

Elijah and Finn joined in his laughter; but Daylight was gravely in earnest.

"There she is!" he cried. "The hunch is working! It's in the air, I tell you-all! What'd they-all stake the big flat for if they-all didn't get the hunch? Wish I'd staked it."

The regret in his voice was provocative of a second burst of laughter.

"Laugh, dang you, laugh! Why your eyes ain't open yet. You-all are a bunch of little mewing kittens. I tell you-all if that strikes come on Klondike, Harper and Ladue will be millionaires. And if it comes on Stewart, you-all watch the Elam Harnish town site boom. In them days, when you-all come around makin' poor mouths . . ." He heaved a sigh of resignation. "Well, I suppose I'll have to give you-all a grub-stake or soup, or something or other."

In the meantime there was naught to show for it but hunch. But it was coming. As he would stake his last ounce on a good poker hand, so he staked his life and effort on the hunch that the future held in store a big strike on the Upper River. So he and his three companions, with dogs, and sleds, and snowshoes, toiled up the frozen breast of the Stewart, toiled on and on through the white wilderness where the unending stillness was never broken by the voices of men, the stroke of an ax, or the distant crack of a rifle. Gold they found on the bars, but not in paying quantities, and in the following May they returned to Sixty Mile.

Ten days later, Harper and Joe Ladue arrived at Sixty Mile, and Daylight, strong to obey the hunch that had come to him, traded a third interest in his Stewart town site for a third interest in theirs on the Klondike. They had faith in the Upper Country, and Harper left down-stream, with a raft-load of supplies, to start a small post at the mouth of the Klondike.

"Why don't you tackle Indian River, Daylight?" Harper advised, at parting. "There's whole slathers of creeks and draws draining in up there, and somewhere gold just crying to be found. That's my hunch. There's a big strike coming, and Indian River ain't going to be a million miles away."

"And the place is swarming with moose," Joe Ladue added. "Bob Henderson's up there somewhere, been there three years now, swearing something big is going to happen, living off'n straight moose and prospecting around like a crazy man."

Daylight decided to go Indian River a flutter, as he expressed it; and lingered a few days longer arranging his meager outfit. He planned to go in light, carrying a pack of seventy-five pounds and making his five dogs pack as well, Indian fashion, loading them with thirty pounds each. Depending on the report of Ladue, he intended to follow Bob Henderson's example and live practically on straight meat. When Jack Kearns' scow, laden with the sawmill from Lake Linderman, tied up at Sixty Mile, Daylight bundled his outfit and dogs on board, turned his town-site application over to Elijah to be filed, and the same day was landed at the mouth of Indian River. He continued down Hunker to the Klondike, and on to the summer fishing camp of the Indians on the Yukon.

Here for a day he camped with Carmack, a squaw-man, and his Indian brother-in-law, Skookum Jim, bought a boat, and, with his dogs on board, drifted down the Yukon to Forty Mile. [illegible] was that Carmack, his brother-in-law, Skookum Jim, and Cultus [illegible] Indian, arrived in a [illegible] Mile, went straight to [illegible] and recorded three claims and a discovery claim on Bonanza Creek. After that, in the Sourdough Saloon, that night, they exhibited coarse gold to the skeptical crowd. Daylight, too, was skeptical, and this despite his faith in the Upper Country. Had he not, only a few days before, seen Carmack loafing with his Indians and with never a thought of prospecting? But at eleven that night, sitting on the edge of his bunk and unlacing his moccasins, a thought came to him. He put on his coat and hat and went back to the Sourdough. Carmack was still there, flashing his coarse gold in the eyes of an unbelieving generation. Daylight ranged alongside of him and emptied Carmacks sack into a blower. This he [illegible] for a long time. Then, from his own sack, into another blower, he emptied several ounces of Circle City and Forty Mile gold. Again, for a long time, he studied and compared. Finally, he pocketed his own gold, returned Carmacks, and held up his hand for silence.

"Boys, I want to tell you-all something," he said. "She's sure come—the up-river strike. And I tell you-all, clear and forcible, this is it. There aint never been gold like that in a blower in this country before. It's new gold. It's got more silver in it.

"Who-all's Got Faith to Come Along With Me?"

You-all can see it by the color. Carmack's sure made a strike. Who-all's got faith to come along with me?"

No one volunteered.

"Then who-all 'll take a job from me, cash wages in advance, to pole up a thousand pounds of grub?"

Curly Parsons and another, Pat Monahan, accepted, and, with his customary speed, Daylight paid them their wages in advance and arranged the purchase of the supplies, though he emptied his sack in doing so. He was leaving the Sourdough, when he suddenly turned back to the bar from the door.

"Got another hunch?" was the query.

"I sure have," he answered. "Flour's sure going to be worth what a man will pay for it this winter up on the Klondike. Who'll lend me some money?"

On the instant a score of the men who had declined to accompany him on the wild-goose chase were crowding about him with proffered gold-sacks.

"How much flour do you want?" asked the Alaska Commercial Company's storekeeper.

"About two ton."

The proffered gold-sacks were not withdrawn, though their owners were guilty of an outrageous burst of merriment.

"What are you going to do with two tons?" the storekeeper demanded.

"I'll tell you-all in simple A, B, C and one, two, three." Daylight held up one finger and began checking off. "Hunch number one: a big strike coming in Upper Country. Hunch number two: Carmack's made it. Hunch number three: ain't no hunch at all. It's a cinch. If one and two is right, then flour just has to go sky-high. If I'm riding hunches one and two, I just got to ride this cinch, which is number three. If I'm right, flour 'll balance gold on the scales this winter."

CHAPTER V.

Still men were without faith in the strike. When Daylight, with his heavy outfit of flour, arrived at the mouth of the Klondike, he found the big flat as desolate and tenantless as ever. Down close by the river, Chief Isaac and his Indians were camped beside the frames on which they were drying salmon. Several old-times were also in camp there. Having finished their summer work on Ten Mile Creek, they had come down the Yukon, bound for Circle City. But at Sixty Mile they had learned of the strike, and stopped off to look over the ground. They had just returned to their boat when Daylight landed his flour, and their report was pessimistic. But an hour later, at his own camp, Joe Ladue strode in from Bonanza Creek. He led Daylight away from the camp and men and told him things in confidence.

"She's sure there," he said in conclusion. "I didn't sluice it, or cradle it. I panned it, all in that sack, yesterday, on the rim-rock. I tell you you can shake it out of the grass-roots. And what's on the bed-rock down in the bottom of the creek they ain't no way of tellin'. But she's big, I tell you, big. Keep it quiet, and locate all you can. It's in spots, but I wouldn't be none surprised if some of them claims yielded as high as fifty thousand. The only trouble is that it's spotted."

A month passed by, and Bonanza Creek remained quiet. A sprinkling of men had staked; but most of them, after staking, had gone on down to Forty Mile and Circle City. The few that possessed sufficient faith to remain were busy building log cabins against the coming of winter. Carmack and his Indian relatives were occupied in building a sluice box and getting a head of water. The work was slow, for they had to saw their lumber by hand from the standing forest. But farther down Bonanza were four men who had drifted in from up river, Dan McGilvary, Dave McKay, Dave Edwards, and Harry Waugh. They were a quiet party, neither asking nor giving confidences, and they herded by themselves. But Daylight, who had panned the spotted rim of Carmack's claim and shaken coarse gold from the grass-roots, and who had panned the rim at a hundred other places up and down the length of the creek and found nothing, was curious to know what lay on bed-rock. He had noted the four quiet men sinking a shaft close by the stream, and he had heard their whip-saw going as they made lumber for the sluice boxes. He did not wait for an invitation, but he was present the first day they sluiced. And at the end of five hours' shoveling for one man, he saw them take out thirteen ounces and a half of gold. It was coarse gold, running from pinheads to a twelve-dollar nugget, and it had come from off bed-rock. The first fall snow was flying that day, and the Arctic winter was closing down; but Daylight had no eyes for the bleak-gray sadness of the dying, short-lived summer. He saw his vision coming true, and on the big flat was upreared anew his golden city of the snows. Gold had been found on bed-rock. That was the big thing. Carmack's strike was assured. Daylight staked a claim in his own name adjoining three he had purchased with plug tobacco. This gave him a block two thousand feet long and extending in width from rim-rock to rim-rock.

Returning that night to his camp at the mouth of Klondike, he found in it Kama, the Indian chief he had left at Dyea. Kama was traveling by canoe, bringing in the last mail of the year. In his possession was some two hundred dollars in gold-dust, which Daylight immediately borrowed. In return, he arranged to stake a claim for him, which he was to record when he passed through Forty Mile. When Kama departed next morning, he carried a number of letters for Daylight, addressed to all the old-timers down river, in which they were urged to come up immediately and stake. Also Kama carried letters of similar import, given him by the other men on Bonanza.

"It will sure be the gosh-dangdest stampede that ever was," Daylight chuckled, as he tried to vision the excited populations of Forty Mile and Circle City tumbling into poling-boats and racing the hundreds of miles up the Yukon; for he knew that his word would be unquestioningly accepted.

One day in December Daylight filled a pan from bed-rock on his own claim and carried it into his cabin. Here a fire burned and enabled him to keep water unfrozen in a canvas tank. He squatted over the tank and began to wash. Earth and gravel seemed to fill the pan. As he imparted to it a circular movement, the lighter, coarser particles washed out over the edge. At times he combed the surface with his fingers, raking out handfuls of gravel. The contents of the pan diminished. At is drew near to the bottom, for the purpose of fleeting and tentative examination, he gave the pan a sudden sloshing movement, emptying it of water. And the whole bottom showed as if covered with butter. Thus the yellow gold flashed up as the muddy water was filtered away. It was gold—gold-dust, coarse gold, nuggets, large nuggets. He was all alone. He set the pan down for a moment and thought long thoughts. Then he finished the washing, and weighed the result in his scales. At the rate of sixteen dollars to the ounce the pan had contained seven hundred and odd dollars. It was beyond anything that even he had dreamed. His fondest anticipations had gone no farther than twenty or thirty thousand dollars to a claim; but here were claims worth half a million each at the least, even if they were spotted.

He did not go back to work in the shaft that day, nor the next, nor the next. Instead, capped and mittened, a light stampeding outfit, including his rabbit skin robe, strapped on his back, he was out and away on a many-days' tramp over creeks and divides, inspecting the whole neighboring territory. On each creek he was entitled to locate one claim, but he was chary in thus surrendering up his chances. On Hunker Creek only did he stake a claim. Bonanza Creek he found staked from mouth to source, while every little draw and pup and gulch that drained into it was likewise staked. Little faith was had in these side-streams. They had been staked by the hundreds of men who had failed to get in on Bonanza. The most popular of these creeks was Adams. The one least fancied was Eldorado, which flowed into Bonanza, just above Carmack's Discovery claim. Even Daylight disliked the looks of Eldorado; but, still riding his hunch, he bought a half share in one claim on it for half a sack of flour. A month later he paid eight hundred dollars for the adjoining claim. Three months later, enlarging this block of property, he paid forty thousand for a third claim, and, though it was concealed in the future, he was destined, not long after, to pay one hundred and fifty thousand for a fourth claim on the creek that had been the least liked of all the creeks.

The Whole Bottom Showed as if Covered With Butter.

In the meantime, and from the day he washed seven hundred dollars from a single pan, and squatted over it and thought a long thought, he never again touched hand to pick and shovel. As he said to Joe Ladue the night of that wonderful washing:

"Joe, I ain't never going to work hard again. Here's where I begin to use my brains. I'm going to farm gold. Gold will grow gold if you-all have the savvee and can get hold of some for seed. When I seen them seven hundred dollars in the bottom of the pan, I knew I had seed at last.'

The hero of the Yukon in the younger days before the Carmack strike, Burning Daylight now became the hero of the strike. The story of his hunch and how he rode it was told up and down the land. Certainly he had ridden it far and away beyond the boldest, for no five of the luckiest held the value in claims that he held. And, furthermore, he was still riding the hunch, and with no diminution of daring.

Back in Dawson, though he remained true to his word and never touched hand to pick and shovel, he worked as hard as ever in his life. He had a thousand irons in the fire, and they kept him busy. Heavy as were his expenses, he won more heavily. He took lays, bought half shares, shared with the men he grub-staked, and made personal locations. Day and night his dogs were ready, and he owned the fastest teams; so that when a stampede to a new discovery was on, it was Burning Daylight to the fore through the longest, coldest nights till he blazed his stakes next to Discovery. In one way or another (to say nothing of the many worthless creeks) he came into possession of properties on the good creeks, such as Sulphur, Dominion, Excelsis, Siwash, Cristo, Alhambra, and Doolittle. The thousands he poured out flowed back in tens of thousands.

Dawson grew rapidly that winter of 1896. Money poured in on Daylight from the sale of town lots. He promptly invested it where it would gather more. In fact, he played the dangerous game of pyramiding, and no more perilous pyramiding than in a placer camp could be imagined. But he played with his eyes wide open.

Corner lots in desirable locations sold that winter for from ten to thirty thousand dollars. Daylight sent word out over the trails and passes for the newcomers to bring down log-rafts, and, as a result, the summer of 1897 saw his saw mills working day and night, on three shifts, and still he had logs left over with which to build cabins. These cabins, land included, sold at from one to several thousand dollars. Two-story log buildings, in the business part of town, brought him from forty to fifty thousand dollars apiece. These fresh accretions of capital were immediately invested in other ventures. He turned gold over and over, until everything that he touched seemed to turn to gold.

With the summer rush from the Outside came special correspondents for the big newspapers and magazines, and one and all, using unlimited space, they wrote Daylight up; so that, so far as the world was concerned, Daylight loomed the largest figure in Alaska. Of course, after several months, the world became interested in the Spanish War, and forgot all about him; but in the Klondike itself Daylight still remained the most prominent figure.

NEW AEROPLANE.

Iuventor Believes Machine Can Remain In Air Indefinitely.

New York, October 13.—Wilbur Wright, whose brothers, Orville and Lorin, are about to begin experiments on the North Carolina coast with a new type of flying machine, was in New York to-day. At his hotel he discussed freely the experiments which he and his brothers are conducting. "There is no secret about this new machine," he said. "It is simply a development of all that we have learned by study of flying and experiments in flying. Anybody who has seen the buzzard fly knows that there is a method by which man may sustain himself in the air once he gets there. What a bird can do a man can do, as Darius Green said. Of that there is not the slightest doubt. The only difficulty is that nature provided the birds with means to stay in the air without exertion, while man has got to study it all out. It may take years to accomplish this. Perhaps we are all wrong in thinking that we have solved the problem. We will not know until we have given a practical test to our ideas. That is what my brothers have gone to North Carolina for. There seems to be great curiosity about whether we expect to use a motor or not. Well at the start, we don't expect to use one. The problem is to find out whether, once we are in the air we can stay there for an indefinite period. Birds can do it. Why can not man? At the same time, it must be remembered that birds can not rise from the ground without exertion. They keep flapping their wings until they reach a certain height. Then they stop working and sail along without further effort. If we can start a machine from a great height, maybe we can keep it in the air without a motor for an indefinite period. But if we have to start from the ground, we will have to have some power to get us up. Once up, we can shut off the power and stay up as long as we like—that is if our machine proves successful. Whether we use a biplane or a monoplane really makes no differ ence, but I will say that in the experiments we are about to start, we will use a machine of the biplane type. A biplane enables you to take advantage of the slow current. We are doing in these experiments what we did with our original machine, trying to work out the scientific side. The practical material side will take care of itself."

BOMB EXPLODED.

Virus and Serum Furnished Causing The Spread of Hog Cholera.

Washington, C. H., Ohio, October 13.—Dr. V. P. Smith, veterinarian, exploded a bomb here to-day by declaring that the virus and serum furnished by the state of Ohio to prevent cholera in hogs, has caused an unprecedented spread of this disease, which now bids fair to cost Ohio farmers nearly $5,000,000.

Dr. Smith has carefully investigated the great epidemic of hog cholera, which will cost Fayette County farmers alone $75,000 to $100,000 this fall, and says that the indiscriminate use of the virus and serum furnished by the state at a nominal fee, is spreading the disease like wildfire.

It is claimed that when swine are inoculated with the virus and serum they pass through a light attack of cholera and where entire herds are not given the treatment the healthy hogs will contract the cholera from those treat ed and invariably die. The claim is also made that where all swine on a farm are given the serum treatment, hogs in neighboring fields will contract the disease, and it is to this that the great spread of the disease is attributed.

Veterinarians administering the treatment very often fail to have enough to immunize the entire herd, and the epidemic spreads.

The epidemic being fed as it has, according to Dr. Smith, has reached such gigantic proportions that the serum treatment is unable to cope with the disease, and tens of thousands of lightweight hogs have been thrown upon the market to escape the cholera.

The price of pork is expected to soar as a result of the present loss.

A Government bulletin tells of a new and valuable breed of dogs in Australia. First come the sheep dogs and barbs and kelfies in the order of merit, Smooth-haired collies are second; mongreis and crosses, third; while rough collies bring up the rear. Barbs and keifies are both of Scotch origin, and the kypaies are said to have produced the keifie for poaching purposes by crossing foxes and smooth collies. A second crossing was made in Australia with the dingo, or wild dog. Crossing dogs with the dingo eliminates the bark which is said to make cattle nervous.

When cream cannot be had for fruit, coffee and other things, a good substitute may easily be provided which cannot be told from the genuine article. Stir a dessert spoonful of flour into a pint of new milk, and simmer it to take off the rayness of the flour. Then stir in the beaten yolk of a fresh egg, and strain the mixture through a coarse muslin. The only precaution is that the flour must be first mixed smooth in a little cold milk, or else it is apt to form into lumps.

MOSQUITO

Drunk on Gasoline, Explodes When It Gets Near Brady's Pipe and Sets Fire to Mattress.

Tarrytown, N. Y., Oct. 15.—John D. Rockefeller and the other residents who own automobiles have completely wrecked the morals of the mosquitos of this town. They are now hopeless gasoline drunkards.

A family of mosquitos started hitting up the gasoline in James Brady's car to-day and when they flew into the house from the garage were in an awful condition. One tried to alight on Mr. Brady's nose as he was lighting his pipe and it exploded with a loud report and set fire to a mattress.

Mrs. Brady was badly burned trying to extinguish the flames and Mr. Brady was burned about the face.

A Big Sale.

In this issue Chas. H. Youell advertises a big sale for the 15th of this month. The cattle Mr. Youell will sell have been bred by him and are of the best grade of milk stock this county affords, and are fine individuals as well. The registered bull that stands at the head of the herd that will be sold was bred by W. H. Vanderbilt on the Biltmore Farms, North Carolina, and was bought by Mr. Youell at a long price and is a son of the great imported Stockwell that sold at public sale for $11,500 in 1907. Several of the cows that will be sold by Mr. Youell will have calves by this fine bull.

The I. O. C. hogs advertised are selected from the best herds in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, and are said to be the easiest hogs to fatten that are known.

As regards Mr. Youell's fine bull the Recorder desires to suggest that it ought to be owned and retained in this county, for the benefit of the dairy interests, and if not owned by an individual a company should have him.

You will never have a better chance to secure the very highest grade of dairy stock than that which will be afforded by Mr. Youell's sale, as he has spent many years and a large sum of money bringing his herd to its very high standard of excellency.

Arbor Day.

Governor Willson has designated Friday, October, 27th as Arbor Day in Kentucky and his proclamation urges all citizens to take advantage of this day to beautify their surroundings by the planting of trees. Arbor Day is being generally observed all over our country and some European nations are now having an annual holiday on which they plant trees and shrubbery. Owing to the disregard of the people of the past decades our woods and natural forests have gradually disappeared and at last the nation has awakened to the fact that unless steps are taken whereby these are restored, our land, that was once so full of verdure and natural beauty, will ere long become a barren waste. By the annual observance of Arbor Day the children are taught in the public schools to regard the care of trees and to protect them, and citizens in every community are taking steps—by the planting of shade trees along streets and highways—to in a measure remedy the evil of the careless felling of our mighty forests and to restore our country to something of its former beauty.

$15,000 Monument Unveiled.

The unveiling of the monument erected to the memory of General John Hunt Morgan and His Men, which was in Lexington, yesterday was an event of wide-spread interest. This monument which is given by the United Daughters of the Confederacy cost $15,000 to produce and it stands, not only as a memento of the great Confederate General, but also as a beautiful remembrance of the splendid efforts of these still more splendid women who have toiled faithfully in the work of raising the funds with which to defray the expenses of erecting the monument. The unveiling ceremonies were a fitting climax to the great convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy which was held in Lexington this week. The ceremonies were of a very elaborate character and include General Basil W. Duke and Major Otis Tenney, Masters of Ceremonies, an invocation by the Reverend William T. Punch, an address of welcome by Mayor John Skain, of Lexington, an address by Governor Augustus E. Willson, an address by the State President of the U. D. C., Mrs. L. McF. Blakemore, a prayer by the Reverend E. O. Guerrant, the benediction by the Reverend John R. Deering. Beside the above the chief address of the occasion was delivered by Dr. Guy Carleton Lee, of Baltimore, Maryland. Immediately before the unveiling ceremonies, which took place on the famous court house square where the monument has been erected, a session of the convention was held in the Woodland Park Auditorium, where a parade of magnificent proportions was formed, including the members of Morgan's command, Confederate Veterans, State Officials of the United Confederate Veterans, the Monument Committee, Convention Delegates, the Governor and his Staff.

This monument is an Equestrian Statue, said to be the finest of its character in existence to-day; it is the work of Signor Pompeo Coppini. It is cast in bronze and is placed upon an imposing pedestal of the choicest granite. General Morgan's brother pronounces the statue a remarkable likeness of the great General.

Mrs. Lou Williams, daughter of Newton Sullivan, and Edward Easton, were married in Lawrenceburg, on Wednesday of last week. They went to Louisville on a wedding trip, returning here last Sunday. They have the best wishes of all in their new relations.

On account of the change of the time of the services at the Baptist church Edgar C. Riley will not speak at the Universalist church next Sunday night, but will speak both morning and evening on the fifth Sunday in this month at the Universalist church in Burlington.

There will be a pie social at Sand Run school house next Saturday night to which all are cordially invited. The ladies are requested to bring pies.

GRANT COUNTY ITEMS

(Grant County News.)

The mule market seemed to be improved over the previous Court day; two car loads being shipped from this point at an advance in price of some ten or fifteen dollars per head. As far as we could learn prices ranged from $45 to $90 per head. One car load of horses was shipped also and quite a good many led away by halter.

The usual court day drunks were plainly in evidence late on court day much the same as the conditions were twenty years ago, except there were more arrests made and the town got some revenue for the sale of booze at that time. We say booze because the so salled "near beer" is equally as intoxicating as the real article if not worse, and "things that are equal to the same thing are equal to one another."

The Democrats are planning to have a monster Democratic meeting on or about the 28th of this month, at which time processions will come in from every precinct on horseback, and if the day is suitable there will be a large automobile procession with cars filled with Democratic ladies. A first class band will be procured for the occasion and the speakers will be from the following list: Hon. Jas. B. McCreary, Hon. E. J. McDermott, Hon. Ollie James, Hon. Ben Johnson, Hon. James Garnett and others. Exact date later.

GALLATIN COUNTY NEWS.

Commonwealth's Attorney E. E. Winn returned home from Williamstown last Saturday and spent the first of this week at home, returning to Williamstown on Thursday of this week. Mr. Winn had been in Williamstown the week previous attending to his duties as Commonwealth's Attorney in the Grant county circuit court, and prosecuted the law breakers in such vigorous and effectual fashion that four of them were sent across the road. The case in which Mr. Winn will be engaged for the next two weeks, is a special one, called to try a murder case—that of the Commonwealth against John Mark and Lindsay Webster for the killing of Sam Collins at Elliston about six weeks ago.

This case is attracting wide attention and has created a deep interest in Grant and adjoining counties. In the immediate neighborhood of the shooting feeling is running pretty high, and a great deal of bitterness of opinion is likely to be brought out at the trial. Probably some time will be required to secure a jury in this case, on account of the great prevalence of already formed opinion, some of which has been pretty freely expressed.—Warsaw Independent.

Lodged in Jail.

William Starr, who was indicted by the Boone county grand jury at the April term, 1910, of the Boone Circuit Court on a charge of forgery, was apprehended by detective Bell, of Cincinnati, and arrested last Sunday, and last Monday night Sheriff B. B. Hume brought the accused to Burlington and lodged him in jail, and up to the present time he has not executed a bail bond, the amount of which the court fixed at $1000. The offense of which Starr is accused is the forgery of the name of William Clore to a note for $125 which the Florence Deposit Bank discounted.

Local Happenings.

The forest trees are taking on their variagated hues.

Mrs. Thomas Rouse near town has been quite ill for some time.

A day or two at a time has been the extent of good weather this fall.

There was considerable vivid lightning and heavy thunder, last Saturday night.

It is very seldom that there has not been a heavy frost before the 20th of October.

Born, on the 16th inst., to V. W. Gaines and wife, of Bullittsburg neighborhood, a daughter.

John O. Roberts, of Florence, will stay with his sister, Mrs. Mary Craven, near Hebron, until after her sale.

When you have a bad cold you want the best medicine obtainable so as to cure it with as little delay as possible. Here is a druggists opinion: "I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for fifteen years," says Enos Lollar of Saratoga, Ind., "and consider it the best on the market." For sale by all dealers. X

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES

Of Verona High School Enjoyed By Large Crowd—Six Students Given Diplomas.

The commencement exercises for the students of southern Boone county who graduated from the common schools were held at Verona last Friday evening. Six students received their diplomas. They presented a well planned and well prepared exercise on "Kentucky" which was exceedingly well received and enjoyed by the large audience present. Miss Nannie Hamilton presided and Prof. E. L. Dix of Burlington delivered the address and presented the diplomas.

Verona is to be congratulated on the educational interest manifested there. The work of the county High School there is progressing nicely, all the patrons taking a lively interest. On Friday evening the church at which the exercises were held was full, some being unable to find seats.

The class roll follows:

Misses Maggie [illegible]
Lizzie Roberts,
[illegible] Stone,
Ruby Powell,
Sallie Aylor,
Mr. Marvin Waller.

Following are extracts from Prof. Dix's address:

The people of Boone county love their county. There must be something in the air or the water like the famous waters of Coney Fork, that warms their hearts. But true it is that from Verona to the North Bend, from Florence to Rabbit Hash, everyone at all susceptible to any sentiment is capable of any love is ready if need be to die for the grand old county.

The kitchen is a very important room in any house. It will be all right for you to learn the piano but wouldn't try that until I was pretty good on a cooking stove. It will be fine for you to study elocution but I wouldn't do that until I had learned to call the chickens and the cows. If I had my way every girl would be required to take and complete a course in domestic science before being granted a diploma of graduation from the common schools.

* * * * *

You, young men, had better be finding out how the kitchen is to be supplied with flour and bacon and potatoes. You had better select some work, a trade, a business or a profession and mind you, select one that you can make a living at—and stick to it. The most of you, I suppose, are farm boys and I would advise you to stick to the farm. But whatever you do, learn to do it well and and learn to save what you make so that you can put something into the pantry for some domestic science graduate to practice on.

A saloon has recently been opened in Petersburg. I for one believe that the people of Boone county ought to rise in their might and voting as a county which it is their privilege to do, they ought to banish the dirty business from our borders, forever.

* * * * *

In the wisdom of our fathers the church and State were forever separated by the constitution and the laws, and because the schools are institutions of the State no system of religious instruction is provided for in the curriculum. But that does not make it wrong for me to say to you at this time that the character or the life that leaves out a knowledge of God and a hope of heaven has failed to take advantage of its opportunities and has missed the best that this world has to offer.

First Quarterly meeting of Petersburg circuit to be held with church at Taylorsport, Nov. 9—10. Rev. E. L. Southgate, Presiding Elder.

Petersburg, Oct., 10.—We desire to express our grateful appreciation to all our good friends who so kindly remembered us in a most plenteous shower at the parsonage Monday night. Mr. May Goff, a well-known farmer near North Middletown, is cutting his crop of alfalfa. It is about two feet high and this makes the fourth crop that has been cut from this field this season. The yield has been about a ton per acre for each cutting. This field has been in alfalfa for eight years from the same sowing and shows no signs of deterioration.—Paris Kentuckian-Citizen

Carlisle county is one of the most fertile, prosperous and best administered counties of Kentucky, and times are always good and money circulates easily, her people being remarkably free of debt and generally solvent. The whole tax levy fixed by the Fiscal Court Wednesday is 90 cents only, distributed as follows: Fifteen cents for county purposes, 50 cents for poll tax, 25 cents for roads and bridges; total 90 cents. —Mayfield Sentinel.

Mr. Charles Kleiderfer has a nice young pear orchard—say five or six years old. The trees produced very plentifully this year. "I would not give my net profits, acre for acre, this year for any man's tobacco patch." Mr. Kleiderer said he has five or six varieties of pears and finds ready sale for same right here at home at from $1 to $1.50 per bushel for picked. Superfluous to say he labors intelligently in applying modern methods to his orchards.—Henderson Gleaner.

Mr. James P. Gooch, one of the most progressive farmers in the county, who lives at Clarence, brought to the Times office this week a half dozen ears of corn that beat anything we have seen this year. Each measured about twelve inches and one peculiar thing is that all six ears have the same number of rows—eighteen in number. Several farmers who have been in the office this week say that the corn is the best they have seen. The corn is called the Boone County White. —Somerset Times.

The mosquitoes, perhaps feeling that it will not be very long before Jack Frost will put them out of commission, are putting in overtime in sucking the life blood out of the people of this country. If these pests were as large as humming birds and were vicious in accordance to their size, the bite of one of these winged devils would be as deadly as the bite of a rattlesnake. However, if they were as large as birds, there would be some chance to see them coming and they could be swatted with a clapboard.—Madisonville Hustler.

Observe the plumb bob on rear of the Tubular frame. It makes leveling quick, easy, accurate —enables you to keep the Tubular level and get the best work out of it.

There are, in this neighborhood agents for several "bucket bowl" cream separators. "Bucket bowl" separators are the kind with wide mouth bowls, full of parts, set on top of their spindles. These agents say, to the farmers intending to buy a separator. "Look out for the Tubular," or "Don't try the Tubular," or "Beware of the Tubular." To hear them talk you would guess right away that is the best cream separator made, and that these "bucket bowl" fellows are afraid of it. And they are afraid of it. The Tubular surpasses every other separator in every particular, and you should take mighty good care you do see a Tubular before you buy a separator. We will be pleased to show you the latest Tubular and give you an illustrated catalog.

Covington, Big Bone and Carrollton Railroad.

That is the question that should be given much thought RIGHT NOW. Mr. J. R. Long of the firm of J. Gordon Malcom & Co., Cincinnati, which has charge of the sale of stock of the proposed Covington, Big Bone and Carrollton railroad, is in Warsaw. this week finishing up his work of disposing of the stock in this county. He is meeting with splendid success as a majority of our citizens see the advantage of Warsaw being given an outlet to the outside world and are taking up the stock liberally. The promoters of the road, have spent about twenty thousand dollars while completing the organization and are now ready to build the road just as soon as the people along the route show that they want it built. It will be necessary for the citizens residing between Warsaw and Carrollton to take up $100,000 of the stock in order to show the capitalists, who are to put up two dollars for every one put up here that we want the road built. Unless we subscribe this amount right NOW or at least soon, there will be absolutely "nothing doing" on their part as they are simply looking for an investment for their capital and if we delay too long they will look elsewhere and we will be left as we are now—minus a railroad. Our people have nothing at all to lose and all to gain if the road is built.

The contract we are asked to sign reads as follows:

I, the undersigned, hereby subscribe for .....shares of $100,000 each, of the Guaranteed Preferred Stock of the COVINGTON, BIG BONE & CARROLLTON RAILWAY COMPANY, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Kentucky, for the purpose of constructing a railway from the city of Carrollton, Kentucky, by way of Ghent and Warsaw to Covington, Kentucky, which stock will be entitled to six per cent. cumulative dividends and participating with the common stock in dividends not exceeding ten per cent. in all, and agree to pay to said Railway Company, or order, for the same, $100.00 per share in the following manner to-wit:

That upon the completion of said Railway and when the same shall be ready for the operation of trains between Carrollton, Kentucky and .....Kentucky, the undersigned hereby agrees, consents and binds himself that the said sum of .....shall at once become due and payable as aforesaid, and it is further expressly agreed and understood should the said Railway Company fail from Carrollton to.....Kentucky, to have said Railway constructed and the same made ready for operation of cars within one year from the date thereof, then this contract of subscription shall become null and void.

In witness whereof I hereby subscribe my name hereto this..... day of.....

Witness:

.....

.....

The above contract reads to us as being about as fair as anything we have seen. There is absolutely nothing to pay for until we get it. When the road is built into Warsaw from Carrollton the money is due the railroad. Warsaw is certainly getting the best of the proposition as we will have an outlet for our furniture and other freight just as soon as the road reaches town. This means that we can use the road at least six months before it is built into Covington. Our freight can be taken to Worthville onto the L. & N. either—north or south. This would give our factories an advantage they never had before. We would never have another coal shortage; our farmers could ship their produce at any hour in the day or night without waiting on delayed boats; the town would begin to grow at once new houses would have to be built to shelter the people who would find work here in the furniture factories and everything would be changed materially as it has been in Carrollton since their little road has been inoperation between there and Worthville. Do we want a railroad? Now is the time we are expected to say "Yes" or "No."

B. F. Yoakum, president of the Frisco railroad, has had a table of figures prepared, showing how much the farmer gets for products sold in New York in one year, and how much the New York Consumer pays for those same products. Here are the figures:

	Consumer Pays	Farmer Gets
Eggs	$17,258,000	$28,750,000
Rice	1,334,000	3,191,000
Cabbage	1,325,000	9,125,000
Onions	821,000	3,210,000
Milk	22,912,000	6,880,000
Potatoes	3,425,000	60,000,000
Meat and poultry	219,427,000	491,000,000

On the average, the farmer gets 44 cents out of each dollar's worth of his products. The express companies the railroads, and the cold storage concerns, thanks to the failures of successive Republican administrations to protect the consumer, draw down a golden harvest in excessive charges.

Did you know—

That the Pacific end of the Panama Canal is further east than the Atlantic end?

That Venice, Italy and Montreal, Canada, are in about the same latitude?

That if an express train had started for the planet Neptune at the birth of Christ and had traveled 60 miles an hour day and night ever since it would not yet be half way there?

That Cuba would reach from New York to Chicago.

That Texas is larger than Germany and as large as 212 Rhode Islands?

That when measured in degrees of longitude, San Francisco is about in the middle of the United States including Alaska.—Chronicle.

That Missouri grows three-fifths as much corn as is grown in Europe three times the amount raised in South America and nearly half as much as the world outside of the United States produces, are authoritative estimate given by Prof. F. B. Mumford, dean of the state agricultural deparmtent of the University of Missouri.—Forum.
